RHEUMA DRIVES OUT RHEUMATISM

After 25 Years of Misery, this Man Walks, Works and Feels Fine Again

Right away—the first day you start to take RHEUMA—the Uric Acid poison begins to dissolve and leave the sore joints and muscles. Its action is little less than magical.

RHEUMA works so speedily you actually can feel the Rheumatism leaving the body. A bottle costs but 50 cents, and if you are not satisfied Warne Drug Co. will return your money. Read this:

"I wish to state to you the facts and nothing but the facts. I bless the day a friend brought me a 50-cent bottle of RHEUMA. I used one-half of it, and it did me more good than all the other medicines I ever tried. I had been afflicted with Rheumatism all over my body for more than 25 years; I could not walk, and was a broken-down man. During that time I spent a small fortune trying to be rid of the horrible disease, but without help. However, Rheuma reached my case, and I thank God I can again use my feet and do my work.

"Before taking your medicine I was staying with a daughter on her farm, and despite her loving efforts to tempt my appetite, I could not eat. After I had taken RHEUMA two days my appetite returned. Yours for prosperity."—Prof. H. H. Kolling, 7 S Ninth St., Richmond, Ind., Oct. 10 1912.

ABOUT ONE DOZEN CASES OF MEASLES ARE REPORTED

Will be Treated at Isolation Hospital When Written Authority is Received by Provincial Health Officer

A small epidemic of measles exists in Peterborough. About twelve cases have been reported to the Medical Health Officer, and it is quite likely in his opinion that other cases may exist of which he has been uninformed. A mild attack of measles if not reported at the proper time often develops ailments of a more serious character, and hence should be reported immediately.

The outbreak caused Dr. McPherson to apply to the Board of Health this morning in reference to the wisdom or advisability of admitting patients with measles to the Queen Mary Hospital. The M.H.O. was in communication yesterday with Dr. McCullough, the Provincial Health Officer and secured his verbal sanction of such cases being granted admission for treatment. However, Dr. McPherson also brought the matter before the Board of Health and in the meantime, awaits the written authority of Dr McCullough, who promised to forward it without delay.

Dr. Pherson assured the Board that there was absolutely no danger of patients from measles being subjected to infection from any other diseases which other patients in the Hospital might have, such as diptheria, etc. Patients would be in different wards and no communication of any kind allowed to and fro.

Dr McPherson was empowered with authortiy therefore to make arrangements for receiving a case of measles at the Hospital after written authority had been received from Dr. McCullough.

He was also given authority to have two hundred cards printed for placarding houses containing cases of measles, the cards to be white with a red cross sign to be printed on them. No one will be permitted to enter any houses where measles prevail without the consent of the Medical Health Officer.

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE VIEW THE BODY OF THE LATE BISHOP O'CONNOR

Every preliminary detail in preparation for the funeral of His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, will be completed this evening, in readiness for the funeral which takes place at nine-thirty to-morrow morning in St. Peter's Cemetery.

In all the pulpits throughout the Peterborough Diocese yesterday, special prayers and references were uttereed in memory of the departed Bishop. Fitting and sincere tokens of regret at the passing of such a generally revered and beloved prelate were freely expressed. Priests from this and other dioceses are in the city and many more will arrive to-day on the evening trains to attend the funeral which will be conducted with all the solemnity and ritual ceremonies of the Roman Catholic church observed on such an occasion. This evening at St. Peter's Cathedral, the office for the dead ritual will be sung by the visiting clergy.

The body of the dead prelate was removed from his house yesterday afternoon at three o'clock. The priests of the diocese, dressed in surplice, and headed by the cross bearers preceded the corpse, reciting misere, until the church was reached, when they were met at the doors of the cathedral by His Lordship Bishop Scollard, of North Bay, after which the corpse was directed in state in the sanctuary. Bishop Scollard officiated at prayers which followed. The church was filled, to its utmost capacity throughout the remainder of the day till the doors were closed at night, thousands of the late Bishop's flock visited the church, in fact, every adherent of the church who was able to attend did so.

The doors of the cathedral will remain open to-night till 9.30 o'clock, and the body may be viewed till 9.30 to-morrow morning, when funeral ceremonies will commence. Pontificial mass will be sung by His Grace Archbishop Spratt, of Kingston, and Bishop Scollard will give the sermon. Low mass was said this morning from 7 to 8 o'clock and solemn high mass at 9 o'clock for the repose of the late Bishop's soul.

The flag on the city building floats at half-mast as a token of respect to the memory of the dead. The exterior of St. Alphonsus Lyceum is also appropriately draped with purple, as is also St. Alphonsus Lyceum and the hall of the Catholic Order of Foresters. All the Catholic societies of the city will attend the funeral.

COL. MAIDMENT AT S. A. TEMPLE

Peterboro' Corps the First to be Visited by Him

Services at the Salvation Army on Sunday were largely attended. The visiting officers, Col. Maidment, late of the West Indies, and Brigadier Rawling, of Montreal, gave interesting addresses. Fire Chief Howard was chairman at the afternoon and evening meetings.

The local corps is the first in Canada to be visited by Col. Maidment, who is the new Chief Secretary. Bandmaster Peryer and Mr. Gandy welcomed Col. Maidment, on behalf of the band and the corps.

WEDDING BELLS

WILSON — BUCKLEY

A pretty wedding was solemnized on Thursday, January 23rd, at St. Patrick's Church, Toronto, by Rev. Father Derling, when Miss Helen Buckley, formerly of Peterborough was united in marriage to Mr. Herb. Wilson, of Napanee. The bride was wearing a graceful gown of ivory duchess satin draped with ninon and trimmed with seed pearls. She wore a large ivory velvet hat trimmed with Irish point lace and willow plume, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and fern. She was attended by her sister, Miss Clara Buckley, who looked charming in a gown of apricot satin and shadow lace and a bever hat to match with American Beauty rose on brim. She carried pink and white carnations and wore the groom's gift, a sapphire and diamond ring. Mr. J. J. Shanahan supported the groom, and was favored with a set of gold initialed cuff links. The bride's gift from the groom was a piano. The bridal party drove to the bride's home on Berkley streeet, where a dejeuner was served, afterwards the bride cut her cake and slipped away to change her wedding gown for a travelling costume of brown corduroy velvet and mink toque with bird of paradise, and mink furs. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson left on the 10.30 train for their future home in Regina.

A Magnificent Piano

A magnificent Steinway Grand Piano arrived here to-day, to be used by "Miss Kilmaster" at her Recital in the Conservatory of Music to-morrow night. "Steinway is acknowleged the World's greatest Piano." The local representative is F. Whitehouse, 332 George street. 66

THEATRICAL

If there was anything not exactly to the liking of the two large audiences at the Grand on Saturday, it was the fact of Wilbur Emmerson having to face a United States Court, with a long term behind prison walls staring him in the face. He had gambled and lost. But the honor of the Emmersons was sustained.

The story of "The Gamblers" has to do with a young financier, who has followed in the footsteps of others desiring to gain a fortune in too short a time. He finds himself involved with the Federal Government through the misuse of the funds of a banking institution, of which he is the brains. At the very moment he obtains the sum needed to straighten out the financial tangles, one of his partners, frightened by threats of jail sentence, turns over to the prosecuting attorney certain notes that are sufficient evidence to send to prison the heads of the bank, including the young man's father, who is innocent of wrong doing.

The presentation was in the hands of a company with ability, and the result was some of the finest acting seen on the Grand Opera House stage. The stage dressings, too, were something far above the average.

PIANO RECITAL

The Kindergarten and piano recital given by the pupils of Miss Hazel Dean on Saturday, was a revelation to the large audience, of the clever musical training and ability possessed by all who took part. The children acquitted themselves splendidly and performed with a dexterity and skill that won unstinted applause from all.

NOTICE re HYDRO Light & Power

The citizens having decided to enter into the business of supplying electricity for light and power, we wish to remind them that the success of their enterprise will depend upon themselves taking light and power from the City's system. The more light and power that is used from the City system the cheaper it will be. Consequently NO CITIZENS SHOULD ENTER INTO A NEW CONTRACT FOR LIGHT OR POWER UNTIL THE CITY IS READY TO SUPPLY THEM.

The Hydro Commission and the Power Committee are making all possible speed to have everything ready to begin work when spring opens, and there will be no delay. Every citizen should be ready to support them and thus enable all to get the light and power at the cheapest rate.

CHANGES ARE CANCELLED

C.P.R. and G.T.R. Must Not Abolish Stop-over Privileges.

OTTAWA, Jan. 28.—An order concerning a lumber matter of international interest has been issued by the Railway Commission. It cancels proposed tariff changes by the G.T.R. and C.P.R., abolishing stopover privileges on international lumber shipments, except those destined exclusively to points in the United States. Consignees to whom lumber is shipped, whether from the United States to Canada or vice versa, often prefer to receive the timber in a partly manufactured state, planed or otherwise treated. Hitherto the railways have accorded the privilege to both United States and Canadian shippers of forwarding raw lumber from the shipping point to some intermediate point, where it is manufactured, at the through rate, and then shipping it on again to its destination for a slight advance over the regular tariff which would be charged for unbroken forwarding.

Now, however, the railways propose to abolish this stopover privilege on all shipments except those designed for United States points. On complaint having been made, the board has issued an order suspending the operation of the changes, and the case will be heard in Toronto on Feb. 7.

BALKAN ALLIES GAIN A DAY

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The special committee appointed by the Balkan plenipotentiaries drafted a note yesterday, notifying the Turkish plenipotentiaries that they propose to break off the peace negotiations. The note was not submitted to the Balkan delegates, which held no meeting yesterday. Instead the delegates gave a luncheon in celebration of Saint Day of Saba, the patron of the Orthodox Church. This was attended by several of the military members of the delegations, who are leaving London to rejoin the armies in expectation of the resumption of hostilities.

The note as drafted is very brief. It reminds the Turks that since Jan. 6 the sittings of the peace conference have been suspended, without Turkey making any move toward their resumption. While the events which have occurred in Constantinople are the best proof of Turkey's answer to the demands of the allies concerning Adrianople and the Aegean Islands will be negative. On this account, unless the Turkish delegation has fresh proposals to make, the note points out, the allies see no alternative but definitely to break off the negotiations.

The Servian ex-Premier, M. Novakovitch, will give a luncheon on Tuesday in honor of the other delegations, after which a meeting will be held for the purpose of examining the note. Thus again another day will be gained before facing the question of reopening the war.

PEERS WILL BE OUT IN FORCE

They Will Probably Vote on Home Rule on Thursday.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The Irish home rule bill came up for second reading and debate in the House of Lords yesterday afternoon. It is not likely that the Lords will reach a vote on the bill before Thursday.

Lord Crewe foreshadowed a federal system of self-government applying to Scotland, following upon the ultimate passage of the Irish home rule bill.

Acting in place of Lord Lansdowne, the Duke of Devonshire then moved the rejection of the bill.

That the Lords will reject the bill is certain. Under the veto act, Premier Asquith will merely have to get his present bill through the Commons three times and it will automatically become a law, regardless of the Lords' rejections.

The arrogant old Marquis of Clanricarde, worst hated of all Irish landlords, was early on the scene, despite his eighty years, determined to oppose anything that savored of freedom for Ireland.

LEDGER KEEPER WAS NERVY

Had Desperate Fight in Bank With Two Robbers

Canadian Press Despatch.

Edmonton, Jan. 28.—In a daring bank robbery at half past twelve this morning, two masked men entered the Bank of Nova Scotia, and at the point of a gun, ordered Clare West, the ledger keeper, alone in the bank, to throw up his hands.

West refused, and after a desperate struggle the robbers bound him and proceeded to rifle the safe of several hundred dollars.

Meanwhile West wriggled one arm free and opened fire on the robbers who returned it, slightly wounding West. The noise of the shooting attracted numerous passersby but the robbers escaped by the rear.

TSAR FERDINAND OF BULGARIA

Following the revolution at Constantinople, which has resulted in the overthrowing of the Cabinet of Kiamil Pacha and the formation of a new Cabinet, Turkey is again clamoring for war. Unless the Powers again interfere and force Turkey to yield, the Balkan States will be obliged to resume the war and begin hostilities once more.

LEMIEUX DEMANDS ENQUIRY IN BANQUE INTERNATIONALE

Former Postmaster-General Declares That Good Name of Canada Was Smirched by Vicissitudes of Banking Concern, But Premier Reminds Him That the Bank is Not Insolvent.

OTTAWA, Jan. 28.—It was private members' day in the House yesterday and Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux arrogated the central position in the proceedings with a demand for an inquiry into the affairs of the Banque Internationale. He also assailed the "Quebec Merger" on the ground that it and the Banque Internationale had proven disastrous to French investors, and would give Canada a financial "black eye" in France.

The Premier reminded Mr. Lemieux that the Banque Internationale was a going concern and could not be made the subject of a royal commission enquiry as in the case of the defunct Farmers' Bank.

Postmaster-General Pelletier took the ground that there was nothing to investigate so far as the bank was concerned, and attributed Mr. Lemieux's attack upon the Forget properties to political malice and spite.

Mr. Lemieux, in speaking to his motion respecting the "Quebec merger," explained that the original merger was a holding company which acquired control of a number of public utility corporations in and around Quebec city. The merger, or the financiers controlling it, floated other enterprises, including the Quebec and Saguenay Railway, the Quebec and Eastern Railway, and some developments in the Lake of St. John district. They sold securities in France to the extent of 17,860,000 francs. There were some dividends paid which were not earned, and the unfortunate French investors now found the issue they had purchased to be entirely worthless. The result of this high finance was to besmirch the name of Canada in France to such an extent that no French capital could be hoped for in this country for many years to come. Mr. Lemieux urged that a committee of the House be appointed to thoroughly investigate the matter.

The Prime Minister said that no representations had been received by the Government of Canada. If any were made they would be courteously received and dealt with. At the same time, the Dominion Government could not guarantee to protect investors who lost money in unfortunate investments, whether they lived in Canada or in some other country.

Mr. Lemieux then turned his attention to La Banque Internationale du Canada. The Laurier Government, he said, had refused to issue a certificate to this bank to do business because of suspicious circumstances surrounding the application. They had observed that one J. B. A. Daoust had subscribed for $2,000,000 of stock. This seemed extraordinary, because this same gentleman had been denied the use of the mails by the Canadian Government for an enterprise which the Postoffice Department regarded as a lottery. When, however, the present Government came into power a certificate was issued at once.

Continuing Mr. Lemieux went on to say that the shareholders in La Banque Internationale were divided into two groups, the French group and the Canadian group. The French subscribed for $8,000,000 and the Canadians for $2,000,000. The Canadian subscriptions, however, were all pooled under a guarantee that the stock would be disposed of in such a way as to net them 100 per cent. profit.

Not long since, the note of J. B. A. Daoust for $200,000, had been discounted by the bank, and this fact, in connection with certain ugly rumors caused the French stockholders to become uneasy. At the last annual meeting in September they were represented by proxies, but the gentlemen holding these proxies were physically ejected from the meeting place, and the Canadian stockholders, holding only 20 per cent. of the stock, elected a board of directors and retained control of the bank. The Daoust note was returned as an asset by the bank. This led to a criminal prosecution of the manager of the bank, who stated that he had acted contrary to his judgment upon the order of the president. The criminal prosecution had been held behind closed doors and had finally resulted in no warrant being issued. This was in part due to the fact that a merger had been arranged between the Home Bank and La Banque Internationale.

Mr. Lemieux, in conclusion, demanded that a royal commission be appointed, as in the case of the Farmers' Bank, to investigate the whole affair.

Finance Minister White characterized many of Mr. Lemieux's statements as "a tissue of reckless falsehoods." He maintained that the Laurier Government had never refused a certificate to the Banque Internationale, but had referred the whole matter, without expressing any opinion on its merits, to the incoming Government. The accusations against the present management had been dealt with by the courts and that he, as Finance Minister, had no right or power to interfere.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier read from the minutes of the Treasury Board to show that the late Government had pointed out several objections to the granting of a certificate to La Banque Internationale.

Mr. Borden said there was a great deal of nonsense being talked by members of the House who failed to realize that the bank was a going concern. If the bank had improperly paid $200,000 to Mr. Daoust or anybody else, the bank itself was able to recover the money by suit. A royal commission had been appointed to investigate the Farmers' Bank, but only after that bank had become defunct.

WOMAN FATALLY BEATEN BY SIX FRENCH-CANADIANS

Husband Finds Wife Lying Nude in an Empty Apple Barrel.

MONTREAL, Jan. 28.—From around Riviere du Loup, Que., there comes a story which has aroused the whole population in that district.

A few days ago six French-Canadians, four married and two single men, called on Mrs. Desjardins, the wife of an I.C.R. employe, during the absence of her husband, taking with them six bottles of liquor.

When the husband returned to his home, he found the place wide open and the body of his wife lying nude in an empty apple barrel. The body was marked all over with burns from cigar stubs. She had been beaten and kicked and was in a dying condition.

A priest, who arrived to give her the last rites of the church, failed to recognize the woman she was so disfigured.

The woman who is now dead, lived long enough to give the names of her assailants, and the provincial police are now busy investigating the case.

It is stated that one of the men connected with the affair, is the father of a large family. Two of the men have already fled from justice, while it is claimed that others have paid large sums of money to try and get the affair hushed up.

ULSTER ARMING

Preparations For Resistance Said to be General.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—A cable from London to The Tribune says: According to news from Londonderry, preparations on a military basis are going on all over Ulster with a view to resistance to any Dublin Parliament by an armed and disciplined force.

Such reports, however, must be taken side by side with the fact that the pending bye-election fight in Londonderry will be one of the closest in the history of the borough. Friday next is the polling day.

KINGSTON, Jan. 28.—N. Bunker, student of Queen's, skated on thin ice on the Rideau River and would have drowned, but for timely arrival of three fellow students, R. Cairns, F. Bird and G. Haitte. The three formed a human chain, Cairns crawling on his hands and knees to the edge of the ice and throwing his overcoat to Bunker, in this way he was pulled out.

PROBING PORCUPINE TROUBLES

OTTAWA, Jan. 28.—The case of the labor leaders at Porcupine who recently came under the displeasure of the law for enfringement of the Industrial Disputes Act, and who were sentenced to a fine of $300 or three months' imprisonment, is occupying the attention of the Minister of Labor, Hon. T. W. Crothers. An appeal has been taken by counsel for the three men convicted against the judge's ruling. The Minister is consulting with the Attorney-General's Department.

The charge against the men was one of inciting laborers to strike, and the conviction is the first of its kind under the act. There is some conjecture as to how far the precedent established by the court's ruling will affect the labor world in general.

DROPPING OF FRANCHISE BILL ENRAGES SUFFRAGETTS

Prime Minister Asquith Announces That in View of the Speaker's Ruling it is Useless to Proceed With the Measure.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—England is on the brink of another campaign by the suffragettes, in comparison with which former outbreaks of the militant women will appear insignificant. Last night 2,000 policemen were engaged in dispersing the huge crowds around the Parliament buildings, shopkeepers were boarding up their windows and excited women were making incendiary speeches in several halls. The women hold that the politicians have played a carefully studied trick upon them, and the decision of the Government to drop the franchise bill is likely to lead to serious consequences.

In the House of Commons yesterday the Speaker, the Rt. Hon. James W. Lowther, in response to an enquiry by the Prime Minister, announced that if any amendments to the franchise bill, giving women the vote, should be adopted, he would be obliged to rule that they make it substantially a new bill, which would compel its withdrawal.

Mr. Asquith thereupon announced that the Cabinet decided, under such circumstances, that it would be useless to proceed. This decision was taken in a crowded House which displayed more interest in the subject than had been shown in the last stages of the home rule bill.

In the meantime police in great numbers, mounted and afoot, were having difficulties outside the buildings to keep the vast crowds in check, while reserve forces stationed in courtyards in the vicinity of Parliament were held in readiness to check disorders of a more serious nature.

The suffragettes held heated meetings last night. Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst and other leaders, denounced both the enemies and the supporters of the suffragettes in the Cabinet for their treachery. They declared an end of the truce, which the women had observed while awaiting Parliament's action on the bill.

"Deeds not words," was the motto displayed above the platform where Mrs. Pankhurst spoke. She asserted that the women would consider human life sacred, but would do as much damage to property as possible.

Some of her lieutenants failed to agree with her policy. Miss Annie Kenny, one of the most prominent of the militants, advocated the smashing of both property and heads. The executive committee of the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies adopted a resolution rejecting Mr. Asquith's offer of facilities for a private member's bill next session.

Several speakers said that the women had prepared a plan of action which for the present was secret, but which would surprise the world.

Several women were arrested last night, some of whom declined to give their names. One, believed to be Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, was captured in St. Stephen's Hall, leading to the House of Commons, where she was making a determined attack on a large painting.

Mrs. Pankhurst's denunciation of the Government was fiery and bitter. "The farce of the reform bill is played out," she said. "Either those who framed the bill were ignorant of Parliamentary procedure, and they were unfit to occupy positions of responsibility, or they were scoundrels of the worst sort. It has been a mock battle, arranged. Mr. Harcourt and Mr. Lloyd-George were seen going arm in arm into a music hall Saturday. Can you imagine them saying: 'Well, now that we have dished the women, let us forget about it and go and see the cinematograph'."

HERE BABE WAS KILLED AND MOTHER WOUNDED

Galician Woman Defended House Against Constables Near Dauphin and During Siege Four-Year-Old Was Slain.

DAUPHIN, Man., Jan. 28.—The killing of a baby and the shooting of its mother was the pitiful sequel yesterday of the assault on Police Constable Rooke at the home of John Baran, twenty miles southwest of Dauphin Sunday.

The tragedy yesterday was the result of the determined effort of the woman occupying the Baran home not to admit the constables, who were in search of Baran. She came here lately from Winnipeg, and has been living with Baran.

On arriving at Baran's house they were fired upon. They returned the fire, with the result that Baran's wife was wounded and her baby killed. They found no trace of the man in the house. The woman was brought to Dauphin Hospital, where she is receiving treatment.

Yesterday's affair followed the efforts of a posse commanded by Chief of Police Briddle to capture John Baran. It was just after daylight yesterday morning that Chief Briddle cautiously approached the Baran home. The place stands in a clearing, and there was no cover to shield the officers. Scarcely had they come within gunshot distance of the small shack in the bush when a fusillade of shots were fired from a small window.

The officers returned the fire. None of them was shot.

Later the officers again approached the house, no shots having been heard. A middle-aged woman lay on the floor, wounded in the shoulder, and on a small bed by her side was the still form of her baby, about four years of age. It was soon found to be dead.

At first the officers looked for Baran, but the first words the woman spoke convinced them that she told the truth. "He is not here. I did the shooting—me—all of it. Is the baby dead?"

The woman answered questions, but remained mute except when directly questioned by the officers. She said the shooting of Rooke had been done by her, but did not explain why.

The condition of Rooke, whom Baran shot over the heart, is unchanged and critical.

HONORS TO COLLEAGUE

Late Col. Matheson's Associates Are Attending Funeral.

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—Cabinet Ministers and members of Parliament from all parts of Ontario will attend the funeral this afternoon in Perth of the late Col. the Hon. A. J. Matheson, Provincial Treasurer. Although it is improbable that Sir James Whitney, for twenty years a comrade of the late treasurer, will go to Perth, the Government will be represented by the following Cabinet Ministers: Messrs. Hanna, Lucas, Duff, Hearst, Dr. Reaume, and the Speaker, Hon. W. H. Hoyle. The Lieutenant-Governor, Sir John Gibson, will be represented by his A.D.C., Major Caldwell.

Out of respect for the late colonel, Sir James Whitney has ordered the Parliament Buildings to be closed at one o'clock to-day. It is altogether likely that several Cabinet Ministers and members of the House of Commons will also attend the funeral.

Col. Matheson will be given a military funeral. Ever since the North-west Rebellion in 1885 he was commander of the 42nd Regiment of Perth. He also served in the Fenian Raid.

HOCKEY FAN MEETS DEATH

Canadian Press Despatch.

Kingston, Jan. 28.—William Wilson, of Napanee, who came here last night to attend the hockey match, was thrown off the platform of the train and injured so severely that he died in the General Hospital. He was twenty-seven years of age and leaves a wife and two children.

WEST FEARS MEAT FAMINE

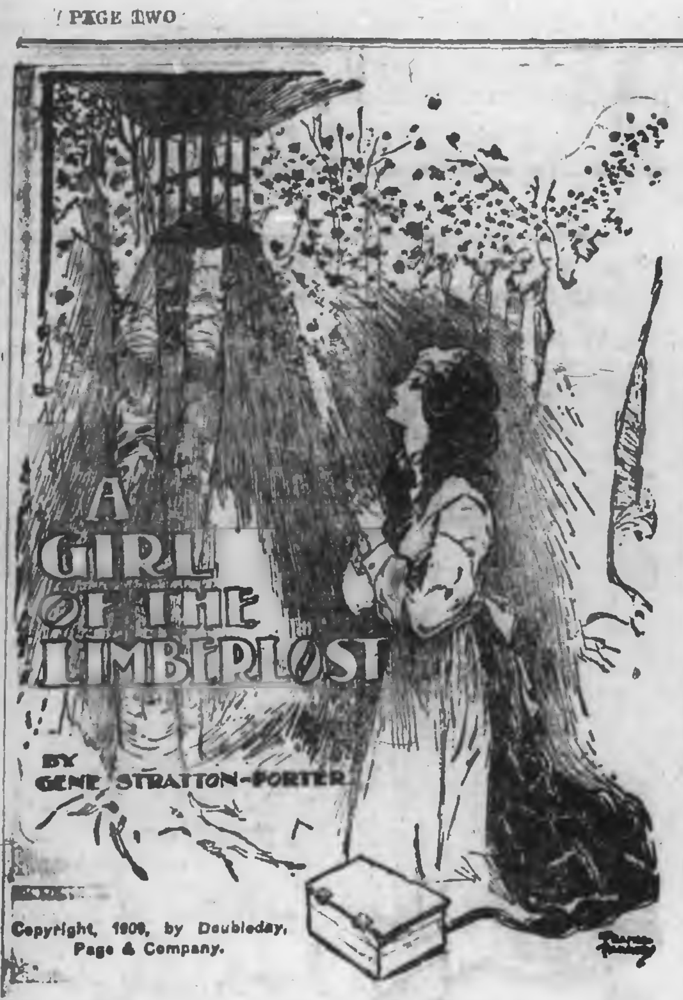
Pat Burns estimated that $700,000 worth of dressed beef was consumed in the recent fire, with five as much more pork and mutton. Much of the mutton was from Australia.

Beef on the hoof has risen from five to seven and a quarter cents and is scarce. The retailers are boosting their prices proportionately.



Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Company.

Elnora opened the door and stepped into her mother's room with never a misgiving. She hurried to the bed to find only her last summer's white dress, freshly washed and ironed.

Somewhere a dainty lawn or mull dress simply must be hanging. But it was not. Elnora dropped on the chest because she felt too weak to stand. In less than two hours she must be in the church at Onabasha. At last she opened the door.

"I can't find my dress," she said.

"Well, as it's the only one there I shouldn't think it would be much trouble."

"You mean for me to wear an old washed dress tonight?"

"It's a good dress. There isn't a hole in it! There's no reason on earth why you shouldn't wear it."

"Except that I will not," said Elnora. "Didn't you get me any dress for commencement, either?"

"If you soil that tonight I've plenty of time to wash it again."

Sinton's voice called from the gate.

She ran upstairs and in an incredibly short time came down wearing one of her gingham school dresses. With a cold, hard face she passed her mother and went into the night. A half hour later Margaret and Billy stopped for Mrs. Comstock with the carriage. She had determined fully that she would not go before they called. With the sound of their voices a sort of horror of being left seized her, so she put on her hat, locked the door and went out to them.

Wesley was waiting before the big church to take care of the team. As they stood watching the people enter the building Mrs. Comstock felt herself growing ill without knowing why. When they went inside among the lights, saw the flower decked stage and the masses of finely dressed people she grew no better. She could hear Margaret and Billy softly commenting on what was being done.

"That first chair in the very front row is Elnora's," exulted Billy. "cos she's got the highest grades and so she gets to lead the procession to the platform."

"The first chair!" "Lead the procession!" Mrs. Comstock was dumfounded. A wave of positive illness swept over her. What had she done? What would become of Elnora?

CHAPTER XV.

Wherein Elnora Is Graduated With the Bird Woman's Help.

AS Elnora rode to the city she answered Wesley's questions in monosyllables so that he thought she was nervous or rehearsing her speech and did not care to talk. Several times the girl tried to tell him and realized that if she said the first word it would bring a torrent of tears. The Bird Woman opened the screen and stared unbelievingly.

"Why, I thought you would be ready; you are so late!" she said. "If you have waited to dress here we will have to hurry."

"I have nothing to put on," said Elnora.

"Did—did"— she faltered, "did you think you would wear that?"

"No. I thought I would telephone Ellen that there had been an accident and I could not come. I don't know yet how to explain. I'm too sick to think. Oh, do you suppose I can get something made by Tuesday so that I can graduate?"

"Yes, and you'll get something on you tonight, so that you can lead your class, as you have done for four years. Go to my room and take off that gingham quickly. Anna, drop everything and come help me."

The Bird Woman ran to the telephone and called Ellen Brownlee.

"Elnora has had an accident. She will be a little late," she said. "You have got to make them wait. Have them play an extra musical number before the march."

Then she turned to the maid. "Tell Benson to have the carriage at the gate just as soon as he can get it there. Then come to my room. Bring the thread box from the sewing room, that roll of wide white ribbon on the cutting table and gather all the white pins from every dresser in the house. But first come with me a minute.

"I want that trunk with the Swamp Angel's stuff in it from the cedar closet," she panted as they reached the top of the stairs.

They hurried down the hall together and dragged the big trunk to the Bird Woman's room. She opened it and began tossing out white stuff.

"How lucky that she left these things!" she cried. "Here are white shoes, gloves, stockings, fans, everything."

"I am all ready but a dress," said Elnora.

The Bird Woman began opening closets and pulling out drawers and boxes.

"I think I can make it this way," she said.

She snatched up a creamy lace yoke with long sleeves that recently had been made for her and held it out. Elnora slipped into it, and the Bird Woman began smoothing out wrinkles and sewing in pins. It fitted very well with a little lapping in the back. Next, from among the Angel's clothing she caught up a white silk waist with low neck and elbow sleeves, and Elnora put it on. It was large enough, but distressingly short in the waist, for the Angel had worn it at a party when she was sixteen. The Bird Woman loosened the sleeves and pushed them to a puff on the shoulders, catching them in places with pins. She began on the wide draping of the yoke, fastening it front, back and each shoulder. She pulled down the waist and pinned it. Next came a soft white silk dress skirt of her own. By pinning her waist band quite four inches above Elnora's, the Bird Woman could secure a perfect Empire sweep with the clinging silk. Then she began with the wide white ribbon that was to trim a new frock for herself, bound it three times around the high waist effect she had managed, tied the ends in a knot and let them fall to the floor in a beautiful sash.

"Elnora," she said, "forgive me, but tell me truly. Is your mother so extremely poor as to make this necessary?"

"No," answered Elnora. "She is—is different."

"Oh!" panted Elnora. "Is that me? You are a genius! Why, I will look as well as any of them."

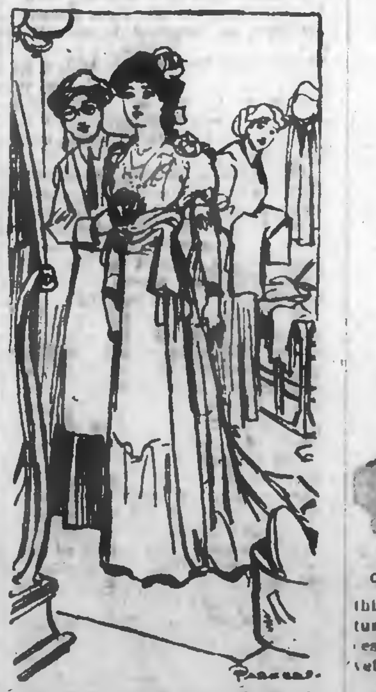
The organ began rolling out the march as they came in sight. Elnora took her place at the head of the procession, while every one wondered.

Mrs. Comstock gripped her hands together and shut her eyes. It seemed an eternity to the suffering woman before Margaret caught her arm and whispered: "Oh, Kate! For any sake look at her! Here! The aisle across!"

Mrs. Comstock opened her eyes and, directing them where she was told, gazed intently and slid down in her seat on the verge of a collapse. She was saved by Margaret's tense grip and her command, "Here, idiot, stop that!"

In the blaze of light Elnora climbed the steps to the palm embowered platform, crossed it and took her place. Sixty young men and women, each of them dressed the best possible, followed her. There were manly, fine looking men in that class which Elnora led. There were girls of beauty and grace, but not one of them was handsomer or clothed in better taste than she.

Billy thought the time would never come when Elnora would see him, but at last she caught his eye, then Margaret and Wesley got faint signs of recognition in turn, but there was no softening of the girl's face and no hint of a smile when she saw her mother.



"Oh!" panted Elnora. "Is that me?"

Heartsick, Katharine Comstock gripped her seat and tried to prove to herself that she was justified in what she had done, but she could not.

MISS TARBELL ON SUFFRAGE.

The Ballot Not So Important as General Efficiency.

"Personally I am rather indifferent about suffrage," said Miss Ida Tarbell recently. "Whether women vote or not is a matter of comparatively small moment in the great evolution of woman and humanity. The important thing is to develop efficiency, and there is no sex in that, for men and women alike must learn to make efficient human beings of themselves. That applies to every one. The young married woman must make a profession out of her home life, not sit back in archaic laziness. And she has one of the most difficult professions in the world. The young unmarried woman should find the work in which she can be most useful and then she should develop herself along that line.

"I do not at all believe in marriage for every woman," said Miss Tarbell with quiet emphasis. "It is practically a crime to marry without a foundation of true love, and I am absolutely convinced that marrying merely for the sake of marriage defeats the whole institution. But efficiency is the great thing, and I believe that most of the marriages that are failures go to pieces just because of the lack of efficiency of either the man or the woman or both."

Frock With Scarf to Match.

One of the most fashionable shades of the season is taupe, a lovely tone of grayish brown that is flattering alike to brunette and blond.

CALLING COSTUME OF TAUPE VELVET.

Miss Boardman Decorated.

Miss Mabel Boardman, secretary of the American Red Cross, recently received from the White House the insignia of the Fifth Order of the Crown, conferred upon her by the Japanese emperor for distinguished service. It is the first time an American woman has been so honored by Japan. The order conferred upon Miss Boardman was specially established to recognize meritorious service done by women.

The insignia were sent to President Taft, president of the American Red Cross, by Marquis Matsukati, head of the Japanese Red Cross. President Taft has written to the marquis and to the Japanese emperor, thanking them for the honor paid Miss Boardman.

GETTING KILLED IN THE ALPS.

In 1910, 100 tourists were killed in the Alps. Last season the number was increased to 133. As to plain, simple accidents, not necessarily fatal, last year 400 experienced broken arms, legs and ribs. Once only the elite climbers. To-day "everybody's doing it" and mountain climbing has developed into a mad scramble of thousands to reach some snow-capped summit. As most of these know but little of the technique of getting killed, an English writer who spends much of his time in Switzerland has taken it upon himself to offer various rules and suggestions.

"A fascinating way," he says, "is to go and pick edelweiss. This beautiful Alpine flower contrives to bloom overhanging the most perilous abysses. To pluck it one must approach from above. Descend slowly, therefore, clinging to some small shrub. If a passing guide chances to call warning, reply that you know what you are about, and that tourists, as well as guides, have a right to pick Alpine flowers. Lean slightly over the precipice, and as one hand grasps the alluring bloom, with the other hand pull on the shrub, which will come loose, roots and all! There will be a grating sound of loose, moving rock, the overhanging ledge will cave in, and one may soar, edelweiss in hand, into the void below. There will be three lines in the newspapers about it, and a caravan of expert guides will find the body.

"Sitting down in avalanche paths is sometimes effective. A friend of mine, dispensing with guides, climbed up above Pierre Pointue on the route up Mont Blanc, and deliberately sat down quietly to lunch in a gully where avalanches come down off the Aiguille du Midi every 15 minutes. Suddenly the air was filled with singing, flying stones and ice, the velocity making the smaller stones invisible. He failed to get hit, however, and disgusted, leaving everything behind, fled to Pierre Pointue, where he recommenced with absinthe cocktails.

"Climbing without heavily nailed boots, too, has its advantages. An American, who considers it commonplace to ascend Mont Blanc like everybody else, tried it with patent leather shoes. At the 'Jonction' of the glaciers des Bossons and de Taconnaz he slipped into a crevasse, dragging with him an English friend. Guides had great difficulty in getting them out. Hot words followed the cool crevasse, and the two Anglo-Saxons, each blaming the other for what had happened, indulged in a warm pugilistic encounter in the snow.

"Nothing is easer than falling over a precipice. To get killed, therefore, the Alpinist with vertigo should tackle the Matterhorn, Schreckhorn, or the Aiguille Verte. While it lasts the sensation of falling several thousand feet must be extraordinary."

MOTHER OF LARGE FAMILY

Tells How She Keeps Her Health — Happiness For Those Who Take Her Advice.

Scottville, Mich. — "I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has helped her.

"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to your wonderful medicine." — Mrs. J. G. JOHNSON, Scottville, Mich., R. F. D. 3.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for woman's ills known.

BABY WOOD DUCKS.

Somebody, Burroughs, I believe, said "the notion that the mother duck takes the young birds one by one in her beak and carries them to the creek is doubtless erroneous." I could not see how else it could be done, writes a contributor to the Youth's Companion, and I spent several valuable days of several different years in trying to find out how it was done.

The thing that puzzled me was how the mother wood duck (Aix sponsa) managed to get her numerous progeny down from their lofty cradle and upon the water without injuring them. I was not alone in my ignorance; some very eminent ornithologists have wondered about the matter as well.

After a five mile pull one hot June day I let my boat lie in the shade of some lofty cottonwoods that grew on the lake shore, while I lay back and watched the play of shadows on the calm water.

A splash near by attracted my attention, and I looked round to see a mother wood duck just alighting. There was a little one by her side, but I did not see how it got there. In a moment the old duck rose, circled a few times to gain altitude, and made direct for a hole in a large dead tree a few rods away. The hole was at least sixty feet from the ground. The duck squeezed her body through the opening and disappeared. She came back in a few moments with a duckling in her mouth. After resting for a moment she came sailing down and placed this baby beside the first. One after another she carried down the entire brood of eleven little yellow and black fluffy balls. They flapped their tiny wings and fluttered in the water as if that were not the first time they had ever been in swimming.

The mother duck returned once more to the tree to make sure that she had not overlooked one, came back, placed herself at the head of the procession, called softly to her babies and swam away, followed by the entire family in single file.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

A QUAINT PHILOSOPHER.

He Deftly Turned His Little Faults Into Real Virtues.

In August Strindberg's "Easter (a play) and Stories," translated from the Swedish by Velma Swanston Howard, is a quaint bit of conscience easing reasoning by a matter of fact philosophical photographer. He had a partner, who posed as a real, a faultless, philosopher. But this matter of fact chap was "full of little eccentricities. For instance, he smoked tobacco all day long; he could never learn to close a door after him; he stuck the knife into his mouth instead of the fork; he went about in the house with his hat on; he manicured his nails in the middle of the atelier, and at night he had to have three mugs of ale. He was full of faults."

To his faultless partner the matter of fact one thus justified his shortcomings: "Just consider! I do not drink to excess, therefore I attend to the business. I don't steal, I never speak ill of you, I never complain, I never turn white into black, I'm never uncivil to customers, I rise early in the morning, I trim my nails to keep the developer clean, I keep my hat on my head so as not to shed hairs on the plate, I smoke tobacco to clear the atmosphere of poisonous fumes, I leave the doors ajar to avoid making a noise in the atelier, I drink ale at night so as not to fall into the whisky habit, and I shove my knife into my mouth to avoid sticking myself with the fork."

"Verily, thou art a great philosopher," said the partner. "Now we shall be friends, and thus we'll make headway."

Bound to Hit Something.

There is a cross eyed man in Cleveland who is an enthusiastic trap shooter; furthermore, he is an expert. His record is a thing to be proud of. One day last autumn a nervy friend ventured to question him thus:

"You are so horribly cross eyed that I don't see how you are able to shoot straight."

"I'll tell you my secret. I squint along the left barrel with my right eye, and I squint along the right barrel with my left eye"—

"Yes?"

"And then I fire both barrels."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

PLAIN TALK ABOUT PILES

Don't you believe that experience is better than hearsay? If you suffer from piles, just try Zam-Buk. You can do so at our expense. So assured are we of the result that we will send you a free trial box if you send to our Toronto offices full name and address and a one cent stamp to pay return postage.

Scores of people daily acquaint us with the benefit they have derived from the use of Zam-Buk for piles. Mr. F. Astridge, of 3 St. Paul St., St. Catharines, Ont., says: "For five years I have suffered untold agony with protruding piles. The pain was so great at times I would almost scream.

"I lost weight and had no appetite. I tried everything I ever heard of for piles, as I was willing to take anything to get relief. It was useless, however, and I almost gave up in despair."

"One day a friend gave me a sample of Zam-Buk and told me of a friend of his who had been cured. I decided to try Zam-Buk, and the relief I got was encouraging. I used three boxes, and at the end of that time I was completely cured. I wish I could have got Zam-Buk years ago; it would have saved me a great deal of misery."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bites, ulcers, blood-poison, varicose sores, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises and skin injuries generally. See the registered name, "Zam-Buk," on every package.

Not Only In Canada.

That outrageous bugaboo, "the cost of living," is evidently not confining its attentions to Canada alone, if one is to judge from some of the recent reports, which show that it is impossible to escape the monster by fleeing to other lands.

Take it in India, for example. There, in 1909, the wages of a staff of servants employed by a couple, consisting usually of a butler, second boy, coolie, cook, sweeper and possibly a gardener, amounted to a little more than $23 a month. In 1912 the wages of the same staff amount to $32 a month.

From Australia comes a wail that prices in living commodities have advanced about 10 per cent. during the last year. Of all the foodstuffs cited as having advanced in price the once humble onion holds the proudest position, its price having gone up 344.44 per cent. beyond that of a year ago. Beef has advanced from four to seven cents a pound.

The German I and You.

It is surprising when any one takes the trouble to notice how many letters begin with the pronoun "I." To Germans this is egotistical, and their etiquette in letter writing forbids it. It is probably on the same principle that they write I (ich) always with a small letter and you (Sie) with a capital, reversing the English custom.

She Agreed.

Will—The sight of an old schoolmate is—er—well, it might be called both meat and drink.

Bertha—Yes; that's what you men usually do in the circumstances.

"Eh?"

"Meet and drink."

MY WANT OF WISDOM

By MOLLIE K. WETHERELL

When I was eighteen years old, my father and mother both being dead, and I, not having a cent in the world, said to a friend one day that I thought I would take a trip to Europe. I well remember the look she gave me. Indeed, so impressed was she with the absurdity of my idea that she didn't think it worth while to remark upon it. The truth is I was dreaming aloud.

But a few weeks later I learned that I had been left a legacy of $400. Then I put my dream to practice. Dreamers are not understood. There is likely to be some method in their madness, but their more practical acquaintances take no cognizance of this. There was a method in my madness, though I hardly understood it myself. Perhaps my story will explain it. What I did with my $400 was to buy a two months' trip to England and the continent of Europe.

When my friends heard of what I was about to do they wondered if they had not better shut me up in a lunatic asylum.

"She's certainly gone daft," said one.

"What is she going to live on when she gets back?" remarked another.

"Do some hard work," put in a third. "That will take the nonsense out of her."

One of my chums repeated these remarks to me that I might benefit by them. But I didn't. I prepared for my journey and sailed away, remarking that I would have one good time in my life if I never had another. The last words I heard from the dock were:

"Are you coming home with that fortune?"

Now, I didn't know any more than they what was to happen to me. I certainly had no idea that my trip was to be completely spoiled, as it was. My room mate on the ship going out was a crabbed old maid. She was not only seasick, but afflicted with an incurable disease. She was so stingy that she would not tip the room stewardess, who would do nothing for her. Being unable to go to the dining saloon for meals, the invalid ordered the stewardess to bring them in to her. The stewardess would say, "Yes, m'm," go away and would not return.

What could I do—see the creature starve? Of course not. I waited on her all the way over, and when we reached Southampton, she being unable to leave the ship without assistance, I was obliged to take her ashore with me. When I got her there I felt compelled to take her to London.

"Hadn't you any relatives to come with you?" I asked.

"No, and I couldn't afford to pay the way of any of them if I had."

"Can't you afford to hire some one to take care of you?"

"No."

Well, the woman continued to grow worse. I had the choice of deserting her, leaving her to the tender mercies of nobody or staying with her. I didn't scruple to tell her that she was spoiling my trip. Her reply was that I had better go on and leave her to her fate. She might as well have told me to give her poison to get rid of her. At first she wouldn't do anything to relieve me if she could, and afterward she couldn't. She continued to sink, but remained alive, so that I couldn't get away from her and pursue my trip.

There was one curiosity in London I had always wished to see. One morning I gave a maid half a crown to attend to the invalid for a few hours while I went to the tower. When I returned the maid told me that her charge had sent her out with a note for a man, who had come to her and been shut up with her for half an hour. He had taken other persons into the room, but only for a few minutes.

I didn't care to ask an explanation of this of the sick woman, for it was none of my business. Her illness continued so long that the time and money I had put aside for my trip were nearly exhausted. One day the invalid called me to her and said to me: "I'm going to die. I don't wish any doctor to tell me so. He would charge me £2 at least, and I know it myself. After my death you will find five sovereigns in my trunk. Bury me here. My bones are not worth taking to America. You'll find an envelope under my pillow. Take it to the address in Philadelphia written on it."

The woman died just before the steamer sailed on which I had engaged a return passage. I had barely time to find a place to bury her when I was obliged to go aboard. On reaching port several of my friends were at the dock to meet me. One of them called:

"Did you see it all?"

"Oh, yes. I saw London; there's enough there to see without going farther. The tower is immensely interesting."

A few days after my arrival I thought of the envelope I was to deliver and took it to the address on it, Marbury & Smith, attorneys. One of the firm opened the envelope and took out a paper. Then he asked me some questions, finally inquiring my name. When I told him he gave me a quick glance and said:

"You are the beneficiary of this estate."

"Estate! What estate?"

"This is a will. It makes you heiress to property worth $250,000."

The moral of this story is that those who leave something to chance are not always wrong.

What He Escaped.

One evening, several years ago, in a gold-mining camp in the Transvaal, a man, partially intoxicated, and supposed to be actuated by jealousy, attempted suicide. He first took morphia, but this not proving strong enough he tried to hang himself, but was prevented and handed over to the sheriff to be kept in safe custody for the night, and to be tried before the Acting Gold Commissioner, a shrewd and solemn Scot, the next morning.

There being no law to prevent him from committing suicide if he thought fit, but it being considered desirable to punish him in some way, it was decided to bring a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct against him. To this the prisoner pleaded guilty, whereupon the Acting Gold Commissioner, without the ghost of a smile, delivered the following extraordinary judgment:

"I shall fine ye twa punds for your drunkenness; but I'll just gie ye to understand that I ken vera weel what ye attempted to dae, and, had ye succeeded in your attempt, your poonishment would have bin vera much more severe than it is!"

Newton.

Newton was so small and frail at birth that his life was despaired of. He lived, however, to be eighty-five, which was also Voltaire's age.

Sea Snakes.

Sea snakes are very plentiful in the south Pacific. They are widely distributed, stray individuals having been secured on the coast of New Zealand. When swimming close to the surface they exactly resemble an ordinary snake, except that the head is always below water. At night they come ashore and lie among the rocks. They feed on fish, and, although their small double fangs appear harmless, they are reported to be very venomous.

EQUITETTE DURING WAR

Some Rules Written Down, Some Tacitly Agreed To.

War—that is, warfare between civilized nations—has its code of etiquette, known as the customs of war, some of which are written, others tacitly agreed to.

Obvious examples of fighting etiquette are the rules which protect the Red Cross flag of the ambulance and forbid the use of explosive or, within limits, expanding bullets.

Nominally, a general may use any means in his power to bring his foe to subjection, says Answers, but there is a well-defined boundary line. A leader may cut off his enemy's food and water supplies. He may subject him to all the horrors of famine and thirst, but he must not poison his food or water.

Suppose a place is besieged and that outside the walls are wells which the besiegers cannot effectively hold and which the besieged can reach under cover of night. The besieger would be justified in sending parties to fill up the wells with earth or stones or to destroy them with dynamite. On the other hand, to pollute the wells with poison or to throw dead animals into them would be an infamy.

A "prisoner of war" has his rights. He may be asked to give his parole to promise not to escape, but he must not be forced to give his parole and is not to be punished for refusing to do so. A prisoner on parole who attempts to escape is liable to be shot, either when escaping or if retaken alive.

An unparoled prisoner may also be shot while in the act of escaping; but if recaptured it would be murder to shoot him, and he should not be punished for his attempt, though he may be placed in more rigorous confinement.

A prisoner may be compelled to earn his "keep" by working at his trade, if he has one, or by doing work for his captors not of purely military nature. Thus, he may be ordered to assist in draining the camp in which he is a prisoner; but it would not be fair to put him to building fortifications.

The customs of war justify the employment of spies, but under certain rules. If a soldier voluntarily turns traitor, the other side is entitled to make use of him; but it is not "cricket" to tempt a soldier to betray his own side.

If thus tempted, a man may pretend to turn traitor and deceive the enemy with false information. On the other hand, tending to be a traitor or deserter would be dishonorable conduct, that is, if the pretended traitor is an officer or soldier.

A spy, of course, has no rights, and is at all times liable to be shot or hanged at sight. An officer, or soldier, however, caught in the enemy's camp, must not be treated as a spy, but as a prisoner of war, provided he is not disguised.

If a commander takes part in a charge, or persistently exposes himself to fire, he must take his chances of being shot; but in big affairs it is not the "game" to detail marksmen to try to "pick off" your opponent's general, though every effort may be made to capture him.

When a city or town is bombarded, public buildings, unless used for defensive purposes, should be spared so far as possible. When a place is captured, the victorious foe is entitled to seize art treasures and so on, and to hold them to ransom. To injure or destroy them would be the act of a vandal.

Easter Sunday this year falls on March 23rd.

DRIVING HIM TO THE GRAVE

"Fruit-a-tives Saved my Life"

NIAGARA FALLS, ONT., JULY 26th, 1911.

"For thirteen years, I was a terrible sufferer from the tortures of Sick Headache, Indigestion, Constipation and Vomiting. I could not retain much food, and this, together with the pains, and headaches, was driving me to the grave.

Then I used "Fruit-a-tives" and almost at once I got relief.

"Fruit-a-tives" stopped the vomiting, relieved the Constipation, toned up the stomach, and gave me the first relief in years. I feel that I owe my life to "Fruit-a-tives" and for the sake of other victims of Indigestion and Headaches, I will allow this statement to be published."

$10,000,000 FOR FARMERS

The plan outlined by Hon. Martin Burrell for the spending of the $10,000,000 grant in aid of agriculture must bring satisfaction to all non-partisan Canadians. Mr. Burrell has put his proposals upon a very high lane, the breadth, equity and freedom from partisan bias which they embody inviting the cordial support of every class of the nation. Mr. Burrell says that the effective working of the plan depends on the co-operation of the various provincial governments, and he hopes that they will take up the scheme in the spirit in which it is intended. The plan calls for an appropriation of $10,000,000 to be spent in ten years. Mr. Burrell proposes that it shall be $700,000 in 1913, and $100,000 more each year until 1917, when the amount will be $1,100,000 each year until 1923. The money is to be divided among the provinces according to population, after a basic grant of $20,000 is made to each, irrespective of population, so that the minor provinces, such as Prince Edward Island will receive an amount enabling real improvement in agricultural education to be accomplished. No matter whether the province is represented by a Conservative or Liberal Government, there will be no discrimination in any way. The Dominion money is to be used for the national good, in the manner in which it can give the best results.

Mr. Burrell quoted, in his speech, statistics to show that the rural population of Canada was increasing in far smaller ratio than the urban. The increase of rural population in Canada between 1901 and 1910 was 1.6 in the East, and 147 per cent in the West, while the increase in urban population was 16 per cent in the East and 227 per cent in the West. Agricultural production has not increased in the same ratio as the demands of the urban consumers, and in this we have one of the causes of the increase in the cost of living. The farmers of Canada will find their markets fully increasing as time goes on, and the education scheme under way will enable them to obtain much better results for their labors. It is one of the finest things the Borden Government has done—this plan to aid the farmers of Canada—and means more to the country than the whole bulk of the Liberal wider markets cry.

BANK AMALGAMATION

The Bank bill will not come up again in the House of Commons for another week or two. It is probably just as well, since it is quite evident that the members of the Commons the proletariat, do not intend to sit silent while the White measure is pushed through. Banking is an intricate business, and the Canadian system has many splendid advantages. It is much superior to the American system. But there is a decidedly growing demand in Canada—and neither political party will be able to ignore it—that bank mergers and money centralization shall be limited. It is a well known fact that already two powerful groups of financiers—one in Montreal and the other in Toronto—pretty well control all the big financial operations in Canada. If we only knew it, this country is already in the grip of a money trust, though so far affairs have been regulated with reasonable fairness. Sir Edmund Walker said some time ago that while there was this tendency to concentration and amalgamation, he thought the existence of a democracy would be sufficient check upon the operations of the banks. He pointed out that where some years ago there were 55 banks in Scotland, now there were only seven. But while the small bank does not logically, give any advantage to the community over the large bank, yet the scale of the operations of the latter means that its resources more and more get into the hands of cliques who have a plentitude of funds wherewith to finance, while the small business man, the small manufacturer, sits out in the cold and freezes. It is denied that there has been lack of accommodation for any business worthy of it, but denials of this nature do not count for much, for it is not likely that the men who have been refused accommodation will prejudice their fair commercial name by advertising the fact in a dispute. There is safety in numbers, in many respects, in the banking business. What ought to be done is that no amalgamation of banks should be allowed except by special Act of Parliament.

OPEN MARKETS

From Landers Labor News: "Winnipeg Trades and Labor Council is seeking information concerning the Hamilton market. A communication has been received from the Winnipeg Trades and Labor Council asking for information about open markets such as we have in Hamilton, as there is an agitation on there to get the city to establish open markets. The information will be forwarded."

The hour restrictions at the Peterborough Produce market should be removed, and the foreign fruit dealers, candy butchers, &c., should be made to move out. These dealers should rent stores. Let the entire market hall and market place be kept for the farmers, gardeners and wholesale butchers and let them sell at any time to any one who desires to buy from them. That's the way to make the market popular

EDITORIAL NOTES

Remove the restrictions from the Peterborough produce market and give the farmer a chance to dispose of his truck early in the day, so he can visit the storekeepers and spend his money. "Shop early," is the cry at Christmas time, and let "market early" be the slogan all year.

In explaining the cause of the failure of a Chicago suspender factory, the manager attributed it to the decreased demand. Men's nether garments are now so constructed that they will retain their position without the aid of guy ropes and tackling, and they are gradually emancipating themselves from the bonds that have restrained freedom of movement for centuries.

Costermongers In Morocco.

In Morocco the costermonger recommends his wares by pledging the credit of a saint. "In the name of Mulai Idriss! Roast chestnuts!" "In the name of our Lord Mohammed Al Hadj! Popcorn! Popcorn!" "In the name of Sidna Ali-bu-Rhaleh! Melons! Nice, sweet melons!" "Allah is gracious! Beans! Fried beans!" "There be no might nor majesty save in Allah! Water! Cool Water!" These and the like are heard at every turn. Even the auctioneer who is calling out the price of a slave or the bids for a Rabat carpet is careful to interlard his professional talk freely with allusions to his Maker and the plethoric roll of Moorish saints.

Air Pressure.

At the level of the sea the pressure of the atmosphere on the piston of an engine is about fifteen pounds to the square inch, but decreases at higher altitudes. As this atmospheric pressure must be overcome by the steam pressure before any work can be done, it is evident that at the diminished air pressure of high altitudes more work can be obtained from a given pressure of steam than at the sea level, or, in other words, an equally effective pressure of steam can be obtained with the expenditure of less fuel. The difference, however, is not great enough to be of any practical importance.

Flexible Ivory.

Ivory may be rendered flexible by immersion in a solution of pure phosphoric acid—specific gravity 1.13—until it partially gains in transparency. Then it is washed in cold, soft water and dried. It will harden if exposed to air, but may again be made pliable by immersing in hot water.

Oldest Pipe Organ.

A church on the island of Gothland, in the Baltic sea, has the oldest pipe organ in the world, an instrument dating from 1240.

A PLEA FOR CHIVALRY

That the Flower of your Nation is going down?
That the Guardians of Home, and of Peace and love
No longer take counsel from Heaven above,
But from YOU who are faulty — to say the least —

The Girls of the Present, so blooming and fair,
Are rising in numbers — the more need of prayer,
Of serious thought on the part of the men —
Oh where are they drifting? Nay, stay not my pen!
To YOU it belongs to safeguard their young lives
And think of their future as Mothers and Wives.

3

God-fearing, God-loving, oh pray they may be;
Their guide, the good Bible, the Book of the Free;
Who worship the Saviour, who made the glad Earth,
Ye Sons of Old England and Protestant birth!
To you it belongs to safeguard their young lives
And think of their future as mothers and wives.

ANON

TIMELY WORDS OF COUNSEL IN THE INTEREST OF PETERBOROUGH BOYS

Written by Mr. Nash, Boy's Work Secretary Y.M.C.A.

Look kindly.—The expression of your face will either cast a shadow or scatter sunshine. It is a small matter and requires little effort and yet it is far reaching in its effects. It will bring gloom or cheer to those who see it. It will attract or repel. Discontent and a heavy heart or contentment and happiness will follow in its wake. It will either make or mar the home.

The countenance is the mirror of the heart. "A shining face is suggestive of a peaceful spirit." Some faces fairly glow with kindness. How comforting to be in such a presence! A smile or a frown? You answer "A smile for me everytime." Then go thou also and look kindly.

"Let us be kind;
The way is long and lonely,
And human hearts are asking for this blessing only—
That we be kind.
We cannot know the grief that men may borrow,
We cannot see the souls storm-swept by sorrow,
But love can shine upon the way to-day, to-morrow—
Let us be kind."

"Let us be kind;
This is a wealth that has no measure,
This is of heaven and earth the highest treasure—
Let us be kind.
A tender word, a smile of love in meeting,
A song of hope and victory to those retreating,
A glimpse of God and brotherhood while life is fleeting—
Let us be kind."

DESOLATION AND DESPAIR.

The Dreadful Horrors of the Turkish Cholera Camps.

The scenes of death and desolation and despair which are part and parcel of the kingdom of the god of battles seldom have been brought so vividly to the minds of peaceful people as in the terribly realistic pictures of the Turkish cholera camps and in the dispatches of hardened war correspondents, whose souls sickened at the horrors they witnessed. There were several cholera camps, but the most dreadful examples of irremediable suffering and wholesale deaths, under conditions that made death a welcome friend, were seen in the main camp at Hademkeni, a short distance behind the headquarters of Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief, on the Tchatalja lines.

"The horrid scenes in the villages in the rear of the army pale altogether into insignificance when compared with the horrors of Hademkeni," wrote a correspondent of The London Daily Telegraph, "where the remnants of the army defeated at Lule Burgas were finally rallied. Three days ago I rode over the hills from the place where I was encamped, intending to visit Hademkeni. I mounted the last slope which hid the valley in which it lies, and then I was brought to a standstill by the awful babel of sounds which arose from beneath me. I was gazing into the valley of the shadow of death. There is a station at Hademkeni, and a train was in the station. It was black with the most wretched specimens of sick humanity seeking to escape from the dread spectre. The large square in the centre of Hademkeni resembled a successful fly-paper in midsummer. It was covered with the corpses of the dead and the writhing bodies of the living in all attitudes—some prone, some sitting, some kneeling, some constantly shifting, some with hands clasped as if in supplication. In some parts of the area the dead were piled in heaps; in others those still living were almost as closely packed. This shocking lake of misery was being constantly fed by rivulets of stretcher-bearers, bringing in fresh victims from the camps and forts, and by others who crawled in of their own accord, seeming to prefer to end their days in the company of their fellow men or else expecting to find succor."

A Familiar Path.

"Well, Jorrocks, I understand you are to lead Mrs. Wintringham-Jones-Smythe to the altar," said Bubbleton.

"Not on your life," returned Jorrocks. "She knows the way. I'm just going along."

A Conservative.

"I don't like to be always moving about," declared the cook.

"Don't eh?" said the new janitor. "I've been in this apartment house a year. There's ninety families in it. I'm good for a year more."

At Cross Purposes.

"Ole Pengborn is working himself to skin and bone trying to keep that boy of his in college."

"And what's the boy doing?"

"Doing his best to be expelled."

BOUNDARY LINE MARKS

Those Between Hanover and Holland on the Rhine Are Unique.

Many of the international boundary marks display a sentimental as well as a practical character. The famous "Pillar of Farewell," which marks the line between Russia and Siberia, has been celebrated in song and story. This boundary mark stands between Ekaterinburg, in Russia, and Tiumen, in Siberia. It stands on the main road, along which thousands of exiles have passed. It is an obelisk of brick, sixteen feet in height. On the west side it bears in Russian characters the word "Europe," and on the east side the word "Asia."

The boundary marks along our northern frontier, separating us from Canada, are of a most practical sort. For many hundreds of miles the St. Lawrence river and the great lakes form the natural boundaries, but there is a vast stretch of prairie land beyond with no natural demarcation. The boundary marks here are pillars of iron and wood placed at intervals of one mile. They have been alternately supplied by the two governments and may be seen from the Lake of the Woods to the Red river valley. Beyond that the marks are mounds of earth and cairns of stone.

The strangest of European frontier lines is that marking the boundary between Hanover and Holland, where it crosses the Rhine. A row of pontoons lies across the river, chained bow and stern. Inasmuch as the dividing line runs through from stem to stern, the eastern halves of the boats are painted in German colors, the western in Dutch. The effect is most striking.

Austria has a frontier line of about 3,800 miles, of which 2,080 is land. Every mile of this must be guarded against the encroachments of Austria's neighbors. Germany is in a similar situation, since her land frontiers, bordering upon Russia, Austria, Switzerland, France, Holland and Belgium are 2,255 miles in extent, and by far the larger portion is not protected by mountains, rivers or any other natural boundaries. The German seacoast, however, is only 744 miles in extent.—Harper's.

Scott's Narrow Escape.

The world had a narrow escape of never having known a Sir Walter Scott. When a tiny babe he was left in charge of a maid, but the girl's heart was in Edinburgh, whither she wanted to go to rejoin her lover. She was, however, compelled to stay and look after the infant at Sandy Knowe. The girl regarded her charge as an obstacle to be removed and afterward confessed that she carried young Scott up to the crags (under a strong temptation of the devil, as she expressed it), fully intending to cut his throat with her scissors and bury him under the moss.

Courts of Love.

"Courts of love" were established in the middle ages, when chivalry was at its height and love the serious occupation of life among the higher class of society. The first "court of love" was established in the south of France in the twelfth century and was composed of knights, poets and ladies, and their decisions on subtle questions connected with affairs of the heart were given with great formality.

DR. JOHNSTON HAS RUNAWAY

Condition of Roads Responsible for Accident He Says

Will Ask the City to Pay Bill of Damages

An exciting runaway occurred yesterday afternoon. While driving slowly up Hunter street, near the corner of Hunter and Stewart, Dr. Johnston had the misfortune to upset while turning out for some ladies who were walking on the road. At this particular point the grade is high, which leaves on both sides a deep ditch, and in turning out Dr. Johnston upset and was thrown heavily to the ground. He managed to hang on to the reins. The horse, after several ineffective plunges to get away, finally succeeded in dashing across the road and jumping the fence opposite. By this time a crowd had gathered, and a few of the less timid ones grabbed the animal by the head, while others tried to unhitch it from the badly wrecked cutter. The horse plunged, and getting clear of the wreckage cleared the fence again and ran down Hunter street towards George street, where it was caught by Mr. Thos Lane. The horse is badly cut and is unable to be used, while Dr. Johnston is suffering from a nasty cut on his leg and also several bruises which are painful. Mr. Geo Wheeler while trying to capture the frightened animal, was cut above the eye.

Dr. Johnston has instructed Mr. Hatton to take action against the city for damages.

CLARE GETS AN OVATION.

GALT, Jan. 28.—Last night was a gala night in Preston. At the opera house supporters of George A. Clare, M.P., from all sections of South Waterloo gathered to honor their representative in the Dominion Parliament. Mr. Clare was tendered an address and presentation. Among the speakers were Senator Pope and Hon. Dr. Roche, Minister of the Interior.

The affair was an outstanding one in the annals of South Waterloo, and was fully enjoyed. A special car carried the Galt guests, and the Burns' Club Pipe Band accompanied the Galt party. Mr. Clare modestly accepted congratulations on his recent honor.

Death of Civil Servant.

OTTAWA, Jan. 28.—Aexander MacKie, a prominent civil servant, died suddenly yesterday of acute bronchial pneumonia. His wife lies critically ill of the same trouble. He left four children, only two of whom, George of Hamilton, and Mrs. Henry of Oshawa, Ont., were able to reach his bedside in time. He was a member of many fraternal bodies and an enthusiastic bowler and curler. Interment will take place at Oshawa.

To Double Track Line.

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—It was learned yesterday that the C.P.R. are to doubletrack their line from Toronto to Guelph Junction. A start on the work is to be made early this spring, and it is to be rushed right through to completion. After the Toronto-Guelph and Woodstock-Chatham sections of the line are double-tracked the remaining connecting links between here and Windsor will be done.

Wool Drying.

Wool drying is one of the principal and serious operations in the woolen industry. The more gently and uniformly the wool is dried the better is the result attained, for should the wool be slightly damp in some of its parts the dye does not take well, and the result is an unevenly dyed yarn, which shows in the texture of the woven goods. Overdrying is also bad.

The new warden thanked the council for the honor, and said that, with their assistance he would endeavor to fulfill the duties of the office.

WOULD PAY ONE MILLION DOLLARS FOR CONSUMPTION CURE

New York, Jan. 28.—Charles E. Finley, President of the Aetna National Bank, said that he is ready to pay a million dollars to bring to America the tuberculosis serum discovered by Dr. F. F. Riedmann, of Berlin, if it can be demonstrated in New York that the treatment will cure 95 out of a 100 cases.

To test the cure, Mr. Finley proposes to hire a sanitarium in New York, and treat 100 tubercular patients free of charge. The first of these patients will be his son-in-law Rex Lee Paris, a Princeton athlete of the class of 1918, who married his daughter, Neva Estelle Finley, and subsequently developed tuberculosis. Mr. Finley said that his interest in the cure had its origin in his considretaion for his son-in-law.

About three weeks ago Mr Finley read of Dr. Friedmann's success with the serum and wrote to him Dr. Friedmann's brother, Dr. Arthur Friedmann, of Colorado Springs, took the matter up with Mr. Finley and yesterday there was a conference at the Aetna Bank, at which Dr. Laurensson Brown, of Saranac, was present.

Mr. Finley received a cablegram from Dr. Friedmann at Berlin, saying that his offer looked more reasonable than any previously received. Mr. Finley expects to get a definite response from him within forty-eight hours.

Mr Finley said that he had offered to pay Dr. Friedmann's expenses to this country and also the cost of a test on a hundred patients which will amount to nearly $40,000.

"It is hoped," he said, "to discover whether the serum is effective," and to that end he intends to give the patients every possible auxiliary treatment and care. He intends to leave the selection of patients to New York physicians, and no charge will be made.

He said that he had been told that Dr. Freidmann has presented his cure to the Imperial Board of Health of Germany, and that the rights to it for the British Empire and Russia have been sold for $1,000,000 each.

LIBERALS GET TOGETHER.

Federation of Political Clubs Will Be Formed In March.

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—A federation of Liberal clubs—province-wide in its scope—is about to be formed. The project, which has been under consideration for some time and which was suggested by the Woodstock Liberal Club, took definite shape at a meeting of representatives of the existing Liberal clubs of Ontario held yesterday afternoon at the offices of the General Reform Association. After a discussion which revealed a deep interest in the proposal the following resolution was passed with enthusiasm:

"That this meeting approves the project of a federation of Liberal clubs in the province of Ontario, and that a committee be appointed to take steps to hold a convention in the City of Toronto in March."

A committee, consisting of the presidents of the various Liberal clubs throughout the province, was appointed to make the arrangements necessary for the federation meeting, and of this committee, J. R. Marshall, president of the Hamilton Liberal Club, was elected chairman, and C. A. Moss of Toronto vice-chairman.

Among the Liberal clubs interested in the movement are those in the following places: Toronto, North Toronto, Hamilton, Brantford, Woodstock, London, St. Thomas, Cardinal, Belleville, Elmira, Brampton, Barrie, Lindsay.

At yesterday's meeting the general problem of Liberal clubs was thoroughly discussed. Plans for creating, sustaining and increasing interest were considered. It was unanimously agreed that the first aim of the clubs should be educational and that the clubs should be encouraged to take an interest in political affairs of the day, and to discuss them either by debates or by some other method of public speaking.

It is expected that a number of new clubs will be formed between now and the date of the federation meeting. These new clubs will be enrolled in the union.

In the evening the club visitors were entertained at dinner by N. W. Rowell, K.C.

Farmers Go Lumbering.

Within the past two months 15,000 men have left the prairie provinces for the British Columbia lumber woods, where they are spending the winter.

These men will work in the lumber camps during the winter and will return to their farms, or to their jobs on farms in Alberta and the two other provinces, in the spring.

The arrangement is one that is of great benefit to the prairie farmers. By it they can work on their farms all summer and then spend the winter at work in the woods. Both provinces benefit from their toil and the men make more money by working the year around than they would if they were idle all winter. Alberta needs the men in the summer, British Columbia needs them in the winter and the farmers need the employment and the money.

Many of these farmers have taken their horses with them. By doing that they will make more money in the lumber camps and they will save the expense of feeding them all winter. The scheme all the way through is an ideal one.

Should Keep Cheese a Year.

Indifference of farmers and cheese makers as to the quality of cheese shipped into Montreal came in for round condemnation recently on the part of Mr. H. S. Foster of Knowlton, one of the witnesses before the royal commission, which sat there to investigate the methods of weighing cheese in Montreal. It is claimed that farmers ship their cheese in such a green state that it shrinks before it arrives in Montreal, with a consequent shortage in weight.

"In the interests of the whole country, cheese should be kept for a year before it is sent out," declared Mr. Foster.

Old-fashioned people keep love letters for the sentiment that is in them—not for the evidence they contain.—Detroit Free Press.

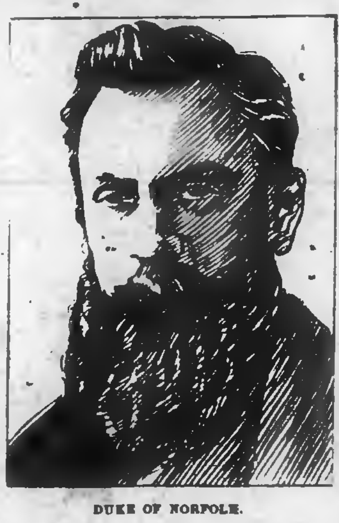
CALLED "SHABBY DUKE"

NORFOLK PAYS LITTLE ATTENTION TO HIS APPEARANCE.

Britain's First Catholic Nobleman Has Had Experiences Which Would Make a Lesser Man Spruce Up, But He Is Incorrigible—Mistaken For a Verger at Gladstone's Funeral at the Abbey.

Unlike the majority of the aristocracy, the Duke of Norfolk pays practically no regard to personal appearance, and his general air of shabbiness has led to many curious mistakes. When he attended Mr. Gladstone's funeral at Westminster Abbey he was mistaken for a verger. On another occasion he entered a small shop at Portsmouth, when the shopkeeper, who had advertised for an assistant, mistook him for an applicant for the job, and greeted him with the announcement: "Too late, my man; the post is filled."

To crown all, he was once taken for a beggar. The occasion was a distribution of prizes at a big convent, and he was to be the central figure. As the time for the ceremony drew near a shabby individual was seen squeezing his way through the crowd, when he was stopped by a sister, who said: "My good man, we don't distribute relief here. You must go round to the back door." "No; but you do prizes," was the duke's response.



DUKE OF NORFOLK.

One of the best Norfolk stories concerns a trip he made on a railway train with the Earl of Rosebery. They were in a compartment, the only other occupant of which was a London commercial traveler. The latter with all the assurance of the Cockney engaged them in breezy conversation without a hint of their identity. They joined in good-humoredly, and the "drummer" entertained them until Rosebery arrived at his destination. As the train pulled out the Londoner saw the "lone furrow" statesman climb into a fashionable trap driven by a smart attendant. He turned to the Duke of Norfolk.

"'Oo's 'e?" he asked in amasement.

"The Earl of Rosebery," replied the shabby duke gravely.

"My heye," ejaculated the Cockney. "Just think of 'im talkin' to two cads like us."

Clogged Sink Pipes.

A tablespoonful of washing soda and a cup of vinegar poured down the sink will clean out the most stubborn of clogged pipes.

Dear Books.

The king of Northumberland in 690 gave for a history of the world 800 acres of land, and a countess of Anjou, date not known, once gave 200 sheep and a large parcel of furs for a volume of homilies and 120 crowns for a single book of Livy.

Ants.

To get rid of ants saturate rags with kerosene, and hang or lay these near the places they infest and they will soon disappear.

AROUND THE WORLD BY C.P.R.

Details of the Special Trips on Two Empresses

The details of the specially arranged trip around the world by the two new C.P.R. Empresses, the Empress of Russia and the Empress of Asia, which are scheduled to leave Liverpool, Eng., on April 1st, and June 18th, respectively, have now been completed, and in connection with this voyage excellent side trips have also been arranged at a little extra cost to the passengers. It is scheduled that the Empress of Russia, which vessel will be ready for the voyage first, will take the Mediterranean route while her sister ship, the Empress of Asia, will, according to present intentions, take the route around the Cape of Good Hope, making calls at some of the principal South African ports. The Empress of Russia is timed to leave Liverpool at 7 p.m. on April 1st, and arrive at Gibraltar the following Friday, leaving the next day for Villefranche. Passengers who wish to travel overland from London and Paris can do so and join the vessel at Villefranche. Time will be allowed for a visit to Monte Carlo and Nice, and on arrival at Port Said provision has been made for sightseeing at Cairo and the Pyramids, and re-embark at Suez. Stops will also be made at Colombo, Singapore, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Nagasaki, Kobe and Yokohama, and thence to Vancouver, arriving at the latter port on Saturday, June 7th. Those passengers taking the trip from this continent have the choice of any vessel of the Atlantic Steamship lines leaving Montreal, St. John, N. B., Halifax, Boston or New York, in time to catch the Empress, and if desiring to visit Europe can leave as far ahead of the Empress' departure as they may desire. The new Empresses have a number of novel and attractive features. The saloon is very large and airy and the tables are arranged to suit the demands of the passengers. The staterooms on the bridge deck are enclosed in a complete steel deckhouse and the appointments and decorations in the French style of Louis XV. and Louis XVI. are carried out with taste and charm which cannot fail to appeal to the artistic sense.

DRESS OF MALTESE WOMEN.

Silk Hooded Cloaks Hide Face and Form From the Curious.

The dress of the Maltese is very singular, and that of the women striking in the extreme. When abroad they are all arrayed in black. They put on over their other dress a robe or loose skirt of that color, brought high on the bosom, and in place of bonnets their heads are covered with a black silk mantle which invests their shoulders and descends halfway behind.

The part which covers the head is furnished with a piece of whalebone inserted in the hem, which keeps it in position and prevents the silk from dropping over the eyes. One hand, placed inside, is always necessary to hold together the sides of the scarf in front, and the other hand is often hid under its folds, only a forefinger being suffered to appear through the opening left for the purpose. Of course, under such mufflers little can be seen of the beauties of form or feature if a Maltese nymph happens to possess them. The eyes and a moving, pall black figure are all that can be distinguished.

But sometimes the fair one deigns to exhibit her face to a curious gazer in place of engrossing herself the privilege of seeing, and features good humored, rather pleasing than handsome and irradiated by a pair of fine, sparkling eyes, are displayed to the beholder. The complexion is a dark olive, partaking a little of a sort of mulatto tinge.

The mantle is obviously borrowed, or rather it has descended from a distant age and people. It answers to the veil of eastern ladies.

Such figures, thousands of whom are abroad on the Sabbath, give the streets a funeral look. It seems as if all Malta had gone into mourning.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

CATTLE MARKETS

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Jan. 27.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Jan. 25 were 1400 cattle, 625 sheep and lambs, 1800 hogs and 400 calves, while the offerings this morning were 900 cattle, 400 sheep and lambs, 800 hogs and 250 calves.

Owing to the large supplies of cattle lately, shipments this week were reduced and a firmer feeling prevailed. Demand was somewhat limited, owing to the fact that butchers and packers were well stocked, but on the whole a fair trade was done. A few small lots of picked choice steers sold at $7 to $7.10, but the bulk of the trading in this class of stock was done at $6.50 to $6.75 per cwt. There was no demand from packers for full car loads, consequently the trade was principally of a jobbing character.

An easier feeling developed in the market for sheep and lambs and prices declined 25c per cwt. The offerings were small, but as the demand was limited they were ample to fill all requirements, as butchers and packers generally have good stocks of frozen mutton and lamb on hand, which they are anxious to dispose of on account of the continued mild weather. Lambs sold at $7 to $7.25, and ewe sheep at $5 to $5.25 per cwt.

The demand for calves was fair and prices ruled steady. A weak feeling prevails in the market for hogs, prices declining 50c per cwt., owing to heavy supplies. Offerings were small, but ample to fill the demand. Selected lots brought $8.75 to $9 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.50 to $7; medium, $4.50 to $5.50; common, $3.50 to $4.25; canners, $2.75 to $3; choice cows, $5 to $5.25; bulls, $3.50 to $5; milkers, choice, each, $70 to $75; medium, each, $60 to $65; springers, $50 to $55.

Sheep—Ewes, $5 to $5.25; bucks and culls, $4.50 to $4.75; lambs, $7 to $7.25.

Hogs—F.o.b., $8.75 to $9.

Calves—$3 to $12.

Veals—Receipts, 1000; active, 50c lower at $4 to $11.50.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 27.—John Rogers & Co. reported that, altho trade for cattle was slower in Birkenhead today, on account of the enhanced prices, yet the market was firm. Saturday's quotations were maintained, viz., 13½c to 15c for

THE AGE OF BEAUTY.

Time-Honored Question Being Debated By Paris Artists.

Just at present Paris is deeply interested over a delicate problem which several famous aesthetes are trying to solve. The question—as old as time itself but an ever absorbing topic for argument—is "what is woman's hour of beauty and at what age is she most charming and most irresistible?"

Henri Harpignies, the famous landscape painter, gives his opinion that woman's period of greatest charm is between the ages of 16 and 20. He says:

"The sovereignity of human beauty is in pure and limpid perfection when it has not suffered the least injury from time, care, grief, or illness. It is only the things of nature which have their beauty accentuated by the passage of years.

"A very young man (M. Harpignies recently celebrated his 93d birthday) is as yet unable to appreciate the admirable and unique qualities of youth, and is allured by the artificial and questionable beauty of the more mature woman, and is attracted by what is called the charm of experience. It is only later that he learns the difference between the sham and the real.

Antonio de Lagandara, the well-known portrait painter, declares that he finds it impossible to fix the age of the most charmig women, saying:

"Their period of beauty ranges from 18 to 40 and even later. Quite young women are most beautiful in the morning, during which there seems to be an understanding between them and the atmosphere, which gives them the adorable appearance of flowers and fruit, sprinkled with dew.

"But the hour of beauty for women less young is the evening, under the glittering lights which accord better with charms less tender and better made to support the admirable but dangerous complication of jewels and intelligent articles which add what may be called literary beauty to the plastic one.

Says the sculptor, Albert Bartholome, "no expression of beauty touches me if not illumined by the reflection of goodness, and I believe that it will be found in women easiest when they are young—between 18 and 25—when they still retain their illusions, and before this reflection is abolished by the evil influence of men and things."

"As an artist," says Ferdinand Humbert, director of the Academy of Beaux-Arts, "I believe, with Bartholome, that the most beautiful time of womanhood is from 18 to 25—the form. But as a man I find that woman is never more seductive, more appealing, be she plain or lovely, than from 30 to 35. Intelligence, experience, tact and a divine sympathy for the sorrows and sins of the world add to whatever of natural charm she may have and the result is, to me, at any rate, a perfect woman."

The average vote places 25 as the age when a woman is fairest. It has been noticed in the course of the argument that the older the expert the younger the age which he declares his ideal. The artist of 70, for instance, sees loveliness only in the girl of 20 or 25, while 35 appeals to the critic of 30 or 40.

Aerial Taxicabs.

One of the great French aeroplane builders has constructed a veritable aerial taxicab. The machine has a body which looks like that of any taxicab. The passengers enter by a side door and view the landscape below through mica windows. Pneumatic cushions protect the passengers in rough landings. The pilot sits in front of the machine, like a chauffeur. There is even a speaking tube to facilitate communication between the passengers within the taxi and the chauffeur. A 100 horse power engine is mounted on top of the cab and with it the fuel tanks. The spread of wing is forty-three feet from tip to tip and the over all length is forty-six feet. Ready for flight, without passengers, the aeroplane weighs 1,540 pounds.

Lalande and Neptune.

The astronomer Lalande narrowly escaped being made famous by a discovery. He accidentally struck Neptune with his glass on May 8, 1785, but supposed it was a star. He put it down in his notebook as a star and recorded its exact situation. Two days later he struck it once more and made a record of it. But when he looked over his notes he found he had it down as being in two different places, and as a star cannot move in forty-eight hours he supposed he had made a mistake in one of his notes. If he had used his mind a little less mechanically he easily might have been a Columbus.—London Chronicle.

Hot Soda Bath.

Once a week take a hot bicarbonate of soda bath. Buy a package of bicarbonate of soda (baking soda) and put three heaping teaspoonfuls in eight quarts of water. After the soda is put in the water stir it carefully so it will be all dissolved. Then stand in the tub and go over all the body with a stiff brush. It is all right to use soap too. Rub the body until it is a bright pink. Then rinse off with clear water. You will find this a most refreshing, healthful bath.

A Reforming Influence.

"That automobile I bought has been doing wonders for me," said Mr. Chuggins.

"It has benefited me morally as well as physically. It has led me to avoid intoxicants and to lead a life that will insure me as beautiful an obituary as possible."

The New Year, so far, has been a banner one for the local Y.M.C.A. Already 39 new members have taken out membership cards.

NORWOOD MAN SUFFERS LOSS OF VALUABLE HORSE

Special Correspondence.

Norwood, Jan. 28.—Mr Isaac Puffer had the misfortune to lose one of his matched bay team last week. During the night, another horse kept in the same stable, became untied and kicked the animal in the stifle, splintering the bones. The injured horse had to be killed. The loss to Mr. Puffer was very heavy as he, only a short time ago, refused $400 for the team.

Owing to the extreme mildness of the winter the harvesting of ice on the mill pond has been delayed considerably. Last week, however, the ice was sufficiently thick (about 14 inches) to commence operations. Mr. Bruce Puffer has a gang of men at work taking out the usual supply for the large Swift ice house in Havelock. It will require about two weeks to complete the contract.

Reeve A. Breault will attend the meeting of the County Council in Peterborough this week.

A sleigh load of Norwood Masons with their wives, drove over to Havelock on Friday evening of last week to fraternize with the brethren of that village. They found the roads to be in a very dangerous condition for driving. They got down without any mishap, but on their return home the sleighs took a notion to go back to Havelock while scaling one of the hills, with the result that the load was upset and all the occupants thrown out on the ice and frozen snow, some sustaining injuries they will be forced to foster for a few days. No bones were broken, however, and a liberal supply of lotions and court plaster will bring the victims around alright in a few days.

STOCK JUDGING.

On Thursday and Friday of last week the stock judging course in connection with the local branch of the Department of Agriculture was conducted here. The local representative, Mr. E. S. Hopkins, is to be congratulated on the success of the affair. A large number of the farmers of the surrounding district gathered and were benefitted by the lectures of the gentlemen who had the affair in hand. Mr. G. A. Brethen conducted the course in dairy cattle.

Rev. P. J. Kelly attended the funeral of the late Bishop O'Connor at Peterborough.

The annual meeting of the Norwood Board of Education will be held at the High School on Wednesday evening of next week.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Fraser, of Alberta, are visiting friends here. They arrived last week.

Miss Mabel Laing went to Toronto on Saturday last to attend the wholesale millinery openings. She will be away a month or more.

Mr. Harold Stephens of Campbellford, spent Sunday here visiting friends.

Mr. James Andrews, of Asphodel, has purchased the handsome brick residence of Miss Jane Stewart's on Peterborough St., and will move into the village in the spring.

Miss May Smith has accepted a position with Mr. J. W. Rork, of Norwood as book keeper.

Mr. John Baskin, proprietor of the Royal George Hotel, has had a handsome new sign hung in front of his premises.

There is some talk of another store being built on Colborne St. for the accommodation of Mr. M. Salome, who is at present occupying one of the stores in the Metcalfe Block.

BRICKER'S WONDERFUL WORK IN THE NETS SAVED ST. MIKES FROM DEFEAT

Peterborough's representatives in the senior series of the O.H.A. were eliminated, last night at Brock St. Rink from the 1912-13 race for the John Ross Robertson silverware and thereby hangs a tale.

St. Mike's was the second party; the score at half time was 5—4 and 7—4 at full time. In both cases, sad to relate the local lads were in the rear of the procession. It was not because the other fellows were superior as a team but rather on account of the grand work of one Gordon Bricker, who occupied the space between the two posts. Bricker was IT. There had been considerable speculation as to the effectiveness of several of the St. Mike's players on a smaller ice surface. It had been said that Frank Rankin and Jerry Laflamme would leave some of their prominence at home and behave pretty much as the average good player. It had been suggested too, that Cyril Giroux would be a handy man.

In the first place, Rankin, while he loomed up big, didn't do the fancy stunts he was rightly credited with when the locals made their first appearance at Toronto Arena. The ice was not big enough and he did not relish the close checking. As for Jerry Laflamme, he had nothing on any player in the game. One without the other is very ordinary. In the test last night, Fred Kelly and Jerry Coughlin were as good if not better than either the two stars of the Irishmen's line-up.

Giroux was expected to do the battering-ram act and he did, although he was a head shorter than several of his on-rushing victims. He was asked to prevent the visiting rushers from proceeding on towards Dwyer and he did, more than a few times, in a strictly legitimate manner, but this man Bricker is some goal-getter. He had 23 and 13 and every other old number to feed to the Petes. Another goaltender with less ability than he would have made things rather easy for Pete Spratt's men. During the greater part of the second half, Bricker danced at mixed styles, about those old nets till it seemed as though he must surely play out. But he remained steadily on the job and St. Mike's won the game.

A. BIG CROWD.

Of course the largest crowd of the season was on hand. Everybody was waiting to have a peep of the great St. Mike's team, but interest was centred on the wonderful Dr. Jerry Laflamme and Frank Rankin. There was some disappointment but what's the "dif." It's all in the game, and we still have our good intermediate team and the baseball season is fast approaching.

THE LOCAL LADS.

A word or two is due the homesters. They were all good, and Coughlin was a little better. His stick handling, at times, was nothing short of marvelous. Fred Kelly was the hardest worker and the most effective on the team. If for no other reason a large percentage of the fans would have liked to see the game go to Peterborough because they knew Kelly had his heart set on winning that game. As a clean player and one who goes into a hockey match with the determination to do his best, we take off our headwear to Bud Kelly. Park and Armstrong were more or less in the public gaze throughout the struggle. Park gave Mr. Laflamme, the hottest kind of an argument and scored a couple of goals besides. Armstrong's side shot that evened the score in the first half was one of the nicest plays of the night. He tore up the side, recovered from a stiff check by Gordon and beat Bricker with a swift shot. Giroux and Spratt were just as good as the opposing defence and that's no mean bouquet. Spratt rushed effectively enough to land a couple of scores, but he shot wide of the nets. On several occasions, Dwyer blocked shots with the man right in on him and the seven that passed him would beat most any goaltender not supplied with a goodly stock of horse shoes.

Owing to the late arrival of the local from Toronto, the game did not start till 9.30. Lawson Whitehead as referee failed to suit the more excitable fans, but all things considered, he gave a pretty even break.

THE PLAY

Dwyer was on the job too and stopped the first shot of the game delivered by Rankin. Murphy had next chance but was wide. The opening was very fast and the visitors had the edge. Murphy tripped Giroux who rushed and drew a penalty. Park was next to be banished. Kelly rushed the boards but failed to pass out. After 4 minutes Murphy secured and placed the disc behind Dwyer.

FAST WORK

After Dwyer had blocked one shot, Rankin made it 2-0 for St. Mikes. Again the local netman blocked. Kelly rushed but lost the rubber. Coughlin secured and was chased aside. Rankin rushed to Dwyer, who was sent to the time keepers for slashing. No score came during the minute he was absent. Bricker stopped a hot one from the side and took care of another one at his feet. Kelly secured and rushed and lost again. Park, however, got busy and by fast work landed the puck behind Bricker, and the score was

St. Mikes 2, Petes 1.

Bricker was called into repeated service and made good. Giroux stopped Dissette on a long rush and Rankin's shot was called offside. Murphy took a loner, passed to Rankin, whose frist shot was stopped. Quick work, however gave the visitors a lead of two.

Spratt was worked into the corner and on the return Dwyer blocked the shot off the Rankin-Laflamme combination, Laflamme was ordered off the scene. Coughlin rushed and while off his balance passed out to Park, who tallied, making the count read.

St. Mikes 3 Petes 2.

Kelly made it 4-3 on a shot from the side. Gordon broke up a two man combination. Dissette was chased and when play was resumed after Coughlin was hurt. Armstrong went up the Boards and following a hard body check by Gordon, shot in the tally that made the figures 4 all. This goal was disputed and Art Hall took up the job of goal umpire. Dissette went through for a shot without success. Laflamme and Gordon combined only to lose the rubber, and on the return, Gordon, stopped Giroux. Laflamme and Park drew penalties but neither team could score. Kelly and Spratt worked together in vain but Richardson and Rankin were more successful, the latter finding the nets. The half ended:

St. Mikes 5 Petes 4.

Water was in evidence on the ice when the teams resumed play in the second period. Kelly had a shot and for a few minutes play alternated between the two goals. After Dissette missed the posts, Coughlin overskated an open chance 10 feet out from Bricker. Park's shot was blocked and the game was stopped when Coughlin was hurt. After repairs, the Petes' rover broke through and shot wide on two occasions and Kelly tried a shot but was wide. The locals were having the better of the play and were making desperate attacks in an effort to tally. Dissette broke up a three man combination and lost the disc. Rankin recovered and lost to Park who returned. Rankin and Richardson combined without success. In 14.40 Gordon took a long shot that got past Dwyer, giving St. Mikes a lead of two. Thirty seconds later, Rankin made it;

St. Mikes 7 Petes 4.

The remainder of the game was all Peterborough but Bricker was too good and the score remained unchanged.

The teams were—

SPORT TALK

College were right there with the bells in the practice. Fred Denison was out for a while, but was playing under wraps. He is a nice skater and a big man, who looks to be able to stand the kaff. He may be used on the forward line. One fault was apparent and could stand correction, though it might be offset by his speed, was his one-handed stick handling.—Ottawa Free Press.

BOWSER AT CARDS

He Teaches the Missus How to Play Euchre and Loses.

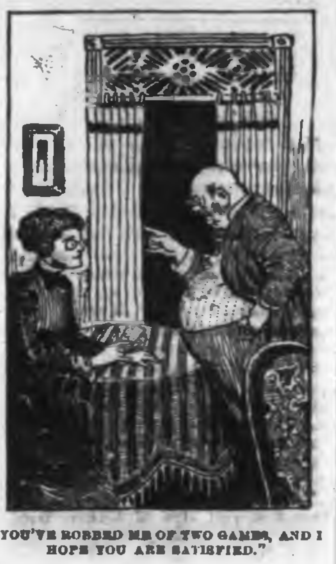
SHE IS ACCUSED OF CHEATING

After Winning Two Straight Games and Then Retires For the Night—An Unfortunate Alms Seeker Breaks a Marathon Record.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.]

MRS. BOWSER had said something at the breakfast table about doing some housecleaning that day, but if Mr. Bowser heard he made no comment and took no interest. After he had departed she put in a hard day's work cleaning one of the bedrooms, and Mr. Bowser might have patted her on the arm and said a few words of praise when he came home to dinner. He did nothing of the kind, however. Some one had passed a lead nickel on him during the day, and, while he didn't exactly ache for a row, it was apparent that he felt edgewise. There was irritation on the other side, but peace remained unbroken. Dinner had been over for an hour and Mr. Bowser had skimmed over his paper and finished his cigar when he suddenly asked:



"YOU'VE ROBBED ME OF TWO GAMES, AND I HOPE YOU ARE SATISFIED."

"Why don't you learn to play euchre, so that we can go out for an evening occasionally?"

"Why, I know how to play," replied Mrs. Bowser.

"That is, you think you do."

"But I'm sure I do. I believe I'm a pretty fair player."

"Humph! Suppose you get the cards out."

"All right."

There had been several games of euchre played in the Bowser family, and in each and every instance there had been a row, caused by Mr. Bowser's queer understanding of the rules of the game. On the last occasion Mrs. Bowser had said that she would never play cards with him again, and therefore he was considerably surprised at her present willingness. She got out the table and cards, and as Mr. Bowser looked more closely at her he didn't feel easy in his mind.

According to Hoyle.

"Is this game going to be according to Hoyle?" he asked as the cards were ready.

"Just as you say," she replied.

"Well, we'll make it Hoyle, and neither of us will do any kicking. In the best of good nature I warn you that I shall win at least five games out of six. You are too sensible to get mad over it. As I'm the better player, we'll start off by giving you the first deal."

"Thank you, but we are to go by Hoyle," she laughed. "We will cut for the deal."

"I see. Don't want any favors, eh? Well, the deal is yours. Perhaps you'll get one trick of the first game. It's your lead."

"As I deal, it's your lead."

"So, Mrs. Bowser, you've begun already," he exclaimed as he held his cards suspended. "It's a mighty queer thing that we can't have a game of cards without your getting mad over it."

"Stop right there!" said Mrs. Bowser as she laid down her cards. "It is your first lead, according to Hoyle or anybody else. If you don't know that, then you don't know how to play!"

"I don't, eh? Well, let it go. I'll give you all the advantage. Clubs are trumps, and you play to that ace of diamonds."

"I take it with a trump."

"You do? You have a diamond and must follow suit. Don't attempt any trickery here, Mrs. Bowser!"

"I have no suit. Play to that trump."

"Are you leading trumps?" he shouted.

"As you see."

"But who ever heard of such a thing? That shows you know nothing of the game! Take it back and lead a small heart."

Mr. Bowser Loses.

"I know what I am doing, Mr. Bowser. That calls for a trump from your hand."

"Well, take it, then," he growled, throwing down the only one in his hand. "If a man plays cards with a child he must play as the child does. What are you counting two for?"

"Because I took all the tricks."

"Oh, you did? Well, you needn't chuckle over it and bob around like a hen with her head cut off. I simply gave them to you. Now I'll show you something."

Mr. Bowser dealt the cards and turned up a heart. He hadn't a trump in his hand and therefore passed for her to make it. She said spades, and he brought his fist down on the table and shouted:

"Spades! Spades! But you can't do that!"

"But why?"

"Because you must make it next!"

"I can do as I like, Mr. Bowser, and I make it spades. Play to the joker—and that—and that!"

She had all the trumps, and he didn't get a trick. His first impulse was to leave the table and call her a cheat, but something in her look quieted him down, so he only muttered:

"I'll give you a game just to encourage you. It's your deal. Diamonds are trumps, eh? Well, play to that!"

She played, and while Mr. Bowser got two tricks she scored her point and won the game. He looked at her with a January expression, but had nothing to say. He had the four bowers and the joker under his thumb and was stacking the hand. When the cards ran off and hearts came trumps, however, he had only one in his hand and was obliged to pass. She made it next and took every trick.

"Why—why did you make it next?" he demanded.

"To suit my hand," she replied.

"Are you playing euchre or booby?"

"I'm playing to beat you."

"Oh—ah! After the cheating and swindling I have witnessed on your part I should be justified in refusing to go on. But I'll play the game out just to show how easy it is to beat you."

He Mislays His Temper.

Mr. Bowser was a fair player, but the cards ran against him. He didn't lay it to luck, however, but to Mrs. Bowser, and shoving back from the table he said:

"You've robbed me of two games, and I hope you are satisfied!"

"That will do," she answered as she rose. "The truth of the matter is that you are no player!"

"You are talking to me?"

"To you, sir."

"And I'm your husband?"

"Yes, sir. Don't shout your lungs out or pump the blood to your head. You are always bragging about what a player you are, but you barely know one card from another. If you want to spend half an hour taking lessons I'll"—

"Woman, such talk to me! Why—why"—

"Be calm, Mr. Bowser. If you don't want to learn the game you needn't. But if you are as poor at poker as you are at euchre the men at the club must have a soft snap. What were you about to say?"

"I—I was about to say that I remained at home this evening to enjoy my own fireside, and you—you"—

"Beat you two straight games at euchre," she finished. "I also remained at home to enjoy my own fireside, but you seem anxious for a row. There is no occasion for one. You simply play euchre just well enough for me to beat you. Why don't you let me give you some pointers?"

"I'll be hanged if I'll stand this!" shouted Mr. Bowser, as he rose up and began throwing his arms about.

A Race For Life.

"Well, we are all through for tonight," she answered. "I have some work to do upstairs, and as it is still early you might run out and take a few lessons somewhere."

When she had disappeared Mr. Bowser put on his hat and coat and walked out to cool off.

The cooling process hadn't had time to set in when an old man walking with the aid of crutches struck him for a dime.

The belated pedestrians witnessed a curious sight. The old man threw away his crutches and fled, and Mr. Bowser took after him at top speed, and as they went clattering along the sidewalk at a gait of ten miles an hour the sound thereof was like the rush and roar and clatter of many waters suddenly let loose upon the land.

A man may run at the gait of twenty-five miles an hour, but if the pursued is making thirty he cannot be overhauled. Mr. Bowser steadily lost ground for half a mile, and then stopped under a tree to get his breath and mutter:

"So I ought to take lessons in card playing, had I? Think of the gall of her! And to me—me, her husband! Why, I'll go back home and beat her"—

"Who'll you beat?" asked a policeman who had softly slipped up on him. "Your wife, I suppose? Well, I've had an eye on you for some time, and you'd better go slow, or I'll make your heels break your neck! Move on with you!"

Nearly every man, when he has power behind him, is a good deal of a wolf; he is apt to exaggerate his rights and make a hog of himself.

Antiquity of Porto Rico.

Ethnologists have reason for thinking that Porto Rico and the adjoining islands may have been peopled from the valley of the Orinoco instead of from Yucatan. When first occupied by man Porto Rico may have been a part of a peninsula connected with South America. Its fauna and flora are of the South American type, and it contains relics of a forgotten race which show evidence of a high grade of culture. Few traces of these aborigines are now to be found except in the interior of the island. Among the curious remains are stone inclosed plazas on which ceremonial dances were performed. The remains of carved idols and pottery show no small degree of skill and taste. No traces of stone buildings resembling those of the Mayas are found, but the houses are of the South American type. The manner of disposing of the dead also resembled that practiced in the valley of the Orinoco.

AT REST AFTER YEARS OF WORK FOR THE MASTER

Bishop Scollard Pays Eloquent Tribute to the Noble Life of the Late Bishop O'Connor.

The late Bishop O'Connor was buried this morning in St. Peter's Cemetery with all the honors and impressive ceremony of the Roman Catholic Church.

Long before the commencement of the religious exercises in St. Peter's Cathedral, the Church was packed to the doors. Hundreds remained standing outside during the entire proceedings which lasted well over two hours. The spectacle inside was in every sense a wonderful demonstration of the mourning and regret experineced by all, at the passing of such a generally beloved prelate. This feeling was not limited to the late Bishop's own flock, as was plainly evidenced by the presence of all denominations. The City Council were present in a body, besides a large representation of the prominent business and professional men of the city, united in paying tribute by their presence to the memory of the deceased.

Lying in a costly solid mahogany casket, the body of the late Bishop, apparelled in the full robes of his office rested on an incline in full view of the congregation.

Bishop Scollard, of North Bay, a warm, personal friend of the late Bishop O'Connor, delivered an eloquent oration, containing touching references to the noble character and life of the departed prelate.

"Bishop O'Connor," he said, "has passed away, full of years and full of merit. For over fifty years he performed the duties of His Master Whom now he has been called to meet. Thirty of these years were passed in the Archbishopric at Toronto, where priests and people will never forget his associations with them. His reputation for virtue and piety will always be remembered. In fact the late Richard Alphonsus O'Connor always possessed the respect and veneration of the clergy both young and old. For twenty-four years he has been doing the work of his Divine Master in Peterbroough, and he has done it faithfully and well.

"Over seventy-five churches were erected and established in Peterborough and Sault Ste. Marie Dioceses under the regime of the late Bishop, or three churches for each year of his episcopal administration.

"The late prelate was a firm and consistent believer that secular and religious education should go hand in hand. He possessed a loving, sympathetic heart and he equipped the Diocese with schools, orphanages and Houses of Providence, thereby showing his zeal for the glory of God and the cause of Christian charity. During the first few years of his administration in Peterborough, the late Bishop never missed a Sunday from his pulpit and preached God's holy message.

"His relations with the clergy were always kind, considerate and sympathetic. Always ready to entertain their ideas and suggestions and always ready to help them along by his protection and advice. He always cherished a high regard for efforts of the religious sisters who had renounced the world to devote themselves solely to the Master's work. With such relations to all in connection with the church, strong indeed must be the tie that binds the hearts of all to the late Archbishop.

In concluding, Bishop Scollard said: "You are here for a high and noble purpose; you are here to offer up prayers for the repose of the soul of the deceased, which I am convinced is what would prove most pleasing to the dead, if he were here. But those lips are sealed forever; those ears into which you poured your woes, are closed forever; that rgiht hand which called down upon you so many precious benedictions is cold in death; the bond of union is severed, and the cathedral chair is vacant. The deceased prelate performed the work of his Divine Master faithfully and well and with the best intentions. The day for him is past; the night is at hand; the days of earthly merit are over and he has now only to possess his soul in patience.

In concluding, Bishop Scollard recited a beautiful and appropriate quotation from St. Ambrose, expressive of the condition of the departed Bishop.

The pall bearers were Father T. O'Connell, Father T. Maguire, Father McColl, Rev. Dr. O'Brien, Father Fergus O'Brien and Father Ferguson.

Archbishop Spratt, of Kingston, was celebrant at High Mass; Father Scanlon, deacon, and Father Fitzpatrick, sub-deacon.

The deacons of honor were Father Roche and Father Kelly, and the assistant priest, Archdeacon Casey.

There were five Bishops present who assisted in the absolution—Archbishop Gauthier, of Montreal, Que.; Archbishop McNeill, of Toronto; Archbishop Spratt, of Kingston; Archbishop Fallon, of London, and Archbishop Ryan.

Immediately after Mass large representations from the following lodges lined up and marched to St. Peter's Cemetery:—Knights of Columbus, Total Abstinence Society, Catholic Order of Foresters, C.M.B.A. and the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

Telegrams were received from many clergy who found it impossible to attend the funeral. In the neighborhood of two hundred clergy were present altogether.

MEETING AT THE Y. M. C. A FOR MOTHERS

Our boys will soon be men, and what they are now will determine what they will be then. The very best we can do for the boys, therefore, is none too good. Nothing can replace the work of the individual parent for each separate child, but at the same time the united efforts of a number of parents in behalf of a group of boys would undoubtedly help to solve this whole difficult problem.

A meeting for mothers is called for Wednesday afternoon, Jan 29th, at 3 o'clock, in the Y.M.C.A. building. This meeting will be addressed by the Boys' Secretary, who has already called on many of the homes of Peterborough. After the address the mothers will have the privilege of discussing any phase of the Boy Problem they may choose, and if it is thought advisable a Mothers' Club will be organized. A cordial invitation is extended to every mother to be present.

NOTICE re HYDRO Light & Power

The citizens having decided to enter into the business of supplying electricity for light and power, we wish to remind them that the success of their enterprise will depend upon themselves taking light and power from the City's system. The more light and power that is used from the City system the cheaper it will be. Consequently NO CITIZENS SHOULD ENTER INTO A NEW CONTRACT FOR LIGHT OR POWER UNTIL THE CITY IS READY TO SUPPLY THEM.

The Hydro Commission and the Power Committee are making all possible speed to have everything ready to begin work when spring opens, and there will be no delay. Every citizen should be ready to support them and thus enable all to get the light and power at the cheapest rate.

FORGET TELLS ABOUT CHARTER OF BANQUE INTERNATIONALE

Granting of Certificate Was Delayed by Laurier Government and at Election Time Politician Came to Him, Says Sir Rodolphe, and Offered it if He Would Default in the Election.

INVESTORS FAIRLY TREATED

OTTAWA, Jan. 29.—Sir Rodolphe Forget, who was more or less covertly assailed by Hon. Mr. Lemieux on Monday, struck a blow in his own defence yesterday in the Commons and he hit hard. So keen was the debate that considerable excitement prevailed on both sides, and the Speaker had to call for order.

The Montreal financier denounced his journalistic assailants in France and Quebec alike as "jail birds," "drunkards," "morphine eaters," "blackmailers" and "men without respect for the marriage laws." He charged that the attack made upon him was a result of a conspiracy, and declared that a license to do business had been denied for months to La Banque Internationale as a matter of politics by the Laurier Government.

At the last general elections Sir Rodolphe contested and carried the ridings of Charlevoix and Montmorency. In the latter riding his opponent was George Parent, then the sitting member, and son of Hon. S. N. Parent, chairman of the National Transcontinental Railway Commission. According to Sir Rodolphe, Hon. Mr. Parent had promised that the Laurier Government would at once grant a certificate to La Banque Internationale if Sir Rodolphe would withdraw as the candidate for Montmorency.

Sir Wilfrid said that Mr. Parent had not been authorized to make any such proposition.

Sir Rodolphe Forget: "I did not say he was authorized."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier: "I do not believe he ever made the statement."

"You deny your bosom friend?" asked Sir Rodolphe.

"I deny that a certificate was refused on any such consideration as that just mentioned by the hon. member," said Sir Wilfrid. "The certificate was refused because one of the directors had not been duly qualified when he was elected."

"Let me say," retorted Sir Rodolphe "that the Hon. Mr. Parent came to me in the Chateau Frontenac about two o'clock in the morning and offered that if I would resign he would give me the license."

Sir Wilfrid again rose. "I know nothing of what Mr. Parent may have done," he observed. "Moreover, let me be plain spoken; I do not believe that Mr. Parent ever said anything of the kind."

There were frequent protests from the Liberal side of the chamber. These protests were drowned in noisy cheers and cries of "sit down," "take your medicine" from the Government benches, and at times there was great disorder, and Sir Rodolphe was once or twice admonished by the Speaker.

"Am I discredited in Quebec?" he asked, "by these attacks made upon me? If the member for Rouville (Mr. Lemieux) thinks I am, here is my proposition. I will resign my two seats and let him resign his. I will then agree to run against him in any one of the three ridings of Rouville, Charlevoix or Montmorency."

Sir Rodolphe, at some length, explained the business affairs of the Quebec merger, of the Quebec and Saguenay Railway Co. and of La Banque Internationale. French investors in the merger, he said, had nothing to complain of, as they had received dividends from the start and the concern was making money. The Quebec and Saguenay Railway, he contended, would be a money maker, and could be completed by the expenditure of $600,000.

Coming to La Banque Internationale affair, Sir Rodolphe declared that if the French investors were sustaining a loss they had only themselves to blame. Not five cents, he said, had been lost in Canada, but considerable sums of money had been lost by the Paris branch. He admitted agreeing to pay Mr. Daoust $200,000 for selling stock to the extent of $10,000,000, but the commission was to be paid by selling the stock at 102 1-2. However, Mr. Daoust had returned the money to the bank and closed the incident.

PASTOR RUSSEL LOSES LIBEL SUIT

He Will Not Get $100,000 From Brooklyn Newspaper

New York, Jan. 29— A verdict for the Brooklyn Eagle and against Pastor Chas. T. Russell, of "miracle" wheat fame, was returned by a jury in Brooklyn, at the close of a $100,000 libel suit which was grown out of the publication in the Brooklyn newspaper of a cartoon pretending to portray the plaintiff in the act of being called away from his task of peddling "miracle" wheat to join the "onion" bank directors. The jury was out forty minutes.

TORONTO, Jan. 29.—Announcement was made by the senate of the University of Toronto last night that Clive H. Carruthers, son of Prof. Adam Carruthers, 603 Huron street, Toronto, had been awarded the Rhodes' Scholarship.

Attached to the scholarship is an honorarium of $1,500 per annum, which is given for three years. This makes it possible for the fortunate student to take up postgraduate work at Oxford University.

FAVORS SKELETON ACT AS STARTER

Sir Wm. Meredith Suggests Groups for Compensation Bill

TORONTO, Jan. 29.—"My idea would be to frame an act that would create this board either with or without compulsory insurance until the employers became grouped, and then to establish conditions applicable to each group." This is the scheme of workmen's compensation which Sir William Meredith suggested that he might follow in making his recommendation to the Government on the conclusion of the inquiry into the principles affecting compensation to workmen for injuries. The commissioner thought such an act might be an incentive to an employer to be included in a group. He intimated that a beginning would have to be made somewhere, as it would be impossible to cover the whole province at the outset.

WAITERS WHO COULD NOT GET JOBS THREW STONES

Their Wives and Children Are Starving, They Cry.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Eight hundred striking waiters and hotel workers were stoned while meeting yesterday by a score or more of their own men who quit work on the strike call several days ago and could not get their jobs back when the backbone of the movement was broken. The windows of the hall were shattered and the gathering broke up in disorder. Later the meeting was resumed.

The stones came from an elevated railroad station opposite the hall and the men who cast them boarded a train and made their escape.

From the rear platform of the last car as the train moved away, they shouted back their grievance: "Our wives and children are starving," they said. "We want work; we want food."

JAIL FOR HON. SAM HUGHES?

Dire Punishment Suggested as Possibility In Damage Suit.

MONTREAL, Jan. 29.—"Wherefore the plaintiff prays that the defence be condemned in the sum of $10,000 damages for reasons set forth herewith, and, while considering the monetary damages of secondary importance, further prays for an unconditional written retraction, failing which, that the defendant be condemned to a course of imprisonment in the common jail of Montreal conformably to law."

This statement concludes the inscription on the writ in the action brought by B. A. McNab, late editor of The Montreal Star, against Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, for $10,000 damages for alleged slander, which was returnable yesterday in the Superior Court.

THE MOSQUE OF SELIM II TURKEY'S HOLY PLACE AT ADRIANOPLE

MILITANT SUFFRAGETTES SMASH WINDOWS GALORE

Bands go Through Various Parts of the City Damaging Property and Many Receive Usage From Crowds of Young Men.

EXCITEMENT IS HIGH AGAIN

LONDON, Jan. 29.—As a protest against the withdrawal of the franchise bill by the Government, the suffragists resumed their militant tactics last night. While a deputation, which the Chancellor of the Exchequer, David Lloyd-George, had refused to see until this morning, were trying to force their way into Parliament against an overwhelming force of police and were being placed under arrest for resisting the officers, other bands of women went through Whitehall breaking the windows of the Government offices, and through Cockspur street, where the great plate glass windows in the establishments of shipping companies were ruthlessly smashed.

The women also visited Oxford, Regent and other streets in the shopping district, where similar damage was done. Later post boxes were attacked, quantities of liquid being poured into them.

In the outlying suburbs, too, the suffragettes took steps to bring the cause before the public by damaging property. Twenty-one women were arrested in the vicinity of the Parliament building, but were allowed out on bail after the House rose. Most of the police stations had one or more prisoners, charged with destroying property.

The demonstration in Whitehall was not so large as some of those previously held, the force of police had a drenching rain militating against any great turnout. The wildest excitement prevailed, however, and besides protecting property and arresting the women who engaged in window smashing or refused to move on when ordered, the police had the great difficulty in protecting the women from an unruly crowd of youths who gathered and hustled every woman wearing the suffragist colors.

The entire deputation of 21 women, who attempted to make their way into the House of Commons to interview Chancellor Lloyd George, were arrested. The prisoners included Mrs. Drummond and Sylvia Pankhurst, who marched in front. Before starting on their mission, the delegates listened to addresses by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst and other leaders.

Mrs. Pankhurst said that the withdrawal of the franchise bill, including the Speaker's ruling, was a plot decided on long ago and Premier Asquith was aware of it.

NEGOTIATIONS ARE BROKEN OFF

Rechad Pasha Receives Note of the Balkan Peace Delegates

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, Jan. 29.—The note drafted by the Balkan Peace delegates was delivered to Rechad Pasha, leader of the Turkish delegates this afternoon. The note says that, having waited three weeks since the suspension of the peace conference for a reply from the Ottoman plenipotentiaries to the allies' last demands, and events having occurred at Constantinople which seem to destroy the hope of peace, they are obliged to declare negotiations broken off.

This note does not affect the armistice which is a matter for the governments of the Balkan States. It is believed the new Turkish Government may yield before the energetic tone of this note and this impression had a healthy effect on the Stock Exchange and continental courses today. Nevertheless the European Governments evidently consider the situation critical.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—With the presentation of their note to the Turkish delegation, the date for which, however, has not been fixed, some of the Balkan delegates consider that their mission in London is ended. The Greek Premier, Eleutherios Venizelos, announced last night that he would leave before the end of the week, and the others within the next few days. The financial advisers and the military officers attached to the Bulgarian delegation will start for home to-day.

Despite this, the diplomats have not given up hope, and many still think that the Balkan note is another attempt to exercise pressure on Turkey, and that the allies really intend to await the answer of the new Turkish Cabinet to the joint note of Europe, a course which the powers have always advised.

The meeting of the allies lasted five hours, and the discussion was animated. The delegates reviewed the whole situation, and debated both sides of the question — the resumption of the war and the policy of delay, and trusting to time to solve the difficulties. The head of each delegation reported the conversation which he had had with Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, and reference was made again to the advice of the ambassadors to observe prudence and moderation. This greatly strengthened the arguments of that section, favoring procrastination, their view being that after the powers' note to Turkey, which was in favor of the terms of the allies, if the latter continued to follow Europe's advice, Europe would continue to give its support.

GALT, Jan. 29.—Hon. James Young in his second book of political memories devotes a chapter to the origin of the national policy of Canada, and, in a little story about Sir Charles Tupper and Hon. Alexander Mackenzie, makes out the birth of the national policy to have been accidental, and its adoption by the Conservative party, dictated by expediency.

PROTECTING THE PANAMA

Fortifications to Resist Attacks From Land and Sea.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 29.—Proposing guards against a land attack upon the rear of the fortifications to be erected at the termini of the Panama Canal, as well as protect the locks and dams, and the line of the canal itself, from an enemy who might land above or below the protected zone of the sea coast fortifications, a report has just been submitted to General Wood, chief of staff by a special army board returned from the Isthmus.

The board has prepared an elaborate scheme of land defenses, involving the construction of roads for military operations, and provision for the rapid movement of the troops of the garrison of the canal zone to any threatened point.

Details of the project are necessarily withheld from publicity, but as soon as the report has been approved by the general staff, orders will be sent to the canal zone to begin at once its execution, so that the land defences will be in perfect condition by the time the canal goes into operation.

ANTI-REFORMERS GAINED THE DAY

Clergymen Took Part in Municipal Elections at Nelson

Canadian Press Despatch

Nelson, Jan. 29.—The Municipal elections yesterday were participated in by the clergymen of the city, who urged a program of moral reform

The campaign, which was vigorous and bitter, ended in victory for the anti-reformers. Ald. Kefe was elected Mayor by the largest majority ever recorded in Nelson.

COL. MATHESON BURIED.

Solemn Ceremonial Marks Obsequies of Late Provincial Minister.

PERTH, Jan. 29.—With all that striking solemnity which attached to the obsequies of a military man, the remains of the late Col. the Hon. A. J. Matheson, Provincial Treasurer of Ontario, were taken yesterday afternoon to their last resting place.

Practically the entire population of Perth turned out and stood with bared head in the street as the cortege passed along through the streets of the city. Representatives of the legal, civil and military bodies stationed themselves in rear of the firing party and hearse. One and all paid a solemn and striking tribute to the memory of their dead friend.

Around the grave were stationed the members of the Ontario Cabinet with bared heads as Archbishop Hamilton of Ottawa uttered the last committal prayer, and the floral-covered casket was lowered from sight.

There was a detachment of the 62nd Regiment, 150 strong, who carried reversed arms, and preceded by the muffled drums of the battalion, led the procession to the grave.

LIBERALS REFUSE TO LET BANK ACT GO TO COMMITTEE

Debate on Government Measure is Carried on Until the Small Hours by its Liberal Critics in Spite of Premier's Suggestion That it be Given a Reading and Sent to Banking and Commerce Committee.

OTTAWA, Jan. 29.—Premier Borden's recommendation that the Bank Act be allowed to go to the Banking and Commerce Committee for a thorough discussion carried little weight yesterday with the Opposition, who seem bound to delay its progress. Whatever their intention, the Liberals continued the debate until almost one o'clock this morning before an adjournment was taken. Their chief argument was for a system of public audit.

Mr. Nesbitt of North Oxford somewhat sarcastically observed that the appointment of a royal commission might result in dispelling many popular delusions respecting the banks and the Bank Act. Personally, he could see no harm in bank mergers, and believed that in many cases they had proved a great benefit. He challenged any member to mention any bank merger which was not in the public interest.

Mr. Nesbitt, however, declared himself in favor of the plan suggested the other day by Duncan Ross of Middlesex, under which the banks would be required to make a deposit with the Government for the protection of their depositors.

In this connection, he referred to the Farmers' Bank failure and claimed that several Conservative members, including a member of the crown, had promised that the depositors in the Farmers' Bank would be reimbursed in case the present Government was returned to power.

Mr. Nesbitt said that he would vote for a bill if one was introduced appropriating money for the relief of depositors who lost money in the failure of the Farmers' Bank.

Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden said the bill could be best discussed in the banking and commerce committee. The Government did not say that it was a perfect measure, and would be glad to profit by any suggestions from either side of the House. Personally, he believed that the Canadian banking system was an excellent one, and this opinion was concurred in by financiers and public men of other countries.

Members of the U. S. monetary commission who had visited Ottawa had praised the system highly, in a new country like Canada that system was best which provided for a minimum of capital and a maximum of service. The Canadian banks had furnished the country with an elastic currency and had utilized to the full the credit of the country.

Mr. Martin, Regina, thought it was not well to approach the consideration of the matter in a revolutionary spirit. It was no use in those interested in banks coming before Parliament to argue that the banks were not making money. A review of the banks showed that despite what had been said by the Premier they were paying dividends of from 10 to 14 per cent. Under such conditions depositors should secure more than 3 to 3 1-2 per cent. So far as section 91 of the existing act, providing that no bank could collect more than 7 per cent., was concerned, it was entirely inoperative in western Canada. He knew of cases in small places where the banks collected as much as 12 per cent. There were now twenty-four banks, and a Government inspection of twenty-four head offices was not a very serious undertaking. Taking the recent case of the Banque Internationale, Mr. Martin stated that the people of Canada had come to the conclusion that something was radically wrong, and that it was time to tighten up generally. In the case in question some thorough investigation should be instituted. The Government cannot afford to permit men of frenzied finance forming their institutions and letting them go to the wall to the public loss.

Hon. Frank Oliver pointed out that the interest of bank shareholders was only $200,000,000 as against over $2,000,000,000 of the depositors. The matter should consequently be considered largely from the standpoint of the depositors. Mr. Oliver argued strongly for Government inspection and a Government audit of head offices.

Mr. Oliver opposed amalgamation without Government consent. What was needed, he maintained, was not less banks, but more banks and more competition.

Mr. James J. Hughes (King's, P.E.I.,) followed along similar lines.

The Government gave up the debate shortly after midnight, and Mr. Hughes was followed by Messrs. Lanctot, Douglas and Guthrie on the Liberal side. Mr. Guthrie's effort to move the adjournment was denied by the Premier, and the South Wellington man proceeded with his speech at a quarter to 1 o'clock this morning. He advocated the raising of the rate of interest in Government Savings Banks, with a view to securing a general increase in interest on bank deposits.

Hon. Mr. Emmerson finally moved the adjournment of the debate.

To Ask Dominion Aid.

TORONTO, Jan. 29.—The municipalities interested will ask the Dominion Government to subsidize the Markham-Toronto electric railway. The special radial railway committee appointed at the recent meeting here is arranging for a deputation to wait on the Government for this purpose. The City Council will join the deputation when it goes to Ottawa, which will probably be February 6th. One hundred members will compose the deputation.

GUELPH MAN'S SUDDEN END

GUELPH, Jan. 29.—Death came suddenly to Ed. Palmer, livery stable keeper, yesterday afternoon. While hitching up a horse, he was seen to fall over, with what was supposed to be apoplexy. He was taken to the General Hospital and upon examination it was discovered that the main artery leading to the heart had burst. He died shortly afterwards.

Galt's Terms to Railway.

GALT, Jan. 29.—Galt proposes, among other conditions of the entry of the Lake Erie and Northern Railway that the company pay the town $3,000 for the land to be taken and also the expense of making the title. Mr. Brewster, solicitor for the company, replied, stating that the company could not consider the proposition and asked for a meeting with the committee or council. Mr Brewster will meet the committee on Thursday.

ANARCHIST IS HEAVILY SENTENCED

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 29.—Carl Reideibach of Salt Lake City, the man who terrorized the central police station Nov. 19 last with an infernal machine, was sentenced yesterday to twenty years in the penitentiary. The sentence was imposed after Reidelbach had declared he believed dynamite was a good means of righting some social wrongs.

STRIKERS AND SHERIFFS HAVE PITCHED BATTLE

BOUND BANK CLERK.

But Plucky Youth Finally Put Two Robbers to Flight.

EDMONTON, Alta., Jan. 29.—The most daring bank robbery in the history of this city was pulled off at 12.30 yesterday morning in the most thickly-populated part of the city.

Two unknown masked men, carrying a coil of rope, entered the Bank of Nova Scotia and at the point of a gun, demanded of the only person in the building, a legerkeeper, named Clare West, that he throw up his hands.

West refused to comply, and a desperate struggle ensued while late pedestrians passed by totally unaware of what was going on inside the bank.

Eventually the robbers managed to bind West, and hurriedly proceeded to the outer safe which they rifled of a hundred dollars.

While they were continuing the search, West managed to secure his revolver, which was lying nearby, and fired four shots at the men.

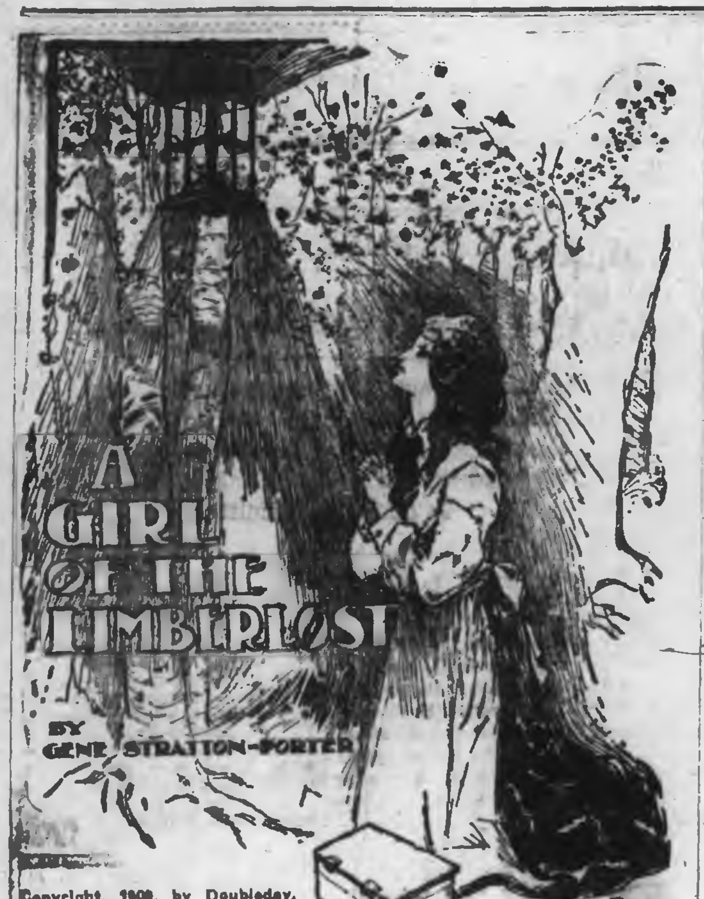
They returned the fire, hitting him in the forearm.

One Man Was Killed and Twelve Others Severely Wounded During Riot.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 29.—Deputy sheriffs and strikers from the Rankin plant of the American Steel & Wire Co., a subsidiary of the U. S. Steel Corporation, clashed last night, one man being killed and 12 persons injured, several fatally. All the wounded except two deputies and a policeman, were spectators. Not a striker was injured so far as can be learned. Among the injured are several women and a six-months-old child.

The deputy sheriffs and strikers collided on Hawkins avenue, one of the principal streets of Rankin, which adjoins this city. The county officers, armed with revolvers and rifles, and the strikers, armed with revolvers and stones, battled for an hour within an area of two street squares.

The rioting and shooting ended when the deputy sheriffs retreated within the fence of the mill.



A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST
BY GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Company.

When at last the exercises were over she climbed into the carriage and rode home without a word. She did not hear what Margaret and Billy were saying. She scarcely heard Sinton, who drove behind, when he told her that Elnora would not be home until Wednesday. Early the next morning Mrs. Comstock was on her way to Onabasha. She was waiting when the Brownlee store opened. She examined ready made white dresses, but they had only one of the right size, and it was marked $40. Mrs. Comstock did not hesitate over the price, but whether the dress would be suitable. She would have to ask Elnora. She inquired her way to the home of the Bird Woman and knocked.

"Yes, but she is still in bed. I was told to let her sleep as long as she would."

"Maybe I could sit here and wait," said Mrs. Comstock. "I want to see about getting her a dress for tomorrow. I am her mother."

"Then you don't need wait or worry," said the girl cheerfully. "There are two women up in the sewing room at work on a dress for her right now. It will be done in time, and it will be a beauty."

Mrs. Comstock turned and trudged back to the Limberlost. The bitterness in her soul became a physical actuality and water would not wash the taste of wormwood from her lips. She was too late. She was not needed. Another woman was mothering her girl. Another woman would prepare a beautiful dress such as Elnora had worn last night. The girl's love and gratitude would go to her. Mrs. Comstock tried the old process of blaming someone else, but she felt no better. She nursed her grief as closely as ever in the long days of the girl's absence.

Among Elnora's graduation gifts was a queerly shaped package brought to the Bird Woman's by Billy. The Bird Woman bent over her as she opened it and tested the fabric with her fingers.

"Why, bless my soul!" she cried. "Hand woven, hand embroidered linen, fine as silk. It's priceless! I haven't seen such things in years. My mother had garments like those when I was a child, but my sisters had them cut up for collars, belts and fancy waists while I was small. Look at the exquisite work!"

"Where could it have come from?" cried Elnora.

She shook out a petticoat with a hand wrought ruffle a foot deep, then an old fashioned chemise the neck and sleeve work of which was elaborate and perfectly wrought. On the breast was pinned a note that she hastily opened.

"I was married in these," it read, "and I had intended to be buried in them, but perhaps it would be more sensible for you to graduate and get married in them yourself if you would like. Your mother."

"From my mother!" Wide eyed, Elnora looked at the Bird Woman. "Do you suppose she can be insane?"

"Yes," said the Bird Woman, "stark, staring mad—wildly insane if she does not love you and care what becomes of you."

Elnora arose and held the petticoat to her. "Will you look at it!" she cried. "Only imagine her not getting my dress ready and then turning around and sending me such a petticoat as this! Ellen would pay $100 for it and never blink. I suppose mother has had it all my life, and I never saw it before."

"Go take your bath and put on those things," said the Bird Woman. "Forget everything and be happy. She is not insane; she is embittered."

Soon Elnora was ready for her dress. She never had looked so well as when she again headed the procession across the flower and palm decked stage of the high school auditorium. When she looked into the eyes of a white faced woman next to Wesley and Margaret she slipped a hand to her side and raised her skirt the fraction of an inch, just enough to let the embroidered edge of a petticoat show a trifle. When she saw the look of relief which flooded her mother's face Elnora knew that forgiveness was in her heart and that she would go home in the morning.

It was late afternoon before she arrived, and a dray followed with a load of packages. Mrs. Comstock was overwhelmed. She sat half dazed and made Elnora show her each costly and beautiful or simple and useful gift, tell her carefully what it was and from where it came. She studied the faces of Elnora's particular friends intently. The gifts from them had to be selected and set in a group. Several times she started to speak and then stopped. At last between her dry lips came a harsh whisper.

"Elnora, what did you give back for these things?"

Elnora handed her mother a handsome black walnut frame a foot and a half wide by two long. It finished a small shallow glass covered box of birch bark, to the bottom of which clung a big night moth with delicate pale green wings and long, exquisite trailers. A more beautiful thing would have been difficult to imagine.

"I must get to work, for it is almost time, and there are a few more I want dreadfully," said Elnora. "When I get them I will be paid some money for which I have worked a long time."

CHAPTER XVI.

Wherein Margaret Sinton Reveals a Secret.

"ELNORA, bring me the towel, quick!" cried Mrs. Comstock. "Hurry! There's a varmint of some kind!"

Elnora ran into the sitting room and thrust the heavy kitchen towel into her mother's hand. Mrs. Comstock swung open the screen door and struck at some object. Elnora screamed wildly.

"Don't, mother, don't!"

Mrs. Comstock struck again. Elnora caught her arm.

"It's the one I want! It's worth a lot of money! Don't! Oh, you shall not!"

"Shan't, missy?" blazed Mrs. Comstock. "When did you get to bossing me?"

The hand that held the screen swept a half circle and stopped at Elnora's cheek. She staggered with the blow, and across her face, pale with excitement, a red mark rose rapidly. The screen slammed shut, throwing the creature on the floor before them. Instantly Mrs. Comstock's foot crushed it. Elnora stepped back. Excepting the red mark, her face was very white.

"That was the last moth I needed," she said, "to complete a collection worth $300. You've ruined it before my eyes!"

"If I had known it was a moth"—Mrs. Comstock wavered.

"They are what have paid for books, tuition and clothes for the last four years. They are what I could have started on to college. You've crushed the last one I needed before my face. You never have made any pretense of loving me. At last I'll be equally frank with you. I hate you! You are a selfish, wicked woman! I hate you!"

Elnora turned, went through the kitchen and out the back door. She followed the garden path to the gate and walked toward the swamp a short distance when reaction overtook her. She dropped on the ground and leaned against a big log. When a little child, desperate as now, she had tried to die by holding her breath.

But Elnora was gone. Her mother stood staring.

"She never did lie to me," she muttered. "I guess it was a moth and the only one she needed to get $300, she said. I wish I hadn't been so fast. Pshaw! She can find another. Maybe moths are like snakes, where there's one there's two."

The Millennium Guild.

Prominent and wealthy Boston society women in an effort to live "perfect" lives have formed the Millennium guild, the first organization of its kind in the world.

Love of all forms of animal and bird life in an effort to prevent slaughter is back of the new work that this Boston organization has taken up. The members of the society, many of whom have great wealth, have adopted a no meat diet. They have given up the wearing of magnificent furs because of the appalling cruelty used in the fur securing industry. They likewise bar all feathers, breasts and wings used on hats and have no use for kid gloves or the leather that is used in the soles of shoes.

The members have agreed not to profit in any way by the deliberate killing of any creature.

Publish My Letter The World Over

"Three years ago I discovered that a man subject to lumbago might just as well be dead as alive." These words open the sincere, straightforward letter of H. P. Bushy, a well-known man in the plumbing and tinsmithing business in Portland.

"One attack came after another, and lumbago got to be a chronic thing with me. I could scarcely get in a day's work before that knifing, cruel pain would attack my back. I used a gallon of liniments; not one of them seemed penetrating enough to get at the core of the pain. I read in the Montreal Witness about Nerviline, and got five bottles. It is a wonderful medicine—I could feel its soothing pain-relieving action every time it was applied. When I got the disease under control with Nerviline, I built up my strength and fortified my blood by taking Ferrozone at meals. This treatment cured me permanently, and I urge everyone to give up the thick, white, oily liniments they are using, and try an up-to-date, penetrating, pain-destroyer like Nerviline.

"Please publish my letter the world over. I want all to hear of Nerviline."

Cookery Points

Apple Tapioca.

Butter and eggs are not used in the following recipe for apple tapioca, a most excellent way of preparing this dessert: Have ready a large cupful of tapioca, three pints of apples, peeled, cored and quartered; a cupful of sugar, a scant teaspoonful of salt, a flavoring of grated lemon peel or nutmeg and three pints of boiling water. After washing the tapioca carefully put it into the boiling water. Let it cook until perfectly clear and stir frequently to prevent burning. While it is cooking put the apples into a baking dish. Sprinkle them with the flavoring, and then over all put the tapioca while it is very hot. Bake the pudding in a slow oven until done and serve either hot or cold with cream.

Prune Salad.

Prune salad is somewhat of a novelty to many. Soak the prunes overnight in cold water. Then the next morning stew them with water and sugar until tender. Let them cool, remove the stones and fill the centers with cream cheese which has been softened with a little cream and mixed with chopped nuts. Arrange these on lettuce leaves and pour over them a dressing made as follows: Mix in order one-half teaspoonful salt, a pinch of mustard, a little cayenne pepper or more paprika, five tablespoonfuls olive oil, two and one-half tablespoonfuls of vinegar and a few drops of lemon juice. Beat with an egg beater until it is thick.

Chocolate Pie.

Heat one cupful of milk with one square of chocolate, stirring until the chocolate, which should be broken fine, is melted. Beat the yolks of three eggs and add four tablespoonfuls of milk. Put a saltspoonful of salt and one-half cupful of sugar into the milk and chocolate, and when hot again add the diluted egg yolks. Cook two minutes, take from the fire and add half a teaspoonful of vanilla. Line a pie plate with good paste and pour in the filling. Bake twenty minutes in a quick oven and cover with a meringue made from the whites of three eggs beaten stiff with one-third cupful of powdered sugar. Color slightly in a cool oven.

owe their singular effectiveness in curing Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica to their power of stimulating and strengthening the kidneys. They enable these organs to thoroughly filter from the blood the uric acid (the product of waste matter) which gets into the joints and muscles and causes these painful diseases. Over half a century of constant use has proved conclusively that Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills strengthen weak kidneys and 41

The Tramp and Little Nell

Moderato.
1. One day a tramp stopp'd by the way And begg'd for just a crust; The tears stream'd down his sunken cheeks, Be-grim'd with stain and dust, His clothes were thread-bare, patch'd, and torn, A shab-by hat he grasped, And stood there trembling like a leaf, His coat he tight-ly clasped. The village blacksmith stopp'd his work And look'd the strang-er o'er; Then kind-ly bade him take a seat— The tramp so tired and sore. "My lit-tle girl has gone," he said, "But where, I cannot tell; She left her home a year a-go, Her name was lit-tle Nell!"
2. He bade a-dieu, with heav-y heart, And wander'd down the lane; He wish'd to see his lit-tle Nell, If on-ly once a-gain; He trudg'd for ma-ny wea-ry hours, And reach'd the town by night, Where peo-ple pass'd him to and fro, And shudder'd at the sight. At last he found a rest-ing place, Twas at a man-sion door, Where rev-el-ry was high with-in, And laugh-ter loud did soar. There was a voice a-bove the rest, A voice of mag-ic spell; It sounded like his darling girl's, The voice of lit-tle Nell!

"Oh, God! 'tis lit-tle Nell!" he cried, Then sank in wild de-spair;........ "I've search'd the wea-ry world for her, And Heav'n has heard my pray'r;........ SUBSTITUTION AND WEDDINGS

Billy's Scheme Was Daring, and It Won.

By MARTHA McCULLOCH-WILLIAMS

Elizabeth crossed the turf so loathly, so laggardly, she left a waving trail of deep green footprints athwart the dew grayed grass. The line was blotched here and there where she had stopped and half turned about, but from the last and lightest of the blotches it ran straight to the wicket gate in the hedge. The path to the gate led around, almost under, the library windows. Therefore she had avoided it. She did not want to be spied upon, and, though the library commonly was empty until long after sunrise, she had come to believe there was no counting on where Miss Prudence Weir would be at any special hour.

The wicket gave upon a lane shady and secluded, yet a public passway notwithstanding both sides of it belonged to Elizabeth's Uncle Dan. He had been trying to close it ever since he bought the old Mears place, but his rustic neighbors had held stoutly to their right of way. So the young man walking slowly along the lane was no trespasser, albeit he walked warily, keeping close to the hedge. Elizabeth smiled shamelessly to see him. Now that she had really brought herself to a clandestine meeting she was all in a happy flutter and amazed at her own hesitancy.

Yet she said, smiling up at her tall sweetheart: "You must go right back, Billy—must. Do you hear? Miss Prudence Weir sleeps with both ears and one eye open. Besides, she gets up early more than half the time. And you know she can make Dandy believe anything in the world, except that he ought to marry her."

"H-m! That's a pity! Skepticism on any other point would be less inconvenient," Billy Medwin panted, hurrying Elizabeth along the lane toward the woods beyond the main traveled road. It was not at all the way he should go to go home, but somehow Elizabeth made no protest.

Soon they were walking through dew sweet shade, with birds singing thin and sweet above their heads. And presently Billy had his arms about Elizabeth and was saying, with his lips in her hair: "Honey girl, I've been thinking—hard. Miss Weir is the lion in our path, and there's just one way to get round her"—

"What?" Elizabeth interrupted, lifting her head a little. Billy looked up among the leaves and colored faintly as he answered: "Oh, we must show Dandy how deceitful she is. She's made him believe it would be sin to let me have you. Don't you think it would shake his faith in her if he knew she was willing to take me herself?"

"Billy," Elizabeth exploded, shaking with laughter, "you wouldn't dare propose to her. Can you live through a breach of promise suit? If only you could do it! But you never in the world can."

She made a face at him as she answered: "Just you try it. Why, even if the worst happened—if you got tangled past getting out—I should have at least the heavenly satisfaction of knowing she had showed herself to Dandy the cat she is."

"Trust me not to get tangled," Billy protested. What else he said is not strictly material to this narrative, although it sent Elizabeth home at last with happy eyes and the color of a wild rose.

• • • • • • •

Ofttimes fortune favors the daring. The execution began with his rescue of the pudgy Miss Weir from a runaway which was not in the least dangerous, but which gave her a mortal scare. Of course he went back with her to the gate, stopping there to explain elaborately that he had somehow incurred the displeasure of Mr. Daniel Goodwood and been forbidden the premises. That, of course, gave him excuse to ask if he might inquire by letter after Miss Weir's health. One letter quickly and easily bred another, and from writing it was but a step to meeting either in the lane or in the wood beyond and talking of many things.

Miss Weir was rising thirty, just five years Billy's elder, but so light colored and plump she flattered herself it looked the other way. She loved ease and consequence—witness that for five years past she had been trying delicately to marry Uncle Dandy. She had only succeeded in becoming after a sort his social watchdog.

He had a great opinion of Elizabeth, his heiress, and wanted to match her well if she was to be matched at all. Miss Weir had about lost hope of Uncle Dandy when Billy came on the scene. Billy knew pretty well all there was to know of lovemaking. This time he chose to make it in hypothetical fashion. He began impersonally by describing a young fellow who had set his eyes and heart upon one so far above his deserts he had become quite hopeless of winning her and had descended to trifling with mere ordinary girls by way of filling an aching void. Then he pictured the lady. Her eyes were heaven blue, her skin all lily and rose, her hair like spun sunshine, her voice a flute. But that was as nothing beside her loftier charms—her soul, her spirit, her angelic nature—which made a mere ordinary sinner grovel in dust whenever he let himself feel what temerity it was to love her. Thus far Billy got by the end of the second week. Naturally it was but little later that the lady was forced to discover herself in the fair unknown.

Then Billy played finer than ever. He would not speak the worshiper's name; she must guess it. But he would with her permission send her a letter unsigned from the worshiper, one in some faint way setting forth all that was in his heart. And she bound herself to reply to it—reply as her heart directed. Billy had hard work to keep from shouting when he heard that, but by holding himself hard in hand he kept a proper face and hurried off to consult his best chum, also a very ancient "complete letter writer."

Miss Weir did reply from a full heart. Indeed, the heart slopped over a bit—she called names—Billy's name with endearing variations. More, she whistled down the wind his pleas of unworthiness—he was a demigod at least among men—she rejoiced to hail and own him, king of her affections. Marry him? She would be happier as his wife than any crowned queen. His "modest fortune" did not count at all. Her tastes were even more modest—and so on, and so on.

To do the lady justice she knew Billy had really a handsome competence; also that he was no sluggard. And her own position was far from enviable. Moreover, she was dreadfully crabbed over Prudence's tardy settlement. "Here you are a nagging old maid when you ought to be a grandmother—almost," she said now and then brutally. Really the stars in their course fought for Billy—Billy the unregenerate, who as soon as he got the letter put it in his pocket and bore down on Uncle Dandy.

Just what happened between them is to this day a dark secret. Folks outside heard first a lot of growling from Uncle Dandy, followed later on by shouted laughter, but nothing audible until the pair came out together, with Uncle Dandy slapping Billy on the back at every other step. And this was what he was saying: "We've got to hire you a substitute, Billy, and I know just the man. It's Amos Flack—he needs a wife if ever a man did—a preacher, with five of the worst children going. Any endowed proposition will be tempting to him. Besides, I've already detected him casting sheep's eyes up this way. So you trot along and find Elizabeth while I look him up. And be sure you burn that letter. It must be thought to have got lost in transit. You may tell whoever you see there's going to be a double wedding up this way soon."

"Yes, sir; I will," Billy said obediently. "But I shan't tell 'em I had a hand in bringing on both matches."

Sure enough, there was a double wedding, with Uncle Dandy playing fairy godfather to both brides.

SOUR RISINGS FROM STOMACH

Those Who Experience Fullness and Pain After Meals, Stomach Disorders, and Indigestion, Should Read Below.

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels, for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was pain and fulness, and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. To-day I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."

Knowledge of direction seems to be instinctive with the Burmans, says the author of "A People at School." They always reckon by the needle, not by relative position. They do not say "Turn to the right," but "Turn to the west." If a table in a room has two tumblers on it one of them will be the east tumbler, the other the west, and the table itself will be not the "table near the window," but the "table in the east of the room." So they speak of the north or south side of a street or of a tree, not the shady or sunny side. Even in rain or mist they know the direction at once. An English traveler, walking in the Burman forest on a foggy morning to find all trace of the road wiped out by rain and every apparent means of ascertaining direction gone, was at a loss what to do, but his Burman servants knew at once. "That is north," they said, pointing, "and that is east. Our course lies between," and straight to the northeast they marched unerringly.

Classifying Him.

"Brother Hardesty, can't you make your contribution for the education of the heathen a little larger than usual this year?"

"Dr. Goodman, I'm more than doubling it. I have just started that youngest boy of mine to college."—Chicago Tribune.

AN OLD MEAT LAW

Among some amendments to laws confirmed at "ye General Court of assizes held in New Yorke, beginning on ye 5th & ending on ye 8th day of October, 1670," was the following:

"Whereas, divers Complaints have been made of the great abuse of bringing dead hoggs & Porke into this city & it not being discernible how long they have been Kill'd by reason they are too often brought frozen, so not capable of being preserved by Salt which tends much to ye disreputacon of that Commodity when sent abroad, and ye Merchants who Export it into Warmer Climates, for ye reasons aforesaid it is Ordered, That henceforth no hogg or hoggs shall be brought dead to this place either for sale or payment of debts, except it shall be in cask well Salted & Packt according to ye Law, otherwise smoak't or dryed of which all persons are to take Notice, as they will answer ye contrary at their Perrills."

Of the male bluebird Thoreau said, "He carries the sky on his back." To this John Burroughs added, "And the earth on his breast." The bird's back, wings and tail, chin and throat are a vivid blue, while his breast and flanks are a chestnut brown and his abdomen a dirty white. The female is very much duller in coloring, often having a reddish tone that extends from the middle of the back over the shoulder. The Seminole Indians say that the male bluebird once flew so high that his back rubbed against the sky, which imparted to him its own azure tint. Returning to earth, his wife so admired his new coat that she determined to have a like one for herself and the next morning flew away to get it, but the day proving somewhat cloudy the color given to her dress was not so brilliant as was that received by her mate.

Displaced the Hourglass.

The first accurate clock was set up in England at Hampton Court in 1540. Up to that time members of the royal suit used hour glasses in their private rooms.

Hair Brushes.

An experienced hand will by touch tell if a broom or brush be all hair or a mixture. But if ever in doubt pull out or cut off a suspicious hair and apply a match. However well doctored, the deception will be shown at once. Hairs will burn, rolling up ball-like, with the well known smell of burned hair, while a vegetable substitute will consume, leaving the charred portion like a burned match.

MOTION PICTURES AS DETECTIVES

Through a Paris contemporary we learn of a novel method adopted by the Prague police authorities to detect the perpetrators of high crimes and misdemeanors. But whether the project will prove a success remains to be seen. When a person of distinction in the annals of crime is benig sought and the police experience difficulty in laying hands upon the suspect, in future they will send to every cinematograph exhibition in Bohemia a photograph of the person "wanted." During the entertainment the picture will be shown with some little explanatory note, and at the conclusion each member of the audience will be free to act as an amateur detective. It seems very likely that this method will be fruitful in actions for damages.—London Globe.

Care of the Eyes.

On rising in the morning the eyes should be bathed gently in cold water. Twenty passes are said to be decidedly strengthening. While using them closely they should be rested at intervals of an hour or two, for the strain of constant reading, etc., is like that of extending the arms at a certain height immovably. Imagine, then, the taxing of the eyes, which cannot complain save after years of irreparable neglect. When dust settles in the eyes warm water will soothe them of any inflammation.

That Was All.

"Skillings, how came you to quit working for Spotcash & Co.?"

"We had a difference of opinion as to the value of my services for another year."

"Was that all?"

"Yes. I thought I was worth $4,000 to them, and they thought I wasn't worth 40 cents. So I quit. What else could a self respecting man do?"—Chicago Tribune.

New Grand Central Terminal

A wonderful city within a city built for the comfort and convenience of the traveling public.

The main Grand Central Terminal Building in New York is now open to the public. This vast improvement is more than a great railway Terminal—it is a Terminal City, complete in itself, providing every detail essential to comfort and convenience.

It will embrace convention, amusement and exhibition halls, hotels, clubs and restaurants; post office, express offices, modern apartment and office buildings, and numerous stores and specialty shops.

Grand Central Terminal is the Heart of New York at Forty-second Street and Park Avenue (4th Avenue), one block from Fifth Avenue and convenient to Broadway.

It is the only Terminal on all lines of local traffic—subway, surface and elevated. More than 7,000 cars pass its doors every day, affording easy transit facilities to any part of New York. Around it, within a radius of a few blocks are forty-nine hotels, fifty-eight clubs and thirty-five theatres.

Three new lines of underground transportation are now building to Grand Central Terminal, and soon there will be six levels of human traffic in Forty-second Street.

Below the Terminal City under all its buildings and streets are 33 miles of railway tracks on two separate levels, the upper for Through Service and the lower for Suburban Service.

Each level forms a complete terminal in itself, separate entrances and exits, with equal facilities for the comfort of passengers.

Both levels are reached by gently inclined walks, (no need to climb stairs) and no confusion, since incoming and outgoing traffic is separated.

Ticket, Pullman, Baggage and other facilities are progressively arranged from waiting room to train, no step need be retraced.

BURNHAM TITLE BILL

The following is from the Ottawa Free Press:

"While it isn't likely that J. H. Burnham, M.P., will ever be successful in his effort to abolish titles in this country, we venture to suggest that he might try to limit the number of title-holders of the future by having them pass examinations as they do in the civil service. If title aspirants were required to pass ordinary academic tests it is pretty safe guessing that J. H. Burnham's democratic ideal would come pretty nearly to fruition. Of course these examinations would have to be properly graded in accord with the importance of the title, but we have several men here in Ottawa who could do the grading, and the task of making up the papers could be left with perfect safety to Prof. Adam Shortt, of the civil service commission."

NEWSPAPERS AND THE YOUNG

Boston Christian Science Monitor. "At the coming decennial convention of the Religious Education Association, under the general title of 'Religious Education and Civic Progress,' part of the time of the delegates will be given to consideration of the sub-topic, 'The Newspaper and the Moral Welfare of Children.' Such recognition of the place of the newspaper that is allowed to enter the home as a factor in shaping opinions and conduct of plastic young folk is tardy but none the less welcome. Were there more parents and educators who fully understand the malign effect of a low-toned daily visitor and the wholesome influence of a clean and right-intentioned journal, the circulation of sensational journals would wane."

THE SUFFRAGETTE FIASCO

The Asquith Ministry has been saved from the threatened split over the woman suffrage question by the astute ruling of Speaker Lowther, of the House of Commons, who rules that the amendment to knock out the word "male" in the Franchise bill—giving the vote to all women as well as men—is so important, rendering the character of the bill so different, that a new bill must be introduced governing that phase of the question. Thus the Suffragettes get a black eye in one sense, but in another they triumph for it as certain that if the amendment had gone to a vote, it would have been defeated. They are saved the humiliation of a defeat. The Asquith Government is saved the unpleasantness of having a Ministerial amendment to a Government bill defeated. The row within the Cabinet is not passed over by the vote of the House, and must still go on. The result of the Speaker's ruling is to pull the Ministry out of one hot corner, only to put them in a hotter.

The Suffragettes are quite likely to commence another militant campaign. It certainly is no slight evidence of the determination and pertinacity of the British character than these females should persist in carrying their campaign, against all rhyme or reason, to such lengths. Nowhere but in England is there the unwavering resolution that will win or die in such a cause. Canadians would laugh at or mock such earnestness, and most heartily condemn the anarchistic methods of the women, but one cannot help admiring the force of character they exhibit in pushing their cause. They will eventually win, probably but what good will it do them? They can only have one vote each.

KEEPING THE SUNDAY

A proposal has originated in Winnipeg to have the moving picture theatres kept open on Sunday, and it is probable that an effort to have the Provincial and Dominion law amended to this effect. But there is little hope for any such movement. The fact that on Sundays the moving picture exhibits would consist only of Biblical or historical scenes does not alter the character of the request. To introduce one form of theatrical amusement on Sunday would be to invite other forms, perhaps just as supposedly innocuous, and it would not be long before the advocates of open air sport would have their claims, and so on. Canada would find it very easy to introduce a wide-open Sunday, and commence the destruction of the Sabbath as a day of rest. It may be claimed by some people, and perhaps with reason, that the Lord's Day Alliance is too much given to unwarranted activity, interfering with the logical and reasonable rights of people to do what they please on Sunday. But the keeping of the one day as a day of complete rest, of cessation from all but the most necessary business, is one of the great foundation rocks upon which Canadian national merit is built. It is one of the fundamental distinguishing differences between the United States and this country, exemplifying the more solid, the more conservative Canadianism, the greater sobriety of temperament to be found on this side of the border. The restrictions placed on Sunday amusements may seem drawn a little tightly, but taken as a whole, the strict Sunday has far greater advantages and benefits to the population as a whole than the wide open Sunday. The Winnipeg request will not get very far, for it seeks to upset a cardinal principle upon which we have been building a nation.

Why do the men make so much fuss about the most of women's hats? I saw a trimmed hat in a ten cent store to-day, marked ten cents, and it looked pretty well.

Velvet Umbrellas Smart.

Because of the tremendous vogue of velvets and the number of costumes in that material that are being made up the velvet incased umbrella has come into being. Made on a slender but substantial frame, which folds closely, and covered with a silk taffeta spread, the umbrella when closed and incased appears like a walking stick of velvet from ferrule to top. A solid silver monogram plate caps the handle, which ten inches down its length is ornamented with a double ring of silver.

Three Irish Suffragettes Smash Dublin Castle Windows.

DUBLIN, Ireland, Jan. 29.—Three suffragettes, Mrs. Hopkins, Mrs. Cousins and Mrs. Connery, who were arrested yesterday morning on the charge of breaking fifteen panes of glass in the windows of Dublin Castle, were sentenced by the police magistrate yesterday afternoon to a month's hard labor each.

Sylvia Pankhurst, younger daughter of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, chief of the militant suffragettes, was arrested Monday night in the act of throwing a stone at a large painting in St. Stephen's Hall, leading to the House of Commons. Application was made for her release on bail last night, but it was refused. Sylvia is the younger and favorite daughter of the "Votes for Women" leader, and recently made a tour of Canada, lecturing to secure funds for the cause.

LETTER TO THE COUNTY COUNCIL

From Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P., Regarding Buckhorn Bridge Matter

At this morning's session of the County Council, the following letter from Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., was read:

The Warden and Council of the County of Peterborough

Gentlemen — Re Buckhorn Bridge I beg leave to report to you that in order to extract all the information possible herein, I put on the order paper a list of questions approved by your worthy clerk. This I was advised by the Department would not prove satisfactory to me. I immediately put a notice of motion on the order paper, calling for all papers, etc., because in moving the motion, I will have an opportunity of speaking to the question fully. The answers to the questions I have forwarded to you in Hansard, and while the answers show that there is nothing on record respecting the cancellation of the $8,000 contract, they do not show WHY nothing is on record, and this fact I hope to bring out in the discussion. I will forward you the report in due time. We hope to get it next week at the latest.

Yours truly,
J. H. BURNHAM.

On motion, the letter was referred to the Roads and Bridges committee.

OUR FISHING INDUSTRY

The fishing industry in Canada at the close of the year 1910, represented a production in round figures of $30,000,000. Of this, a little over $15,000,000 was exported the balance of the catch being used for home consumption—about $2.00 worth of fish per head of our population.

Strange to say, in Eastern Canada, including Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, and Quebec, there is no increase worthy of note in the last ten years. The product of their fisheries in 1900 was $14,283,679, and in 1910 only $15,615,485. But a tremendous growth has taken place in Western Canadian fisheries, viz., from the inland waters of Ontario to, and including, British Columbia. The production of fish in Western Canada in 1900 was $6,353,560; as compared with the close of 1910, which showed the magnificent total of $13,727,038, an increase of over 100 per cent. in ten years. These figures do not include seal hunting or the Pacific Coast.

The largest catches on the inland waters are whitefish, trout, and herring. On the great inland sea of Lake Superior the trout catch outnumbers all others. Lake Winnipeg shows a very material increase in the catch of whitefish in the last few years, whereas there is a big decrease shown in the catch on the five great lakes. A comparison of these figures brings us to a very interesting subject. On Lake Winnipeg there have been established for a number of years efficient fish hatcheries under the control of the Government; whereas, on the five great lakes, few, if any, active steps have been taken to foster the fishing industry. But at last the Government has realized the value of this industry, both as a factor of commerce and as food for the people, and they have now adopted a more active policy, looking to the establishment of fish hatcheries. It is to be hoped for the general good of the country that a liberal policy will be continued of encouraging and fostering the fishing industry of the great lakes by the establishment of efficient hatcheries at numerous points. To reap the harvest it is a worldwide cardinal principle that we must sow the seed. This is as true of the fishing industry as of wheat raising.

The latest fish hatchery established is the one at Port Arthur on the western shores of Lake Superior. The building of this hatchery was started in the summer of 1911, and was partly in commission in the winter of 1912. This hatchery has an annual capacity of turning out fish fry, which at maturity, will represent a catch of the enormous total of $10,500,000 yearly. The hatchery is equipped for the propagation mainly of lake trout, as owing to the rocky and clay formation of Lake Superior, trout find their native haunts on the shores of the lake. A certain percentage of whitefish are also being hatched out as there are a few sandy spawning beds in the smaller bays which form the native haunt of the whitefish. A very interesting experiment is also being tried out in the placing of salmon fry in the lake this year, as it is believed that a very valuable salmon fishing industry can be established at Port Arthur.

The Western Pulse.

If you don't believe that people live a bustling life in the west, how would you account for these experiments of Dr. Stafford on the pulse of Saskatoon?

The normal pulse beat of individuals in the east, according to the doctor, is from 69 to 72, and he did not expect to find much difference in the west, though as the result of the higher altitude and the rarefied air he would not have been surprised at a difference of a few beats. Lately, however, the doctor has been examining the men in the street railway service and he was astounded to find that their pulses ranged from eighty to one hundred and twenty beats per minute, with an average for forty men of ninety-six. Since then he has been feeling the pulse of civic officials and others and finds they are all faster—much faster—than is customary in Eastern Canada.

"You, young man," he said to a reporter, whose pulse registered 108, "are an example of the feverish hustle of the west."

"There is no doubt," he added, "that this rarefied air and high altitude has much to do with it. It makes us rush around all day, with the result that we are dog-tired at night, and all the time our hearts are beating about half as fast again as they should."

Honor For Canadian.

Kenneth K. Forbes, youngest son of John Colin Forbes, R.C.A., the well-known Canadian artist, has just achieved high honors by winning the Chase scholarship in the London New Art School, which is conducted by Charles Orchardson, and Royal Academicians J. J. Shannon, George Clausen, Arthur Hacker and Frank Brandwyn.

The award is the more meritorious on account of the number and high standing of the students competing.

Three years ago when only seventeen this talented young artist, also won a four-year scholarship in the Hospitalfield Castle Art School, resigning recently to enter the London New Art School.

FLEETWOOD NEWS

Special Correspondence.

Fleetwood, Jan. 29 — It is our painful duty to have to record the death of one of the oldest residents of the township of Manvers being that of the beloved wife of the late William Brown, which sad event took place at Fleetwood on Saturday, January 25th, at the age of 94 years and nine months. Her maiden name was Jane Rehill, she was born in the county Cavan, Ireland in April, 1819, and was married in the same county to her late husband in 1843. Five children were born, three boys and two girls. The two eldest boys died in Ireland. They came to Canada, and of late they resided in the township of Manvers, where the late Mr. William Brown died sixteen years ago. Mrs. Brown had of late been living with her son, William, in Fleetwood, and her daughter, Mrs. James Malcomson, who remained with her to the last. Deceased was always a good, kind-hearted lady, and lived a Christian life. She leaves to mourn her loss two daughters, Mrs. James Malcomson and Mrs. James Bird, and one son, William, all of Manvers township.

The funeral which took place on Monday, Jan. 27th, at 2 p.m., was largely attended and testified to the high esteem in which she was held.

Interment was at St. Mary's church cemetery. The pall bearers were her six grand sons, the five Malcomson brothers and Mr. Wilfred Bird. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved family.

Mr. Victor Commiskey, who was very sick of late, is, we are glad to say, recovering, and we hope to see him about shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Van Allan and family, of Peterborough, were visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Black over Sunday.

Mr. A. E. Staples, who purchased a new clover mill and engine, is having splendid success threshing, and doubt will have all the work he can attend to. We hope to see him install his chopping mill in Fleetwood, where, no doubt, he would do a large trade grinding grain for the farmers in this vicinity.

Owing to the mild winter weather our mill owners will have a small stock of logs for their next year's cut, as the swamps are flooded, and no snow on the roads for sleighing.

We wonder when the big wedding at Fleetwood will come off, as all hands are looking for their invitation cards, but they seem to be slow in getting around.

Special Correspondence.

Omemee, Jan. 28— At the Sabbath evening service in the Presbyterian church, Mr. Roland, a student of Knox College, Toronto, preached a splendid sermon from the text "I will arise," as found in the parable of the prodigal son. The speaker emphasized the "I will" deducting in a lucid manner that sinners are not condemned because of Adam's sin, but because of want volition. They do not "will" to accept a remedy—Christ. Many remarks of appreciation were heard as the congregation dispersed. While the offering was being received Miss Perkins, organist, rendered a very nice vocal solo in good voice.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucuous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any cause that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

GENIUS AND VANITY.

Schopenhauer, the great German philosopher, afforded one of the most remarkable examples of self complacency that has ever been known. His naive eulogisms on his own productions are almost beyond belief. In writing to his publishers of his work he says:

"Its worth and importance are so great that I do not venture to express it even toward you because you could not believe me," and he proceeds to quote a review "which speaks of me with the highest praise as the greatest philosopher of the age, which is really saying much less than the good man thinks."

"Sir," he said to an unoffending stranger who watched him across a table d'hote where he acted the part of the local "lion" habitually—"sir, you are evidently astonished at my appetite. True, I eat three times as much as you, but then I have three times as much mind."

Auerbach, the German novelist, also had a great appreciation of his own powers and work, and many stories are told of the obtrusive way in which he displayed his vanity. A German writer says of him: "Every year Auerbach visits three or four fashionable watering places, at each of which the following episode occurs at least thirty times. The novelist indulges in small talk with the little children of the natives and invariably ends the conversation thus: 'Knowest thou who has been talking with thee? Behold Auerbach! Tell that at home!'"

Tacking Explained.

"What do people mean when they talk about tacking?" asked Bobby, who had listened to a detailed account of his sister's first experience in a sailboat, but in considerable confusion of mind.

"Oh, you'll know when you're a little bit older," said his sister, but the small round face wore an expression of injury, and she had to explain further.

"Why, it's just turning halfway round," she said, with slight hesitation, "and then—and then you sail on the bias."

AROUND THE WORLD BY C.P.R.

The details of the specially arranged trip around the world by the two new C.P.R. Empresses, the Empress of Russia and the Empress of Asia, which are scheduled to leave Liverpool, Eng., on April 1st and June 18th, respectively, have now been completed, and in connection with this voyage excellent side trips have also been arranged at a little extra cost to the passengers. It is scheduled that the Empress of Russia, which vessel will be ready for the voyage first, will take the Mediterranean route while her sister ship, the Empress of Asia, will according to present intentions, take the route around the Cape of Good Hope, making calls at some of the principal South African ports. The Empress of Russia is timed to leave Liverpool at 7 p.m. on April 1st, and arrive at Gibraltar the following Friday, leaving the next day for Villefranche. Passengers who wish to travel overland from London and Paris can do so and join the vessel at Villefranche. Time will be allowed for a visit to Monte Carlo and Nice, and on arrival at Port Said provision has been made for sightseeing at Cairo and the Pyramids, and re-embark at Suez. Stops will also be made at Colombo, Singapore, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Nagaski, Kobe and Yokohama, and thence to Vancouver, arriving at the latter port on Saturday, June 7th. Those passengers taking the trip from this continent have the choice of any vessel of the Atlantic Steamship lines leaving Montreal, St. John, N.B., Halifax, Boston or New York, in time to catch the Empress, and if desiring to visit Europe can leave as far ahead of the Empress' departure as they may desire. The new Empresses have a number of novel and attractive features. The saloon is very large and airy and the tables are arranged to suit the demands of the passengers. The staterooms on the bridge deck are enclosed in a complete steel deckhouse and the appointments and decorations in the French style of Louis XV. and Louis XVI. are carried out with taste and charm which cannot fail to appeal to the artistic sense.

The Well-Known Emotion.

Love was under discussion, and the time old "When is a man in love?" question came up. "A man is in love," said one, "when it gives him physical pain to tear up the slightest of her notes." "When"—but it would be violating confidences to tell other answers. One only, the best, we begged leave to print. "A man isn't really in love," said this romantically astute old gentleman, "until he begins to skip the descriptions of heroines in novels he reads, saying, 'What's the use of reading that? I'll have her looking like Her and talking like Her anyway'."

One might almost do an Elizabethan poem on that.

The Gem of the Collection.

Baron X. had been going over the museum of a little country town, and when about to leave he asked the curator if there was anything more to be seen.

"Yes, baron," was the reply; "there remains a little casket."

"No doubt used as a deposit for the jewelry of some eminent personage?" inquired the baron.

"No, sir; that is where I put the tips given to me by visitors to the museum."

APSLEY NEWS

Special Correspondence.

Apsley, Jan 29.—There passed away on Monday evening, January 20th, Mrs. Cyrus McFadden, sr., after a lingering illness, having been confined to her bed for about two years. The end did not come unexpected. She was highly respected and esteemed by all who knew her, which was shown by the floral tributes and the many friends who followed her remains to their last resting place. Although she suffered much during her long illness, she bore it with cheerfulness and resignation, wishing for the time to come when she would be removed from all that was earthly to the abode of the faithful.

The funeral took place on Wednesday January 22nd, from the residence of her son in Burleigh, to the Apsley Methodist church, where service was conducted by the Rev. Jas. Crosser, hence to the Apsley Union Cemetery for interment.

She leaves to mourn her loss three daughters and three sons, Mrs. J. Hales, Mrs. Newberry, John and Alexander, of Sask.; Mrs. J. W. Hales, Peterborough, and Cyrus, of Burleigh. Her husband predeceased her nine years ago.

The bearers were Messrs. Charles Hales, Thomas Stephens, Wm. Hales, Isaac Lean, Ezra Tucker and Thos. McIlmoyle.

'Mourner, raise that drooping head
And dry that falling tear;
Look above that scene of sorrow
You will see no more a bier;
But a saint clothed in all glory,
At the heavenly throne above,
You will hear the songs of triumph,
Choruses of Peace and Love.

SENATORS' LEADER DRAFTING CANADIAN LEAGUE SCHEDULE

Ottawa, Jan. 29.—Manager Frank Shaughnessy is now engaged in drafting a schedule for the Canadian League, which he will submit to the other seven clubs. It will of course, furnish the Ottawa fans with the best games possible for the big days, and is calculated to have the good teams here at the right time. Copies will be sent out for approval to the other clubs.

The Ottawas have three of their pitchers secured, Lill, Ostermeyer and Renfer. As yet no contracts other than that of Red Rowe have come in, but in another month the ball players will begin to think of hooking up for the season. "Hoops" Hopper, the little catcher, will go to Fort Wayne this season and Kubat will play in the New York State League.

D. O. DEFEAT M. U. IN BANK LEAGUE

Canada's Fire Loss.

The Monetary Times' estimate of Canada's fire loss during December amounted to $1,769,909, compared with November loss of $1,184,010, and $2,866,950 for December, 1911. Of this total, fires in which the loss exceeded $10,000 accounted for $1,300,210. The only fire in which loss amounted to $100,000 was that in the Montreal Paint Works.

Defective chimneys, stovepipes and flues were the cause of twenty-five fires, ten were due to electrical defects, nine were incendiary. The number of deaths from fire for the month was 28, making a total of 203 for 1912.

VICTORIAS HAD EASY VICTORY

Canadian Press Despatch.

Vancouver, Jan. 29.—The home team swamped New Westminster, Tuesday night, by eight goals to two, running away from them in the last period.

SPORT TALK

The report to the effect that George Stone, the former St. Louis American League player, who four or five years back lead that organization as the leading slugger, was to be secured as manager of the St. Thomas Club is branded by the club owners as a dream.

The London Club of the Canadian League has received word from Earl Powell the first baseman suspended last season, offering to return to the club if given an increase in salary.

Benny Speer, who was tried out last spring by the Toronto Leafs, has quit the game for this season at least, having accepted a position with the Adams Express Company in New York.

Despite his greater experience, Bill Carrigan, the world's champion veteran backstop, is likely to find himself second string catcher with Boston. He will sit on the bench and look at Forrest Cady in action. This was foreshowed last fall in the world's series games. Carrigan was not any too well pleased, either, at his being shoved into the discard.

Manager McGraw, of the National League club, announced to-day that Pitcher Louis Drucke has been released to the Sacremento Club, of the Pacific Coast League. Drucke joined the Giants in 1909, and the following season gave promise of developing into a star, but didn't.

An Ottawa Exchange says: Denison, the much touted man from Peterborough, looks to be a very ordinary player after all. He covers ground easily, but has the same disadvantage so apparent in all O.H.A. graduates of not being able to use his body.

Earl Mack, son of Connie Mack manager of the Philadelphia Americans, has signed a contract to lead the Raleigh team in the North Carolina League. It will be his first managerial experience.

GRIT OF A SHARPSHOOTER.

During the siege of Lucknow in the Indian mutiny there was afforded what was probably the most notable instance of the record in war of a crack shot.

The rebels were endeavoring to mount two eighteen-pounders, which they had hauled up to the flat roof of one of the palaces surrounding the residency, and it was necessary to prevent this being done, or they would have been able to pour down a heavy fire on the defenders. Sergeant Halliwell was chosen for this duty. He was a crack shot of the Thirty-second foot.

Being given the best rifle that could be found, his orders were to prevent the guns being mounted. He took up his position behind some battered down masonry where there was only cover for him to lie at full length. He remained in that position, it is said, for several days, not being able to stand, inasmuch as that would have resulted in instant death. His only change was to roll over from his back to his stomach. His eyes were ever kept on the dismounted guns, and whenever the Sepoys attempted to mount them his unerring rifle played havoc among them and prevented their object being accomplished. Food was brought to him at night by men who crawled to his position.

After some time a sortie was made, and the Sepoys were defeated. For this brave work Sergeant Halliwell received the Victoria cross.—Harper's Weekly.

Seven in the Bible.

The number seven plays a prominent part in events in the Bible. The creation took six days, and on the seventh there was rest. On the seventh day of the seventh month a holy observance was ordained, and the Israelites feasted seven days and rested seven days. Noah had seven days' warning of the flood, and the seven years of plenty were foretold in Pharaoh's dream by seven fat beasts, as were the seven lean years by seven lean beasts. We speak of the seven heavens, and the seventh son was supposed to be endowed with pre-eminent wisdom. In short, there is no other number which enters into the Bible so often as seven. No doubt the wide popularity of the number and the superstitions which are connected with it came from its wide use in the Bible.

Very Much Happier.

A boy reading the verse, "And those who live in cottages are happier than those who sit on thrones," startled the crowd by reading thus: "And those who live in cottages are happier than those who sit on thorns."

Heard of Him.

"'Man wants but little here below,'" quoted Blank.

"I've heard of that man," said Tank, cutting him off. "But did you ever know anybody that has ever seen him?"

Facing Death For Love

By ARTHUR W. BREWSTER

There is an island in the Pacific ocean which produces tropical fruit in abundance, and ships stop there to take it away and leave its equivalent in money or in such goods as the natives require. But the islanders will not consent to any mingling with the whites and are especially jealous of their women. Death is the penalty to any woman who receives a white man for a lover or a husband.

One day an American ship named the Mary Boyle stopped at the island with a cargo of miscellaneous goods which she unloaded and took on in its place such fruits as the place produced. The crew of the Mary Boyle were permitted to remain ashore during the day, but at evening they were required to go aboard the ship.

The captain of the Mary Boyle had warned his sailors to have nothing to do with the women on the island, telling them that they would not only endanger their lives, but bring certain death on any woman to whom they made love. The warning was not necessary with regard to the women, as a whole, who were many of them hideous. Even the girls were not gifted with what a white man would consider beauty. There was, however, one exception. While the shore force was unloading on the beach several girls came down to bathe. They went into the water and sported like dolphins. One of them who swam about, her long black hair trailing behind her, was as graceful as a swan. The sun glistened on some brass bracelets she wore on her arm and sparkled on a stone that was fixed just above her forehead to a ribbon bound around her head.

In contrast with this dusky maiden was one of the sailors whose eye she caught, Jack Cogian by name, with light hair and blue eyes. He followed her with his gaze so fixedly wherever she swam that the mate in charge of the party noticed his attraction, and to nip it in the bud gruffly ordered him to attend to his work.

When the girls were tired of swimming they went ashore, passing near the sailors at work, and the dark beauty, glancing at Jack, saw him gazing at her rapturously. Love is like gunpowder that only a spark is required to explode. The girl saw not only what to her was exquisite manly beauty in the fair young sailor, but the love light in his eyes. She passed on with her companions, but the damage had been done. One exchange of glances brought about that which was ready to brave death.

A week later, when the Mary Boyle was about ready to get up her anchor and sail away, the captain, in order to make sure that all the crew were aboard, ordered the boatswain to call the roll. When he came to the name of Cogian there was no reply. The captain's brow lowered. He shrank from leaving any of his men behind and feared that Jack had in some way become involved, so that it would be impossible to extricate him. Night was coming on when no white man was permitted to be on the island. If Jack was found there he would be killed. Yet the captain dare not violate the custom of the islanders by sending a crew ashore to bring him aboard. The only course to pursue was to wait till morning.

Dawn was breaking when the watch reported that a canoe with a white man and a native woman in it was leaving the shore. The captain ran up on deck, and seizing a glass brought it to bear on the couple in the boat. The wind was high and blowing on shore, giving rise to a line of breakers, but the occupants of the canoe, by dexterous paddling, the woman in the bow evidently taking the lead, had managed to ride the foamy crests and get beyond them into unbroken water. At the moment the captain took the glass a number of natives ran from the wood above the beach and began hurling spears and stones at the couple in the boat.

It was clear to those on board the Mary Boyle that Love was playing one of his reckless pranks. These two young fools were braving almost certain death that they might possess each other.

The men ashore, seeing that they were powerless to reach the fugitives with their weapons, rushed up the beach to an inlet where was moored a canoe large enough to hold half a dozen of them, and, getting aboard, started in pursuit. Six paddles were far more effectual than two, especially when one of the latter was handled by a girl. But she was both strong and skillful. Indeed, it was on her, rather than her lover, who was inexperienced in canoeing, that the race depended.

All the world loves a lover, and the crew of the Mary Boyle, without waiting for the captain's order, lowered a boat and pulled to the rescue. The fugitives saw them and took heart. It was a question whether the sailors or the islanders would reach them first. If the islanders, the fate of the girl was sealed, for they would kill her immediately.

The pursuing boat was near the fleeing couple. The girl's father was about to hurl a spear at her when a six pound shot from the Mary Boyle struck the canoe he was in and in the panic that ensued rolled it over. That ended the struggle. The fugitives were taken aboard, the anchor raised, and the ship sailed away.

As to the future life of the young couple there is no record.

The Gurgle in the Bottle.

Why does water gurgle when poured from a bottle? As water pours out air attempts to pour in. Occasionally the hand holding the bottle may move and give the air the opportunity. The quick rush of the water to fill the hole made by the air causes the gurgling sound.

Grading the Rulers.

Themistocles, it is said, declared that his son was the strongest man in Greece.

"For," said he, "the Athenians rule the Hellenese, I rule the Athenians, your mother rules me, and you rule your mother."

A Really Smart Man.

Haphazard, occasional saving seldom accomplishes much. MAGISTRATE WAS LENIENT

Man Who Stole Suit of Clothes Gets Suspended Sentence

"If any of your officers ever see me touching liquor again, they may lock me up," said Albert Edwards in police court to-day to Chief Thompson. Sentence was suspended upon Edwards, who was found guilty of the theft of a suit of clothes from Alber Ilbright. An addiction to liquor was instrumental in causing the prisoner's fall from grace.

He was ordered to pay the costs of the action, $4.50.

The offence was his first, and it was partly that fact, and also that he has a wife and children dependent upon him, that influenced the Magistrate to leniency.

Thomas Cleary, a lone drunk, was assessed the usual two "bits," to be paid in ten days.

THE DOWNIE STREET CREEK

Property Owners Ask That They be Proctected

A deputation of property owners, who are effected by the flooding every spring of the Downie street creek, asked the Board of Works last night to take some action that would put an end to their troubles.

The present course of the creek is not the natural one. To divert the water to the old channel would mean that private property would be interrupted.

It was decided that the question remain in abeyance till a report from the City Solicitor is made.

A dollar's worth of reform always seems to cost at least a dollar and a quarter.

BOARD OF HEALTH VISIT THE QUEEN MARY HOSPITAL

No Recommendations Made—Another Inspection at Early Date

Primarily, to ascertain for themselves howo perations at the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital were being conducted, and also to bring in recommendations for improvements deemed necessary, the Board of Health paid a visit of inspection to the institution at two o'clock yesterday afternoon. No recommendations however, evolved from the visit, and it was decided to make another lengthier and more comprehensive inspection at an early date.

The visit to the Hospital yesterday was practically the first official one ever made by the Board of Health.

It resulted from the resolution brought at the recent Board of Health investigation, of alleged mismanagement at the institution.

PRESENTATION TO MR. COLEMAN

By Choral Society on Eve of His Marriage

At the regular practice of St. George's Choral Society last night, of Handel's "Messiah," the President, Mr. C. E. Coleman, was the recipient of a handsome reading lamp, the gift of the Choral Society members on the eve of his marriage. The presentation on behalf of the members was made by the Conductor, Mr. R. J. Devey, who welcomed Mr. Coleman to the ranks of the "Benedicts," and spoke of many ways in which unsparing work had been given to the Society by the President. The present itself was but a slight token of esteem and affection, and all concerned heartily wished Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Coleman every happiness in their married life. Cheers greeted Mr. Coleman as he rose to thank his friends for their kindness, in heartfelt terms of appreciation, and "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" vigorously sung terminated the incident. A general laugh greeted the conductor's solemn announcement that they would now proceed to practice the Messiah chorus, "All we like sheep have gone astray."

SUNDAY SCHOOL SCHOLARS HAD A GOOD TIME

Tea, Entertainment and Prizes at Murray Street

The sleigh drive, tea and entertainment for the scholars of Murray Street Sunday School, held last night was a splendid success. The children left the church in sleighs shortly after five o'clock, and when a good appetite had been worked up, they returned to the Sunday School and made merry before an ample repast prepared in the social room. At the concert, given afterwards in the Sunday School Room, a series of lantern slides were shown and a musical program carried out to the great enjoyment of the large gathering.

Another interesting item of the proceedings was the distribution of prizes to scholars for regular attendance.

The prize winners were, — Mrs. Saunders, Misses Alice Hardwicke, E. Saunders, B. Hardwicke, V. Long, B. Hardwicke, A. Rathbone, B. Edcome, M. Martin, E. Walsh, M. Stenton, L. Saunders, H. Rozel and Chas. Hardwicke, W. Hardwicke, P. Dallin, A. Doughty, N. Tewsley, M. Cunningham, A. Hardwicke and W. Drury. The prizes were presented by Superintendent W. G. Shiner and assistants C. B. Routley and W. Garbutt. Fifteen of the scholars attended 62 Sundays and 6 attended 51. Short addresses were given by Rev. J. R. Webb and Dr. Scott.

THE BIG GAME

The We-never-sleep and Barbers' Sevens to Play Hockey

An interesting hockey fixture is promised fro to-morrow night at Brock Street rink, between the hours of ten and eleven o'clock when the barbers will measure the worth of the "We-Never-Sleep" bunch of amateurs. Both are brand new outfits, neither having won anything this winter, worth mentioning. Both teams are supremely confident of victory and the game will be played to a finish. The barbers have plenty of wind, in fact it is their chief asset. The sweaters of the two aggregations are said to be very pretty, and the players are anxious not to get "mussed up." Rough-house playing will not be allowed, although planty of liniment will be available.

The following will be the line-up

Lindsay won the District Cup in the final with Cannington in Lindsay, last night, finishing 36 up.

A Wedding Gift.

One of the most appreciated wedding presents of a recent bride was an attractive basket containing six glasses of assorted jellies. The glasses were daintily wrapped in white crape paper, and the basket had been treated to a coat of white enamel paint, while the handles were tied together with a bow of white ribbon through which was thrust a tiny spray of artificial orange blossoms.

SUCCESSFUL PIANO RECITAL

Famous Pianists and Cellost Pleased Large Audience

Those who delight in classical music were afforded an exceptionally good opportunity last evening at the Conservatory of Music to enjoy a piano and "cello" recital, at which were contributed some of the tasting compositions of Mozart, Chopin and Rubenstein. The recital was given by three gifted performers of continental fame, Miss Jeanette Killmaster, pianist; Mr. Paul Hahn, cellist, and Mr. F. T. Killmaster, Mus. Bac.

Miss Killmaster is a remarkably talented pianist, her playing being encored again and again. She possesses a mastery of the piano that is rarely beheld, and plays in faultless style.

"Concerto in E flat," arranged for for two pianos, with Mr. Killmaster at the second piano was a very finished and clever contribution. Both Mr. Killmaster and Miss Killmaster are in a class by themselves, and have achieved a proficiency that is outstanding in every particular.

The beautiful playing of Mr. Paul Hahn on the cello was a most acceptable surprise. He drew out strains of almost inconceivable sweetness, interweaving expression and shading with telling effect. The applause accorded him was hearty and prolonged.

The program was as follows:

1. Concerto in E flat, arranged for two pianos...... ....Mozart
   Mr. Killmaster at second piano.
2. (a) Melodie ....Charpentier
   (b) Danse Melodique...... Albert Nordheimer
   (Dedicated to Mr. Hahn by the composer.)
   Mr. Paul Hahn.
3. (a) Barcarolle in A minor...Rubenstein
   (b) Pastorale ... ... Scarlatti
4. (a) Prelude in F sharp minor..... Chopin
   (b) Mazurka Op. 31, No. 2......... Chopin
   (c) Valse in A flat major, Op. 42. Chopin
5. Gavotte...... .... Popper
   Mr. Paul Hahn.
6. (a) Melodies Polonaises ...Chopin-Liszt
   (b) Polonaise from Eugen Onegin, Tschaikowsky-Liszt

The audience was very large.

At the conclusion of the concert His Honor Judge Huyoke eulogistically referred to the pleasure and delight derived by those present from the very able program. His appreciative references were heartily endorsed by all present.

Mr. Paul Hahn, the cello artist, is the possessor of a high honor bestowed upon him by His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught before whom he played. The Duke presented Mr. Hahn with a handsome pair of gold cuff links in an elegant case, inset with the initials of His Royal Highness. The gift was a distinct tribute to the merit of Mr. Hahn's playing.

THEATRICAL

A well filled house greeted the Ernie Marks Stock Company, which opened a five nights' engagement at the Grand last night, with the presentation of "Tempest and Sunshine" a four act drama. Ernie Marks, who took the part of Joshua Middleton, a gruff, rough and ready old Kentuckian, was good, and Kitty Marks, in the role of Fanny Middleton, was exceptionally so. Some high class specialties were put on between acts.

HON. JAMES YOUNG, VETERAN POLITICIAN, PASSES AWAY

Former Provincial Treasurer and Widely Known Legislature Was Author of Priceless Reminiscences of Canadian Statesmen With Whom He Associated During His Active Career.

GALT, Jan. 30.—At "Thornhill, the picturesque family residence, Hon. James Young passed peacefully away early yesterday afternoon. Death came not unexpectedly, as he had been in ill-health for some months, gradually growing weaker. On May 24 last he celebrated his 77th birthday. Full of years and honors as a forceful Parliamentarian, publicist, gifted man of letters and kindly cultured gentleman, his passing is deeply regretted in the community, in which he was born and lived all his life. The County of Waterloo and the sister County of Brant, whose able and devoted Parliamentary representative he was for long years, mourns him sincerely and deeply. He will be remembered gratefully as one of the makers of Canada.

James Young died veritably in harness. He has just witnessed the fruition of one of the great literary labors of his life—publication of the final volume of his work, "Public Life and Public Men in Canada," an historical review, comprehensive in scope, interesting in details, refreshing in tone and a model of plain, terse dictum becoming the ripe scholar and trained journalist.

Hon. James Young rose from the ranks and was essentially a self-made man. From printer's apprenticeship to editorship and ownership of the newspaper in which he worked was his first achievement. He made no secret of cherished ambition to become a public man, and through various municipal offices he won his way to Parliament.

At the first general elections after Confederation in 1867, he was elected to represent South Waterloo in the Commons, and in the general elections of 1872 and 1874 was re-elected by acclamation. Defeated at the general election of 1878 by a small majority he was presented by Reformers of the riding with a service of plate in recognition of his self-denying efforts. While in the Commons he took an active part in the conduct of business, more especially during the five years of the Mackenzie administration. He was chairman of two important committees of public works and committee of the whole House in supply.

At the provincial general elections in 1879, he was returned to the Legisltture for North Brant. Re-elected at the general elections in 1883, he entered Sir Oliver Mowat's Cabinet as Provincial Treasurer on June 2 and was re-elected after accepting office. Owing to the sudden illness he resigned, the Treasureship and retired from the Government in October following, but remained a member of the House till the close of the fifth Legislature in 1886 when he declined renomination.

He was all his life a contributor to leading magazines and journals, and was the author of much literature dealing with trade questions and international relationships, always taking the Canadian view. For 37 years he was president of the Gore District Fire Insurance Co.

ELECTION CROOKS WERE AMATEURS

Some Voters Cast Four Ballots at One Poll.

OTTAWA, Jan. 30.—A warrant was yesterday afternoon issued for Jos. F. Durocher, son of ex-Mayor Durocher, on a charge of ballot-box stuffing in the recent civic election. Durocher was returning officer at a poll in Ottawa ward. Mayor Ellis suspected irregularities and called in Provincial Detective Reburn, who has been on the case for several days.

After the late municipal election Mayor Ellis stated he had his suspicions of something wrong in Ottawa ward. Last year the vote was 1,132 ,and this year it was 1,677, and Mr. Ellis considered that this increase was not justified.

It is said there were cases where the same voters cast their ballots as many as four times at the same poll. The parties responsible for this, it is further stated, did their work in a most clumsy manner.

REPUBLIC HAS GREATLY CHANGED

Church is Gaining in France Says Mgr. Archambault.

MONTREAL, Jan. 30.—Mgr. Archambault, who said six years ago, that there were not more than six million practicing Catholics in France, has just returned from that country, and stated yesterday that the republic has greatly changed, and that at present the faith of the motherland is deeper than that of the French-Canadians. To his lordship's great regret, Mgr. Archambault also says that the election of Raymond Poincare is not a triumph for Roman Catholicism but a victory for the moderates and the humiliation of French Freemasonry.

SUFFRAGETTES PROMISE STARVATION TACTICS

Prisoners Will Start Hunger Strike—War to the Knife Says Leader.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—"General" Mrs. Drummond and thirty militant suffragettes will have to spend the next fourteen days in jail as the result of their determination to force David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, to receive them as a deputation in the House of Commons Tuesday evening. All the prisoners declared in court after they were sentenced yesterday that they would immediately start a "hunger strike."

The accused women were brought up at Bow street police court before Robert Marsham, the police magistrate, in the course of the forenoon, and the same sentence was imposed on all of them. Mrs. Drummond complained during the hearing that the police had roughly handled her when she was arrested. She declared the patrolmen had thrown her in the mud.

"It is now war to the knife," she told the magistrate, and continued: "You and Mr. Lloyd-George have a lot of trouble ahead of you. You will have to do the dirty work, and you will have plenty of it."

The women all refused the option which was offered them of paying a fine instead of going to prison.

U. S. Citizens Make Complaint Against Quebec Embargo.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—As the result of complaints against the recent order of the Quebec Provincial Government, purporting to remove all restrictions or export tax from the lumber of certain crown lands of that province,' President Taft personally will decide whether wood pulp and paper made from the timber affected will be entitled to free entry into the United States.

According to representations to this Government, Quebec's action amounts to a discrimination against American holders of crown lands, and to grant the free entry privilege, it is declared, would simply defeat the real intent of the wood pulp and paper clause of the Canadian reciprocity agreement. The state and treasury departments have investigated the situation, and will make a joint report to the President.

With the best equestriennes of the North and South on their mettle and with the "pure food baby," the young son of Dr. Harvey W. Everything is now nearing completion, and what promises to be the greatest suffragist parade in American history is soon to take place. There will be many committees and sub-committees, and prominent women from every State in the Union will take part.

In charge of the Actress' Sub-Committee is Miss Lola La Follette, who will co-operate with Mrs. Glenna Smith Tinneu, director of the pageant, in the artistic arrangement of floats, groups and decorations. BALKAN FORCES WILL RESUME THE SIEGE OF ADRIANOPLE Hostilities Will be Pressed to a Speedy Conclusion.

Porte Replies to Powers' Note - Would Dismantle Fortifications.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Constantinople, Jan. 30— The reply of the Porte to the note of the Powers, of January seventeen, was handed to Von Pallavicini, representing the Diplomatic Corps in Constantinople, this morning. The reply displays a spirit of compromise and consents to the dismantling of the fortifications of Adrianople and gives leave to the Powers to dispose of the land on the right side of the Maritza river which runs through Adrianople. At the same time there are stipulated for retention those portions of Adrianople in which holy places are situated.

London, Jan. 30.—Those who know the Ottoman Empire well believe that the revolt among the Turkish troops on the Tchatalja lines was much more grave than indicated by the fragmentary despatches permitted to come through.

Close observers expect similar revolts will occur in Asiatic Turkey, and civil war may result in Constantinople.

The Balkan allies to-day gave notice of the termination of the armistice, a period of grace of four days, to start at seven o'clock this evening. The armistice has been in operation since December 3rd, between Turkey on one side and Bulgaria, Servia and Montenegro on the other.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The peace negotiations, which reached a deadlock over the cession of Adrianople on Jan. 6, were finally broken yesterday by a note which the plenipotentiaries of the allied Balkan nations presented to Rechad Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation.

Notwithstanding this rupture, there are optimists in the diplomatic world who hope that a resumption of the war may yet be averted, either through fresh proposals that Turkey is reported to be including in the note which she will deliver to the powers to-day, or through the fall of Adrianople before activities can be begun again at the Tchatalja lines.

A majority of the Balkan delegates refused to admit the likelihood of either contingency, believing that the life of the Young Turk Government depends on the resumption of the war, even though the allies were willing to postpone the conflict. They are of the opinion that the present failure of diplomacy is at the least only an interlude, however, for they will leave four representatives in London to undertake the settlement anew.

Rechad Pasha, after receiving the note, said:

"The consequences may be of the gravest nature. The responsibility lies not alone with the allies, but with the powers, who encouraged the Balkan states and have shown no fairness towards Turkey, although before the war they had solemnly proclaimed the principle of the unchangeability of the status quo."

The plan of the allies so far as the plenipotentiaries are informed is to concentrate their forces on Adrianople immediately after the expiration of the prescribed four days, if the surrender of that fortress does not occur in the meantime. They believe that a few days' bombardment by the big siege batteries, which now surround Adrianople will bring about the capitulation of the place.

The Balkan representatives declare that all the reports that Roumania would aid Bulgaria against Turkey are unfounded and they add that if Roumania should take advantage of the opportunity to gain her territorial claims by force while the Bulgarian army is engaged with Turkey, Bulgaria would let her occupy the territory she demands. But as soon as the Bulgarian army disposed of the Turks, the Bulgars would turn their attention to the Roumanians and attempt to make them pay dearly for this racial disloyalty, which the Bulgarians consider would be treason.

PAPOOSE WAS DEAD WHEN PHOTOGRAPHED

ST. THOMAS, Jan. 30.—On Monday morning a well-dressed Indian couple walked into the establishment of a photographer here, the woman carrying in her arms what appeared to be a baby. The couple explained that they wished a group picture taken of themselves and the baby. Imagine the photographer's amazement when the opened shawl disclosed not a living child, but a dead one. According to the photographer, the Indians did not appear in the least amazed, and calmly had their pictures taken, along with their dead papoose.

LAWSUITS FOR FORGET

French Investors Make Raid on Montreal Financier.

MONTREAL, Jan. 30.—Sir Rodolphe Forget, La Banque Nationale, and the late French shareholders of the latter institution, jumped into the limelight of the local courts yesterday, on presentation of an avalanche of motions and petitions, on behalf of dissatisfied former shareholders of the bank.

The petitions have for their object the quashing of the recent seizure before judgment, taken out by Sir Rodolphe Forget against the French stockholders, in order to tie up certain funds at present in the hands of J. E. Martin, K.C., Canadian representative of these ex-shareholders. The motions all call for particulars, and would have Sir Rodolphe Forget forced to furnish proof of certain allegations made by him in support of his petition for a seizure before judgment.

There were 22 petitions and 22 motions presented on behalf of as many French shareholders.

Mr. Justice Beaudin, after taking cognizance of the burden of the petition and motion in each case, decided that argument should take place on Feb. 6.

In the various motions for particulars, petitioners ask that Sir Rodolphe be forced to prove when and under what circumstances the various debts alleged as having been contracted towards him by the petitioners, were in reality contracted.

Editor Shows Discharge.

QUEBEC, Jan. 30.—As a reply to Sir Rodolphe Forget, who accused him in the House of Commons Monday during the debate on the Lemieux charges against the Forget enterprises of having deserted the French army, Mr. d'Hellencourt, editor of Le Soleil, publishes a photographic reproduction of the letter of the President of the French Republic granting him his discharge as an officer. He also announces that, having recently been appointed an officer of the French Academy, that is evidence of his clean record.

Steps are being taken to invite a member of Parliament to ask for a retraction of his allegation against Mr. d'Hellencourt from Sir Rodolphe.

THE FARMERS AND ASQUITH

Manitoba Grain Growers Stand Aloof From Food Tax Scheme.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Premier Asquith, who received the freedom of the City of Dundee yesterday, addressed a meeting of the constituents of East Fife last night. He dealt with Austen Chamberlain's recent speeches on food taxation, and said he failed to understand why the burden of responsibility was to be thrown upon the colonies.

"I do not believe the Dominions would consent for a moment to enter into such a position. A received a remarkable document from the Manitoba Grain Growers' Association, signed by the president, who tells me that it is an association representing ten thousand farmers in the province. These are people who, if food taxes were imposed, are believed to benefit by them," he said, and read the following document:

"The voice of Manitoba—hear what they say. Newspaper despatches indicate that a movement is afoot in Great Britain to tax foreign wheat in order to give a preference to wheat from the overseas Dominions. It is stated the intention is to refer the question to the overseas Dominions. This is a vital matter to the farmers of Canada, and as president of the association, I wish to call your attention to the resolution unanimously adopted on Jan. 8, that the convention oppose any preferential tariff scheme that will give western grain growers a higher price for their grain at the expense of the British workman."

Then the letter to the Premier proceeds as follows: "Manitoba farmers believe the British trade policy is a British question entirely, and resent any attempt on the part of Canadian interests to interfere with matters that affect the British people alone. When it was suggested that the question be referred to the overseas Dominions, we consider we should give expression to our views, particularly as the grain growers of western Canada are the largest grain exporters in the British Empire, and that Great Britain is our chief market at the present time. We wish the people of Great Britain to distinctly understand that we have no desire to place any additional burden on the British consumer for our benefit. We believe any preference given to wheat from the overseas Dominions will simply result in an increased cost to the British consumer. We are quite willing to face the world's competition in the British market, and anxious that only British manufacturers should be given free access to the Canadian market."

Concluding Premier Asquith said: "The relations between the Mother Country and the great Dominions have never been more intimate and affectionate. In the creation of the South African Union upon the grant of responsible Government to the Transvaal, we see the triumph of Liberal principles and Liberal policy, and throughout the Empire there is everywhere growing a resolve for closer co-operation in the great and common task of Imperial defence."

IMPERIAL NATURALIZATION IN SIGHT, SAYS DOHERTY

Present Anomaly Arising Out of the Various Requirements for Nationalization Prevailing Throughout the Empire Has Been Subject of Conference and a Uniform Law Will be Adopted, Says Minister.

OTTAWA, Jan. 30.—That by concurrent legislation between the United Kingdom and the self-governing nations of the Empire a British subject anywhere may before long become a British subject everywhere was the gist of an important announcement made in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon by Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice. His statement was elicited by the debate which arose upon a resolution by E. M. MacDonald of Pictou, N.S., calling for the production of all recent correspondence between the Dominion Government and the Home Government on the subject of Imperial naturalization.

Mr. MacDonald pointed out that the authority conferred upon the Dominion Parliament by section 91 of the British North America Act extended only to the naturalization of aliens in Canada in a restricted sense. The settler from the United States, for example, naturalized in Canada, became a British subject and so remained as long as he was in Canadian territory. If he returned to the United States or went to England or to any other place inside or outside the Empire but not within the territorial limits of Canada he ceased to be a British subject.

This anomalous state of affairs Mr. MacDonald illustrated by reference to the case of Hon. George H. Perley, who, he said, was slated for appointment as Canada's representative in the Imperial defence committee, and who was born in the United States, and despite his prominence in public life would become an American citizen if he went to the United States.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier: "Or to England."

Mr. MacDonald reviewed the discussions which have taken place at the last three Imperial Conferences and complained of the slow progress made in arriving at any solution of the problem.

Hon. C. J. Doherty insisted on the other hand that considerable progress had been made. He read to the House the bill which had been introduced in the British Parliament and which would be the model for similar legislation by the overseas Dominions. This bill provided that any alien might be naturalized in the United Kingdom after living there for one year provided that he had lived for four out of the seven preceding years in any part of the Empire. He intimated that a bill might be introduced this session. Such a measure would, however, only come into effect upon proclamation after similar legislation had been enacted by the other states of the Empire.

Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine, announced that the commission to investigate the pilotage system on the St. Lawrence route would consist of Captain Lindsay, Dominion wreck commissioner; Elzear Lachance, president of the Quebec Corporation of Pilots; and Thomas Robb, of Montreal, president of the shipping federation.

In answer to the questions of Mr. Chisholm regarding the sending of memoranda of estimates to Antigonish, Hon. Robert Rogers made the statement that the Minister himself did not authorize the publication of the figures. Senator Girroir had been asking for a memorandum as to expenditures, and the memorandum was forwarded in response to his request. Mr. Chisholm was not satisfied. He accused the Minister of "evading the question."

"The Minister did not authorize or send the communication," said Mr. Rogers.

"My question," said Mr. Chisholm, "is also as to whether his secretary sent or authorised to be sent the letter and its enclosure."

"I did not know that that had any bearing," was Mr. Rogers' response.

Mr. Chisholm again rose, when the Speaker called him to order.

FIELDING ON IMPERIALISM

Believes Federation Scheme Will Eventually be Solved.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Hon. W. S. Fielding takes over four columns in The Morning Post to reply to the critics of his assertions on reciprocity. "Imperial Federation is a magnificent dream," he says in conclusion, "and, we are all better for dreaming it." I am one of those who believe if we have patience, and are not too anxious to run before we have learned to walk, we shall eventually evolve some system which, though it may not accomplish all some Imperialists desire, will bring several portions of the Empire into closer union. But I am persuaded that in this movement whatever unity we may bring about, will only be attained by being content to have unity in things necessarily Imperial, and by leaving to every portion of the Empire the largest possible measure of local liberty. The trade interests and the revenue needs of the different portions of the Empire differ so widely that an attempt to create a uniform commercial policy for all would not help the good cause at all."

NEW YORK STATE PEOPLE LEAN TO PUBLIC POWER

On Same Jury—Never.

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 30.—It is not proper for husband and wife to sit on the same jury, according to a decision made yesterday in a damage case in the Superior Court. Judge Gilliam permitted counsel for the plaintiff to challenge Mrs. J. D. Dean of Kent, whose husband has been accepted as a juror.

May Escape Extradition.

MONTREAL, Jan. 30.—Unless the U. S. Government has proof sufficient to warrant the further extension of the case, Extradition Commissioner Choquet on Tuesday next will discharge Henry H. Bell, who two weeks ago was arrested on the charge of having killed a woman in Chicago two years ago.

THREE MEN AND ONE WOMAN MEET DEATH IN FIRE

Canadian Press Despatch

Chicago, Ill, Jan. 30—In the destruction by fire of the Iowa Hotel, a four storey brick building of inferior class, at 640 North Clark street, early to-day, three men and one woman were burned to death. Three men were seriously injured, and a dozen others slightly hurt.

Engineer Who Made Misrepresentations Was the Representative of Private Interests.

TORONTO, Jan. 30.—At last the cat is out of the bag. Hon. Adam Beck has made a discovery which clears up the mystery, if there was one, in connection with the report of the Ferris committee of New York State, which so grossly misrepresented the Ontario Hydro-Electric system. The engineer who presented the alleged facts to the committee was a representative of big private interests in the state and the principal error in the report was due to his multiplying the 1913 prices by the 1912 loads in order to get the 1913 revenue of the Ontario Hydro-Electric, which was assuredly a queer way to do business.

Albert H. Perkins, engineer for the New York State Power Conservation Commission, which is a rival body to the Ferris Committee, and is favorably disposed to the Ontario Hydro-Electric, was in the city yesterday getting the latest figures in connection with the Hydro's operations.

Mr. Perkins said that the adverse report of the Ferris Committee was looked on seriously by the people of the state at first, but when Hon. Adam Beck issued a reply stating that it was erroneously inaccurate, opinion changed.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST
BY GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Company.

Mrs. Comstock took the broom and swept the moth out of the door. So it was from creatures like that Elnora had got her school money. In one sickening sweep there rushed into the heart of the woman a full realization of the width of the gulf which separated her from her child.

"We are nearer strangers with each other than we are with any of the neighbors," she muttered.

So one of the Almighty's most delicate and beautiful creations was sacrificed without fulfilling the law, yet none of its species ever served so glorious a cause, for at last Mrs. Comstock's inner vision had cleared. She went through the cabin mechanically. Every few minutes she glanced toward the back walk to see if Elnora was coming. She knew arrangements had been made with Margaret to go to the city some time that day, so she grew more nervous and uneasy every moment.

Noon came, and she prepared dinner, calling, as she always did, when Elnora was in the garden, but she got no response, and the girl did not come. A little after 1 o'clock Margaret stopped at the gate.

"Elnora has changed her mind. She is not going," called Mrs. Comstock.

"You must be mistaken," said Margaret. "I was going on purpose for her. She asked me to take her. I had no errand. Where is she?"

"I will call her," said Mrs. Comstock.

She followed the path again and this time found Elnora sitting on the log. Her face was swollen and discolored and her eyes red with crying. She paid no attention to her mother.

"Mag Sinton is here," said Mrs. Comstock harshly. "I told her you had changed your mind, but she said you asked her to go with you, and she had nothing to go for herself."

Elnora arose, recklessly took a short cut through the deep swamp grasses and so reached the path ahead of her mother. Mrs. Comstock followed as far as the garden, but she could not enter the cabin. Margaret Sinton approached colorless and with such flaming eyes that Mrs. Comstock shrank back.

"What's the matter with Elnora's face?" demanded Margaret.

Mrs. Comstock made no reply.

"You struck her, did you?"

"I thought you wasn't blind!"

"I have been for twenty long years now, Kate Comstock," said Margaret Sinton, "but my eyes are open at last. What I see is that I've done you no good and Elnora a big wrong. I had an idea that it would kill you to know, but I guess you are tough enough to stand anything. Kill or cure, you get it now. You! The woman who don't pretend to love her only child, and all for a fool idea about a man who wasn't worth his salt!"

Mrs. Comstock picked up a hoe.

"Go right on!" she said. "Empty yourself. It's the last thing you'll ever do."

"Then I'll make a tidy job of it," said Margaret. "You'll not touch me. When Robert Comstock shaved that quagmire out there so close he went in, he wanted to keep you from seeing where he was coming from. He'd been to see Elvira Carney. They had plans to go to a dance that night"—

"Close your lips!" said Mrs. Comstock in a voice of deadly quiet.

"You know I wouldn't dare open them if I was not telling you the truth. It was hot in the woods, and I stopped at Carney's as I passed for a drink. Elvira's bedridden old mother heard me, and she was so crazy for some one to talk with I stepped in a minute. I saw Robert come down the path. Elvira saw him, too, and she ran out of the house to head him off. He brought her his violin and told her to get ready and meet him in the woods with it that night and they would go to a dance. She took it and hid it in the little loft to the wellhouse and promised she'd go."

"Are you done?" demanded Mrs. Comstock.

"No. I am going to tell you the whole story. You don't spare Elnora anything. I shan't spare you. I went to Elvira, told her what I knew and made her give me Comstock's violin for Elnora over three years ago. She's been playing it ever since. I won't see her slighted and abused another day on account of a man who would have broken your heart if he had lived. He was one of those men who couldn't trust himself, and so no woman was safe with him. Now, will you drop grieving over him and do Elnora justice?"

Mrs. Comstock gripped the hoe tighter, and, turning, she went down the walk and started across the woods to the home of Elvira Carney. With averted head she passed the pool, steadily pursuing her way. Elvira Carney, hanging towels across the back fence, saw her coming and went toward the gate to meet her. Twenty years she had dreaded that visit. Mrs. Comstock's face and hair were so white that her dark eyes seemed burned into their setting. Silently she stared at the woman before her a long time.

"I might have saved myself the trouble of coming," she said at last. "I see you are guilty as sin."

"What has Mag Sinton been telling you?" panted the miserable woman, gripping the fence.

"The truth," answered Mrs. Comstock succinctly. "Guilt is in every line of your face, in your eyes, all over your wretched body."

"If you knew what I've suffered!"

"Suffered?" jeered Mrs. Comstock. "That's interesting. And pray, what have you suffered?"

"All the neighbors have suspected and been down on me. I ain't had a friend. I've always felt guilty of his death! I've seen him go down a thousand times, plain as ever you did. Many's the night I've stood on the other bank of that pool and listened to you, and I tried to throw myself in to keep from hearing you, but I didn't dare. I knew God would send me to burn forever, but I'd better done it, for now he has set the burning on my body, and every hour it is slowly eating the life out of me. The doctor says it's a cancer"—

"I didn't know or care when I came here just what I did," she said. "But my way's beginning to clear. If the guilt of your soul has come to a head in a cancer on your body, it looks as if the Almighty didn't need any of my help in meting out his punishments. I really couldn't fix up anything to come anywhere near that. If you are going to burn until your life goes out with that sort of fire, you don't owe me anything.

"If you will gather a lot of red clover bloom and make a tea strong as lye of it and drink quarts I think likely it will help you, if you are not too far gone. Anyway, it will cool your blood and make the burning easier to bear."

Then she swiftly walked home. Enter the lonely cabin she could not, neither could she sit outside and think. She attacked a bed of beets and hoed until the perspiration ran from her face and body, then she began on the potatoes. When she was too tired to take another stroke she bathed and put on dry clothing. In securing her dress she noticed her husband's carefully preserved clothing lining one wall. She gathered it in a great armload and carried it out to the swamp. Piece by piece she pitched into the green maw of the quagmire all those articles she had dusted carefully and fought moths from for years and stood watching as it slowly sucked them down. She went back to her room and gathered every scrap that had in any way belonged to Robert Comstock, excepting his gun and revolver, and threw it into the swamp. Then for the first time she set her door wide open.

She was too weary now to do more, but an urging unrest drove her. She wanted Elnora. It seemed to her she never could wait until the girl came and delivered her judgment. At last in an effort to get nearer to her, Mrs. Comstock climbed the stairs and stood looking around Elnora's room. It was very unfamiliar. The pictures were strange to her. Commencement had filled it with packages and bundles. The walls were covered with cocoons, moths and dragon flies were pinned about.

Under the bed she could see a half dozen large white boxes. She did not know what they contained. She pulled out one and lifted the lid. The bottom was covered with a sheet of thin cork, and on long pins sticking in it were dozens of great, velvet winged moths. Each one was labeled, always there were two of a kind, in many cases four, showing under and upper wings of both male and female. They were of every color and shape.

Mrs. Comstock carefully closed and replaced the boxes and again stood looking around the room. This time her eyes rested on some books she did not remember having seen before, so she picked up one and found that it was a moth book. She glanced over the first pages and was soon eagerly reading. When the text reached the classification of species she laid it down, took up another and read its introductory chapters. Then she found some papers and studied them.

She went downstairs thinking deeply. Being unable to sit still and having nothing else to do, she glanced at the clock and prepared supper. She went out and sat on the front doorstep watching night creep all around her. She started eagerly as the gate creaked, but it was only Wesley Sinton coming down the walk.

"Katharine, Margaret and Elnora passed where I was working this afternoon and Margaret got out of the carriage and called me to the fence. She told me what she had done. I've come to say to you that I am sorry. She has heard me threaten to do it a good many times, but I never would have got it done. I'd give a good deal if I could undo it, but I can't, so I've come to tell you how sorry I am."

"You've got something to be sorry for," said Mrs. Comstock, "but likely we ain't thinking of the same thing. It hurts me less to know the truth than to live in ignorance. Now, if Elnora will forgive me we will take a new start and see what we can make out of what is left of life. If she won't then it will be my time to learn what suffering really means."

CHAPTER XVII.

Wherein Mrs. Comstock Possesses the Limberlost.

THEY shook hands, and Sinton went down the road, while Mrs. Comstock entered the cabin. She went to the supper table, but she could not swallow food. Then she heard the front screen. She reached the middle door as Elnora touched the foot of the stairs.

Elnora closed the stair door behind her and for the first time in her life threw the heavy lever which barred out any one from downstairs. Mrs. Comstock heard the thud and knew what it meant. She reeled slightly and caught the doorpost for support. For a few minutes she clung there, then sank to the nearest chair. After a long time she arose and stumbling half blindly, she put the food in the cupboard and covered the table. She took the lamp in one hand, the butter in the other and started for the spring house. Something brushed close by her face, and she looked just in time to see a winged creature rise above the cabin and sail away.

What Zam-Buk Did for Their Little Ones

Thousands of mothers in Canada owe a debt of gratitude to Zam-Buk for its cure of their children, and hundreds of them are not slow to recognize the claim.

Mrs. F. Miners, of 311 Suffolk St., Guelph, Ont., says: "My little daughter Lorinda (6), contracted a skin disease. This first broke out like tiny water blisters, afterwards taking the form of dry scabs. These would disappear for a short time, and then reappear worse than ever.

"We tried Zam-Buk, and with each application the irritation and soreness were greatly relieved and the child rested easier. Persever- with Zam-Buk worked a complete cure."

A Diplomatic Fisherman.

A king once bought a string of fish from a poor fisherman and in return gave him a bag of gold coins. The fisherman swung the fortune over his shoulder and was about to depart when he noticed a single coin had fallen to the floor. Carefully placing the bag on the ground, the man stooped and took possession of the coin and put it in the bag with the fortune.

"Are you a miser?" asked the king. "Were you afraid one of my servants would get it?"

"Not so," replied the fisherman. "But the coin bears on one side the name of God, on the other the portrait of you, my king. I would not have one or the other defiled by being trampled underfoot."

The king was so pleased with this ready answer that he gave the fisherman another big load of gold and sent him rejoicing on his way.

Woman's World

Policewoman a Great Hit at Suffrage Convention.

MRS. ALICE STEBBINS WELLS.

Mrs. Alice Stebbins Wells, the woman policeman of Los Angeles, in an address at the suffrage convention recently held in Philadelphia had the following to say about the need for women in her rather unusual vocation:

"One or more policewomen should be connected with each police department for the sole purpose of receiving complaints from women if for nothing else. Women hesitate to go to a policeman for information and advice. This is easily understood, and as a result it behooves every municipality to provide women officers, who can render help in many ways where a man is almost powerless.

"The policewoman is particularly adapted to preventive work. She is best fitted to handle juvenile offenders, for a woman has the motherly instinct that enables her to accomplish wonderful tasks. I believe that every city should have a woman attached to its lost persons bureau. She is of great value in tracing missing persons who have become separated from their families."

Mrs. Wells told of her experiences in Los Angeles in preventing the sale of tickets to moving picture theaters or any other public amusement to children under fourteen unless accompanied by adults.

NEW YEAR GOOD CHEER.

A Little Chat on Open House During the Holidays.

A cup of tea and a box of crackers offered in a third story hall room to the half dozen people on the same floor is a hospitality which may have in it all the spirit of kindness which was demonstrated by the old time "open house." We are apt to grow supersensitive and self conscious when we are surrounded by strangers. We wonder if anything we can do will give pleasure. We stay alone and wish that some one would meet us halfway, yet we do not go out to meet them. We sigh for responsiveness and sympathy and are not conscious that the slightest indication on our part of a desire to be friendly might bring a cordial welcome from those whose coldness we have criticised.

"Open house" in its old generous sense may not be a possibility under modern conditions, but those of us who live in the city might touch the lives of the people who yearn for companionship and bring to sad hearts a glow of delight in the enjoyment of our neighborliness. There is scarcely a community or settlement where one cheery and neighborly woman may not rouse a spirit of co-operation if she exerts herself sufficiently.

It would be interesting if more of us would make the experiment during the gray winter days, especially the days between Christmas and New Year's, which hang so heavily on the hands of those who have no share in the merrymaking of others, if during these days we would open our tiny apartment, or even our one room in a boarding house, to receive those less fortunate than ourselves for an hour's interchange of good will.

Accordion Plaited Net.

Accordion net is ubiquitous for girls' dresses, the more luxurious materials being, of course, more or less reserved for their elders. There are lovely little evening gowns, too, simply made of accordion or gauffered pearl white chiffon, into which is spliced a panel of shadow lace, likewise plaited to match. No other trimming but the lace is required unless it be the heavy silver or gold bullion fringe which so many dressmakers employ as a finish to the soft swathed satin belts.

Something Worth Knowing.

Sometimes white trimmings on a colored dress look dingy. Wring a white cloth out in thin starch, place on the trimming, then put a dry cloth over that and iron with a hot iron, and the dirt will come off on to the starched cloth.

AN ANCIENT DISCOVERER.

It is not known just when gold was first used by man as ornament and coin, but 4,400 years ago the people of the far east and in the countries of northern Africa made most exquisite jewelry out of gold and precious stones. In fact, the art of their hand wrought ornaments has never been excelled, and modern man has learned from them in technical skill. Gold as used in the early times was probably found in the form of nuggets, as the ancients would hardly have noticed it in any other form. They hammered it by hand and gave it a most beautiful polish.

Silver was not discovered for a long time after gold was in use in many countries, and when at last some one did discover it he thought it a form of gold, and it became known as "white gold." The discovery of copper soon followed that of silver, and then in succession came tin, zinc and lead. An ingenious savage who lived in upper Egypt succeeded in making brass by fusing copper and zinc, and later he manufactured bronze by a mixture of copper and tin. This occurred about 4500 B.C., and the inventor's name was Anubis.

And Anubis made the first metallic axe, knife and chisel, and also he gave us the original saw, taking for his model, so we are told, 'the chin bone of a snake.' Like the teeth of a snake, the first saw's teeth inclined backward.

Anubis also invented the first musical instrument of which we have knowledge. He used for a sounding board the empty shell of a tortoise across which were strung four tortoise sinews as strings. Afterward this instrument was enlarged and a goat's horns used for posts. It still had four strings and a bridge and brace. This crude musical instrument became known as the lyre, and from it developed all known stringed instruments. Of this instrument a historian says:

"Horus afterward enlarged and improved the lyre by increasing the number of strings to seven, though two of them had the same pitch. He also provided a strap to support the increased weight of the instrument. It was then called by the Greeks a cithera or kithara, and in central Africa it is yet called a kissar. The Greek Terpander added an eighth string, called octachord, from which comes our word octave.

"Anubis seems to have composed a song and sung it to the accompaniment of the harp. He was also the first songster and poet of whom we have any knowledge."

Thus it will be seen that metals are very old in the uses to which man has put them and musical instruments also of very ancient date, though for countless generations there was no written music and the player composed his own melodies as he went along, which were exceedingly simple.

Nothing hurts a boy's feelings so much as to act smart in the presence of a girl who is staying all night with his sister, and then get whipped for it in her presence.

RECORD OF A GREAT MEDICINE

Hooper, Nebraska.—"I am very glad to tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me. For five years I suffered from female troubles so I was scarcely able to do my work. I took doctors' medicines and used local treatments but was not helped. I had such awful bearing down pains and my back was so weak I could hardly walk and could not ride. I often had to sit up nights to sleep and my friends thought I could not live long. At my request my husband got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I commenced to take it. By the time I had taken the seventh bottle my health had returned and I began doing my washing and was a well woman. At one time for three weeks I did all the work for eighteen boarders with no signs of my old trouble returning. Many have taken your medicine after seeing what it did for me. I would not take $1000 and be where I was. You have my permission to use my name if it will aid anyone."—Mrs. SUSIE TEMPLETON, Hooper, Nebraska.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of woman—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

A Singular Call

It Came From One Who Had Seemed Ungrateful

By F. TOWNSEND SMITH

I was starting for the office of the Henderson Wrecking company, by whom I was employed as a diver, when a boy stepped up to me and handed me a telegram:

Alec is caught in the Clapham reservoir. Come quickly and get him out.
MABEL.

I ran for the station to take a train for Clapham and found one made up to start in twenty minutes. But it seemed an hour before I was rolling out of the station on a fifty minute trip. While I am making it I will tell how I came to receive the telegram.

I received a common school education. One day in the school yard I saw one of the boys take a doll from a little girl, and, holding it by its legs, he smashed its china head against the hard, sandy ground. I walked up to the boy and without saying a word slapped his face. Of course there was a fight, at which I got the credit of having thrashed my antagonist. But this was rather because the boy I fought was in the habit of doing mean things for no cause whatever rather than for any advantage I gained over him.

The little girl whom I had befriended surprised me after the fight by making a face at me. Children are but ungrown men and women, and I suppose my resenting her ill treatment was like interfering in family feuds, for everybody knows that protection against tyranny in the case of those who are fond of each other is liable to result disastrously to the protector. Refraining from showing any feeling at the girl's ingratitude, I walked off with my hands in my pockets, whistling a tune to make it appear that it was a matter of no consequence.

During the rest of my school days I had the mortification to experience the ill will of both this boy and girl, both of whom seemed to have taken a dislike to me. It was a period when we were passing out of childhood into youth, and for the several years remaining before we finished school something about the girl—I knew not what—was growing upon me. Her treatment of me pained me—indeed, I would have given my best tennis racket for a smile from her. When our last term at school was finished I found myself in love with her. True, I was but sixteen years old and she fifteen, but my experience in the matter has proved that the younger the person the more violent the love.

It was very distressing for me to see a girl whom I had befriended and whom I loved not only showing repulsion for me, but lavishing her admiration upon the boy whose malicious treatment of her I had punished. But in matters of the heart one never knows what a woman will do, and a man is not much more to be depended upon. Be this as it may, I saw my love grow to womanhood lavishing her affection on the person who had out of pure deviltry smashed her doll. I think that as a child her turning against me was natural. As a woman it may have been encouraged by my rival.

Fate threw the three of us together not only as children, but after we had become men and women. The girl I secretly worshiped married my rival, and I attended their wedding, though rather as her guest than his, for my intimacy was always rather with her family than his. There was a coldness between me and him that never wore off. Whether his betrothed and afterward his wife suspected my feelings for her I did not know. But I did know that after her marriage she treated me in a much more friendly manner than before.

About the time we finished school and were ready to go to work a ship was sunk in the harbor on which we lived, and divers were sent down to put the chains under whereby to raise her. There can be nothing more interesting to a boy than a man dressed in a diving suit going under water, while those above pump air down to him. We boys were constantly on hand watching the process, and the consequence of it all was that several of us determined to adopt diving as a trade.

This brings me to my telegram. It was from Mabel Granger, the wife of Alec Granger, the two in whose childish companionship I had interfered many years before to my discomfiture. Alec and I had been divers ever since we left school, and now he, having been caught in a dangerous position, his wife had called on me to save him. During my journey to Clapham I could not drive from my mind that scene in the school, Mabel standing with her headless doll hugged to her bosom, making a face at me as I moved away, while Alec was brushing the dirt off his clothes with his hands.

Furthermore, there was every reason to believe that what I was called upon to do I would do at the risk of my life. If it were an easy matter to rescue Alec Granger I would not have been summoned. I saw in Mabel's telegram a cry for help in her distress. I can give no idea of my feelings at such a call. Let any one reading my story put himself in my place and try to conceive how he would feel. I can only say that among the confusion within me there was one predominant sentiment. I was eager to give comfort to the woman I still loved by restoring her husband to her.

When I reached Clapham I found a man waiting for me at the station with a carriage, in which we drove at a gallop to the reservoir. On the way he told me that Granger had been sent down to examine the outflow of water from beneath and while doing so had got caught in the power of suction at the orifice through which the flood was escaping. Air was being pumped to him, but it had not been possible to draw him up. Two different men had been sent down to fix about him a rope strong enough to bear his weight and overcome the suction, but neither of them had dared go near him for fear of being sucked into the same position as he. It was upon this information that I realized fully that Mabel had called upon me to probably sacrifice my life in attempting to save that of her husband.

On reaching the scene of the trouble the group there all turned toward me. Mabel was present, and when my eyes met hers I was at a loss to understand the expression there was in them. I had expected to see a pathetic appeal. Whether she realized that such an appeal would be asking me to risk my own life, perhaps give it, for her husband, I did not know, nor do I know now. She simply looked at me. Perhaps she considered her telegram an appeal which should not be repeated.

I put on a diver's outfit, and a two inch cable was looped under my arms. I was lowered some distance from the hole through which the water was flowing and walked toward it till I began to slightly feel the suction. I stopped and saw Granger lying partly across the hole. After a few moments' thought I signaled to be brought to the surface. On reaching it I called for another two inch rope—besides the one under my arms—looped at the end. I would have preferred wire rope, but it was not at hand.

"What are you going to do?" I was asked.

"There's no way to save him but to go into the suction myself, place the rope under his arm and signal you to draw us both up."

"You'll both perish," was the response.

Mabel was looking at me, and my eyes met hers. We understood each other, though not a word was spoken. But what passed between us? Ah, that only we and the Lord know! Hanging the loop of the duplicate rope on my shoulder, I went down again. I had advanced but a few inches nearer to Granger than before when I was caught in the suction, and it seemed that a mountain was on me. I was pulled down on to him, and so strong was the current that I could not move the rope from my shoulder to put it around him. The only motion I could make was a lateral one with the current. Placing my hands and knees against him, I managed to move my body so that my shoulder, on which the rope rested, was near the top of Granger's head. I moved so that it slipped off, and by a great effort I guided it so that it went down over his head. He was lying on his back, and it would go no farther, but I managed to insert my knee between him and the masonry beneath him, and this enabled me to slip the rope down nearly to his waist. By a succession of efforts I got it below both hands, so that when moved back again toward his armpits it left the arms free.

I had now done all I could do. The question remained would the rope stand the strain of hoisting him—would he live till this question was decided? As to myself, only the first of these questions pertained. I was in my full strength. Granger just before my second descent had made a feeble pull on the cord.

I gave the signal and waited for the final act in the play for two lives. I felt a strain on the rope under my arms which soon grew to be terrific. I signaled on Granger's cord. The strain on me ceased, and the rope under him tightened. For a time I saw no movement in him; then I could discern one similar to the minute hand of a clock. He was slowly sliding away from over the hole. If he were removed and I remained I would be sucked into his position.

A machine on the capstan principle had been provided which would enable those above to pull us both up if the ropes would stand the strain. I pulled my own rope and Granger's at the same time. There was a halt, and in a few minutes the strain on both of us recommenced. The ropes slanted, and we very slowly began to move horizontally. I knew from the strain, which was intensely painful, that only the stoutest rope could stand it. We moved so slowly that I would not have known we moved at all had I not noted our positions in relation to the masonry. Suddenly the upper part of our bodies passed beyond the suction column of water, and the strain was perceptibly lessened. Then it diminished rapidly, and we began to rise.

There was no shout when we reached the surface, for it was not known whether we were alive or dead. Those present soon knew that I lived, for I motioned them to attend to Granger. When his helmet was unscrewed his wife removed it. Her head dropped on his breast, and I knew that he was dead.

No one could do enough for me to show appreciation of the risk I had taken to save a fellow man. When Mabel and I parted she conveyed her thanks by a pressure of the hand without looking at me. I heard nothing from her and did not go to see her for a year. The day after the anniversary of her being made a widow I called upon her. What passed between us I would not think of transcribing here, but within a few months she gave me my reward for my effort—herself.

THE FIRST WATCHES.

They Had Weights, Not Springs, and Were as Big as Plates.

At first the watch was about the size of a dessert plate. It had weights and was used as a "pocket clock." The earliest known use of the modern name occurs in the record of 1552, which mentions that Edward VI. had "one larum or watch of iron, the case being likewise of iron gilt, with two plummets of lead."

The first watches may readily be supposed to have been of rude execution. The first great improvement, the substitution of springs for weights, was in 1550. The earliest springs were not coiled, but only straight pieces of steel.

Early watches had only one hand and, being wound up twice a day, they could not be expected to keep time nearer than fifteen or twenty minutes in the twelve hours. The dials were of silver or brass. The cases had no crystals, but opened at the back and front and were four or five inches in diameter.

A plain watch cost the equivalent of $1,600 in our currency, and after one was ordered it took a year to make it.—Exchange.

Exasperating.

A stuttering salesman called on a New York buyer with an excellent proposition. In well turned sentences he proceeded to lay before the buyer his superb argument. But, alas, in every well turned sentence there were "bs" and "rns," and over these the salesman stuttered pitiably.

The buyer before whom he was pleading was a caustic, nasty sort of chap, and after five minutes of stuttering at a point where the salesman was floundering most dreadfully, the buyer held up his hand and said:

"I'm afraid I can't understand you. Call again when you're sober."

The salesman turned scarlet with mortification and rage.

"B-b-b-but"—

"No," said the buyer, waving him resolutely toward the door, "not now—when you're sober."

And the infuriated salesman departed.—Washington Star.

Macaulay as a Talker.

Where Macaulay's talk failed is clearly shown by Greville. "If he could tread less heavily on the ground, if he could touch the subjects he handles with a lighter hand, if he knew when to stop as well as he knows what to say, his talk would be as attractive as it is wonderful." It is all summed up in the sentence, "He gave society more than it required and not exactly of the kind." Macaulay, in fact, suffered from excess of the first requisite of talk, according to Johnson—"materials." As Sir Henry Taylor said, "His memory had swamped his mind." Flashes of ignorance as well as of silence are necessary to the perfect talker. And so, as has been said, Macaulay often exhausted his audiences before he exhausted the subject.—London Chronicle.

Current Comment.

The certainty that the fourteen inch gun can penetrate the thickest armor afloat at seven miles becomes less important than the chance of its exploding.—New York World.

Since there are no longer any guns on the gun deck or any berths on the berth deck, the naval authorities have wisely decided to abolish the names.—Chicago Record-Herald.

It will soon be time for the icemen to announce that ice will be dearer next summer, either because the winter is mild or the product too thick to handle.—Cleveland Leader.

For the Children

The Cowled Monk's Head, Cooney Canyon, New Mexico.

Almost every western state has one or more natural statues. Some are carved so perfectly by the action of the elements as to be startling in their expressions. One of the most striking is the "Monk's Head," in Cooney canyon, New Mexico, a freak of nature which brings out in clear relief a man's face, the head appearing to be hooded. The figure is of giant proportions, and at a distance, sharply outlined against the sky, it seems impossible that it is not the work of some ancient people who may have wrought upon it with crude tools, yet obtaining a singularly strong and virile expression of countenance.

Origin of Words.

"Powwow" comes from the North American Indians.

The word boss comes from the Low Dutch and means master.

Kidnap comes from the napping or stealing of a kid, gypsy for child.

Calaboose, a prison; picaroon, a pirate; palaver, to talk, are all Spanish.

"A rum chap" is simply a gypsy lad. It has no relation to the product of the still.

Pal is a brother, and "conk," for nose, comes from the spouting fountain, the concha of the Romans.

The common slang word "mash" is from a beautiful gypsy word, "mafada," which means "to charm by the eyes."

Why should a man be called a spoon? Why spoony when he is making love? Simply because he is a "loeffel," which also means spoon.

Cats in Ancient Times.

Cats are mentioned in Assyria 2000 B. C. and are found in Egyptian tombs centuries prior to that date. Deified like the ibis and ichneumon from their useful properties, they were held in such veneration that Bubastis, at first lion headed, became a cat headed goddess. Herodotus tells us the Egyptians first saved the cat when the house took fire. To kill a cat even by accident was punishable by death. The Romans when they conquered Egypt treated the animals with the same contempt as the religion of which they formed part. Not a cat has been found in the ruins of Pompeii or Herculaneum.

Secrets.

When I pass Linda's house and put a pebble on the gate
It means: "I have to hurry on. Don't look for me nor wait."
And when I fix my ribbon bow in just a certain way
It means, "Come over to my house this afternoon, and play."
Then if I leave undone the topmost button of my shoe
It means: "The rain will spoil our fun. Whatever shall we do?"
It really wouldn't matter much if everybody knew,
And yet it's very pleasant having secrets as we do.

LUNG TROUBLE

Mrs. Biny Brown, of Tenecape, N.S., Was Cured by Catarrhozone of Lung Trouble and Catarrh, After Hundreds of Other Remedies Failed

If your lungs are weak; if there is consumption in your family; if Colds, Catarrh, and Bronchitis bother you, be sure to use Catarrhozone. It is especially adapted for these diseases and cures every time.

Mrs. Brown took cough mixtures, but they made her sick. Then she used an atomizer, but, after resorting without benefit to poultices, she tried Catarrhozone.

"I used Catarrhozone Inhaler," writes Mrs. Brown, "five minutes every hour, and soon recognized that it was going to cure me. I could feel the soothing medicated air spreading through the air passages of the throat, and it touched the sore spots in the lungs that other remedies failed to reach. Catarrhozone seemed to go just where it was needed most, and soon put a stop to my cough. It restored me to perfect health, and I am convinced that no cough, cold, or catarrh can exist if Catarrhozone is used."

No treatment is so clean, so pleasant, so certain to cure as Catarrhozone. By means of the Inhaler, the local symptoms, such as coughing, inflammation and congestion are speedily corrected. Ferrozone tablets, which are taken after each meal, purify and cleanse the blood of all poisons, and build up and strengthen the system.

This local and constitutional treatment is always effective, and cures cases that have been given up as hopeless. Money can't buy or produce anything better, and to get cured it is absolutely necessary to use Catarrhozone.

BISHOP MILLS' CASE

Bishop Mills, of the Diocese of Ontario is strongly in favor of the Border naval policy, as being much the most effective as a measure of real defence to the Empire. Bishop Mills holds that the Canadian navy idea would not serve much purpose, since if Britain's fleet were smashed at the vital point in Europe, Canada would have to rely for protection on the United States—that meaning that the United States would get Canada, instead of a European nation.

It will be recollected that Bishop Mills came out very strongly in favor of the reciprocity pact in that memorable campaign. His stand was sharply criticized, on the ground that the affairs of his diocese must have been in extraordinary good shape to permit him, in his episcopal functions, to wander so far afield. The good bishop was metaphorically drubbed by the Conservative press for his attitude, and the Liberals chortled with glee. Now the shoe is on the other foot. The Globe calls the bishop a calamity howler, and other odorous names. It says he has a perfect right to express his opinion on the subject, but it disputes the correctness of his contentions about Canadian weakness in naval defence. The Mail and Empire jumped on to the bishop in the reciprocity fight. The Globe gets after him now. It seems impossible for a prominent clergyman to express partisan opinions on big public questions, ex cathedra, without having to dodge a thousand brickbats from either one political camp or the other. Perhaps the reward for such enterprise as he shows, and interest in the public affairs of Canada, is not altogether undeserved.

BORDEN ON BANKING

Premier Borden is well versed in banking economy, and when he says that he does not believe a central bank would be an improvement in the Canadian banking system, and that external inspection should not go so far as to mean straight government inspection, with the accompanying inference of a government guarantee against loss by depositors, he puts under foot most of the frothy criticism of the banking system. That system is by no means perfect. It contains real evils, in tendency, if not in practice, but the trouble is that so many people with hazy or theoretical ideas about banking economics will not study out the real effect of their proposals. There unquestionably ought, in the interest of the depositors in the Canadian banks, to be rigid external inspection. Whether inspection by chartered accountants hired by the shareholders—or, in effect, by the officers of the bank through the shareholders—would be a real measure of additional protection, is open to grave doubt. The accountants would still be employes of the bank, and as such disinclined to make public any information whatever that might hurt its interests. The shareholders would be interested in knowing of any frauds, but would be just as much concerned as the officers in keeping the matter from public knowledge. The depositors would be the last to learn of what was wrong. In the United States, government inspection has not prevented thousands of failures of small banks, with a loss averaging $6,000,000 a year to depositors. Government inspection in Canada would not be more efficient than the method proposed by Mr. White. It is a difficult problem, but Premier Borden is on rather safe ground in holding that to place on the government responsibility for the good conduct of the banks is asking rather too much. At the same time, there are tendencies in the banking system that ought to receive severe handling by Parliament, and the same Sharp—W. F. McLean type of criticism does no real harm.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Medical men, in reporting upon the health of the people, say they eat and drink too much. They could not make a timelier suggestion. East less and save money.

Speaking of weather records being broken, or not broken, a professional man contributes the following: "I know at least one record that has been broken," he says. "This year the sap began to run before any maple sugar reached the market."

The expenditure of millions in fighting the white plague is beginning to show results. In Greater New York there were more than six hundred fewer deaths from tuberculosis in 1911 than in 1900, though meanwhile the population has decreased by 1,000,000. Boston shows a decrease of 25 per cent since 1900.

FOOTBALLS.

They Are Not Made of Pigskin and the "Bladders" Are Rubber.

When you refer to football players as pigskin chasers, state that Smithly can boot the pigskin, you display considerable ignorance, said a member of a firm which manufactures the spheroids used on many of the big and little gridirons.

For the football is not made of pigskin at all. In fact, no part of the lowly but luscious porker enters into its construction.

Football covers are made from the material that goes to make your best shoes—calfskin. And only the very best grade of skin is used for good balls. Cheap balls, such as kids buy at the corner store, are made of sheepskin. The bladder which is in the ball is rubber.

A visit to the factory where the greatest number of footballs are turned out elicits more interesting information. For instance, a shop sage says that the reason the ball is called pigskin is that in the old days a pig's bladder was used to give buoyancy to the ball. The bladder has been discarded and rubber substituted.

The regulation intercollegiate ball weighs from thirteen and one-quarter to fourteen ounces. The soccer ball weighs from thirteen to fifteen ounces.

Skins for football covers are carefully inspected and are sent to the factory after special treatment. The slightest flaw in a hide means rejection.

In the cutting room skill is required to prevent waste. Cutting is done with machinery. The cutter divides the hide into as many oval sections as possible and sends the pieces to the girls who take up the next stage, which consists of carefully lining the leather with cotton twill. This is the only work intrusted to girls. It is slow and must be done perfectly.

The liners are stitched together on one machine and the covers on another. From the last machine the covers come wrong side out, and the better grades are reversed by hand. The cheaper are turned right side out by machinery.

Turning a football cover by hand requires great strength. Some men do nothing else and as a result become exceptionally strong of hand, wrist and arm.

The rubber bladder is inserted, and when inflated the oval begins to look like the finished product now seen on many fields, but the ball is not ready for delivery. It is stamped on a hot press and "worked" until its outer surface is ready for the kickoff.

Although the game has changed greatly, the ball remains about the same as the old Rugby.

Changed Times.

In a meadow a half dozen young women golf players were practicing putting. They looked very smart in their trim golf suits, their skirts of rough homespun and their scarlet jackets. An old farmer and one of his farm hands approached.

"Boss," grumbled the farm hand, "them girls in the medder is scarin' our cows."

"Ah, Timothy," he said with profound truth, "times is changed since I was young. In them days the cows scared the gals."—Washington Star.

The Troubles of a Giant.

George Cumberland saw the famous giant Obrian Boro in the Strand in London in 1784, and in "The Cumberland Letters," edited by Clementina Black, gives this note on him: "His hand, from the ball of his thumb, actually measures eleven inches and a half and is large in proportion. When I stood up I could just with my forefinger touch the bottom of his chin—in a word, he is eight feet three inches high, and his bones are in proportion large—but the poor devil seems to be dying for want of air and exercise. He is nineteen years of age and expects to be nine feet high."

CONCERNING PRECEDENCE

Where Would You Walk In the Parade to the Dinner-Table?

A western paper publishes the following table of precedence, in connection with the recent visit of Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught. It will probably interest many who have but a vague idea of what is meant by its regulations:

1. The Governor-General or officer administering the Government.
2. Senior officer commanding His Majesty's troops within the Dominion, if of the rank of a general, and officer commanding His Majesty's naval forces, on the British North American station, if of the rank of an admiral. Their own relative rank to be determined by the King's regulations on this subject.
3. The Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario.
4. The Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec.
5. The Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia.
6. The Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick.
7. Archbishops and bishops according to seniority.
8. Members of the Cabinet, according to seniority.
9. The Speaker of the Senate.
10. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada.
11. The chief judges of the courts of law and equity, according to seniority.
12. Members of the Privy Council, not of the Cabinet.
13. General officers of His Majesty's army serving in the Dominion and officers of the rank of admiral in the royal navy, serving on the British North American station not being on the chief command; the relative rank of such officer to be determined by the King's regulations.
14. The officer commanding His Majesty's troops in the Dominion if of the rank of colonel or inferior rank, and the officer commanding His Majesty's naval forces on the British North American station, if of equivalent rank; their relative rank to be ascertained by the King's regulations.
16. Speakers of the House of Commons.
17. Puisne judges of the Supreme Court of Canada according to seniority.
18. Puisne judges of courts of law and equity, according to seniority.

21. Speaker of the Legislative Council within his province.
22. Members of the Legislative Council within their province.
23. Speaker of the Legislative Assembly within his province.
24. Retired judges of whatever courts, to take precedence next after the present judges of their respective courts.

Must Save Animals.

It is to-day an indisputable fact that, if the utter extermination of Canada's fur-bearing animals is to be avoided, Animal Sanctuaries must be established at once. Let the new owners of new Quebec make history. Let new Quebec save our native animals from utter extermination, and if she does, she then will take a front place in the land and future generations will sing her praises. From the standpoint of dollars and cents, it will not require computation to prove that a two hundred mile square Animal Sanctuary, protected by honest men and strict laws for twenty-five years, would make "Unknown Ungava" the richest and most valuable fur-producing country in the world.—W. T. Lindsay in Montreal Herald.

CONQUEST OF THE AIR.

First Public Flight of an Aeroplane In This Country.

In "The Curtiss Aviation Book" Glenn Curtiss describes the first public aeroplane flight in America, in the days before any one had ever heard of the young Yankee inventor, and he was experimenting with Alexander Graham Bell and others:

"Baldwin climbed into the seat, took the control in hand, and we cranked the motor. When we released our hold of the machine it sped over the ice like a scared rabbit for two or three hundred feet and then, much to our joy, it jumped into the air. This was what we had worked for through many long months, and naturally we watched the brief and uncertain course of Baldwin with a good deal of emotion.

"Rising to a height of six or seven feet, Baldwin flew the unheard of distance of 318 feet 11 inches! Then he came down ingloriously on one wing. As we learned afterward, the frail framework of the tail had bent and the machine had flopped over on its side and dropped on the wing, which gave way and caused the machine to turn completely around.

"It had taken just seven weeks to build the machine and get it ready for the trial; it had taken just about twenty seconds to smash it. But a great thing had been accomplished. We had achieved the first public flight of a heavier than air machine in America!"

Preventable Disease.

Old Colonel Pestilence continues to be one of the most stubborn foes that armies have to encounter.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Typhoid fever, it is estimated, costs Americans about $100,000,000 a year, and no person who has had the disease will ever say it is worth the money.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Cholera killing 10,000 out of 21,000 cases reported in one province of India in a month is described as not being as severe as usual. What would they call severe anyway?—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Heroine Died Unrewarded.

Two or three years ago a girl was admitted to one of the Toronto hospitals suffering from an obscure nervous disease which was pronounced hysteria, but no one seemed able to do anything for the sufferer, who was practically disabled the greater part of the time.

Occasionally she rallied, and last summer was able to go to the house of a benevolent woman, who, at the request of the Social Service Department, obtained employment for her.

She earned a small amount and returned to the hospital greatly cheered up by the fact that she had been a little use.

Last fall she grew much worse and became possessed of the idea that she would like to do something to prove that her life had not been in vain. Being greatly concerned over the sufferings of a poor woman who had been fearfully burned while saving a child, she begged the surgeons to allow her to furnish the skin that was necessary to save the life of the unhappy mother.

The authorities at the hospital consented, and the operation was a successful one. The heroine was delighted at the progress of the case, but confided in those around her that her mind was steadily failing and although she was happy because of the sacrifice she had made for her friend, she was in fear that she would be impelled to kill two little children in a neighboring ward. Her distress resulted in the development of acute mental excitement and at her request she was taken to an institution, where she died of exhaustion in a short time.

THEY WANT SOME TOO

Down East Provinces Ask For Grant.

OTTAWA, Jan. 30.—Asking for better terms for the Maritime Provinces by way of compensation for the territory added to Ontario and Quebec, a delegation representing Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, addressed the Privy Council at a special sitting yesterday. Attorney-General Grimmer of New Brunswick and Premier Matheson of Prince Edward Island made the argument, but they spoke also for Nova Scotia.

It was pointed out that the lands surrendered in 1870 by the Hudson Bay Co. became the property of the whole Dominion, and that vast sums have been spent in their administration and equipment for settlement. A further argument was that under the provisions of a statute of 1872, two sections in each township surveyed were set apart as an endowment for education in the province in which they were situated.

The Prime Minister made no promise beyond an assurance that the matter would be earnestly considered.

PICTURESQUE HAVANA CITY

A Foreign City In Every Sense, With Its Own Odd Charm.

Americans driving to their hotel through Havana's narrow, noisy streets invariably exclaim that it seems to them "as if they were abroad." The question—to borrow a phrase from the widely traveled but unemotional Mr. Baedeker—"need not detain them long." They are abroad. Havana is not merely "like a foreign town;" it is a foreign town. It has its own odd look, its special picturesqueness, its own tumultuous life. It abounds in unknown dishes and strange fruits, and upon the hot tropic night it pours out half barbaric music and queer melancholy songs.

The long traditions of the Spanish dominion of the two Americas still cling about Havana's fortresses and the palaces, churches and monasteries of her ancient streets. She was a proud, rich city, the entrepot of the west, when our northern mainland was a wilderness. And now in the Cuban twentieth century she is a crowded, thriving, gay metropolis, with her own pride, her own tropic airs and graces, her own wholly un-American individuality.

She may be crowded in the brief winter season with American tourists, may contain (as indeed she always has contained) a considerable American business colony and may be a refuge for derelicts and vagabonds straight from the pages of O. Henry, Richard Harding Davis and other Kiplings of Spanish America. Still, she is always the old Havana, the Cuban capital of Cuba.—Harrison Rhodes in Metropolitan.

Sir Humphry Davy.

Sir Humphry Davy married a widow as peculiar as himself. His pet affectation was a lack of time. He was always in a hurry. He pretended that he had no leisure to dress himself, and when a change of linen became necessary he simply put one shirt over another until he was known to have on five or six shirts at a time. Of course he could not wear this amount of apparel without appreciably increasing his size, and his friends not in the secret were sometimes surprised to see him fall off in apparent weight twenty pounds in a day. His wife's great anxiety was to keep him "fit for company," but as he did not care a fig for company she had no easy task, and domestic discord was a common thing.

The Light That Failed.

It was by an accident that Mr. Kipling got his famous title, "The Light That Failed." He had almost decided to call the novel "The Failure," although he was dissatisfied with this. One evening as he was sitting in his study reading by lamplight the light went suddenly down—almost failed, in fact. In a second Kipling jumped up, exclaiming excitedly, "By Jove, I've got it!" Pointing to the lamp, he said, "The Light That Failed."

INCITING THE BULGARS.

Gen. Savoff Warns Men to Prepare For Hostilities.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Jan. 30.—General Savoff, commander-in-chief of the Bulgarian army, yesterday addressed the following communication to the men under his command:

"From the course taken by the peace negotiations it becomes evident that the enemy is unwilling to yield an inch of the territory conquered by our victorious armies

"The Turks wish, by a stroke of the pen, to destroy all that you and your brave brothers who have fallen in battle have won.

"Will the heroes of Kirk Kilisseh, Bunarhissar, Lule Burgas and Tchatalja allow this affront to the glorious army of Bulgaria to go unanswered?

"Prepare, then, for fresh victories and with your irresistible movement forward show the enemies and the whole world that Bulgaria, our fatherland, deserves more respect."

Knew Her Hubby.

Mother—Is your letter to your husband ready to mail?

Married Daughter—It's all done excepting the postscript telling him to send me some more money. I'm looking for another sheet of paper.

"No, indeed. He'll pretend he couldn't read it."—New York Weekly.

IN SPRING ATTIRE.

Flounces Are Returning Rapidly to Favor.

NEW GOWN OF BROWN SATIN.

It looks as if we were going to wear brown next spring for our best costumes, as we have been doing so far this winter, for Paris is sending over some of her newest frocks in this attractive shade.

The advance model seen in the illustration is of brown satin with a shaped flounce as the dominating feature of the costume.

The continuance of the flounce on the bodice and the row of buttons give long, graceful lines. There are many suggestions for semi-formal gowns to be gleaned from this model.

THE FIDO MUFF.

The Fido muff has taken the place of the Teddy bear as a pet, and one will meet dozens of these new pets soon in the arms of their devoted owners.

Not all the muffs are alike, and of course the name Fido is not an arbitrary one. Sport or Tige or any other suitable canine pseudonym would answer equally well.

The black astrakhan and Persian lamb doggies are the favorites, for they have a wonderful resemblance to a French poodle before he has been shaved. The outer side of Fido presents an unbroken furry coat, but on the opposite side are two pockets, into which the hands may be thrust as into a big muff.

The little dog face is surprisingly natural, with its bright eyes, white teeth and red tongue hanging out at one side, and a metal collar and ribbon bow make the resemblance to a real dog all the more vivid.

The easiest of bad habits to acquire is that of speaking loudly. Language has become so complex that not only is it necessary to say the right thing, but it must be said in the right way. A phrase may be said in jest or in earnest; a rebuke may be kindly or stern; an order may be willingly or unwillingly received according to the tone in which it has been said. Many a faithful workman is unjustly accused of unwillingness and disloyalty because of the churlish manner in which orders are received. Many a master is regarded as unfeeling by his employees because his actions are forgotten and only the sting of his sharp manner remembered.

There are more homes that have been wrecked by a misuse of the voice than in any other way. A simple question, "Is dinner ready?" put by the husband may be said in such a way as to arouse every drop of fighting blood a woman has, or the same words may be put in such a tone that they bring forth a hearty welcome. The old song, "It isn't what 'e says; it's the nasty way 'e says it!" is the real answer to many a question put in the divorce courts.

Hobble Skirt 5,000 Years Old.

Dr. Edith N. Hall, who has charge of the excavations in Crete for the University of Pennsylvania and who is in this country to deliver a course of lectures on the work, declares that the excavations so far made show that the women of 5,000 years ago wore hobble skirts, laced in tight corsets and wore mannish collars.

She also declares that ancient Crete had reached a very high plane of civilization. The city had a drainage system which compares favorably with any present day drainage systems.

"Excavation on the island," said Dr. Hall, "will be materially assisted by the Balkan war, since under the Turkish regime the excavating is hampered by a great deal of red tape."

Scrub Your Chickens.

The skin of poultry is frequently very dirty when brought from market, and fowls should be not only washed, but scrubbed with a soft brush and warm water, in which a teaspoonful of baking soda has been dissolved. Such treatment will prevent the disagreeable "benny" taste often noticeable in cooked poultry.

VILLAGE LIFE IN EGYPT

Egyptian village life is quaint and interesting, says the Wide World Magazine. The houses are crude, one storied structures of sun baked mud, with possibly a couple of tiny square holes cut in the wall for ventilation.

Each home consists of a single room, absolutely devoid of furniture, one or two drinking jars and cooking utensils being usually the only articles to be seen. The roofs of these hovels are thatched with cornstalks, and for some unaccountable reason all the household rubbish is dumped on the roof! For this purpose a ladder may frequently be seen reclining against the side of the house. From a distance a village is apt to look like an immense rubbish heap. These primitive erections are inhabited solely by the fellahin, as Egyptian peasants are called.

In some of the Arab villages the arrangements for sleeping are even more unconventional. Huge cuplike structures made of mud are built out in the open, away from the houses, and into these the babies are frequently placed during the day, and often the entire family sleep in them at night. The idea is to escape the numerous snakes and scorpions which abound during the great heat of the summer.

POISON IN ITS AIR.

Java's Valley of Death, Where Life Cannot Exist.

The Valley of Death is on the island of Java. It is the most remarkable natural example of an atmosphere loaded with carbonic acid gas in existence. It has never been fully explored because of the danger of remaining more than a few moments in its poisonous atmosphere.

Approached through an opening between the hills, it is seen to be an oval shaped valley about half a mile across. It is about thirty-five feet deep. The bottom is hard and sandy, without vegetation and strewn with large stones. The surface is covered with the bones of animals, birds and human beings.

Explorers seldom venture beyond the borders, though the deadly air does not immediately affect human beings. This is because the carbonic acid gas, being heavier than the atmosphere, settles to the bottom of the valley. Dogs and fowls thrown into it fall senseless instantly and die in a few minutes. No craters or fissures are visible on the floor of this valley, and it is thought that the openings are near the base of the hills.—Exchange.

OBJECTED TO TAXES.

Both the Details and the Theory of the Thing Were Wrong In His Case.

It is said that there is nothing really certain in this world except death and taxes. Ever since the days of Zaccheus the lot of the tax collector has not been a popular or idolized one, but in every civilized community some one has to undertake this unpleasant task. Even in the most remote regions there are roads to build, bridges to construct, and other works to be carried on. The municipal authorities in all organized districts impose a levy or tribute in the shape of taxes. By those who understand the meaning and purport of this universally enjoined obligation payments are often made grudgingly. It will be remembered many years ago that the people of Lowe Township up the Gatineau country in Quebec refused to pay, and the militia had to be sent up from Ottawa to show that there was power and authority behind the exaction. Then the settlers and woodsmen handed over the means. The story was widely published in the Canadian press at the time.

There are some residents in Tisdale Township, in the Porcupine district, who still entertain the same view and attitude regarding taxes as did the farmers of Lowe. Happily, they number only a few. C. O. Weston is the tax collector in Tisdale Township, and his job is not a bonanza or sinecure, although Joe LaFrance, who resides at Mecnaney Mines, evidently thinks that it is. Last month "Joe" was sent a tax bill for eight dollars. He had apparently never learned that there are land taxes, school taxes, dog taxes, etc. These were all stipulated in the notice, and the tedium of Mr. Weston's work was relieved recently when he got a letter from "Joe." The incident is all the more amusing on account of the evident sincerity—the dead earnestness — in which it was written. Here is the letter as it recently appeared in the Porcupine Advance:

Mecnaney Mines, Nov. 12, 1912.

C. O. Weston:

Dear Sir,—I have receive from you to-day a letter which say I have to pay $8 for tax. I do not pay no tax like this. You say that I heve 13 mills, but there is only one mill at mine where I work, and it is not yet ready for run. Anyway I have not got no dog and if I have a dog I kill him soon I pay $2. I have no childs which go to school and I am insult for I am not a man marrie yet.

I have tare up your bill and you can go to hell before I pay you for.

Joe LaFrance.

The Houton Post, which inquires what is the difference between a tight skirt and a "full" one is hereby informed that the "full" skirt is full of drygoods and the tight one full of girl.—Louisville Courier Journal.

ABOUT THE HOUSE

Little Romances That Are Linked With Its Furnishings.

EVOLUTION OF THE CHAIR.

The Leisurely Progress From the Three Legged Stool to the Luxurious Rocker—Origin of the Table Drawer—The First Picture Frames.

If you only knew it, queer little romances are peeping out at you all over your house, from attic to cellar. They are well worth looking for.

Framed pictures had to have a beginning. They date back to about 500 years ago, when peaceful monks painted the walls of their living rooms with Scriptural subjects. Then one day some one conceived the bright idea of nailing wood around these frescoes so as to separate the subjects. A little later came gilding—and the evolution of the modern picture frame was simply a matter of time.

The drawing room is a perfect mine of history. As most people know, this is, strictly, the "withdrawing room," to which one withdraws after dinner, as the name implies.

The antimacassars over the backs of the chairs similarly carry their object in life in their name. These more or less artistic things had their beginnings some 150 years ago, when every one used macassar oil for the hair. The mistress of the household then would no more permit greasy polls to spoil her fine chairs than would the modern mistress. And, lo, the antimacassar!

Of chairs themselves, perhaps the most interesting feature is the familiar crossbar—technically known as the stretcher—which joins the front legs. Nowadays its purpose is usually for ornamentation, sometimes strength, though often it is absent altogether.

It harks back to the days of the first chairs, when knights and dames wanted to keep their feet off the cold, drafty, rush littered floors; hence the stretcher. Originally the stretcher was only a few inches above the ground, but when, later on, rugs and carpets came into more general use and rooms became more comfortable, the stretcher gradually lost its importance.

It is curious to note that the cozy armchair was the last stage of all. Cushions and padding were the first additions to the plain seat. Then came painted chairs and afterward carved legs, and finally—a leisurely last—came backs and arms and with them the luxurious rocker.

In point of fact the chair is easily the most important piece of furniture you have, historically speaking. To this day, "taking the chair" denotes taking the head of affairs, reminiscent of the time when there was only one chair in a room, three legged stools at the most being provided for less important folk.

Window curtains, again, have their little romance. Originally all windows were in the roof, but in time came open windows in the wall. In the middle ages some one brought from China the idea of using cloth to cover the windows, and there is the origin of your curtain, with its frills and loops.

The glass chandelier, if you have one —they are out of fashion now—can be put down to the workmen refugees from France driven from their homes by Louis XIV. by the revocation of the edict of Nantes in 1685.

Even the drawer in the kitchen table —any table drawer, for the matter of that—had to be thought of, but nobody did manage to think of fixing a drawer to a table until some inveterate card player—his name is forgotten—wanted a handy place for the cards when they were not in use. The very thing! And table drawers were invented.

"Kitchen," by the way, is derived from an Anglo-Saxon word meaning "to cook," while "scullery"—which positively has nothing to do with "scullion"—comes from a word meaning "a bowl."

Some of your furniture may well have an English political bias! It certainly is so if it bears that familiar design based upon the Prince of Wales' feathers. Hepplewhite, the famous furniture designer, began it. In his time there was a strong Tory party supporting George III., while the Whig party was headed by the Prince of Wales. Hepplewhite was an ardent Whig and accordingly introduced Prince of Wales' feathers into his furniture designs on every possible occasion. Incidentally the sofa is an importation from the ease loving Arabs, whose "suffah" was a long bench outside the house.

And, finally, "hall" simply means a place which is covered in, and the word comes from exactly the same root as the infernal regions!—Philadelphia Ledger.

To Cheer Him.

The wife of his bosom was going to leave him for a fortnight, and Fitz-Tomkins was trying his very best to look sad.

"My dear," he said, choking back a chuckle with his handkerchief and wiping his eyes, "I hardly like to think how I shall miss you. The evenings will be so long and lonely without you. I shall have no one to talk to."

"George," said Mrs. Fitz, surveying him with a marble eye, "I have provided for your comfort in this as in every other way. When you return home you will find dear mother there. She will remain till I come back and keep you company in the evenings, George."

And as the train slowly glided out of the station the guard wondered why Fitz-Tomkins nearly bit him when he insinuated a tip.—London Telegraph.

Voyageurs can make 136 miles paddling with the stream. The timber is small—teepee poles and Christmas trees. As you get down towards the coast the banks become high clay cuts.

Curious Russian Law.

Russia has a law which to outside observers seems almost to put a premium on theft by which stolen goods become the property of the thief if he can prove that he has had possession of them for over five years. In the thieves' market—which is, of course, licensed by the police—goods that admittedly have been stolen (more than five years before) are openly offered for sale, and the place is a veritable Mecca for the light fingered gentry and their enterprising friends, as also for the more honest members of society, who secure many a tempting bargain.

An Even Break.

Mr. Jinks—You've spent fourteen mortal hours and $35 and what have you got to show for it? One hat worth about $3.50. Mrs. Jinks—True. And last week you spent five days and $115, and what have you got to show for it? One fish story about a big trout that got away and an awful cold in your head.—Country Gentleman.

An Important Man.

"Always boasting, eh?"

"Yes; everything connected with him is always in the superlative. Even when he had a cataract on his eye it was a regular Niagara."—Kansas City Journal.

Same Thing.

Gillet—See here! Did you tell Budd I'd been cheated again? Perry—No; I merely said you had made another of your characteristic investments.—London Mail.

Do not allow idleness to deceive you, for while you give him today he steals tomorrow from you.—Crowquill.

MEETING A GHOST

Old Tom Came Face to Face With It Between Decks.

SCARED THE SAILOR STIFF.

Then When He Got Wind Enough to Yell There Was a Lively Time Aboard the Old Sailing Vessel Till a Mate Ended the Mystery.

Of course there is no reason why ghosts should not be found on shipboard as often as elsewhere. As a matter of fact, Jack, who is always superstitious, sees his full share of apparitions. This amusing story, told by the ghost himself, is found in Captain John D. Whidden's "Ocean Life In the Old Sailing Days:"

Whidden, a boy of thirteen, was making his first voyage. The ship was hardly clear of land when a heavy storm set in. Whidden was feeling wretched and in carrying breakfast to the forecastle upset a pan of hot scouse on the head of "old Tom" at the foot of the companionway stairs. The cuffing he had for this did not make him feel any better. An hour or two later, when the men were sent aloft, the boy slipped down the booby hatch and was soon fast asleep among some rope, canvas and oakum that were piled against the forward bulkhead next the forecastle.

When he awoke it was dark, but light streaming through some auger holes in the bulkhead and the sound of voices brought him to his senses. He was surprised to hear the crew talking about him, as if he were dead, and discussing the manner in which he had been swept overboard. He heard old Tom say, "Well, I'm sorry I hit him, but the cub scalt every spear of hair out of my head."

He had another long sleep. When he awoke he heard the crew washing down decks and realized that he was perfectly well and very hungry. He found a barrel of apples in the lower hold, filled his pocket and shirt bosom, climbed back into his nest, ate apples and went to sleep again.

The next day old Tom was sent below to cut a piece of rope from the coils among which Whidden was hiding. While he was sawing at the rope, the boy, disturbed by the noise, peeped out of the coil of hawser in which he lay and met Tom's glance.

"With whitened face and bulging eyes," says Mr. Whidden, "he gazed at me a moment, then dropping rope and knife and emitting a series of blood curdling yells he dashed for the booby hatch and disappeared on deck. Every one was aroused. I heard the second mate ask, 'What's broke loose with you?' and all old Tom could ejaculate was, 'I've seen him! I've seen him!'

"'Seen who?' yelled Mr. Fabens.

"'Oh, the boy's ghost! the boy's ghost!' Old Tom was nearly frightened out of his wits.

"'Mr. Fabens,' said the captain, 'get a lantern, take that fellow below and see what scared him.'

"So Mr. Fabens descended the ladder with half the crew at his back, and old Tom bringing up the rear. As they came forward the mate called out. 'Where's your ghost? I don't see any ghost!'

"Until now I had lain quiet, but feeling that I was discovered I rose up to step out of the coil. Tom gave another yell and broke for the hatch ladder, followed by half the men.

"Mr. Fabens came up, reached over, lifted me out by the collar and marched me on deck, where I was at once surrounded by officers and crew.

"Captain King stepped forward and said, 'Well, boy, where have you been for the last forty-eight hours?'

"'Between decks, sir,' I sheepishly answered.

"'What have you been doing between decks?'

"'Sleeping, sir.'

"'What, sleeping two days and nights?'

"'Not all the time, sir,' I replied.

"'Had anything to eat?'

"'Apples,' I ventured.

"'Where did you get the apples?'

"'Oh, you did! Do you know you're been broaching cargo?' and then, thinking the farce had gone far enough, for all hands were on the broad grin, he said, sternly:

"'Now go for'ard, boy, and if you cut any more capers like that, you'll get a rope's ending you'll remember all your life.' Then, to Mr. Fabens, he added, 'Keep him up in his day watch below for a week and give him plenty of work.'

"That ended his lecture, and I was glad it was over and that I had escaped so easily. Going forward with the men, I was pleased to see they bore me no ill feeling, not even Tom, although he might have been excused if he had done so."

Uncompromising.

He was walking once past the Crimean monument in London with one of his sons, then a lad. Every one knows that the word "Crimea" is engraved on the monument. The boy pointed to the monument and to the word upon it and asked:

"Father, what is that?"

"That," said John Bright, pointing also to the word, "is a crime."

It is well there is no one without a fault, for he would not have a friend in the world.—Hazlitt.

An outrage is one thing, and a remedy is another.

CATTLE MARKETS

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Jan. 29.—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market the receipts for the week ended Jan. 25 were 2100 cattle, 800 sheep and lambs, 1425 hogs and 305 calves. The offerings today were 500 cattle, 100 sheep and lambs, 600 hogs and 300 calves.

Owing to the smaller supplies of cattle coming forward there is a much better feeling in the market, but prices show no actual change. The demand was fair from butchers for small lots, as most of them had some beef on hand. Choice steers sold at $6.50 to $6.75; good at $6 to $6.25, and the lower grades from that down to $4, while choice butchers' cows brought $5.50, and good $5 to $5.25. The trade in bulls was rather quiet. Prices ranged from $3 to $5 per cwt.

Lambs were in good demand at stronger prices, an advance of 25c per cwt. being shown. Sales were made at $7.25 to $7.50 per cwt. Sheep were firm, but demand was quiet at $5 to $5.25 per cwt. for ewes and at from $4.25 to $4.75 for bucks and culls. A fair trade was done in calves at prices ranging from $3 to $12 each, as to size and quality.

Hogs were higher, owing to the small receipts. Demand was fair and sales of selected lots were made at $9 to $9.25 per cwt., weighed off the cars, and in a few instances as high as $9.50 was paid.

Hogs—Receipts, 35,000; market higher, light, $7.40 to $7.67½; mixed, $7.40 to $7.70, heavy, $7.25 to $7.70, rough, $7.25 to $7.40; pigs, $5.85 to $7.40; bulk of sales, $7.60 to $7.65.

Urbye; Minister of Public Worship, M. Bruguera.

UNINTENTIONAL HUMOR.

Breaks That the Audiences Saw But the Speakers Did Not.

Sometimes a public speaker will unwittingly make a "break" which is very humorous, and yet cannot see the point of his joke. He looks about him in amazement and wonders what is the cause of all the merriment on the part of his audience. He feels as if something had been tied to his coat tail, that his suspenders hanging down, or his necktie suddenly gone awry. Or he gazes out into the sea of faces to discern anything out of the ordinary. He acts as if he would like the platform to collapse and bury him.

The writer has witnessed several refreshing examples of such breaks on the part of unconscious orators. A Toronto clergyman, who would disdain to mention anything from the pulpit that would create a smile, being very serious minded and austere, was preaching one Sunday on a theme which was near and dear to his heart. His words were to young men. He strongly advised them to have a definite purpose and plan in life, and to bend all their energies and concentrate all their talents in that direction. A river could rise no higher than its source, and it was so with the human stream called life. "Set your mark high, young men," he dramatically exclaimed, "for remember if you aim at nothing you are sure to hit the mark every time, and I know from bitter experience of what I am speaking." An audible titter went through the pews, and it was not until the close of the sermon that the uneasy divine wondered what gave rise to the hilarity, when it was all explained to him by one of the ushers.

The late Andrew Pattullo, of Woodstock, a prominent newspaper publisher in his day, and a former representative of North Oxford in the Ontario Legislature during the regime of Mr. Hardy, was speaking in the House one afternoon on the New Ontario policy of the Government, the wonderful development of that country and the type of people desired for its progress and prosperity. He referred to the various classes of settlers, and declared in all sincerity that what was most needed were "hard working, industrious tillers of the soil, men who would rear homes and families. The best of all is the good "hardy" settler—"

"What kind did you say?" inquired a member of the Opposition, amid the general laughter, for the late Hon Arthur Sturgis Hardy was then Premier of Ontario.

"I said good 'hardy' settlers," declared Mr. Pattullo, not seeing the point of the interruption.

"What difference does the politics of the settler make?" the voice again queried.

"I'm not talking politics," asserted Mr. Pattullo with some heat. "The 'hardy' settler makes the very best resident for that section of the country."

"What about the Whitney type? Will that class not answer just as well?" came the cry across the floor. It was not until then that the unintentional humor dawned upon the speaker.

In a certain Presbyterian church in Toronto last June the organist and choirmaster was away on his honeymoon trip and the congregation enjoyed a hearty laugh the next Sunday morning when the choristers, under the direction of the temporary leader, rendered as an anthem, "Oh Sinner Come Home."—Saturday Night.

Pork Cheese.

Cut but do not chop two pounds of cold roast pork into small pieces, allowing four ounces of fat for every pound of lean. Then pack this into a mold, with pepper and salt to taste, four sage leaves and two finely minced onions, filling up the mold with good, well flavored gravy with which a little gelatin has been dissolved and bake for rather over half an hour. Then leave it till cold and turn out. Beef may be treated in exactly the same way, only allowing four ounces of ham or pork to the pound of beef.

Amenities of the Table.

"I waited ten minutes for a car today," the boulindy was saying, "and then it passed me without stopping."

It was afterward recalled that the habitually silent man had been having unusual difficulty with his chops.

"Perhaps," he remarked, "the conductor didn't care to have you board his car."—Exchange.

RHEUMATIC SUFFERERS ASTONISHED

RHEUMA Acts on Kidneys, Liver and Blood the First Day—and Out Goes Uric Acid Poison

Anybody can afford to pay 50 cents to get rid of terrible rheumatism, sciatica or Gout, and that's all RHEUMA costs at Warde's Drug Company and they say if it doesn't do all that is claimed for it, money back.

It's wonderful how speedily this simple remedy takes hold and how the sore muscles limber up and the swollen joints come down to normal. Make no mistake—RHEUMA costs but little, but its the best remedy you can find to drive Rheumatic poison from the system and bring back health to misery-racked bodies.

"I had Rheumatism for a long while, and tried many medicines, but was not cured until I used RHEUMA. I cannot praise RHEUMA too highly. My advice to those suffering from Rheumatism is to use this great remedy, as I believe it will effect a permanent cure in any case"—C. B. Lanham, Suttes, W. Va., April 27, 1912.

A change was made last year in the mode of distribution of the grant on account of salary, as a result of which, in the townships with an assessment of over $60,000 per school section, each school gets $20 less than on the former basis. In spite of this, our grants were somewhat higher than in any former year, being as follows:

Salaries...	4804.00
Fixed grants...	840.00
Accommodations and equipment...	828.00
Rural School Libraries	194.78
Assisted schools...	1365.00
Villages...	606.50
Continuation Schools...	1034.15
	$10,187.43

Making with the county equivalent of the grant for accommodations and equipment and the Continuation School grant a total of $12,049.48.

In this connection it is to be noted that a further change is to be made next year, by which the grant on certificates will be confined to permanent certificates. If the legislative apportionment falls short of the amount required to pay the grant on account of salary, as has been done heretofore, but the grants will be cut down pro rata. On the basis of last year's figures, that will mean a reduction of probably 20 per cent.

Nothing out of the ordinary has occurred during the year. No new schools have been undertaken, though two of those reported last year were not opened till this year. Some have made repairs and improvements and something has been done in the way of bettering the condition of grounds and surroundings. Many of the teachers have done faithful work, and if it were possible to place in all the schools trained teachers who would retain their positions for a few years, marked improvement would result. Nothing could have more clearly demonstrated the advantage of having trained and experienced teachers than the result of last year's entrance examinations.

During the spring and summer childrens' gardens were carried on in connection with some of the schools. These were under the direction of Mr. Hopkins, of the Department of Agriculture at Norwood. Exhibits were made in connection with the fall fair, and a good deal of interest was taken. The experiment was a decided success, and I hope will be continued.

The village schools continue to do good work, though difficulty has been experienced there also in securing qualified teachers, notwithstanding substantial increases of salary.

The Continuation Schools both made a good showing at the midsummer examinations. They are meeting efficiently and successfully the need for secondary educational advantages in Havelock and Lakefield, and are commended to the generous consideration of the Council.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Your obedient servant,
RICHARD LEES,
P.S. Inspector,

THE SPORTING WORLD

PORT HOPERS CAME ALONG STRONG AFTER PETES HAD LEAD OF THREE COUNTERS

Locals Lead at the Half by 5-4, and Finished in Front by 7-6.

The local intermediates had to do more than look like a hockey team, in their game with Port Hope last night. Ere fifteen minutes of the first half had been consumed, Captain Bond's seven had coralled three goals on shots by Weatherston, Ross and Bearss, but the visitors had failed to bulge the space not occupied by Wilson.

Then the boys from Culverwell town, awakened as though from a troubled dream and were only one behind when the gong sounded ~~for~~ the rest ,the count being 5—4. The second half was an even break, each team scoring two goals, making the tally read 7—6 for Peterborough.

The visitors gave the impression of being a very ordinary team in the first few minutes of play. There wasn't the slightest evidence of team work and individually the Port Hopers did not have anything. But the three goals netted by the blue and white seven acted like a spring tonic and speed and good stick work developed to such an extent that the homesters had to extend themselves to the limit in order to land the game.

The style of play dished up by the locals was rather disappointing, as with Weatherston, Ross, Hall and Halpin on the line, it was expected that the quartette would work together and combine effectively. But such was not the case. They failed to hold their positions and the only possible result was a lot of bunched play.

George Ross was prominent with some of the nicest shooting any hockey fan would want to see. Three of the four goals, he secured, were swift accurate shots from the side. Whitty Bearss, besides doing plenty of good work with Bond, rushed and shot repeatedly. He, however, took a longer range than Ross and the nets were not wide enough. But he took the third tally of the game on a long, hard shot, that found the bottom corner of the netting. Hall failed to score a goal all night, simply because he didn't try hard enough. He had all kinds of chances but passed them up. Weatherston found Record for the first counter, he accepted a pass out from the corner from Hall. Grover Halpin took the last goal for the Petes besides giving a good account of himself all through the game.

Both Wilson and Record in goal stopped a lot of hard ones. The former had hard luck on one shot which found its way into the nets after he had blocked nicely.

Johnny Dow at right wing for the visitors was their star performer, and it was no fault of his that they met defeat. He was always plugging away and shooting from the side. The teams were:

ONE YEAR AGO TO-NIGHT AT LINDSAY

To-night will be the anniversary of one of the hardest fought games in the history of the O. H. A.

The bill was staged at Lindsay, to which town the local hockey club ran a large excursion. To win the district, Peterborough had to defeat Lindsay on their own ice. The locals succeeding in landing the game by 6-4, and their supporters carried away a lot of Lindsay greenbacks. Captain Spratt of the local seniors and his brother, Jack, played for their home town.

BRITISH AMAZONS

Women Who Could Pull an Oar With the Best of Men.

WON FAME ALL OVER EUROPE.

Ann Glanville and Her Champions Not Only Beat Their Own Countrymen, but Went to Havre and Outrowed Half a Dozen Crack French Crews.

In the boat races that have from time immemorial been rowed on the Hamoaze, the estuary of the Tamar and the Tavy that forms part of the harbor of Plymouth, the women of Saltash have often distinguished themselves. In "Around and About Saltash" F. B. B. Porter writes of Ann Glanville, whose amazonian feats of oarsmanship made her famous all over Europe:

"Some sixty or seventy years ago the crew of Saltash women was often seen not only on the Hamoaze, but wherever aquatic sports were held. It was not often that Ann and the crew that she stroked were beaten in a match—never by other women.

"They competed for prizes at Hull, Liverpool, Portsmouth and Dartmouth, and it must not be supposed that a crew of men ever yielded the palm out of masculine courtesy, for, as a matter of fact, the men did not at all relish being beaten by a 'parcel of females.'

"In some of these contests Mrs. Harriet Sersech, a daughter of Ann Glanville, who had fourteen children, rowed with her mother. As she was the youngest member of the crew she pulled bow oar, the least arduous post in the boat.

"Once this crew, rowing a match at Fleetwood in the presence of Queen Victoria, gave the men so sound a beating that her majesty asked to have Ann presented to her.

"However, the most famous event of Ann's life took place in 1850, when Captain Russell of H. M. S. Brunswick suggested to her that she and her crew should go to Havre to the regatta there and challenge the Frenchmen, a proposal to which she readily assented.

"When the Frenchmen heard of the challenge from les Anglaises de Saltashe they shrugged their shoulders, for they scarcely regarded it as serious. And when the women appeared in their white frilled caps prinked out with blue ribbons, in their short petticoats and white dresses, with blue neckerchiefs tied over the shoulders and crossed behind the back, they looked puzzled.

"The challenge of the Englishwomen created a stir not only in Havre, but for miles along the French coast and for many leagues inland too. And in England the greatest interest was aroused.

"When the day of the regatta came there was a vast concourse of people to witness the contest. Every quay, hilltop and housetop from which a view of the course could be had was crowded. Every one was on tiptoe of expectation. Before the start the Saltash crew had a pull round 'to show themselves.' Their steady stroke, the way in which they bent their backs to their work and the perfect ease and grace with which they pulled made the French open their eyes.

"Ann and her crew had not the best start possible, nor at first did they have the advantage. Five minutes after the start six boats were ahead of them. But they soon tested their opponents' nerve. Ann, who had the stroke oar, gave the word:

"'Bend your backs to it, maidens, and hurrah for old England!'

"One by one, with a cheer from old Ann, they passed the six boats. At last they drove their boat, with the British color flying gayly at the fore, into the lead. It was a long course and a hard pull, but they soundly thrashed the Frenchmen. Ann and her 'maidens' beat them by 100 yards. The members of this famous crew were Ann Glanville, Harriet Hosking, Jane House and Amelia Lee. A man acted as coxswain.

"Mrs. House was so elated at the victory that on reaching the committee boat she plunged into the water, dived under the vessel and came up with a dripping and drooping cap on the opposite side.

"Ann Glanville died in 1880, at the age of eighty-five, dignified, vigorous and handsome to the last. Her character was summed up by a neighbor in these words:

"'Her was honest to a farthing, clean as a smelt and kind hearted as a queen.'"

Ireland's Coast Cliffs.

The finest cliff scenery in the United Kingdom is on the coast of the county of Donegal, at the northwest of Ireland, facing the Atlantic, where the variety and grandeur of the cliffs are most thrilling and impressive. Slieve League, south of Glen Columbkille, is a superb introduction to Donegal's coast splendors. In less than half a mile from the sea the mountain rears its height of nearly 2,000 feet. In the island of Achill, off the west coast of Ireland, the cliffs of Croghan, at Achill Head, rise sheer from the water's edge to the dizzy height of 2,000 feet.—London Standard.

After his change was brought he counted it and pushed a franc toward the waiter for a tip. But the man, pushing back the franc, said in gentle reproach:

"Pardon, monsieur, but that is the counterfeit franc."

HIS FRIEND'S FIANCEE

A Man Was Saved From a Woman's Toils and a Friendship Broken

By EDWARD COMPTON

"What can I do for you, Mr. Dillon?"

The question was asked by a young man of an old one who had called upon him at his bachelor rooms. The two seated themselves, and Mr. Dillon explained his visit.

"You are my son's most intimate friend, John, and have more influence over him than any other man. Jim has come to a crisis in his life and is likely to be wrecked. I wish you to try to save him."

"You mean his infatuation for Clara Markland?"

"I do. I am convinced that she wishes to marry him for what he will inherit from me; that she cares nothing for him; that as his wife she will be constantly encouraging the attentions of other men, and in the end there will be a divorce, he being obliged to pay her a very large alimony."

"Why do you not make it known to the lady that you will disinherit him if he marries her?"

"Such a course would make a breach between him and me. He is my only child, and we have always been friends as well as father and son. In anything else than an infatuation for a woman he would do as I might ask. The only way to handle this case is to convince him beyond a doubt that the woman is fooling him, and I appeal to you to accomplish that if possible."

John Turner sat in deep thought for awhile, then said:

"You are asking me to make a breach between Jim and me, but since it is far better that it should occur between him and me than between his father and himself I will do what I can in the matter, but my experience is that one who interferes between a man and the woman he loves or a girl and the man she loves gets himself disliked without securing the desired end. I will, however, try to form a plan by which I may show Jim the woman's character without his being aware that I know she is the woman he loves. He has asked me to go with him to call upon her, but I have always put him off with some excuse. She has never seen me, which will give me an advantage. This is all I can say to you at present. If I save Jim from an unfortunate marriage, even at the expense of our friendship I shall rejoice. Besides, I would gladly serve his father."

Mr. Dillon rose, pressed Turner's hand and left him with thanks for the spirit in which he had received his request. Dillon, whose inventive faculties seemed to need the stimulant of tobacco, lighted a pipe and sat down to think upon what he considered a problem, the solution of which was almost hopeless.

One afternoon not long after the interview between Mr. Dillon and John Turner the latter telephoned his friend Jim to meet him at their club for dinner. He hoped Jim would not fail him, since he had a communication to make of a confidential nature. Dillon, who had no engagement with his fiancee for that evening, promised to be present, and at the appointed hour the two met in the club lounging room.

"What is it, old man?" asked Dillon.

"I'm in love," replied Turner.

"Good; there's an additional bond of union between us. You now know how I feel, and we can sympathize with each other. Who is she?"

"The loveliest woman on the face of the earth."

"There I must differ with you," smiled Jim. "I happen to be engaged to the loveliest woman on earth myself."

"When you see the one I refer to you will acknowledge yourself mistaken."

"Well, well; we won't quarrel about that. Tell me of her."

"She is confiding and gentle, but withal strong in honesty."

"She must be Clara Markland's twin sister."

"She is no woman's twin sister. There may be double stars in the firmament of the heavens, but the woman who has honored me with her regard is a central sun."

"You're enthusiastic, John. What a change from the man who received the announcement of my engagement so coldly! You've caught the fever yourself, my boy, and know now what a fiery disease it is. But you haven't told me the lady's name."

"Nor can I at present."

"Why?"

"Because we are not engaged."

"But you will be. Besides, there's no harm in telling a chum that you love a certain woman. On the contrary, you are paying her a compliment."

"There is harm in telling any friend that a certain woman is considering whether or no she will accept an offer of marriage from me."

"You should certainly marry an honorable woman. Your own sense of honor is too keen to be practical."

"It is that high sense of honor inborn in the woman I love which makes me honorable. It is understood between us that neither shall say anything to involve the other till I have her final answer. If I supposed it possible for you to discover whom I refer to I should never hold up my head again."

The two friends while at dinner and during the evening spent the time each eulogizing the woman he loved, and when they parted Jim exacted a promise that John would introduce him to his love just as soon as an engagement had taken place between them.

"By the bye," he added, "when are you going with me to call on Clara?"

"After my return from a business trip I must take within a day or two. I have only one evening before my departure that could be applied in this way, and you know with whom I would be likely to spend it."

"I certainly do."

John Turner did not report himself to his friend Dillon as back from his journey for several weeks when one morning he appeared in the latter's office, his exuberant manner somewhat changed. He made no reference to his love affair till Jim asked him about it, then said that there was a hitch. The young lady was in great tribulation over it. By keeping it secret she had hoped to gain time in which to win the approval of her father to the match. But thus far she had failed. He was in favor of her marrying another man, one who was the prospective heir to a fortune. "She loves me," John added mournfully, "but she and her father are very close. She can't bear to disappoint him. Besides, she is one of those persons who are prone to act for the good of others at their own expense."

"Who's your rival?" asked Jim.

"That I don't know. The lady would not be justified in telling me."

"How do you know she really loves you?"

"While I trust her implicitly, I must admit that I have no other proof than her word that she does."

Jim mentioned the call they were to make together, but John felt so despondent about his own affair that he begged off till something definite in it should have been reached.

One day John told Jim that he had persuaded his love to accept a ring from him. It was to be an engagement ring if they became engaged, and if they were not engaged the lady insisted upon its return. John asked his friend to go with him to a jeweler and assist in the selection of the gift. Jim did not quite understand how a woman so sensitively honorable as his friend's lady love had been described could accept a ring under the circumstances. Nevertheless the case seemed to be a peculiar one, and he understood from John that he regarded the gift as a possible stepping stone to an engagement.

The two friends visited a jeweler in company, and the ring selected was one that Turner especially fancied. There were two diamonds held in the fangs of a snake. Dillon condemned the ring as entirely inappropriate to the occasion. But Turner's heart seemed set on it, and he bought it. He left it with the jeweler to have the lady's initials engraved in it, explaining to his friend that, his own mind being made up, this was allowable. When the lady made up her mind to take him his own initials could be put in.

Soon after the purchase of the ring Turner told Dillon that he had received permission to take him to call on the lady of his love. Dillon gladly accepted the invitation.

When they went up the steps of the dwelling, to which Turner led the way, Dillon stopped and exclaimed:

"For heaven's sake, John, what does this mean?"

"It means," was the reply, "that this is the house where lives the woman who has admitted that she loves me."

Dillon had run up the steps and pushed the bell. Before Jim could speak again the door was opened by a servant. John waited for Jim to enter, then went in himself. Clara Markland was seated in the drawing room. At seeing the two men she paled. Then she tried to slip from her finger a ring. But before she could do so her fiance had seen it and recognized the gift he had seen when his friend had bought it.

It was an impressive tableau—the woman who feared that she had lost an advantageous match, the undeceived lover and the man who had played the game.

"I now see, John," said Dillon in an icy tone, "why you fancied the two diamonds in the fangs of a serpent."

"Well, gentlemen," said Miss Markland, "how does it happen that you two call together?"

"I leave it to my friend to make the explanation," said Dillon. "I had no idea that he was taking me to call on my fiancee."

"Since whatever motive," said Turner, "that I may have had has been accomplished—namely, to prove to a deceived man his deception—I am not needed here. I leave you two together to make up this little difference."

The difference the lady succeeded in making up, which meant an enmity on the part of her lover for his chum. When Dillon next met Turner he passed him without speaking to him. Dillon married Miss Markland, and so long as a small fortune left him by his mother lasted she used it to float herself in the fashionable world. Meanwhile Mr. Dillon, Sr., died and left his estate in Turner's hands in trust for his son, to be paid him on certain conditions. When Dillon's means were exhausted his wife left him. Then one day he called on Turner to ask his forgiveness.

Turner told him that he was permitted by his father's will to pay him any money of which his wife could reap no benefit.

The friendship that was interrupted during this period of young Dillon's marriage became closer than ever. As to the woman, she drifted away from both of them.

Canada's Railways.

Canada has about 30,000 miles of railways and the most remarkable railway history in the world. One railway company in Canada is the greatest corporation in the world. Its pay-roll amounts to about $45,000,000 a year and includes 75,000 employes. The second transcontinental, which was only authorized by Parliament in 1903, has now 2,350 miles of road in operation west of Winnipeg, and a port on the Pacific and a certainty of being linked up with the interior in 1914. All the railways of Canada employ a grand army of 141,000 Canadians at a wage-bill of $74,000,000 a year. We have the greatest railway mileage in the world compared to population. We have a Government railway which cost $92,000,000 to build. And about half a century ago the building of the Grand Trunk from Montreal to Toronto, now one of the finest roads in the world, was regarded as almost a miracle of engineering. —Canadian Courier.

ANNUAL REPORT ON COUNTY SCHOOLS BY INSPECTOR

County School Inspector Lees reported to the County Council at the Wednesday session as follows—

There were in operation during the year, 75 rural schools with 75 teachers and 3 village schools with 20 teachers. In the discharge of my duties, I made 225 visits, 174 in rural and 51 in the village schools.

I regret to report that there has been no improvement during the year in the qualification of the 75 teachers in the rural schools in December, 25 held second class, 15 third class, 3 district, and 26 temporary certificates. The remaining 6 had no certificates. These last were in sections 2, 7 and 9, Asphodel, 1 Dummer, 1 and 14 Otonabee. There were 28 teachers with Normal School training, 15 with Model School training, 2 who had attended a District Summer Training School and the rest had no professional training. Of the 20 teachers in the villages, four were in the Continuation Schools and were fully qualified. Of the other 16, there were 11 with second class, 5 third class and one with no certificate. The 31 teachers who had received no professional training were distributed as follows; Asphodel 3, Belmont and Methuen 10, Burleigh and Anstruther 4, Chandos 6, Dummer 5, Otonabee 2 and Lakefield 1. Douro and North Monaghan alone of the townships had all their teachers qualified. It is worth mentioning that Douro stands highest in the matter of the qualification of teachers, having 8 out of the 11 with second class certificates and the other three third class.

For this unsatisfactory showing in regard to the qualification of teachers, there must be local reasons, as reports from the Department of Education are to the effect that in the province as a whole, conditions in this respect, are greatly improved Owing to the establishment of a number of Model Schools In this district, and to the difficulty experienced by students who had not attended an approved high school, in obtaining entrance to the Normal schools, there have been fewer students from this locality in attendance during the past two years. Geographical and other conditions make it exceptionally difficult for school in some parts of the inspectorate to secure teachers. All these causes have had their effect, but there is no doubt that so long as the average of the salaries paid here is below that of the province as a whole, there will be difficulty in securing and retaining the services of qualified teachers. Notwithstanding all the hinderances, I am of opinion that had trustees all been a little more watchful and acted with greater promptness, even at the salaries offered, a better showing might have been made.

I regret to say that, in some cases this condition is having a very injurious effect on the schools. There are several schools that were well attended a few years ago and in a prosperous condition that have gone to pieces. The older pupils, finding nothing worth while at school, left without completing the course, and the lower classes have become discouraged and irregular. This is a matter of the most serious importance to the children concerned. Some of these teachers are costing the sections more than qualified teachers would have cost owing to loss of grants, and it would be as well, in some cases, that the schools should be closed.

The average of the salaries paid continues to increase, though it does not keep pace with the rise throughout the province. In 1910, the average for the inspectorate was $400, in 1911 $427, and last year it was $455. By townships, the averages were as follows—

Asphodel	$491.00	$514.00

CITY SOLICITOR AUTHORIZED TO DEFEND FOUR CLAIMS FOR DAMAGES IF NECESSARY

Legal Committee Decline to Compensate Four Complainants.

They Suffered Physical Injury and Damages to Their Property.

Four claims for damages came before the Legal Committee of the City Council last night, at their initial meeting of the year. The new chairman, Ald. Gordon, presided. His legal training and experience has well qualified him for the office.

A SLIPPERY WALK.

Messrs. Peck, Kerr & McElderry gave notice of an accident to their client, Mary E. Wynne, who sustained a strained wrist by a fall on a slippery walk on Hunter St., East City. Street Inspector Fitzgerald and City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall enclosed letters on their investigation of the matter. It was decided to take no action on the claim, and the City Solicitor was authorized to defend any action that might be commenced.

COMPANY TO BLAME.

On behalf of Mr. Robert Gibbs, the livery proprietor, a letter was read from Solicitor G. W. Hatton, giving notice that he will enter an action for damages arising from the death of a horse that was killed on Water St.

It was decided to refer the matter to the Peterborough Light and Power Company, notifying them that the accident appeared to be due to the noise and bright light of the Railway Company's sweeper which was passing.

DR. SUTTON'S CLAIM.

No action was taken with regard to Dr. N. H. Sutton's claim for $4 damages, caused by injury to his auto through the condition of the road on Sophia St. If action was brought against the city, the City Solicitor was instructed to defend it.

On motion of Ald. Green and Langford, the Mayor and Ald. Gordon were appointed a committee to interview Dr. Johnston concerning his claim for damages.

The press representatives were requested to withdraw from the meeting, or else refrain from publishing any of the discussion which arose out of the consideration of the claims. The reporters departed.

It was moved by Ald. Green and Gordon, that the City Solicitor be requested to notify those who occupy part of the reserve, along the river, north of Charlotte street, that they must take a lease from the city at a nominal rental.

SOME ONE STOLE FUR CAP FROM THE POLICE STATION

Young Man Charged with Theft Pleads Not Guilty

A young man named Frank Seaton was arraigned before Police Magistrate Dumble to-day, charged with stealing a fur cap, valued at $10, the property of Harry Kearney. The alleged theft was committed right in the police station on December 27th.

Seaton elected summary trial and pleaded "not guilty." The case was adjourned for one week. To a second charge of being drunk yesterday he admitted his guilt and judgment was reserved for one week.

It appears that Seaton was given a night's lodging in the police station and it is alleged that when released early the next morning, he picked up a fur cap belonging to a man named Kearney.

RECOMMEND CHANGES IN STATUTES

A document containing clauses of immense importance to the city, if favorably considered by the Leagislature, was taken up by the Legal Committee at last night's session. It was in the form of a petition drafted by City Solicitor Hall, containing recommendations for legislation that would empower the council with authority to amend several statutes which are at present inadequate and inconvenient.

Years ago the Council was authorized to pass by-laws for the issue or re-issue of debentures, providing in some instances that no sinking fund should require to be raised, and in other cases only a one per cent. sinking fund. Debentures were accordingly issued under the said by-laws, some of which are now outstanding, and at their maturity there will be insufficient sinking fund to retire them. Consequently it has become necessary that authority be be secured from the Legislature to issue debentures for the amount required to make up such sinking funds.

Another clause in the petition asked that an amendment be made to the statute concerning same, making it unnecessary for the Mayor to sign subo signature is not required by the provisions of the Consolidated Municipal Act. The clause was a request for legislation that would provide for the signature of the Treasurer being fixed to the coupons either by lithograph, engraving, or stamped.

Probably the most important clause in the petition was relating to the proposed Hydro-Electric Innovation, it asked that the Act be amended making it clear that the Corporation may expropriate all the rights, works and property of the Peterborough Lihgt and Power Company Limited when they go into the destribution of Hydro power in Peterborough.

The petition contained a couple of other clauses, one asking for legislation to issue the $10,000 debentures for the incinerator at 4 3-4 per cent. interest, payable in twenty years, and the other in regard to the diversion of Hunter Street, East at the Quaker Oats Company.

The petition closed with the statement of rateable property in Peterborough and the existing debenture debt payable by local special rates.

The petitionw as favorably dischused by the Committee and referred to the Council with the recommendation that it be forwarded to the Legislature.

There were present at the meeting Ald Gordon, chairman; Mayor Bradburn, Aldermen Johnston, Greene, Langford.

Mr. Tuckett was a notable figure in the business life of Hamilton. He was a son of the late George E. Tuckett, the founder of the great tobacco firm of George Tuckett and Son, and Mayor of the city in 1896. He took the presidency of the Tuckett Cigar Company in 1900.

CHOOSING A HOBBY.

Make It One That Will Relieve the Tension of Business.

Writing on the advantage and enjoyment that a busy man will derive from a hobby, Arnold Bennett says in the Metropolitan:

"In choosing a distraction—that is to say, in choosing a rival to his business—he should select some pursuit whose nature differs as much as possible from the nature of his business, and which will bring into activity another side of his character. If his business is monotonous, demanding care and solicitude rather than irregular, intense efforts of the brain, then let his distraction be such as will make a powerful call upon his brain. But if on the other hand the course of his business runs in crises that string up the brain to its tightest strain, then let his distraction be a foolish and merry one.

"Many men fall into the error of assuming that their hobbies must be as dignified and serious as their vocations, though surely the example of the greatest philosophers ought to have taught them better! They seem to imagine that they should continually be improving themselves in either body or mind. If they take up a sport, it is because the sport may improve their health. And if the hobby is intellectual it must needs be employed to improve their brain.

"The fact is that their conception of self improvement is too narrow. In their restricted sense of the phrase they possibly don't need improving, they possibly are already improved to the point of being a nuisance to their fellow creatures; possibly what they need is worsening. In the broad and full sense of the phrase self improvement, a course of self worsening might improve them.

"I have known men—and everybody has known them—who would approach nearer to perfection if they could only acquire a little carelessness, a little absentmindedness, a little illogicalness, a little irrational and infantile gaiety, a little unscrupulousness in the matter of the time of day. These considerations should be weighed before certain hobbies are dismissed as being unworthy of a plain man's notice."

It Was Dangerous.

"So you think that kissing is dangerous?"

"Indeed, I do."

"You must have kissed the wrong girl."

"I know I did."

"Her brother handed you a wallop?"

"No; she married me."—Houston Post.

Sign of Popular Affection.

Weren't you indignant when people you didn't know called you by your first name?"

"No," replied Senator Sorghum, "but I've worried a great deal since they've shown a disposition to stop it."—Washington Star.

LABORER BRUTALLY MURDERS HIS WIFE BY SHOOTING AND CHOKING HER TO DEATH

Thomas Riley, of Hamilton, Seeks Admittance to Boarding House of Woman From Whom He Had Been Separated For a Year—After Shooting Her Through the Heart He Choked Her—Others Were in Room at the Time of the Tragedy.

MURDERER NAMES ANOTHER MAN

Blames Him For Causing His Home to be Broken up—Riley's Wife, it is Said, Refused to Return to Him Because of His Ill-Treatment of Her.

HAMILTON, Jan. 31.—Thomas Riley, a laborer, walked into his wife's boarding-house at 48 North Bay street, yesterday, drew a revolver from his pocket and shot her through the heart. He then grabbed her by the throat and choked her. Mrs. Riley, who was sitting on a chair in the front room, jumped up and ran into the hall, where she swooned and died before medical assistance could be secured. Jealousy of another man is believed to be the motive.

William Lang, who was passing at the time, heard the shot fired, and ran to the corner of King and James street, where he informed Constable Yaxley of what had happened. The constable immediately notified headquarters of the occurrence and then ran to the scene of the crime, which is six blocks away, and placed Riley under arrest.

It seems that there has existed much hard feeling between Mrs. Riley, who is 32 years of age, and the husband, since their marriage over sixteen years ago, and one year ago Mrs. Riley left him and went to Toronto, where she worked in a restaurant until last October, when she returned to this city and went to board with Mrs. Durfey.

The accused has since that time come around the house trying to persuade his wife to return to him, but she would have nothing to do with him because of his ill-treatment of her while they were living together.

In the room with the murdered woman at the time of the attack were Mrs. R. Durfey, the boarding-house keeper, Sandy Durfey, her son, and Annie Riley, a four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Riley.

About ten minutes before the murder took place, Riley went to the house, but was refused admittance. Charles Durfey, a son of Mrs. Durfey, who was leaving the house, was asked by Riley to get his suit case, which Mrs. Riley had in her possession. Durfey returned to the house and got the suit case and then went down town.

When about five minutes had elapsed, Riley rushed into the house and into the front room where his wife was seated on a chair near a bed, on which Sandy Durfey was lying, and killed her.

Riley was taken to police headquarters, and the body of his wife to the morgue.

After his arrest Riley asked to be released for about two minutes, so that he could settled with young Durfey, who, he claims, was the cause of his home being broken up.

Mrs. Riley leaves four children, one boy and three girls—Annie, 4 years old; Charles, 13; Jennie, 15, and May, 16, who is living in Buffalo.

Detectives Cameron and Goodman took charge of the case, and locked up as witnesses Sandy Durfey and Harvey Spratt, a young man, who was outside the house in an automobile talking to Maud Durfey, at the time of the shooting.

SON OF WEALTHY BANKER SUICIDES

Took His Life In Room at Winnipeg Hotel and Left Note Asking Family To Forgive Him—Young Man Who Was A Yale Graduate Was Despondent At Times

Canadian Press Despatch.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 31.—Eugene Delano arrived at the Royal Alexandria hotel on Wednesday. He immediately went to his room and did not leave it.

On Thursday night his naked body was found on the floor with his throat cut with a razor. He left a note, which read, "Dear father, sisters and brother, forgive me. Eugene."

It is understood his family is prominent in New York. The young man dressed fashionably and had plenty of money. It is believed he was a student of an Art School in New York.

FAMILY IS PROMINENT.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Eugene Delano, who committed suicide at Winnipeg, was 25 years of age and a graduate of Yale. He was a son of Eugene Delano, a wealthy banker and railroad director. Young Delano left for Winnipeg last Friday in good spirits, but was subject to periods of despondency.

TO RESTRICT CHARTERS.

Senator Davis Would Check Mongers of Railway Rights.

Senator Davis moved the second reading of his bill providing for the granting of charters to railway companies by letters patent from the State Department on the recommendation of the Railway Commission, which shall act only after an examination of the proposals and a report upon it by the engineers.

Applicants have to make a survey as a preliminary to applying for a charter, and have to make a deposit with the Government, which will be held until the road is built and all debts settled. The bill had been passed by the Senate last year, but failed in the House of Commons for lack of time.

The bill was given second reading and referred to the railway committee.

HOME RULE CANDIDATE WINS IN DERRY BY 57

Nationalist Victory Gives Home Rulers Majority of One Seat Right in Anti-Home Rule Ulster.

Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDONDERRY, Jan. 31.—The Home Rule party won a notable victory yesterday, the majority for Hogg, the Nationalist leader, being 57. The vote was Pakenham 2,642, Hogg 2,699.

LONDONDERRY, Ireland, Jan. 31.—The Unionists concede the election of David C. Hogg, Nationalist and Home Ruler, over Col. H. A. Pakenham, Unionist. The returns will not be fully known until late to-day, but the organisation of the parties is so perfect that the result can be predicted with accuracy.

No figures are available for the reason that the counting of ballots did not commence until 8 o'clock in the morning, in accordance with the usual custom pursued by agreement among the candidates in closely-contested constituencies. This plan is adopted to prevent possible rioting if the result is announced at night. Under the system of voting, however, the result is practically known when the polls close. Booths known as "tally rooms" are located in front of each polling booth and 90 per cent. of the voters pass through these, and their "politics" checked off.

The Derry election was necessitated by the death of the Duke of Abercorn and the succession of the Marquis of Hamilton, and the interest lies in the fact that a Nationalist victory gives the Home Rulers a majority of one seat—17 to 16—right in Anti-Home Rule Ulster.

The new member is a prominent Presbyterian of Londonderry, and is a linen manufacturer employing a large number of people. His opponent is a landlord in Antrim County.

DUKE MAY NOT RETURN

Is Going Home to England With Duchess This Spring.

OTTAWA, Jan. 31.—The Duchess of Connaught will return to England in the spring. The following bulletin was issued at Rideau Hall yesterday:

"Her Royal Highness is making steady progress towards recovery, and it is hoped that Their Royal Highnesses will be able to return to Ottawa at no distant date.

"It is proposed that the duchess should return to England in the spring for further medical advice. His Royal Highness will accompany her, going home on leave of absence.

"The date of Their Royal Highnesses' return to Canada cannot be definitely fixed, as the date of their departure and the length of the Governor-General's leave of absence has not yet been determined.

(Signed) "H. C. Lowther."

The term of the Duke of Connaught was arranged for two years, but it was thought that this would be extended. The two years will be up in October, and in view of the announcement made yesterday, there is some speculation as to whether the royal party will return to Canada at all.

FIREMEN IN ARSON TRUST

Chicago Force Charged With Abetting Arson Promoters.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—Several Chicago city firemen yesterday were implicated as members of the "arson trust" by an informer who was interrogated at the state attorney's office. This is the first suggestion of collaboration between firemen and members of the "ring."

According to the informant, firemen were paid to designate the location of fires, so that the work of the public fire insurance adjusters, who worked in conjunction with "torch bearers" and other members of the "trust," might be expedited.

WILD SHOT MAY PROVE FATAL TO INNOCENT MAN

WINNIPEG, Jan. 31.—John Zoopik, Ruthenian, is lying in the general hospital with a bullet in his right temple, as the result of a revolver shot fired yesterday morning by William Andrew Wisely, police constable, at another man who stole two bottles of milk from a delivery wagon.

The constable saw the man remove the milk and after a futile effort to overtake the thief, the officer fired his revolver to frighten the thief. The bullet went wide and struck Zoopik, who was working nearby. He has a chance for recovery. Wisely is being held awaiting the outcome of Zoopik's injuries.

RAILWAY FOR NORTH PETERBORO

OTTAWA, Jan. 31 (Special)—If, as a result of the Senators' and Members' meeting held regarding the Central Canada Railway, the ministers present a bill calling for the usual subsidy, it means a railway through the middle of Ontario on a low grade line just North of Stoney Lake.

The railway is to connect at Montreal with the Intercolonial and at Midland with the Hill western railroad lines and steamship company and will open up Ontario.

The railway is to be completed in two years. The Peterborough County Council has wired its endorsation of the project.

FIGHTING AT ADRIANOPLE MAY BEGIN ON MONDAY

Seven o'Clock Monday is the Time Set, But the Reply of the Young Turks to the Powers Makes Important Concessions and War May Yet be Averted.

Canadian Press Despatch.

BERLIN, Jan. 31.—Great pessimism regarding the Balkan situation is displayed in official circles here, owing to Bulgaria's uncompromising attitude. A resumption of hostilities next Monday is considered highly probable.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The curtain may rise on the second act of the Balkan war next Monday. The allies denounced the armistice at 7 o'clock last night, and, if events take the prescribed course, the bombardment of Adrianople will follow after an interval of four days. Indeed, the bombardment has been scheduled for 7 o'clock Monday evening. Yet, even at this eleventh hour, war is in no wise assured. Only a few hours before the allies proclaimed their momentous decision the Ottoman Government presented its reply to the joint note of the powers of January 17. It yields so many things as to almost meet the allies' demands.

In its reply to the note of the powers the Young Turk Government asserts itself boldly. Apart from proposals to divide Adrianople and a plea for the retention of the Aegean Islands, the new Government takes advantage of the occasion to press for relief from the fetters of tariff and foreigners' extra-territorial rights, under which the Turks have long chafed.

The Ottoman Government does not hesitate to recognise that the conclusion of peace corresponds with the hopes and interest of all, says the note, "and that it is desirable to put an end as soon as possible to a struggle which it in no way provoked.

"The Imperial Government has already given undeniable proofs of a conciliatory spirit, by consenting to immediate sacrifices. Adrianople being an essentially Mussulman town and the second capital in Turkey, and therefore indissolubly bound up with the empire, the mere rumor of its cession provoked a sentiment of reprobation throughout the country, and aroused such excitements as to bring about the resignation of the last Cabinet.

"The Turkish Government is willing, as a final proof of its pacific disposition, to place itself in the hands of the powers regarding that part of Adrianople situated on the right bank of the Maritza River. The mosques and historic monuments are on the left bank, and the retention of that section is a necessity which the Government cannot fail to take account of without exposing the country to a commotion which might result in the gravest consequences."

ONTARIO RADIALS IN ONE IMMENSE AMALGAMATION; THE LARGEST IN THE WORLD

Canadian Press Despatch.

TORONTO, Jan. 31.—The Telegram publishes this evening a proposed immense amalgamation of radial railways in Ontario, to be the "largest in the world." The Mackenzie-Mann paper says there is shortly to be erected huge radial terminals at North Toronto.

Insiders have been investing heavily in real estate in that vicinity for the last six weeks. The merger will include the Toronto railway and all surburban roads, including the Hamilton and London line; the Stratford Street Railway; the Whitby and Oshawa line and all projected lines in Western Ontario.

When the plan is completed and the work finished passengers will be able to travel from Windsor to Montreal by electric road without more than one change of cars.

A prominent local financier says that when one realizes how profitable the Berlin Galt line is, the possibilities of this big scheme seem to be tremendous.

ARTIC EXPLORER ASKS FOR AID

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Vilhjalmur Steffanson, the Arctic explorer, left here last night for Ottawa to lay before the Canadian Government some of the results of his last expedition, and with a view to secure support for his next trip north. He is in hopes that the Dominion Government will take decisive steps while there is yet time for the protection in central Arctic, Canada and Victoria Land of the caribou and musk ox and the Eskimos as well, all being in danger of extinction.

FINANCIAL MEASURE GOES TO COMMITTEE

Finance Minister White is Only Conservative Speaker in Debate and He Explained His Bill and Urges That it be Discussed in Committee.

OTTAWA, Jan. 31.—The White bill for the revision of the Bank Act was given its second reading shortly before midnight, following a lucid exposition by the Minister of Finance of the provisions of the bill.

The Liberal disposition to delay the reference of the Bank Bill to the House Committee on Banking and Commerce, where a full discussion has been providel for, was again in evidence yesterday. Liberal speakers had the floor all day, the Conservative members refraining from prolonging the debate in the general desire to resume consideration of the naval resolutions.

Mr. Emmerson said that there was every prospect of Canada being controlled by a money trust such as prevailed in the United States. There were 48 men who were directors in 121 of the biggest corporations in Canada, and 23 of the 48 were the directing force in 90 of these corporations, which controlled all the banks, insurance companies, trust companies and all the big financial concerns in Canada. These 23 men, through interlocking directorates and financial influences, practically controlled the financial, industrial and transportation interests of Canada. Nine of the 23 men lived in Toronto, 13 in Montreal, and one, Lord Strathcona, in England. In this great concentration of wealth and power there was a terrible menace to the country.

"We are facing," said Mr. Emmerson, "a gigantic struggle between the great corporations and the people. I propose to stand on the side of the people. The power exercised in the corporations is overwhelming. We see it displayed at every meeting of the banking and commerce committee and of the railway committee. We see it displayed in the formation of Cabinets and in the silence imposed upon members of the House. These corporations have no politics, and they find members to do their bidding on the left as well as on the right of the Speaker. This condition of affairs did not begin one year or two years ago. It has prevailed under Liberal and Conservative Governments alike."

Mr. Emmerson said that he had been inclined to make light of the charge that the present Finance Minister had been placed in the Cabinet by the big interests, as their representative, and had a mandate to carry out their will, but the present bill caused him to regard the charge more seriously. The bill had been framed for the express purpose of strengthening the tyrannical hold of the Canadian Bankers' Association and afforded no relief to the people.

The speaker praised the attitude of W. F. Maclean (South York) and Major Sam Sharpe (North Ontario). He declared himself in favor of Government inspection, more protection to depositors and as being against any further bank mergers.

Mr. Buchanan, Liberal member for Medicine Hat, thought that the ~~lien~~ upon the grain of the farmer should be extended to live stock and horses. He also favored state loans to farmers, as in Australia.

Mr. Kyte (Richmond, N.S.) thought that the Government should pay a higher rate of interest upon the savings of the people, and should loan out some of this money so secured to the farmers. Speaking of bank mergers, he said that ten years ago there were ten banks in the Maritime Provinces. To-day there were only two, the Royal Bank and the Bank of Halifax, which were being managed respectively from Montreal and Toronto.

J. G. Turriff, Liberal member for Assiniboine, said he regretted the apparent determination of the Government supporters to refrain from discussing the bill. Discussion had been invited by the Finance Minister; had the invitation been countermanded by the Prime Minister? Mr. White's bill, he said, was one which thoroughly satisfied the Bankers' Association. In conclusion, he urged that the Bank Act be strengthened so as to prevent the banks charging usurious interest. He suggested that any bank officer demanding or accepting more than seven per cent. interest be fined for the first offence $1,000, for the second offence $10,000, and be imprisoned for a third offence.

The debate was continued by Mr. Warnock (Macleod), Dr. Clarke (Red Deer), Mr. German (Welland), and Mr. Pardee (West Lambton).

Hon. W. T. White criticized the proposal to establish a big national bank, to be known as the Bank of Canada, through which the Government should issue all the currency now issued by the banks, saying there was no demand or necessity for the same. He also criticized the proposal to have the Government issue Dominion notes secured by gold reserve of less than 100 per cent. These notes, in his opinion, would not circulate unless the country resorted to fiat money. He regretted that the banks could not obey the law which limited interest charges to seven per cent., but he doubted if anything should be done in this regard by the Government.

The Minister defended his shareholders' audit, and declared against Government inspection, but said he would receive any suggestion tending to make the audit a more effective protection for the shareholders. He could not endorse the proposition that the banks as a whole should guarantee each other's deposits. Such a scheme would benefit new and weak banks at the expense of the strong institutions.

BRITAIN SHY OF THE U.S.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The British Government has not yet reached a decision on the question of the resumption of negotiations for the ratification of the Anglo-American arbitration treaty signed on Aug. 3, 1911, and which Secretary of State Knox declared that the United States was prepared to ratify. Sir Edmund Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, made this announcement yesterday in reply to a question on the subject in the House of Commons.

The whole United States note would be carefully considered, said Sir Edward, before any reply was sent to Washington.

The inquirer had asked the Foreign Secretary if any answer to this part of Secretary of State Knox's note had been sent, and suggested that the other powers might be asked to join in a simultaneous reply.

Doctor Guilty of Manslaughter.

SCHOLASTIQUE, Que., Jan. 31.—Dr. Allen was yesterday found guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death of his wife.

It was proved that while the doctor was driving through the country attending to other sick people he left his wife without food, fuel or proper clothing in the house, her dead body being finally discovered by neighbors.

DUBLIN CASTLE BOMBARDED BY ENGLISH SUFFRAGETTES AND LEADER SENT TO PRISON

MRS. DESPARD

The militant English suffragettes are "at it" again, but their activities this time have really reached a serious stage. In Dublin the suffragettes recently made a concerted attack on the windows of Dublin Castle, and in London the Home Office was also bombarded. In the English capital "General" Mrs. Drummond and Mrs. Despard, sister of the famous cavalry general, Sir John French, are leading their forces. Mrs. Despard has been sentenced to fourteen days in jail for resisting the police in the rioting in Trafalgar square.

"I got to go where they are if I get them," muttered Mrs. Comstock.

She hurried into the cabin, set the lamp on the table and stood thinking deeply. She went to the barn for the pair of stout high boots she used in feeding stock in deep snow. Throwing the boots by the back door, she climbed to the loft over the spring house and hunted an old lard oil lantern and one of first manufacture for oil. Both of these she cleaned and filled. She listened until everything upstairs had been still for over a half hour. By that time it was after 11 o'clock. Then she took the good lantern from the kitchen, the two old ones, a handful of matches, a ball of twine, and went from the cabin, softly closing the door. She skirted the back of the garden, crossed a field and came out on the road. Soon she reached the Limberlost. She hunted until she found the old trail, then followed it, stumbling over logs and through climbing vines and grasses.

By and by she began to see the wavering flight of something she thought near the right size. She had no idea where she was, but she stopped, lighted a lantern and hung it as high as she could reach. A little distance away she placed the second and then the third. Something large as a small bird was fluttering around. Mrs. Comstock began to perspire, while her hand shook wildly. She began to pray aloud.

"This way, oh, Lord! Make it come this way! Please! You know how I need it! Oh, Lord, send it lower!"

The moth hesitated at the first light, then slowly, easily it came toward the second, as if following a path of air. It touched a leaf near the lantern and settled. As Mrs. Comstock reached for it a thin yellow spray wet her hand and the surrounding leaves. When its wings raised above its back, her fingers came together. She held the moth to the light. It was nearer brown than yellow, and she remembered having seen some like it in the boxes that afternoon. It was not the one needed to complete the collection, but Elnora might want it, so Mrs. Comstock held on. Just there the Almighty was kind or nature was sufficient, as you look at it, for following the law of its being when disturbed, the moth again threw the spray by which some suppose it attracts its kind, and liberally sprinkled Mrs. Comstock's dress front and arms. From that instant, she became the best moth bait ever invented.

Moths were coming. She had one in each hand. They were not yellow, and she did not know what to do. She glanced around to try to discover some way to keep what she had, and her throbbing heart stopped and every muscle stiffened. There was the dim outline of a crouching figure not two yards away, and a pair of eyes their owner thought hidden caught the light in a cold stream. Her first impulse was to scream and fly for life. Before her lips could open a big moth alighted on her breast, while she felt another walking over her hair. All sense of caution deserted her. She did not care to live if she could not replace the yellow moth she had killed. She set her eyes on those among the leaves.

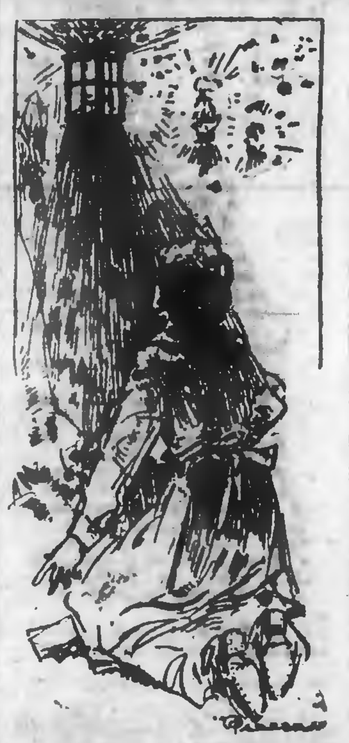
"Oh, it's you!" said Mrs. Comstock. "I might have known! But you gave me a start. Here, hold these until I make some sort of bag for them. Go easy! If you break them I don't guarantee what will happen to you!"

"Pretty fierce, ain't you!" laughed Pete, but he advanced and held out his hands. "For Elnora, I s'pose?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Comstock. "In a mad fit I trampled one this morning, and by the luck of the old boy himself it was the last moth she needed to complete a collection. I got to get another one or die."



Something Large as a Small Bird Was Fluttering Around.

"Then I guess it's your funeral," said Pete. "There ain't a chance in a dozen the right one will come. What color was it?"

"Yellow, and big as a bird."

"The Emperor, likely," said Pete. "You dig for that kind, and they are not numerous, so's 'at you can smash 'em for fun."

"Well, I can try to get one, anyway," said Mrs. Comstock. "I forgot all about bringing anything to put them in. You take a pinch on their wings until I make a poke."

Mrs. Comstock removed her apron, tearing off the strings. She unfastened and stepped from the skirt of her calico dress. With one apron string she tied shut the band and placket. She pulled a wire pin from her hair, stuck it through the other string, and using it as a bodkin ran it around the hem of her skirt. Her fingers flew, and shortly she had a large bag. She put several branches inside to which the moths could cling, closed the mouth partially and held it toward Pete.

Pete slipped several more moths into the bag.

"Now, that's five, Mrs. Comstock," he said. "I'm sorry, but you'll have to make that do. You must get out of here lively. Your lights will be taken for hurry calls, and inside the next hour a couple of men will ride here like fury."

"Well, I'll see them make me go," said Mrs. Comstock. "I've got Robert's revolver in my dress and I can shoot as straight as any man if I'm mad enough. Any one that interferes with me tonight will find me mad a-plenty. There goes another!"

"We are close to the old case," said Pete. "I think I can get into it. Maybe we could slip the rest in there."

"That's a fine idea!" said Mrs. Comstock. "They'll have so much room there they won't be likely to hurt themselves, and the books say they don't fly in daytime unless they are disturbed, so they will settle when it's light, and I can come with Elnora to get them."

They captured two more, and then Pete carried them to the case.

"Here comes a big one!" he cried as he returned.

Mrs. Comstock looked up and stepped out with a prayer on her lips. She could not tell the color at that distance, but the moth appeared different from the others. On it came, dropping lower and darting from light to light. As it swept near her, "Oh, heavenly Father," exulted Mrs. Comstock, "it's yellow! Careful! Pete, your hat, maybe!"

Pete made a long sweep. The moth wavered above the hat and sailed away. In its flight it came straight toward Mrs. Comstock. She snatched off the remnant of apron she had tucked into her petticoat band and held the calico before her. The moth struck full against it and clung to the goods. Pete crept up stealthily. Another moth followed the first, and the spray showered the apron.

"Wait!" gasped Mrs. Comstock. "I think they have settled. The books say they won't leave now."

"Now, shall I?" questioned Pete.

"No. Leave them alone. They are safe now. They are mine. They are my salvation. God and the Limberlost gave them to me! They won't move for hours. The books all say so. Oh, Heavenly Father, I am thankful to you, and you, too, Pete Corson! You are a good man to help me. Now, I can go home and face my girl."

Elnora had sat by the window far into the night. At last she undressed and went to bed, but sleep would not come. She had gone to the city to talk with members of the school board about a room in the grades. There was a possibility that she might secure the moth and so be able to start to college that fall, but if she did not, then she wanted the school. She had been given some encouragement, but she was so unhappy that nothing mattered. Yet Margaret Sinton had advised her to go home and try once more. Unable to sleep she arose at last, and the room being warm, she sat on the floor by the window. The lights in the swamp caught her eye. She was very uneasy, for quite 100 of her best moths were in the case.

She hurried down the stairway softly calling her mother. There was no answer. She lightly stepped across the sitting room and looked in at the open door. There was no one, and the bed had not been used. Her first thought was that her mother had gone to the pool, and the Limberlost was alive with signals. Pity and fear mingled in the heart of the girl. She opened the kitchen door, crossed the garden and ran back to the swamp. As she neared it she listened, but she could hear only the usual voices of night.

"Mother!" she called softly, then louder, "Mother!" She returned home. The time was dreadfully long before she heard her mother's voice.

Mrs. Comstock entered, dragging her heavy feet. In one hand she held the lantern, and in the other, stiffly extended before her, on a wad of calico, reposed a magnificent pair of yellow Emperors.

The girl shrank back to the shadows.

"Yes, anywhere inside the door," replied Mrs. Comstock as she moved a few steps to make way for him. Pete's head appeared. He set down the moths and was gone.

"Thank you, Pete, more than ever woman thanked you before," said Mrs. Comstock.

She placed the lantern on the table and barred the door. As she turned Elnora came into view. Mrs. Comstock leaned toward her and held out the moths. In a voice vibrant with tones never before heard she said, "Elnora, my girl, mother's found you another moth."

* * * * * * *

Elnora awoke at dawn and lay gazing around the unfamiliar room. She noticed that every vestige of masculine attire and belongings was gone and knew without any explanation what that meant. For some reason every tangible evidence of her father was banished, and she was at last to be allowed to take his place. She turned to look at her mother. Mrs. Comstock's face was white and haggard, but on it rested an expression of profound peace Elnora never before had seen. As she studied the features on the pillow beside her the heart of the girl throbbed in tenderness. She softly slipped from the bed, went to her room, dressed and entered the kitchen to attend the Emperors and prepare breakfast. The pair had been left clinging to the piece of calico. The calico was there and a few pieces of beautiful wing. A mouse had eaten the moths!

With the first thought of her mother, she caught up the remnants of the moths, burying them in the ashes of the stove. She took the bag to her room, hurriedly releasing its contents, but there was not another yellow one. Her mother had said some had been confined in the case in the Limberlost. There was still a hope that an Emperor might be among them.

Woman's World

Madam Clara Butt, a Great English Singer.

MADAM CLARA BUTT.

The domestic side of a great singer's life is always interesting to the public, and Madam Clara Butt, the English contralto now in this country, is no exception to the rule.

In private life Madam Butt is Mrs. Kennerly Rumford, a most devoted wife and mother. Her home in St. John's wood, just outside London, contains rare treasures—signed portraits from royalties and art objects from every part of the world.

Madam Butt is a strikingly handsome woman and possesses a speaking voice that is as rich and sweet as her singing voice, with that hint of sadness in it one somehow expects from a contralto whose songs lie among the saddest notes on the piano.

When asked about the songs she liked best in her repertoire she replied: "I love all music, all music that is sincere. I like sentiment, but I hate sentimentality. And I believe in singing a sincere song, sincerely written, so that the man in the back row of the gallery can hear you distinctly. And that brings me to the question of diction. I am a crank on diction and think that far too little attention is paid to it by singers. Clear pronounciation is as necessary as sincerity in singing. It is no use feeling the passion and beauty of a song if your incoherency causes your hearers to wonder what on earth you are working yourself up into such a state about. If I could I would have all singers who ventured to sing on a concert platform pronounce their words in such a way that no one could be in the least doubt as to what they were saying."

When asked whether personal beauty and smart clothes were essential for a singer's success, Madam Butt replied with conviction: "No. One's appearance and one's clothes matter only for a very small portion of the audience. What really matters is one's sincerity. The plain singer with personality can succeed as well as the most beautiful woman. It's oneself—the real self, not the features or the frock, but the soul—that comes out in one's voice and gives expression to it that makes one popular or merely tolerated." And it is only a great artist like Madam Butt who could say such things.

The Wrong Number Again.

Governor Chambers, of the Toronto Goal, had an amusing telephone conversation recently that illustrates how little one may appreciate to whom he is speaking sometimes. The Governor was sitting in his office when the bell rang. He was surprised to hear the greeting: "Howdy, Guv'nor, is Dot there?" "Dot? Dot?" he replied, "I don't know any Dot." "Ah, gwan, quit yer kiddin'. Dot Dawson. You know. Ain't she there now?" came back the answer. "Well, I'm sure I don't know," said the doctor, "I'll go and look her up," and he kindly went to the records and made a careful search. "No, I don't find her name here," he advised his interrogator. "I don't think she has been here for some time." "For goodness' sake, is that Mr. Blands house," came the query. "No-o-o, this is the goal," said the Governor, and the sudden "bing" of the receiver at the other end announced the lady's impatience at being given the wrong exchange.

Rose to the Occasion.

"Do you know, Miss Doottie," asks the earnest young man, "that if one were on Sirius the orbit of the earth would look just about the size of a finger ring?"

"I beg your pardon, Harold," she flutters. "I was musing for the moment and did not catch everything you said, but I heard you say something about 'serious' and a ring."—Chicago Post.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Mrs. Belva Ann Lockwood, candidate for president on the Equal Rights party ticket in 1884 and the first woman admitted to the bar of the supreme court, recently celebrated her eighty-second birthday at her home in Washington.

Mrs. Leopold Stokowski, wife of the new director of the Philadelphia orchestra, is better known to the public as Olga Samaroff, the pianist. She was born in Texas, but has spent the greater part of her life abroad. She studied in Paris with Marmontel, Wildor and Delaboan.

Miss Genevieve Champ Clark, daughter of the speaker and Mrs. Clark, is wearing a dainty, babylike ringlet below her right ear. The curl is so becoming that it promises to outrival in popularity "Alice blue" and "Helen pink." The new ringlet is known as the "Genevieve curl."

Dr. Elizabeth H. B. Macdonald, who recently sailed on the ship Waimana from London to Sydney as ship's surgeon, is a pioneer for women in such work. She has been for a number of years assistant to a well known physician in New Zealand and has had postgraduate work in Scottish hospitals.

Education Notes.

Nearly two-thirds of the American public school enrollment is in the rural schools.

The educational expenditure for Scotland for the past fiscal year was $18,300,000, of which $840,000 was for continuation schools.

An investigation of the Prussian schools shows that an average of 16 per cent of the pupils evaded the prescribed physical exercises by physicians' certificates or other means.

A traveling school of domestic science has been instituted in the department of Yonne, France. The school will make a stay of three months in any commune where an attendance of fifteen is guaranteed. Similar itinerant schools for domestic science exist in Ireland.

Breakfast Rolls.

Mix together a full teaspoonful of baking powder, a pound of flour and a small teaspoonful of salt; rub two ounces of butter into it, mix it quickly with half a pint of buttermilk or skim-milk; make the dough up into little rolls, set them on a well floured baking tin and bake for ten to fifteen minutes. When half baked brush over with milk.

New York Broiled Oysters.

Drain the oysters and season with salt and pepper. Dip first into softened butter and then roll in breadcrumbs. Arrange in a fine wire broiler, place over a clear fire and broil a light brown. Serve with maitre d'hotel sauce.

AVOID BLOOD POISON

The best and simplest way of insuring against blood-poisoning is to apply Zam-Buk to a cut, burn, cold sore or any open wound or diseased part as soon as sustained.

Of all the myriad forms of germs which set up blood-poisoning, not one has yet been found that Zam-Buk does not kill! A thin layer of Zam-Buk over a wound or sore acts in two ways. It prevents all harm coming into the wound or sore from the outside, and on the underside it stimulates the cells to renewed activity, provides just the healing, tissue-building material needed, by causing the blood to deposit this more rapidly and thus brings about rapid healing. Apply it to that cold sore, those chapped hands, that frost bite or that eczema.

Sold at 50c. box, all stores or druggists, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse substitutes.

PRINCIPALS OF THE SHEEHAN ENGLISH OPERA COMPANY, WHICH IS AT PRESENT MAKING A SHORT TOUR OF CANADA

JOSEPH F. SHEEHAN, THE STAR OF "MADAME BUTTERFLY"

Joseph F. Sheehan, leading tenor and star of the Sheehan English Opera Company and great exponent of opera in English, will come to the Grand Opera House, Thursday, February 6th, in Balfe's charming operatic gem, "The Bohemian Girl."

Mr. Sheehan, it will be remembered was for nine years the leading tenor and famous star of the Henry W. Savage Grand Opera Company of New York City, and as the star of this famous organization created the leading role in "Madame Butterfly" and toured the country for four consecutive seasons in that famous opera, also starring in other operas of equal importance under the Savage management. These operas, given as they were in English under the personal direction of Joseph F. Sheehan, proved such a tremendous success that immediately the Henry W. Savage English Opera Company became a permanent fixture in the opera world. Since Henry W. Savage retired from the English opera producing world, Mr. Sheehan has striven to uphold the standard set by Mr. Savage and success has crowned this momentous undertaking, and to-day we have as the standard of excellency the Sheehan English Opera Company producing the world's greatest operas in a language understandable to the English speaking people and by the cleverest array of American and European stars ever heard in English opera.

For a special twelve weeks' tour Mr. Sheehan has secured the services of Mrs. Emily Grey, famous harpist, direct from Covent Garden London, England, Miss Sibley Remtas, violinist virtuoso, Paris Opera Comique, and a special grand opera orchestra under the baton of William Glover, one of England's foremost conductors.

EGGS A LA CREOLE

Cook a pan of tomatoes with a shredded green pepper until the tomatoes are reduced by half. Then pour on to five rounds of buttered toast and place on each of these a poached egg and keep hot. Meanwhile melt an ounce of butter in a pan over the fire and let it color. Then add a tablespoonful of either lemon juice or vinegar. Let it all come just to the boil and pour it over the eggs, seasoning them with pepper and salt.

Points for Mothers

Your Daughter's Friends.

Here is a question that every mother of a growing girl should consider very carefully. How can I have more good times with my daughter and her friends?

Have you made friends with your daughter's friends? Do you know who her friends are and who are their friends?

It would seem from a study of social conditions that more than half the mothers in this country pay little attention to their children's associates outside the home. Perhaps your plea for this neglect—for it is a neglect, a neglect of duty—is that the housework and the care of younger children will not permit you to spend any time getting acquainted with young Ethel's friends.

Ethel enjoys their company, and you would not wish to hurt her feelings by suggesting that she should not associate with them. Ethel must have her fun while she is young.

Five mornings a week ten months in the year Ethel has to get out of bed early, dress, have breakfast and hurry off to school. Perhaps she returns at noon for a hasty lunch, perhaps not, but after school hours she must practice her music, study her lessons for the next day and attend to some small duties at home.

The evenings are long in winter. As a rule, there are few amusements at home, and the young boy and girl seek pleasure at some neighbor's house or get permission to attend a moving picture show.

On the way to either place Ethel meets a boy friend or several boys and girls, who suggest a walk or a visit to some boy's or girl's home where they can "rough house" unrestrained.

Very often a dance hall claims the boys and girls of fifteen and older. Surely there has been enough written about the dangers of the public dance.

The boys Ethel knows come to your home infrequently. They are at the awkward age, when the thought of meeting you and Ethel's father is most distasteful to them.

Ethel knows how they feel and courts their favor by arranging meetings outside her home—on the corner or at some girl friend's house where there is less supervision by parents than at her own home.

You, however, are really relieved by the thought that you do not have to meet and help entertain these young people. You say to yourself: "Oh, well if she likes to be at Anna's house let her go. I suppose they do have a better time there, where they do not have to take care not to waken a baby." And so Ethel is allowed to go out in the evenings according to her own sweet will.

She forms the habit, and few are the evenings spent at home with mother and the other children.

If trouble comes to Ethel she is to blame. She is reprimanded, upbraided, and if she is a girl of spirit the chances are she leaves home entirely to join the army of working girls—or comes to greater harm.

Care of Children's Eyes.

One of the most important organs in the human body is the eye. Yet parents constantly jeopardize their children's eyesight by allowing them to read or study in insufficient light or light that is harmful to the delicate mechanism of the eye.

Light should always fall over the left shoulder of the reader. By so doing the rays of light follow the line on the printed page, and the vision also following the line from left to right meets with no resistance in the way of light waves, but, on the contrary, is aided in its work chair with the shoulders touching the chair back; then when they do lean forward to write they will instinctively move forward on the seat and retain the erect position of back and shoulders.

This is a most important matter for many persons have had to go through life with a distressing curvature of the spine simply because in early days they have been allowed to sit with bent backs over their books.

Household Hints.

To make an excellent dressing for linoleum take equal parts of linseed oil and cider vinegar and mix them thoroughly together.

A thin paste of fuller's earth and water allowed to remain a couple of days before removal will remove grease spots from floor matting.

To form a good broom holder nail two spools to the wall about two inches apart. Hang the broom upside down between the spools.

Make bags of heavy canton flannel with a drawstring at the top to place over the broom and dust the walls with. Have the fuzzy side out.

LABOR AND DREADNOUGHTS

The English Labor party at its annual conference says that any gift which adds to British expenditure on naval protection is open to criticism. Accepting the Asquith Ministry's statement that the naval defense forces of Britain were sufficient, then the three Canadian Dreadnoughts would be over requirements. Giving the colonies representation on the Imperial Defence Committee was a departure that must be the object of a searching enquiry.

What the English Labor party says is very much what the Canadian Labor party officially says, and not dissimilar to what the Dominion Grange, the Manitoba Grain Growers, the United Farmers of Saskatchewan and Alberta, have to say on the subject. It is strange that the official utterances of organizations like the Labor and Farmers' Associations do not carry more weight. Why is it? Probably because they are manufactured by two or three men, to represent what they suppose are labor views, but which are really their own, and therefore get a prominence far from their due. In the case of the Canadian farmers' organizations, notably the Grange, it is true. Men like Editor Smith, of the Weekly Sun and Gordon Waldron, have a large influence in directing the spoken opinions of the official body, and intelligent people therefore know what estimate to place on them. The English Labor party's opinion is worth just about as much. You might hear similar views from a rank Socialist, such as Briand was before he became Premier of France. But put them in office, under the responsibility of the care of a nation, and they speedily lose their doctrinaire style of looking at things for the practical consideration of things as they are. Every reform must take as a basis for beginning things as they are, and proceed gradually, with consideration of a multitude of conflicting interests. The Labor party in England does not look with any favor upon the idea of Imperialism, upon the closing up of the gaps between the nations of the Empire. It would stop all Imperial progress save that which will bring greater things to the workingman. Yet the existence and growth of the Empire, due to such activities as Canada's gift of three Dreadnoughts, would have been stopped long ago to the great detriment of the British workers, if the short-sighted Laborites had had their way. They claim to be much superior in position to the German workers, but their superiority is due principally to the very Imperial methods which they despise.

FARM'S GREAT SHOWING

According to Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus, of Chicago, one of America's best known pulpit orators, the farmers must solve all the great problems of this continent.

This famous preacher says that every one of the twelve great preachers of Chicago was raised on the farm. All of the great journalists were country bred. Eighty-six of Chicago's 100 leading physicians were raised on the farm and 8? of the 100 biggest corporation lawyers in the same place were raised in the country. Seventy-eight out of the 100 most efficient engineers were farmer's sons.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The editor of the Parliamentary Gazette, London, has compiled statistics which show that Lloyd George is the champion talker of the Commons, having spoken 165,500 words last session of Parliament. Bonar Law is second with 155,000 words, while Premier Asquith is a poor third. Thus is the Chancellor a greater man than his leader and his chief opponent—in his way.

A Kingston clergyman has suggested that correspondents write on both sides of their note paper, and thereby save money. We sincerely hope that our country and other correspondents will refrain from putting the suggestion into practice. The health and happiness of the copyhandler and operators is of much more moment than the price of paper.

One clergyman having accused the women of Boston of dressing outlandishly and outrageously, another comes to their rescue by saying they are the best-dressed and best-looking in the world. Perhaps if the clergymen in question attended to their business of preaching the Gospel and trying to make people lead better lives by pointing out the foolishness of evil ways they would be doing more useful work than at present. Not much is to be gained, barring notoriety, from criticizing feminine apparel. For in dress women will not be dictated to by men even of the pulpit.

The U.S. authorities are after the coffee trust. Probably they have good "grounds" to work on.

MEREDITH AS A CHILD.

When Only Two Years of Age He Had an Air of Superiority.

As is generally the case with an only child, brought up entirely in the society of his elders, George Meredith developed early and always had something of contempt for juveniles of his own age. He was a reserved and acutely sensitive boy, afraid of ghosts and being left alone in the dark, and was perhaps a trifle spoiled by his mother, a refined woman, whose love and care he lost before he reached his sixth birthday. There is still living a gentleman who well remembers George Meredith at the age of two years. This was about 1830-1, and Mr. James Price relates of his visit:

"I went up to the large front drawing room, where I found the boy and a lady who must have been his mother. The boy did not seem to care much about playing with me, and I was rather shy. He brought me his toys and picture books to see, and I was mightily pleased, I remember, with a horse and cart (not like the many cheap ones that I had seen), a beautiful, lifelike white horse, and the cart of superior make, and as George drew it along it made music as the wheels went round. What I remember of the child's appearance is somewhat hazy—a boy in white frock and blue ribbons tied up his sleeves, but he was certainly a pretty child. I spent the afternoon with him, but we did not get on much together, as he assumed a sort of superiority."—Fortnightly Review.

MAKING WATCHES.

Wonderful Feats That Are Performed by Modern Machinery.

The rapidity with which watches are nowadays manufactured has been made possible by the ingenious machinery designed within recent years for the making of all parts of a watch. The speed with which these various parts are turned out is little short of marvelous. Great sheets of brass and steel are cut and rolled into ribbons and punched out into wheels at the rate of 10,000 a day from each punching machine. Workers drill the thirty-one holes in the roof of the watch as fast as they can count.

Brass wire glides into a machine that measures off the length of a part, turns it, puts a screw thread on each end and actually screws it in at the rate of 2,000 a day.

The screws are of such tiny size that fifty gross of them may be put in a woman's thimble, while of others there are a thousand gross to the pound.

Balances are cut from the solid steel, ground down, worked up and drilled with their twenty-five screw holes apiece at the rate of 100 wheels a day from each machine.

Wheels have their teeth cut, a couple of dozen at a time, some with from sixty to eighty teeth, at the rate of 1,200 wheels a day from each machine. —Harper's Weekly.

The Physiotype.

This is an English invention for making pictures by impression of leaves, ferns, lace, feathers and various other objects. It depends upon the chemical action of a fine powder. The object of which a representation is to be made is placed upon white paper and pressed, either by the hand or by other means. When the object is removed no impression is visible on the paper, but upon sprinkling the powder over the paper the picture at once appears, sharply defined, and remains permanent. Sections of wood and designs of coins and medals can thus be represented, and the prints can be transferred to lithographic stone, zinc or aluminium, thus producing records from which any number of copies can be taken.—Chicago Record-Herald.

HOME RULE MEASURE CAST OUT BY THE LORDS

Discussed the Bill For Four Hours, but Result Was Foregone Conclusion—Vote Was 329 to 69—Scene Not Like Occasion When Gladstone's Bill Was Rejected.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—After a four days' discussion the House of Lords last night rejected the home rule bill, 326 to 69. The result was a foregone conclusion.

The speeches aroused little interest because, as the Earl of Halsbury pathetically observed, the position of the House was now that of an ordinary debating club—the peers could express their views and reject the bill, but they could not prevent it from becoming law.

Nevertheless, the largest muster of peers since the fateful evening they passed the Parliament bill assembled in the House and bejewelled peeresses thronged the side galleries.

Lord Lansdowne wound up the debate for the Opposition; Lord Morley of Blackburn for the Government. The scene was altogether lacking in the dramatic excitement which accompanied the Lords' rejection of Mr. Gladstone's bill in 1893 by a far larger majority, 378. The attendance of peers was quite slack until a couple of hours before division, was taken and the speeches failed to infuse new life into the well-worn arguments.

Lord Morley, in closing the debate, remarked the absence of the ferocity which characterized the debates on the Gladstone measures, and, replying to Lord Lansdowne's warning, that the giving of home rule to Ireland would be a menace to England if England ever were involved in serious international trouble, reminded Lord Lansdowne that his own land policy would give Ireland cash or credit to the extent of two hundred millions British money and that Lord Lansdowne would scarcely be likely to do that if he really believed that Ireland was likely to become Engand's enemy.

Lord Curzon of Kedleston in a speech earlier in the evening also referred to the listlessness the public had shown over the bill and to "the deplorable and unutterable flatness of the debates in the House of Commons."

The division was on party lines, practically the whole of the episcopal bench voting against the bill.

LABOR IS WITH WOMEN.

British Union Men Come Out For "Votes For Women."

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The British Labor party yesterday officially declared itself in favor of woman suffrage. By a vote of 860 against 437 a conference of the representatives of most of the trades unions of the United Kingdom, now sitting in London, adopted a resolution instructing the Labor members of Parliament to oppose any franchise bill in which women were not included.

The significance to the woman suffrage movement of this resolution of the workingmen's unions is very great. The trade unions in the United Kingdom comprise between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 members, nearly all of whom are electors, and these would carry enormous weight in case woman suffrage were made a plank in the program of any party at a general election.

YOUNG WIFE WHO SEEKS ALIMONY CHARGES HUSBAND WITH CRUELTY AND ABUSE

TORONTO, Jan 31.—Upon the grounds that her husband, with whom she has lived only a week, was of a "violent and ungovernable temper and had an aggressive and domineering disposition." Mrs. Bertha Reay sued Thomas Reay, a farmer, of Saskatchewan, for an order of alimony. The action was heard by Mr. Justice Sutherland in the Assize Court. Two letters, one written by the wife, and the other by the husband, tell in pitifully dramatic terms, the story of the short, stormy married life.

SAYS SHE WAS A FOOL.

The letter reads:

Thomas Reay,

"I guess you will hardly be surprised at any absence, after the cursing you gave me, but I will be longer away, for I do not intend going back to you again. If I can't live with a man two weeks, what would a life-time be? I don't just know what I intend doing, but I expect to go to the city shortly.

"I will be up some day, when I can get my —— things (as you called them) away, and it will be a long time till I bother you again.

"I was a fool to go to a place where there was more than one, for one can say enough without others making balls for you to fire. You turned on your wife for your own people, (you soon forgot your vows) and you can keep your own and be happy. It will not take me long to forget all the nice things I ever saw of you, for you never treated me any better than a dog. There aren't many men who curse their wife's furniture, especially when they have little themselves. It is plain to see that it was only money you want, but you have lost ten times more than you have given."

The reply signed by Reay reads,

Bertha,—

"I got your letter last Friday, and am sorry to hear of the box you are in. But it is your own fault that you have no home, for you left me, and you know you got no reason to leave.

"You caused me such a lot of trouble and bother—But, I am satisfied to care for my child, and pay the doctor, and would keep you too, after you apologize and publish in the papers that the stuff you said about me was false. When you do, I will take you back, and not before. If not, I intend to put the rest of my days in the West. I am keeping that letter you send me, safely, saying you weren't coming back, with the slander you had in it. It was something dreadful.

THOMAS REAY."

WAS AFRAID OF HIM.

A large number of affidavits are filed, each party blaming the other for the trouble. Mrs. Reay is said to be a "stubborn and haughty woman," who deserted her husband without the shadow of a cause. She retorts by declaring that Reay "began to abuse her" immediately after the marriage, which took place on September 29, 1903, "and ill-treated her terribly, calling her vile names, so that she was in fear of him doing her bodily harm."

It is further claimed by Mrs. Reay that her husband sold his stock and leased his farm, moving west, with the intention of deserting her. She says his property is worth $3,000, and asks alimony on the plea of "curelty and misconduct."

JUDGMENT RESERVED.

"Is there any chance of the parties living together again?" asked his Lordship, after the evidence was all submitted.

Neither counsel thought there was.

His Lordship then suggested that a settlement should be arrived at whereby a separation should take place Mrs. Reay being paid a lump sum for alimony. He suggested $56 as interim alimony up to the time the action was brought. In the meantime judgment is reserved.

The Girl Guides' scheme has for its object making girls useful and self-reliant, the development of character and the educating of girls to be good citizens and patriots.

The motto is "Be Prepared" and they are prepared by discipline and training, to help themselves and others. Their training consists of pursuits on such lines, only as will make the girls more capable in all womanly arts, cultivating their powers of observation, and inculcating healthy habits, cheerfulness and kindness to others, and everything which would make them retain their womanliness, so that they may be good guides to the next generation.

FROM 11 TO 18 YEARS.

The idea is to reach girls from eleven to eighteen years of age, eight of whom form a patrol, one girl over fifteen, being the patrol leader, then three patrols would form a company, under a captain and lieutenant.

Badges may be gained for efficiency in bicycling, needlework, pathfinding in the woods, correct observations of natural phenomena and other branches of work.

MEETING NEXT TUESDAY.

All girls between 11 and 18 years who wish to enroll as Guides are asked to call at the Y. W. C. A., corner of Simcoe and Aylmer streets, Tuesday, Feb. 4th. at 4.15 o'clock, from whence, weather permitting, the Guides will tramp to Nicholls Oval. After organization a program of work and plans will be drawn up and uniforms decided on.

CONVICTION SUSTAINED

Judge Huycke Upolds Judgement of Police Magistrate

Bartender Was Fined For Selling To A Minor

The judgment of Police Magistrate Dumble against Alfred Switzer convicted of selling liquor to a minor, was sustained this morning by His Honor Judge Huycke, to whom the case was appealed. Switzer it will be remembered was convicted and fined $50 by the Police Magistrate a couple of months ago. His solicitor, Mr. G. N Gordon, appealed against the judgment.

TO AMEND ACT.

At the next session of the Ontario Legislature, the License Department will ask that the Act be amended by striking out the word "apparently."

Under the present Act, the bartender who sells liquor to a minor may escape conviction if his evidence convinces the Magistrate that the minor to the judgment of the bartender, was apparently under 21 years of age..

There have been cases here as well as elsewhere, where the Magistrate failed to be convinced, and convicted accordinly, but an appal was followed by a higher court.

THINKS HE IS IN HOSPITAL

Mother of Becker Unaware That He Occupies Death Cell

NEW YORK, JAN. 31 — Chas. Becker, the former police lieutenant who is in the death-house in Sing Sing, hoping that the Court of Appeals will reverse his conviction for the murder of Rosenthal, daily writes an affectionate letter to his ninety-year-old mother, who is still ignorant that her favorite son has been convicted.

Mrs. Becker has been told her son is seriously ill in hospital. She has not been allowed to see a newspaper since his arrest.

GORDON'S BLUNDER.

Grave Tactical Mistake of a Budding English General.

When General Gordon was a lad at school he was as mischievous as most boys. When the boys had done anything wrong they were shut up in a large, barely furnished room and set to write lines from a Latin author.

Gordon was one of the most frequent prisoners in this room, and he used to be annoyed by the boys who were free coming to the door and jeering at him through the keyhole. Resolving to get even, he procured a large syringe, and, taking it with him the next time he went to write lines, he went round to the various desks and sucked up the ink into the syringe.

By and by he heard stealthy footsteps coming down the passage. Nearer and nearer they came and at last halted outside the door. "They are peeping through the keyhole," whispered the future general, and, placing the syringe to the keyhole, he squirted the contents through with all the energy he could muster.

There was a smothered exclamation of disgust, and then some one fumbled with the handle of the door. It opened, and in stalked the head master, his face black with wrath and his once snowy shirt front black with ink. We must draw a veil over the painful scene which followed.—London Globe.

HART'S EASY JOB.

Slept For a Week and Made Enough to Live on For a Year.

To sleep for one's living, says the London Chronicle, may appeal to some as a more attractive alternative than to work for one's living. But the feat has been achieved. In the Daily Courant of Aug. 9, 1711, the following advertisement appears: "Nicholas Hart, who slept last year in St. Bartholomew's hospital, intends to sleep this year at the Cock and Bottle in Little Britain." Some further particulars of this professional somnolist are to be found in the Spectator for Oct. 1 of that year. It appears that Hart was every year seized with a periodical fit of sleeping, which began on Aug. 5 and ended on the 11th. Its various stages are thus described:

"On the 1st of that month he grew dull; on the 2d, appeared drowsy; on the 3d, fell a-yawning; on the 4th, began to nod; on the 5th, dropped asleep; on the 6th, was heard to snore; on the 7th, turned himself in his bed; on the 8th, recovered his former posture; on the 9th, fell a-stretching; on the 10th, about midnight, awaked; on the 11th, in the morning, called for a little small beer." This performance, it is asserted, gained for Hart "enough to support himself for a twelvemonth."

Polished and Vigorous.

Observing a passenger with the unlighted butt of a cigar in his fingers, the street car conductor requested him to put it out.

"It is out, you chump," responded the passenger.

"Pardon me," resumed the conductor. "If I have failed to make myself clear The condition to which I had reference was not one of mere temporary noncombustion, but of elimination, the eradication, I might say, of the physical presence of your nicotine laden remnant, this process followed necessarily by cessation of the odor now permeating an atmosphere already somewhat deficient, I fear, in the essential element of ozone. I'm a humble conductor, and my aim is to please; but, you big porcine stiff, you throw that cigar through the door or I'll throw you and it both. See?"

"Excuse me, professor," replied the passenger meekly, and the incident was closed.—Philadelphia Ledger.

School Houses Deserted.

GUELPH, Jan. 31.—Poor attendance at schools in the county of Wellington is deplored in the reports of Inspectors Galbraith and Craig, presented at yesterday's session of the county council. The reports were similar in nature, and dealt with the number of pupils and teachers throughout the county. Reference was made to the fact that only 60 per cent. of the children of the school age in the county are attending the schools, and regret was expressed at this state of affairs. The blame was placed for the most part on the trustees of the schools, who should see to it that all children of school age attended school.

KINGSTON, Jan. 31.—John Orr, aged 61, formerly a member of the firms of Richmond & Orr, dry goods, retired many years ago is dead. He was born here and lived here all his life.

FOR 600 YEARS

Marvellous Instances of Long Continued Residence.

At the last Revision Court in North Cumberland it was proved that a cottage fifteen miles from Gilsland had been in the continuous occupation of one family generation after generation. for over 600 years! It was further elicited during the evidence that the kitchen fire of this cottage had never been allowed to go out for well over 200 years.

Surely both these things must constitute an actual record of their kind in England! Yet there are other similar long tenancies and continuations of various things amongst us which may well make the world stare at a time that is so prone to new and changing life and environment.

Sir Laurence Gomme, of the London County Council, mentioned at a meeting of the Folklore Society, that he knew a case where the kitchen fire was not only a perpetual one, in so far as it had been kept alight for hundreds of years, but that whenever food was cooked at it, a small part of the food was thrown back into the fire "for luck," the family said. But he believed that, in reality, this custom was but a relic of the fire-worshipping propensities of the older generations of this family.

What shall we say about a noted English family whose boys have attended the same school for nearly 300 years, thus making themselves the record one in England for this splendid fidelity to the old school?

The Fiennes family, whose head is Lord Saye and Sele, have certainly attended Winchester school since the early part of 1600. There was a Fiennes at Winchester about 1620, and there was one at least a year or two back!

It is on record how, when Cromwell's savage troopers pillaged Winchester Cathedral, and did untold damage there, afterwards making their way to the College with intent to do likewise, a Colonel Fiennes, who was Cromwell's friend and officer, stood with drawn sword at the College gates, and defied any soldier to attempt to desecrate the old school whilst he stood there alive to defend it!

The celebrated Chequers Inn, at Slapestones, in Yorkshire, boasts that its fire has never been lacking to warm a traveller for over 130 years, neither day nor night, and that it has been ever ready to receive the coming guest during that time.

The Churchyard family, at Stoke Gabriel, Devonshire, can boast a wonderful tenancy, which must come almost next to that of the Cumberland one already mentioned. The Churchyards entered upon possession of their house at Stoke Gabriel in the fifteenth century, and have never left it since!

Generation after generation of them has succeeded to the house for more than 400 years; and Mr. Frederick Churchyard, the present honored tenant, erected a stained-glass window in the church not long ago as a thank-offering on the 420th anniversary of the family's tenancy there.

Whilst speaking of these splendid tenancies, it may be worth mentioning that Florian's, the celebrated hotel at Venice, has long boasted that its doors have never been closed at all, night or day, for three centuries; whilst the Maison Doree, in Paris, known to be a favorite house to call in the Empire period, can proudly claim that its doors have never been shut since they were first opened, during those great days when the glorious court of Louis XIV. made France the wonder of the civilised world.

Flippant Flings.

The jewelers are talking of adopting a uniform decimal system for the weighing of diamonds. That will be much better for the small consumer than having to buy them by the quart. —New York Tribune.

A French surgeon has successfully replaced a man's stomach with one from an ape. The patient now has a superb digestion, but think what it might have been had he borrowed a goat's stomach!—Denver Times.

Los Angeles has opened a school where girls are to be taught dressing as a fine art. We presume the institution will be coeducational, with a "hook me up" course for prospective husbands.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

When Baby Travels.

There are all sorts of fitted baskets for all sorts of purposes, but the one that most appeals to mothers is dedicated to baby on his travels.

Some of these are wonderfully elaborate affairs in a morocco case, but one within reach of the average income is of wicker, with stout straps and a firm wicker handle, light enough to be easily carried by a maid.

In the basket are a bottle for keeping liquids at an even temperature, two boxes for food, a feeding bottle with special cleansing brushes, a mixing cup, funnel, measuring spoon, napkin, bib, thermometer and a watch warranted to keep baby's meals as accurately on time as if in his own nursery.

SOONER OR LATER.

The World Will Be Forced To Accept The Englishman's Point of View.

"The death penalty is childish, disgraceful, barbarous," declared Frank Harris, English writer of note now in this country on a lecturing tour. Mr. Harris has an opinion on all things—English and American. And his opinions are those of a writer and editor whose personality and views have impressed themselves strongly on contemporary English political and literary criticism.

"I go even further on this line," said Mr. Harris a few days ago. "No one has a right to punish another—all punishment is immoral and idiotic. If you had a pimple on your face, would you punish it? You would say, 'the pimple is a symptom of ill-health. I must try to get my body into good condition.' Meanwhile you would treat the pimple more kindly than the well part of your face. Some day or other, say about the year 2012, civilized people will have abandoned punishment. Fancy hospitals and prisons side by side—two contradictories. Which will you choose, you a Christian? Can any one doubt what the answer will be, must be?

"Why do not some noble American women take over a whole prison, take it into their pity, make a home of it, and reform every one in it. It only needs love enough. You smile. Folly, you say. Well this world is going to be made fit to live in by just such follies.

"I believe society has the right to restrain an individual and segregate its criminals, but not to punish them. But the question really goes far deeper than that. You don't punish deformities or lunatics. Society simply doesn't see that criminals are mental deformities, that's all, but it will one d...

"How comes it that A is born with a craving for drink? A drunken ancestor four generations back who, after the fashion of that day, was vain of his power of carrying four bottles like a man! Should A be punished by society for his forefather's vanity? He deserves pity, not punishment.

"The criminal is the scapegoat of society; he is punished already, poor brute, more than he deserves. He is bearing our penalties."

Reviving Whiskers.

Lord Rocksavage, who has not yet celebrated his thirtieth year, is one of the young exquisites of the day in London. He is a handsome man, well known in the polo field, with a great reputation as a shot. He is always dressed in the height of fashion, for he plays no small part in setting what the young bloods shall wear.

He has lately been endeavoring to introduce the fashion of wearing side whiskers that curl in front of the ears, and some of his own set have followed his lead. Ere long we may find male faces covered with fungus.

He was strolling one warm and sunny winter morning on the terrace of Monte Carlo. From the cut of his grey flannels a pickpocket realized Lord Rocksavage's opulence, and attempted to steal his sovereign purse. But the young nobleman seized in his strong brown hand the pickpocket's grimy paw and, looking at him disgustedly, he said, as he flung it from him: "How dare you put your hand in a gentleman's pocket without washing it first?"

It was whilst serving with the 9th Lancers at Potchestroom that Lord Rocksavage conceived a passion for whiskers. The colonel of the regiment did not approve of this hirsute outburst, and the young peer's brother officers heartily condemned them. But Lord Rocksavage has stuck to his guns, or rather whiskers, and "Peninsulas" are gaining in popularity.

Sex Is a Handicap.

Mrs. Harold Gorst, whose work as a novelist has many appreciative readers, is of opinion that her sex is a business handicap. "If a woman wants to make money by writing," she says, "and has any original ideas as regards subject matter or style, it will pay her better to adopt a man's name and keep her identity concealed."

There is a good deal of truth in Mrs. Gorst's contention, which has been shared by women writers as far back as Miss Evans, universally known as George Eliot. Much later in the history of fiction Olive Schreiner's startling novel, "The Story of an African Farm," came out under the pen-name of Ralph Iron, though the writer's identity leaked out after a year or two. And time was when readers thought Lucas Malet was a man, whereas she is, of course, Mrs. St. Leger Harrison, daughter of the late Charles Kingsley.

Law Purely Chivalrous.

A curious case under the British Workmen's Compensation Act, 1900, came out in Ireland lately. The plaintiff was a cook in the employment of the defendant, and her case was that on April 10, 1912, while she was engaged in the process of filleting fish to be cooked for dinner, a bone entered her hand and caused serious pain and injury. She went immediately to a doctor and got her hand lanced, but, in the course of further treatment, it was found necessary to amputate two fingers. The defence that the injury did not arise out of the employment was not seriously pressed; it was sought rather to prove that the injury did not really result from penetration by the bone, but from other causes. His lordship decided for the plaintiff, who, he declared, had proved her case, and awarded compensation.

Gift to Queen Mary.

Queen Mary has accepted from the trustees of the British Museum a facsimile of the famous illuminated manuscript of Queen Mary's psalter, the original of which, once the property of Queen Mary Tudor was presented to the museum in 1757 by King George II.

Many a man who is screaming for help might help himself.

C.P.R. STAYS OUT.

And Now Her Liners Will Have To Face Rate War.

BERLIN, Jan. 31.—The North Atlantic steamship conference, which began its sittings here Tuesday, ended abruptly yesterday when the Canadian Pacific Railway refused to join the pool. The other members unanimously decided to renew the combination, and there is a prospect of a lively rate war for steerage business from Trieste.

A statement was given out by the conference, declaring that the lines represented failed to reach an agreement with the Canadian Pacific and decided to continue without that company's co-operation.

A representative of the Austro-American Line announced the intention of his company to inaugurate a regular service between Trieste and Canada.

G. McC. L. Brown, London representative of the C.P.R., said last night that the C.P.R. faced the situation cheerfully, and was prepared to meet any rate reduction by the pool. He expressed the opinion, moreover, that low rates would benefit Canada.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucuous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any cause that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Tool Room whitewashed the Machine Shop seven to the tune of 10-0 in a Mercantile league game last night, at the Brock. The ice was in excellent condition and both teams played good brand of hockey, although the Tool Room boys had the better of the argument throughout the game. BOXER WHO DEALT FATAL KNOCKOUT IS ACQUITTED

New York, January 31.—Magistrate Geismar discharged from custody John Smith, bugler on the receiving ship Hancock, at the New York navy Yard, who knocked out Pasquale Deveianna, also known as "Chick Rose," in a boxing exhibition in Brooklyn on Monday night. Rose died without regaining consciousness and Smith was held without bail on a charge of homicide. Dr. Charles A. Phillips, examining physician, of the club where the bout was staged, told the court he had examined both boxers before they entered the ring. He found, he said, that both were in excellent physical condition, and said that in his opinion Rose's death was caused by an accident.

Rose had never appeared in a public boxing exhibition before. Up to the sixth round, when he was knocked out, the bout had been an even one.

NEVER-SLEEPS FAILED TO LIVE UP TO THEIR TITLE

Fell Before Influence of Morpheus and Barbers Won Hockey Match

The "Never-Sleeps" hockey team showed last night that they were wide enough awake to trounce the Barbers, by putting it over them to the tune of 4—0. The game was decidedly amusing in spots and the spectators enjoyed it as heartily as the players. Both teams played a six man game. The defeat was a big surprise to the barbers who went into the fray confident of walking away with the scalps of the campers.

Referee Elrick White was forced to penalize S. Carpenter and H. Allan who showed too much desire to dump each other on the ice.

Campbell in goal for the barbers, saved them from a worse beating than they did suffer, and at rare occasions displayed some of his old City League style. Flannery and E. LeBar were also penalized.

The teams lined up like this:

HIS CONVERSION

And What Stood Between Him and Relapse

By F. A. MITCHEL

When I got tired of work I concluded to tramp. But when a man gits dissatisfied with a hard job and takes an easier one the chances are that he'll soon want an easier one still. The feller that tackles the job he happens to have for all it's worth is the one that is most likely to git an easier one in time, and when he gits it he'll be satisfied with it till he gits an easier one, and he'll be goin' up hill all the time.

I hadn't been trampin' very long before it occurred to me that it would be the easiest thing in the world, when some fool woman was givin' me somep'n to eat, with no man about the house, to make her tell me where she kept her valuables, take 'em and light out. I needn't try it on at houses near together, but separate, so that there wouldn't be any one to call on for help and I'd have a better chance to git away after I'd done the job. Another thing I must keep clear of was houses where there was a telephone, or, if I tackled one of 'em, I must cut the wire before I started in.

The first job of the kind I tried I found dead easy. The men were all away, and the women was skeered to death. They handed over all the money they had in the house ($17) and offered me some jewelry besides. I declined the jewelry 'cause I didn't care to be traced tryin' to convert it into cash. I got away with the money, and I don't believe the losers tried very hard to find me. The amount involved wasn't enough to pay 'em for doin' so.

By choosin' houses that were unprotected and in thinly settled regions and bein' content with small sums I did a very good business and took the least risk possible. The people I robbed considered me their natural enemy and would have taken any revenge on me they could. This kept my conscience, and on the whole I considered my lot far better than that of persons who slave all day at hard work. I roamed at large and had what money I needed for an occasional good time. If the persons I robbed had only kept on hurling their maledictions at me perhaps I'd 'a' got enough by this time to set up in some kind o' business, hiring others to do the work. Strange to say, my run of prosperity was brought to a standstill by the opposite kind o' treatment.

One day after trampin' two or three miles without meetin' a person or a team or comin' to a house I overtook a gal on the road and played the usual game of out o' work, hungry, no home nor nothin'. I asked her if she knew any charitable party thereabouts who would give me a crust of bread. She was the easiest fooled gal I ever tackled. She not only believed all I said, but almost cried over my misfortunes. She said she lived with her old mother around a bend in the road ahead and if I'd go with her she'd give me all I wanted to eat and a little money to help me on to a better condition.

She took me to a spick and span place and set me down before a bright fire, where I could warm myself, for it wasn't in the line o' my business to wear seasonable clothes, and off she goes to git me somep'n to eat. First thing I knew I heered a squawkin' in the chicken house, and, lookin' out through a winder, saw the gal choppin' the head off'n a fat hen. For awhile I couldn't believe that she was fool enough to kill a chicken for me, and I didn't feel sure of it till I heered it sizzlin' on the stove.

All this while I was thinkin' how I'd commence the business I was there for. My usual game was to find out where the money was kept or at least in what part of the house to look for it. Sometimes I did this by roundabout questions, sometimes by observation. If I could learn this before hoistin' the pirate flag it made the job much easier for me. In this case it occurred to me that while the gal was out in the kitchen cookin' a chicken for me that she could sell for 25 cents a pound I might go up the front stairway and take a look into the bureau drawers.

Goin' softly, I turned into a bedroom on the second floor. I opened the top drawer of the bureau and findin' nothin' opened an inlaid box on the mantel. Among a few trinkets and other small articles nestled a roll of bills. I took 'em out, stuffed 'em in my pocket and was turnin' to leave the room when I saw an old lady standin' there lookin' at me. She turned white as a sheet, ran into a room, locked the door, and I heard her raise a sash and call out to her daughter that there was a robber in the house. I ran downstairs, intendin' to light out, but met the gal in the hall. She looked as if she hadn't yet got on to the fact that I was the robber her mother was talkin' about.

"Where is he?" she asked.

"I reckon he went down the back stairs," I said.

If the old woman hadn't recovered from her scare enough to unlock herself and come downstairs I would 'a' said I'd look for him in the back yard and got away in that direction. As soon as she saw me she screamed and, goin' back into her room, locked herself in again. This put the gal on to my true object. She gave me a look of disappointment and reproach that did me more damage than a bullet would 'a' done. Then she said:

"On mother's account I prefer to tell you that all the money there is in the house is in a box on the mantel in the room at the head of the stairs. We have no jewelry of any value, and all the silver we own is in the sideboard. I've prepared a meal for you, for I confess I was moved by your pitiful story and appearance. The meal is on the table for you, and you might as well eat it. I'll go up and get the money for you."

The only reply I made was to put my hand in my pocket, take out the bills and hand 'em to her.

"I've done this kind of a job a great many times," I said, "but this is the first time I've wished I hadn't."

Whether it was what I said or the way I looked I don't know, but that soft heart o' hern thawed again, and she actually seemed to want to make me feel better about it.

"By sayin' that you're sorry," she said, "you have done all you can to atone for your fault. That is all any of us can do when we sin against our Heavenly Father, and I forgive you as I hope to be forgiven myself. Now, come into the dining room and eat a good dinner. I've killed a chicken for you, and I have some cream potatoes and have made you a cup of coffee. I can give you bread and butter and honey for dessert."

I didn't realize it at the time, but it was this treatment that in the end lodged me in jail. The best way to thaw out a cold hearted person is to thaw yourself. There's lots o' criminals that are born wrong, and nobody can't do nothin' with 'em, and they can't do nothin' with themselves. But those of us who have got a spark o decency in us can't stand kindness any more than other people, and unless we've got some criminal blood in our veins we've got to be switched off by it on to the main track.

"If you'll sit down with me," I said to the gal, "I'll do it. Not that it's fit that I should sit with you at table, but I couldn't eat unless you did."

She sat down opposite the coffeepot and poured me a cup of coffee. Then with her own hands she helped me to the chicken, askin' me if I liked white or dark meat. Then she landed some of the cream potatoes on my plate, and when I gave her a wistful look, that meant I wished she'd try to eat somethin' herself, she took a bit o' the chicken and some bread and butter and eat it for my sake.

She didn't give me a lecture when I left her; it was no more necessary than givin' me another dinner and would have gone against me just as much. She just said: "Some day when you are along this way again drop in. The latchstring is always out, and there are more chickens in the roost."

I didn't think I could say anything at fust. I jest looked down at the floor, but before I got out o' hearin' I turned and said:

"I don't know what my next line o' work'll be, but it won't be this one, and it's all owin' to you."

I left her standin' in the front yard lookin' after me, and I kind o' thort her eyes were a bit moist, but the only thing she said was "God help you," and, turnin', went into the house. I reckoned she went up to her mother, who'd been kind o' quiet all the while.

I hunted till I got a job and after I'd been to work awhile concluded to make a visit to the gal who had converted me and report progress. She seemed glad to see me, but she said that her mother had been so frightened at my last appearance that it had made her ill. She said, too, that if I'd allow her to git me up another dinner I'd make her really happy. I saw that she meant it, and, although I wasn't hungry, I let her do it. I'd have eaten shark's teeth to please her.

I went to see her every now and then after that. On one of my visits I found her lookin' unusually happy, and she told me she was engaged to be married. I tried to look pleased and sympathetic and all that, but it was mighty hard.

"You'll come to my weddin', won't you?" she asked, and, seein' she meant it, I promised to go.

I would ruther have been burned at the stake than to go and see her married. I couldn't help showin' that I'd be glad to stay away, but I didn't give her the awful secret I was carryin' about as to why I didn't want to be there. When the day came around I was on hand, sure enough, though it was no use tryin' to look cheerful.

My goin' brought on a crisis that had to come, I suppose, sooner or later. The police were lookin' for me, and at one of my visits to the gal who'd got the upper hand o' me some one I'd previously robbed saw me comin' out o' the house and set the cops on to me, and they watched the place for me. Durin' the weddin' ceremony I felt a hand rest on my shoulder, and I knew what had happened. Without turnin' I whispered, "Don't interrupt the weddin' and let me slide out quiet."

He had the decency to do as I asked, and I stood there lookin' at the bride and groom bein' tied together. It was mighty hard, and if I could 'a' got out without bein' noticed I'd 'a' gone at once with the cop. But the minute the parson said "man and wife" I took the cop's arm—luckily he was in plain clothes—and walked out with him as though he was a particular friend o' mine. I didn't look back neither, fearin' to catch the bride's eye.

I'm payin' the penalty of it all, and I suppose if it hadn't been for one act of kindness when I get out I'd go into the old business. But the gal who did it, though she doesn't belong to me, stands in the way. For her sake, whatever I do, I'll have to be honest.

"You know Brown."

"Yes. In addition to a fur overcoat what other claim to fame has he?"

SCOTT ACT CARRIES WHERE LOCAL OPTION FAILED

A Majority Of Two Hundred Won By The Temperance People — What The Act Means.

LITTLE CURRENT, Jan. 31.—Manitoulin goes dry, as it carries the Canada temperance act to-day by about two hundred majority or more. Several small polls are yet to be heard from, but they cannot turn the present standing. The town of Gore Bay gives a majority of one for, and Little Current 60 against the act. The township of Howland, where local option failed a year ago, went two to one for the act. The township of Bandfield's vote was 38 for and 8 against.

Ideal weather and good roads helped out a large vote. In Little Current especially the vote was much larger than usual at any municipal election, a lot of men returning from the lumber woods to vote. The hotels in this town represent twenty per cent. of the assessment, and are practically new buildings.

The Canada temperance act, better known as the Scott Act, is a Dominion measure dating back to 1878. Since it was passed it has been amended, and is now in the nature of a stringent local option law, applicable to both organized and unorganised territory in provisional judicial districts. Under its provisions votes for abolition of licenses may be taken on compliance with certain formalities, and a simple majority decides the issue. The temperance forces in Manitoulin decided last May to test the sentiment, believing that with the three-fifths handicap under the Provincial local law out of the way they could win. Manitoulin is an island in the Georgian Bay, with Algoma as its northern neighbor and Bruce county as its southern neighbor. It has a population of nearly 9,000.

It is not impossible that the result of the vote in Manitoulin will be followed by similar contests in other parts of Ontario. This will depend on the temperance people in the various sections.

PLACE THE INCINERATER

ALD. GREEN'S SUGGESTION

WELL AWAY FROM THE CITY

Site is Not Yet Decided—Sign-Board Advertising Toronto Firm Must be Removed — Ald. Langford Thinks the City Slow at Advertising—The Powder Magazine

CHANGE IN THE MARKET HOUR?

"Where is the proper place to erect it?" asked Alderman Duncan last night at the Property Committee meeting, in reference to the proposed incinerator for the city. Opinion was rather uncertain, and the matter did not proceed further, as it was considered preferable to leave it stand for a month.

"Wherever it is placed, it should be well away from the city," remarked Ald. Green, as the question was dismissed.

THE MARKET HOUR.

The proposal to change the market hour was not taken up, as it was deemed advisable to let it stand until after April 1st, when it would be decided whether the market would be let by tender again, or have it open. The proposal is to have the hour changed to nine o'clock and market open to all.

Ald Green—"I think it will be as well to let it stand over for a month, to give some of us 'young fellows' a chance to think it over."

THE PUBLIC FIRST.

"I think the general public deserve first consideration, before the merchants or anybody else."

THE SIGN QUESTION.

The communication from the Peterborough Ad. Club in reference to the sign at the C.P.R. bridge was taken up at some length. Ald. Duncan said that Messrs. J. J. Turner and Sons had abused their privilege by erecting a sign without getting permission, referring to the advertisement of Fairweather & Company, of Toronto. There are two small islands in the river beside the bridge. On one of these is a sign advertising J. J. Turner and Sons, and on the adjoining island a sign board with Fairweather Company's advertisement.

Ald. Green—"Mr. Turner should be asked to remove that one."

Ald Langford—"I'd be favorable to allowing Turners the privilege of having their own sign, but requesting them to remove the Fairweather one"

Ald. Duncan—"I don't think Mr. Turner has any right to advertise another city"

Ald Langford—"My idea would be to erect one large sign in that locality that everybody could see."

Ald Green—"I think Messrs. Turner should be advised to take down the Toronto advertisement as soon as possible although I would dislike to have them do anything that would be a hardship."

Ald. Duncan—"We are not hear to let Messrs. J. J. Turner do as they please with city property."

Ald McIntyre—"He should be made remove the Toronto advertisement."

Ald. Green—"Sure."

The Committee did not feel, however, that the local firm should be asked to remove their own sign.

Ald Langford—"I think Peterborough is slow at advertising."

Ald. Duncan—"Yes, it is; there is more advertising done even in Orillia than around here."

Finally it was moved by Ald. Green, seconded by Ald. McIntyre,—"That Messrs. J. J. Turner and Sons be asked to remove the Fairweather sign, and that a member of the firm be asked to attend the next meeting of the Legal Committee, with a view to arranging with the firm to have their sign placed on the smaller island, and a larger sign advertising Peterborough placed on the large island."

The Committee also announced their intention of visiting the locality themselves

POWDER MAGAZINE.

A communication from the Township of North Monaghan was read, asking that steps be taken to have the powder magazine removed from the township, as it was a menace to the safety of the community, owing to the rapid growth taking place in that vicinity.

Ald. Duncan said a couple of people had approached him wanting to buy the lot on which the magazine was built. He favored its removal, and suggested the north-west corner of the Hiliard property as a suitable location.

Ald. Langford thought a powder magazine should be at a certain fixed distance from any other buildings. It was suggested by Ald. Duncan that a new building be put up on the spot proposed by himself, and the users be charged so much for storage there.

Ald. Langford and Green moved,—"That the request of the North Monaghan Council be granted, and that the Committee recommend that a building be erected on some other site."

NEEDED CHANGES.

A resolution was also put through authorizing a suitable wardrobe being constructed for the use of the staff of the City Clerk's office; also one authorizing hardwood flooring being placed in the City Clerk's private office, and renovating the Committee room.

WM. RYDER MUST BID FOND ADIEU TO PETERBORO FRIENDS

Charged With Vagrancy, William Gives Fenelon Falls as His Home and Magistrate Requests Him to Depart.

Back to Fenelon Falls, was the Magisterial dictum in police court to-day, addressed to an elderly and gray-bearded individual who gave his name as William Ryder. His was a charge of vagrancy.

"Have you any home?" inquired the Magistrate.

"Well, I have been living in the village of Fenelon Falls for thirteen years," was his answer, "and stopped off here while on my way to Havelock, and lost what bit of money I had."

BEGGED ON THE STREETS.

Detective Newhall stated that Ryder had been begging around the city for several days and each night was pretty well under the influence of liquor.

"Well he must get out of town and back to Fenelon Falls as fast as possible," was the order, and Ryder departed with a grateful "thank you."

$5 FOR ASSAULT.

Joseph Tobin was accused by James Buckinham with assault and found guilty, thereby earning a $5 fine which he paid forthwith. The two men were raking anchor ice at the Auburn Power House and a scrap arose because Tobin thought Buckingham was not doing his share of work. Tobin was accused of kicking the rake out of his companion's hand, and giving him a shove.

Tobin paid his fine very ungraciously and Buckingham left the court still afraid of Tobin and the consequences which might ensue.

TWO DIE IN DEATH PACT

Husband And Wife Took Paris Green To End Their Lives

OTTAWA, Jan. 31—Special— Cyrille Lapage and his wife are dead here. Both took paris green to-day but as this did not end her sufferings, the husband shot his wife twice in the head with a 32 calibre revolver. She died in the ambulance on the way to a hospital.

Lapage also expired at noon. Undoubtedly they agreed on a death pact for Lapage left a letter reading, "I beg to tell you that I leave $192 for my burial service, because we have no place to live. Cyrille Lapage."

For several months you will find people slow to cheer, unless they have particularly good reason. Cheering without sufficient provocation has lately had a blow.

Every man has a long list of things that should be done that can't be done.

REGENERATE LAND SYSTEM

Such is Foremost Task of Liberalism Says Lloyd-George.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—"The foremost task of Liberalism in the near future is the regeneration of rural life—the emancipation of the land of this country from the paralyzing grip of a fusty, effete and unprofitable system."

David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, made this momentous declaration last night at the annual meeting of the National Liberal Club. The land question has been Mr. Lloyd-George's hobby and the Conservatives have accused him of being ambitious to introduce the Henry George system of taxation in Great Britain. Recently they had been asserting that the Cabinet had sidetracked his scheme, but last night's speech by the Chancellor of the Exchequer indicates that the Government soon will grapple with perhaps the greatest attempt in its extensive program of social reforms.

The unofficial commission Mr. Lloyd-George selected to investigate the relations between landlords and tenants has been bitterly attacked by the Conservative party, which is the party of the country squires, because its probing were in secret. Lloyd-George said in his speech last night that the result achieved by the commission had been startling.

Speaking of the agricultural laborers, the Chancellor said:

"When these reports are published they will prove conclusively that there are hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of men, women and chidren living under conditions with regard to wages, housing and the rest of labor conditions which ought to make this great Empire hang its head with shame. They will prove with unchallengeable facts that this rich country does not provide decent homes for the laborers engaged in an occupation which is vital to our very existence."

Mr. Lloyd-George also denounced what he called the land monopoly of towns.

WOULD BAR T. ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The Senate yesterday defeated every attempt to amend the Works single six-year Presidential term resolution. When a recess was taken last night it appeared certain that a final vote on the proposed constitutional amendment would be reached to-day, and its opponents were mustering all possible strength to defeat it.

As the measure, emerged from the day's fight in the Senate it still provides for one term of six years for the chief executive, and makes ineligible to re-election any person who has in the past held the office by election or by succession.

Progressives and Republicans, who declared themselves friendly to Col. Roosevelt, again led a fight against the entire resolution. The Progressives declared it was against American governmental principles to limit the right of the people to choose a President. Senator Crawford insisted it was aimed at Col. Roosevelt.

DR. BEATTIE NESBITT DIES AFTER LAW FREES HIM

Just an Hour Before Accused Promoter's Death Judge Middleton Quashed Indictments Against Him and Doctor Smiled When He Heard It.

TORONTO, Feb. 1.—Dr. W. Beattie Nesbitt, athlete, physician, politician, company organizer, bank president, mayoralty aspirant, is dead. This man, large physically and mentally, who had had a goody share of ups and downs in life, passed to his reward at 3.30 yesterday afternoon at his home, 71 Grosvenor street. During the last twenty years he was prominently known in Toronto, in fact he was one of the city's most picturesque characters. A complication of diseases combined with worry over the indictment against him in connection with the collapse of the Farmers' Bank, brought about the end. He was 47 years of age.

His death was no surprise. During the past month it was known by his physicians and friends that he would not survive. Six months ago when he was brought back from Chicago, where he had been in hiding from the police for one year, he was in a poor physical state and soon after went into decline.

Until a few minutes before the end he was conscious. At 2.30—one hour prior to his death—his home was called by 'phone by Hartley H. Dewart, his counsel, in the Farmers' Bank case. Mrs. Nesbitt, answering the 'phone, said her husband was low but still conscious.

"Then, tell him," said Mr. Dewart, "that Judge Middleton quashed the indictments against him at 2 o'clock this afternoon."

The dying man was told that he had been freed of the charges which had been hanging over him for more than a year, and by his smile it was quite apparent that he undertood the meaning of the few words spoken to him. One hour later he passed away.

His life was one of excitement, a thing which he sought. From the time he began an arts course in Toronto University his career had been eventful. Many stories are told of the man's activities in college. He was a born leader; he led the college men, and he led politicians and others after he left his alma mater. If ever Toronto had a boss it was Dr. Nesbitt, who, with Richard Armstrong, formed the Young Conservative Association here in the early nineties. This organization practically controlled the destinies of Toronto for a number of years.

Dr. Nesbitt tried a hand at many lines of endeavor. After graduating from Toronto University in 1887 with honors in arts and in the same year an honorary degree in medicine from Trinity College, he established a practice, and went into medical journalism.

In the early nineties he launched into politics. It was at this time that he assumed the leadership of the younger Conservatives. For his party he did a giant's work. He was a fiery orator, with a convincing style, and his audiences were always thrilled by his utterances on political subjects, which he handled in a masterly way. He never tried for political honors until 1901, when he was elected to the Legislature by defeating the late G. F. Marter, who was formerly the Conservative leader, but had turned independent. In 1904 he returned to the House, winning an election from Hugh Blain.

When James P. Whitney was handed the steering wheel of the state, it was expected by not a few that Dr. Nesbitt would be given a Cabinet position. But this he did not receive. In 1906 he resigned his seat to become registrar for West Toronto.

Dr. Nesbitt met his first real defeat when he tried for the position of chief magistrate of Toronto. It was a bitter fight in 1908 which Reginald Geary won. This downfall, it is believed, marked the beginning of a series of misfortunes on the part of the late doctor, the last one being the collapse of the Farmers' Bank.

As a business man he would be classed as a failure. He had one business misadventure after another and when finally he returned from Chicago it was seen that he was a dying man.

PLEADS GUILTY

Riley Composedly Admits Slaying His Wife.

HAMILTON, Feb. 1.—In the police court yesterday morning Thomas Riley pleaded guilty to murdering his wife Thursday night. Only the evidence of Harvey Spratt and Edward Durfey, held as material witnesses, was heard, and they were bound over under $400 bonds to appear at the Assizes. Riley was composed in court, and pleaded guilty without hesitation. He was remanded until next Wednesday. As yet he has made no request for counsel. Mrs. Riley was before her marriage Mabel Yates, and was a sister of Herbert Yates, who with William Hillis, was sentenced to a term in penitentiary for theft. When Hillis broke out the Hamilton jail, the police say, Mrs. Riley sheltered him. The police also say that she sheltered "Foxy" Smith.

BRANTFORD, ONT., Feb. 1.—Brewster's Novelty Store was the scene of a fire here this morning caused by a defective connection in the gas pipe in the furnace room. A bargain sale was on and the place was crowded with people. Seventy five female clerks sought safety on the streets without either hats or coats. Several were half suffocated with smoke. The loss on the stock is twenty-five thousand dollars.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—Mrs. Edward Smith, aged 75, of Alexandra, Man., was rescued from the second storey of a burning Ridout street house yesterday by the firemen, and carried down a ladder. Mrs. Catherine Porter, her daughter, Annabelle, and eight-year-old Thelma Sells succeeded in getting out a rear window on to a roof, and thence to the ground. The fire was at the residence of Mr. H. L. Smith, and the damage $400. The fire was started by a lighted match coming into contact with the bed, which had been saturated with gasoline to kill bed bugs.

EARL GREY TO COME?

May Accept Second Term a Canada's Governor-General.

MONTREAL, Feb. 1.—The Herald yesterday quotes "a prominent official of the Bank of Montreal" as authority for the statement that Earl Grey will return to Canada as Governor-General at the expiration of the term of office of the Duke of Connaught at the end of the year. Earl Grey was Governor-General from 1904 to 1911.

It is rumored here that the earl has been approached informally to see if he viewed the possibility of a second term favorably and it is understood that, while not committing himself, his lordship seemed disposed to approve of the suggestion.

WAR PREPARATIONS ON IN BALKAN COUNTRY

Izzet Pasha Has Been Made Commander-in-Chief of the Turkish Forces and Calls on Troops to Show Themselves Worthy—Turkish Delegates Ordered Home.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The Balkan allies and the Turks are making active preparations to resume hostilities in southeastern Europe.

A news agency despatch, received here yesterday from Constantinople, reported that the Turkish delegates had been ordered home, but the command has not yet been received here. It seems that only the good offices of the powers can avert a further resort to arms, but thus far these apparently have failed.

Even at this late hour each side to the dispute is accusing the other of bluffing. The Turks declare that in their note to the powers Thursday the allies were given greater concessions as a basis for resuming the peace negotiations than they had expected to be made them at the commencement of the conference. The allies practically admit this, but they say what would have been acceptable even a fortnight ago cannot now be entertained, and that the Turkish game obviously is to lead them by the nose for months, counting on the allies' financial exhaustion and hoping that complications will arise to favor Turkey.

Dr. Daneff, head of the Bulgarian delegation, said yesterday that the feelings of the Balkan populations must be considered. Excitement among them, he declared, had reached the highest degree against their "fraudulent treatment" by a handful of Young Turk conspirators, who had attempted to play with the decision of Europe and the honor, prestige and lives of the Balkan peoples.

Izzet Pasha In Command.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 1.—Izzet Pasha, chief of the general staff of the War Office, who, after the resignation of Kiamil Pasha's Cabinet, assumed provisionally the portfolio of Minister of War, has been appointed commander-in-chief of the Turkish forces, in succession to the late Nazim Pasha.

Izzet yesterday addressed a general order to the troops, notifying them of his assumption of command of the army and calling on them in this critical moment of "Ottoman history to show themselves worthy the glorious tradition of their race as true sons of noble ancestors."

AUTOS SPOILING ROAD.

Lincoln County Wants Province to Maintain Famous Highway.

ST. CATHARINES, Feb. 1.—The Lincoln County Council, at present in session, has appointed a deputation to wait upon the Ontario Government asking them to take over and maintain the Queenston and Grimsby stone road, the main thoroughfare for automobiles between Buffalo and Toronto and other eastern parts of Canada and the United States. The county will offer to pay an amount to the province equal to that now expended on the upkeep of the road, which has begun to show signs of deterioration on account of the steadily increasing through auto traffic. The deputation will take the ground that the province may tax auto owners to make up any expense the taking over of the road may entail.

$73,000 FOR THE SCHOOLS; FINANCE COMMITTEE IS SOMEWHAT STAGGERED

The Amount Exceeds That of Last Year by $8,000—Mayor Bradburn Suggests That Amount of Taxation for School Purposes be Shown Separately on the Tax Bill.

The amount of money required by the school trustees for 1913 from the city, is $8,000 in excess of last year. The sum of $73,000 will be needed this year, and the request somewhat staggered the Finance Committee when the communication from the Board of Education was read at the meeting yesterday afternoon. The increase alone represents about one mill of extra taxation added to what the ratepayers are already paying.

"What is the reason of this big increase?" inquired Ald. Johnston.

Ald Buller—"They claim that everything is costing more especially the teaching faculty salaries."

Ald. Johnston—"The only thing for us to do, is to show the people the reason," referring to the heavy outlay demanded.

Mayor Bradburn—"Don't you think it would be wise, gentlemen, to have the tax-bills so made out, that the amount of taxation for school purposes would be separately shown from the taxes for other purposes."

Ald Gillespie—"The way I look upon it, is like this; education is an asset to the city and to the country in general, and the question is, would you or I, if on the school board, contrive to operate its expenses cheaper."

Ald. Johnston—"It is not quite that way; we simply want to place the responsibility where it belongs."

Ald. Anderson—"As long as the people understand it, we are satisfied. I think myself that the big expense is due to salaries. The combined salaries of the Collegiate staff and public school teachers amounts to $46,000."

KING EDWARD SCHOOL

Another communication was received from the Board of Education requesting the committee to recommend a by-law for the issue debentures for $5250, to pay for property purchased by the school board, south of the King Edward school grounds. The property was purchased as reserve land, with the object of not allowing any houses to

NAVAL DEBATE IS RESUMED

OTTAWA, Feb. 1.—The naval debate resumed its place in the attention of the House yesterday with speeches by E. B. Devlin, W. F. Maclean and Dr. Beland. Messrs. Devlin and Beland followed the now traditional Opposition tactics of denying any emergency and arguing for a permanent policy at once. W. F. Maclean vigorously approved the contribution of ships as the bona fide of a national policy to come.

The naval debate was resumed by Mr. Devlin of Wright, who insisted that the memorandum of the British Admiralty meant that the Mother Country desired the self-governing colonies to protect their own shores and to guard the outlying waters of the Empire.

W. F. Maclean (South York) gave unqualified support to the proposals of the Government. He said that he could not consent to the proposition that a referendum should be taken upon the question of national defence. The safety of the nation is its supreme law, and neither the Government nor Parliament could shirk the responsibility to the people. He believed in the referendum for social and economic questions, and believed constitutional machinery should be provided so that the people should be consulted upon questions like parcels post, the drink evil and public ownership of public utilities.

"This policy before the House," Mr. Maclean continued, "is not a temporary policy, and I am not supporting it as a mere makeshift to meet some emergency. It is the beginning of a big permanent policy. It is a confession of our responsibility, a declaration of faith and a first attempt to help in the common naval defence of the Empire. We have begun a permanent policy, although it has not been fully disclosed to us as yet, but we know that Canada is to be represented on the Imperial defence committee and that Britain is to begin at once building ships in Canada."

Mr. Maclean urged his fellow-members to lay aside party differences and to present a united front to all the world. Mr. Maclean said he wanted to see all Canadians abreast on this question and to see Canada, Australia, South Africa, New Zealand and the other seats of the Empire "running like horses of the sun, all abreast."

In closing Mr. Maclean pleaded for unity of action. The people were anxious to see the two political parties get together. The action of the House would in every way be more effective and impressive if it were based upon a unanimous vote.

Dr. Beland, the Liberal member for Beauce, said the members of Parliament had all been running abreast, like the horses of the sun in 1909. It was the Conservatives, in his opinion, who got out of line.

He declared that the Conservative policy meant spending money in England, while the Liberal policy meant spending money in Canada. The Liberal policy was to defend the coasts of Canada, while the Conservative policy was to send ships to the North Sea, where there were so many ships now that they could hardly turn around. Dr. Beland said he favored a Canadian sea power and partly concurred in what had been said on this subject by the member for South York.

It was urged that our navy would be small and weak compared with some of the big navies of the world. If this reasoning was sound then no small nation should ever make any attempt to defend itself. Sweden, Norway and the South American republics showed a better spirit.

"It is said," he concluded, "that those who favor a Canadian navy are separatists. This argument is an extreme and desperate one, and it is an insulting one. I suppose it is levelel at the people of Quebec, than whom there are no more loyal people in the whole British Empire."

The relations of the N.T.R. Commission and the Grand Trunk Pacific were the subject of papers brought down in the House yesterday.

The return has now been tabled and includes correspondence between Mr. E. J. Chamberlin, president of the

ROCKEFELLER BUREAU, WHICH IS TO DEAL WITH VICE AND UNDERWORLD PROBLEM, IS MADE PERMANENT BY ITS FOUNDER

NEW YORK STATE REFORMATORY AT BEDFORD HILLS, N. Y.

STARR J MURPHY

JOHN D ROCKEFELLER, JR.

MISS KATHARINE BEMENT DAVIS

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in the first authorised statement concerning the origin, work and projects of the Bureau of Social Hygiene which he founded, has announced that it would seek to find a method of dealing with the social evil in New York city and to ascertain the conditions responsible for vice.

Thus he and his associates without any show of sensationalism and hysteria address themselves to a world old problem in the spirit of science and humanity. They hope to find a way of dealing with it which will be practical and at the same time command the support of public opinion. To this gigantic task they have invoked the aid of skilled investigators with experience of the laboratory and of sociological experts.

Associated with Mr. Rockefeller are Miss Katherine Bement Davis, superintendent of the New York Reformatory for Women at Bedford Hills, N. Y., who also is to be directress of a laboratory to be erected on grounds adjacent to the State institution, largely at the expense of Mr. Rockefeller; Paul M. Warburg, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.; Starr J. Murphy, a lawyer, who also is a representative of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., all of whom are members of the Bureau of Social Hygiene.

No announcement is given concerning the amount of money which is to be devoted to this enterprise. Emphatic denial has already been made of a report that $10,000,000 would be used for the building of a series of homes for the victims of the white slave traffic throughout the United States.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST
BY GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Company.

Elnora took a large piece of mosquito netting and ran to the swamp. Throwing it over the top of the case, she unlocked the door. She reeled, faint with distress! The living moths that had been confined there in their fluttering to escape the night and the mates they sought not only had wrecked the other specimens of the case, but torn themselves to ribbons on the pins. A third of the rarest moths of the collection were antennaeless, legless, wingless and often headless. Elnora sobbed aloud. "Everything is gone!" she said.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Wherein Mother Love Is Bestowed on Elnora, and She Finds an Assistant.

BUT her mother's love remained. Indeed, in the overflow of the long hardened, pent up heart, Elnora was almost suffocated with tempestuous caresses and generous offerings. Before the day was over she realized that she never had known her mother at all.

For the next few days Elnora worked at mounting the moths her mother had taken. She had to go to the Bird Woman and tell about the disaster, but Mrs. Comstock was allowed to think that Elnora delivered the moths when she made the trip. If she had told her what actually happened, the chances were that Mrs. Comstock again would have taken possession of the Limberlost, hunting there until she replaced all the moths that had been destroyed. But Elnora knew from experience what it meant to collect such a list in pairs. Valiant as she was in any good cause, this time she was compelled to admit that she was defeated. It would require hard work for at least two summers to replace the lost moths. When she left the Bird Woman she went to the president of the Onabasha schools and asked him to do all in his power to secure a room in one of the ward buildings.

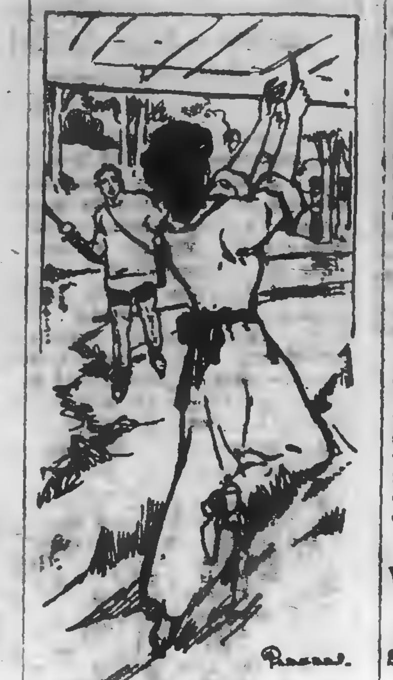
The next morning the last moth was mounted and the housework finished. Elnora said to her mother, "If you don't mind, I believe I will go into the woods pasture beside Sleepy Snake creek and see if I can catch some dragon flies or moths."

"Wait until I get a knife and a pail and I will go along," answered Mrs. Comstock. "The dandelions are plenty tender for greens among the deep grasses, and I might just happen to see something myself. My eyes are pretty sharp."

Near the creek, following it toward the bridge, Mrs. Comstock found a large bed of tender dandelions and stopped to fill her pail.

Elnora remained within calling distance and was having good success. At last she crossed the creek, following it up to a bridge. There she began a careful examination of the under sides of the sleepers and flooring for cocoons. Mrs. Comstock could see her and the creek for several rods above.

Around the bend came a man. He was bareheaded, dressed in a white sweater and waders which reached to his waist. He kept on the bank, only entering the water when necessary. He had a queer basket strapped on his hip, and with a small rod he sent a long line spinning before him down the creek, deftly manipulating with it a little floating object. He was nearer Elnora than her mother, but Mrs. Comstock thought possibly by hurrying she could remain unseen and yet warn the girl that a stranger was coming.



"Possibly I could get that for you," suggested the man.

Elnora was under the bridge, one knee planted in the embankment and a foot braced to support her. Her hair was tousled by wind and bushes, her face flushed, and she lifted her arms above her head, working to loosen a cocoon she had found. The call Mrs. Comstock had intended to utter never found voice. "Possibly I could get that for you," suggested the man.

"Oh, I do hope you can!" answered Elnora. "It's quite a find! It's one of those lovely pale red cocoons described in the books. I suspect it comes from having been in a dark place and screened from the weather."

"Is that so?" cried the man. "Wait a minute. Are you making a collection?"

He reeled in his line, laid his rod across a bush and climbed the embankment to Elnora's side, produced a knife and began the work of whittling a deep groove around the cocoon.

"Yes. I paid my way through the high school in Onabasha with them. Now I am starting a collection which means college."

"Onabasha!" said the man. "That is where I am visiting." He paused to rest, for the bridge flooring was hard lumber, and the task he had set himself not easy. "Possibly you know my people—Dr. Ammon's? The doctor is my uncle. My home is in Chicago. I've been having typhoid fever, something fierce. In the hospital six weeks. Didn't gain strength right, so Uncle Doc sent for me. I am to live out of doors all summer, and exercise until I get in condition again. My name is Philip Ammon. Don't you want help?"

"Have you ever hunted moths, Mr. Ammon?"

"Enough to know the ropes in taking them and to distinguish the commonest ones. I know enough to help you all right."

"Aren't you going north?"

Certainly my condition was desperate, and it resulted from the despondent feelings that swept over me that I would lose my reason. I happened to read about Dr. Hamilton's Pills and bought five boxes from the druggist. Such body-cleansing pills I never used; they were mild and yet quite strong enough to drive all the humors out of the blood. My stomach gained strength rapidly with Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I improved so much that in eight weeks I could eat and digest all ordinary food. Depression and weariness passed away and I am, thanks to Dr. Hamilton's Pills, enjoying robust good health."

Homemade Shoes.

Soft suede makes delightful shoes for the little one, and it is quite a simple matter for a mother, with a little practice, to make them herself and to decorate them with tiny flowers or leaves. The stitching should be done on the machine and the pattern quite simple, so that there will be no unnecessary seams. Slits may be cut round the top through which to run the laces.

Piquant Tongue Rounds.

Take half a pound of tongue for two dozen rounds, two tablespoonfuls of minced capers, one tablespoonful of English mustard and seasoning of cayenne pepper. Cream two heaping tablespoonfuls of butter, add seasoned tongue and rub the mixture to a smooth paste. Cut buttered bread thin and as many unbuttered squares. Spread the plain slices with the tongue cream and put the two together and cut round with a large biscuit cutter.

WHAT A REAL TONIC WILL DO

Strikes the Root of Disease and Gives New Health

If you look in your dictionary you will find the word "tonic" defined as a medicine that increases the strength and vigor of the system." That tells why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a real tonic. Thousands of men and women are ailing to-day, not sick in bed, but without strength and ambition, utterly tired out after a day's work. No one organ seems to be at fault, yet the whole system is lacking in health. They do not sleep well and are always tired and nervous, many have headaches, backaches and stomach trouble. All these people need the tonic help of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The beneficial influence of this medicine reaches the whole system. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do more than relieve the symptoms, they actually remove the cause of the trouble. The case of Mrs. J. H. Sharpe, London, Ont., is one in proof of the above statements. Mrs Sharpe says:—"I was so run down and weak that life was a burden. The least exertion would exhaust me so greatly that I could hardly breathe. If going up stairs, I would have to rest several minutes when I reached the top. My heart would palpitate until I felt as if it would choke me. I was extremely nervous in fact a complete wreck, and would sometimes have to remain in bed for a couple of days or more at a time. I found no help from medicine until I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and my experience with them was that they made a complete cure. I gained in weight and my friends tell me I look younger than I did ten years ago—I know I certainly feel younger. I feel sure that what Dr. Williams Pink Pills have done for me they will do to other women if given a fair chance."

If you are at all unwell do not fail to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and you will find new health and strength. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. 1d1w

Western Tales.

Here are two more or less truthful sidelights on Western Canada — the old and the new west.

Some years ago on a combined passenger-freight train, which was noted for making many stops on its quite short trip, a passenger became much disgusted at the train's lack of speed.

"Say," he said to the conductor, "you have the cow-catcher on the wrong end of this train."

"What are you getting at?" asked the conductor.

"The cow-catcher should be on the back end of the train," answered the passenger. "You see there are a lot of cattle running about loose in this part of the country, and one of these days some of them will run into the back end of your train and dash their brains out."

The other story also concerns a train.

One day recently, 'tis said, a certain conductor noticed that the engineer was going past many little centres of population without stopping.

Calling the brakeman, the conductor said: "I think you had better sit out on the platform for the rest of the run. Take pencil and paper, and jot down the names of all the towns which have sprung up along the line since our trip yesterday."

The Scot, He Gloated.

An Englishman who had been holidaying in the far north paid a visit to the battlefield of Culloden. His driver, a fine old Highlander, acting as guide, pointed out to him everything of interest which tradition or historical fact associated with the fight. "And there," said the guide, pointing with his whip to a field not far off, "lie the English." "Ah. Very interesting," replied the Englishman. "Yes," retorted the Highlander, with something like passion in his voice, "and you will notice that it is Scotch oats that is growing there."

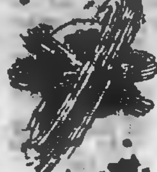
THE DELUGE EFFECT.

February 2.—Genesis 6:9-22; 7:11-24.
"For the Wages of Sin Is Death; But the Gift of God Is Eternal Life, Through Jesus Christ Our Lord."
—Romans 6:23.

SCIENTIFIC Bible students feel justified in laughing at so-called scientists who deny the Bible story of the Deluge. The Bible is corroborated by geology, Astronomy and history. The eldest Babylonian records tell of Noah and his ark. To discredit the Bible, these archaeologists declare the Genesis account to have been merely copied from the Babylonian records. How foolish! There are no ancient records that will compare with our Genesis account. None even profess to give a connected history and a chronological line of 1,656 years from Adam to the Deluge.

Geology distinctly points out that there have been several deluges. It show great beds of sandstone, clay, etc., all of which Science declares are the settlings of great floods. Some of these deposits are hundreds of feet below the present surface.

When we ask, whence came these floods, Astronomy points to Saturn and Jupiter, with their rings and belts. Scientists declare these rings to consist of minerals thrown off as gases when the planets were at white heat. These gases subsequently cooled, forming rings, which are slowly gravitating towards the planets.



The earth.

The ring nearest the planet is held off by firmament or circumambient air. After spreading out as a canopy, each ring gradually thins at the equator and thickens at the poles, where resistance is least. Finally the weight at the poles becomes so great that it breaks through causing a deluge.

The Scriptural statement that, prior to the Deluge, there had been no rain on earth (Genesis 2:15.), confirms our thought. Once the earth had rings. These were precipitated, one after another, at long intervals. Thus our minerals were deposited. God foreknowing the necessity for the Noachian Deluge, so timed His Plan that the last of earth rings was still unbroken at man's creation. It formed a watery canopy, enveloping the earth and held off by the firmament.

There could be no rain under such conditions. Earth's temperature was equable, the sun acting upon the canopy as on the white glass of a hothouse. This accounts for tropical plants found embedded in ice in polar regions.

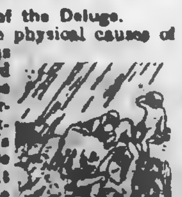
Why the Polar Ice?

Geology testifies to a glacial period, when great icebergs were carried by floods of water from the poles toward the equator. Geologists have traced deep valleys cut by these icebergs, and believe that the earth was once ice-covered.

The collapse of the last ring would not only cause a deluge at both poles, and great tidal waves toward the equator, but sudden and intense cold at the poles. The water froze so rapidly that out of solid ice animals have been dug with grass between their teeth. Then, as now, the sun's rays fell more directly on the equator; but the torrid zone was hotter until trade winds and ocean currents set in, distributing the heat toward the poles. These processes, going on for 4,400 years, are gradually thawing out the polar regions.

Why was not Noah's ark carried off by the swift current toward the equator? Professor George Frederick Wright unwittingly offers a most reasonable answer. He declares that swift current of water, laden with icebergs and boulders, visited various parts of the northern hemisphere, but seemingly avoided Ararat. In that vicinity there are alluvial deposits of great depth.

The Cause of the Deluge.



"All flesh died."

Having seen the physical causes of the Deluge, let us inquire, Why did Divine Providence decree the obliteration of man, except Noah and his family? The Bible answer is clear. At the time of the Deluge, wickedness had greatly increased on the earth. (Genesis 6, 5.) This increase is explained to have come, not merely from human depravity, but by the connivance of some of the angels, who become so enamored of sin that they became disobedient to God. Then by their greater intelligence they led mankind into depths of iniquity.

The Bible cites many instances where angels assumed human bodies. This power to materialize appears to have been possessed by angels before the Deluge. Some of these materialized, and married daughters of men, preferring to live as human beings. St. Jude declares that thus they "left their own habitation," condition as angels, in violation of the Divine Law.

The children born of these angelic "sons of God" by human mothers were human beings of a new order—different from Adam's race. We read that they were giants—mental and physical—"men of renown." These giants tyrannized over humanity, and filled the whole earth with violence. Finally the time came when God's displeasure with conditions should be manifested. Therefore He destroyed both races.

CURVED SLASH in SKIRT HEM MAKES WALKING EASIER

Sapphire Blue, the New Modish Color, Is Used to Trim This Velvet Dress.

WHILE the fashionable woman may like the diversion of keeping up with the latest silhouette which is marked by a skirt tightening about the ankles, even with the best of intentions she finds it impossible to walk in this modish skirt unless the skill of the dressmaker and designer has found some way of introducing lapping skirt edges that are not caught together or of slashing the skirt up from the hem enough to allow freedom to move about easily. By either of these ways the contour of the vase-like figure is preserved, for the edges or slashes fall back in place when the wearer ceases walking.

The latest modification of this sort of slashing is launched by a French actress in the skirt of a quaint suit of black velvet. In this skirt, which is draped slightly, the entire seam parts to form a curve between the two curving fur bands that mount at each side of the front. This gives a curved slash in front that makes walking easy, yet does not detract from the style of the gown. The jacket, draped and following the same movement as the folds, is skunk fur edged, with matching collar and cuff bands; it fastens with a single jet button and velvet loop and end, and a more fanciful jet button ornament fastens the top of the curved edge above the skirt slash. On the small jetted round net hat, the jet beads that are sewn to the crown on the net are tiny, those on the brim are large, circular and flat. A fold of velvet, crossed by a narrow jet slide, is the base of two black aigrettes poised uprightly on the brim. With the strapped black velvet shoes and the accompanying skunk fur muff, the picturesque qualities are as marked as the style note.

The new ratine embroidery that looks just like heavy French knots closely placed together done in light blue and gold on navy blue satin vest gives an exotic air to the navy blue velvet tailored afternoon suit shown here in photograph. Black fox fur borders the vest and neck, the wide cuffs and the matching velvet muff. The skirt folds about the figure in simple fashion, crossing in front in the accepted movement, but without the usual accompanying drapery, though its corners round off as in the draped skirts. The coat is built in two parts, a bolero effect outlining the vest. Below there is the traditional cut away movement, with a slightly puffed back panel. The outline of the cutaway or tunic, whichever it may be called, in the lower part of the coat could be made with the skirt and is stitched in the heavy, light blue silk of the embroidery.

One of the white plush hats that are so effective when something else white is worn, in this case the pearl beads, has an uncurled feather posed at the back.

The flat mechanical pleats of the season have not been ousted by drapery, in spite of the latter's popularity, and the new Russian blouse effects are used in combination with them as in one of the Paris designs here shown. Braid over bound edges gives a smart finish to the hem and cuffs of the blue velvet blouse, and the crisp touches of white net at neck and wrists are in keeping with the simplicity of the frock. A narrower braid than that used for binding makes a novel ornamentation in the space where the blue satin skirt pleats meet. These pleats turn toward the front and in the space. These braids make loops with twisted ends that fasten through buttons like those used on the cuffs. A small velvet hat, feather wreathed, is worn with this costume.

Lace Collars on Evening Gowns.

A slight deviation from the accepted fashion of filmy tops to evening dresses is to be seen in the evening gown with the circular lace collar. This is posed over black net that is lined only with pink chiffon; the net drapes down over the arms. The velvet skirt is in two parts, an over tunic that is draped up in front and back and an under trained section. The tunic mounts, bib fashion, onto the soft semi-transparent top.

Fastened by an ivory disk, on which a carved elephant makes the centre, a beautiful wrap of chamursee silk of East Indian pattern winds in enveloping folds about the figure. The sleeves show the new attachment, somewhat on the raglan order, accented by a heavy corded piping, the neck and sleeves are bordered with black fox fur and the black is repeated in the deep band of black velvet that hems unevenly the wrap. An odd black satin turban is worn with this wrap; a buckle catches a white paradise ornament in front.

Attractive Headdress.

Like a small toque without a crown and holding two contrasting ornaments, one a white aigrette, the other a black paradise ornament, a wide band of velvet folds about the head and makes a lovely hair decoration to wear with a velvet evening dress. Another headdress resembling this, a wide band shaped like it, but sparkling with overlapping tiny jet sequins, has two paradise ornaments erect in front, curving over toward the back, and a single thickness of net over the crown is puffed out with artistic carelessness.

The transition of the pose of the hat from the back to the front of the head is becoming more evident to the chronicler of fashion each day. It is a welcome change from the caplike hats that have been worn pulled down over and covering the hair. Though artistic from a front view, because they framed the face, they left much to be desired from a back view, for short necked women looked as if they had no neck at all. The new style shows the curve of the head and neck at the back, one of the prettiest of feminine lines of beauty.

Among other accessories of the Louis XV. and Louis XVI. revived styles, the coiffures fashionable during both reigns—those worn by Mmes. du Pompadour and du Barry and also by Marie Antoinette—are to be noted here and there, modernized to be sure, but preserving that peculiar chic that lent itself so readily to idealization in the portraits of these fair women. They go, too, with the tiltited hat, and a most picturesque model has been brought out by a Parisian milliner of world wide fame destined to be worn with these picturesque coiffures—a little saucer of a hat, with a tiny crown and rolling brim, careening like a cockleshell on the waved and bouffant tresses, just as is pictured in some of the portraits of Marie Antoinette or worn by pretty girls immortalized by the artist Greuze.

With the prevailing custom of wearing low shoes throughout the winter has come the light topped gaiter for days when a low shoe would be folly and bad taste. They have very much the same effect as the contrasting topped high shoe, especially if the strap that goes under the instep is dark like the shoe. Low shoes with the strappings across the instep, in patent leather, velvet and satin, are having a considerable vogue, and are especially appropriate with the afternoon gowns and evening gowns.

Elaborate Evening Shoes.

Rhinestone, silver and gold buckles in the centre of each strap add to the decorative effect of these shoes, and for those whose ankles require more support than the low slipper they solve a serious style problem. Evening shoes of plain or striped corded satin and those made of the various metal gauzes are of an elaborate elegance that has not been seen for years. The brilliant rhinestone buckles with which they are trimmed and the often contrasting heel of dangerous but seductive height make this detail of the ensemble not the least alluring part of it.

TWO English winter brides have been married in robes of gold colored brocade, one because it harmonized in color with her beautiful ancient Brussels lace veil and shawl that had become coffee colored with age, the other because it matched the elaborate style of the gown, which was designed in Venetian style. Swathed about the figure and finishing in a straight line across the front under the arms, this gown showed plain shoulder straps of the brocade crossing the square necked guimpe that formed a border above. From the elbow down the long, tight sleeve was fastened with a sories of lovers' knots of seed pearls. Crowning the plain tulle veil the bride wore a laurel wreath, the orange blossoms regulated to the square court train edging the white satin lining.

The wearer of the gold brocade gown that matched the veil showed a plain skirt and a raised waist line; above this the shawl was draped surplice in front, folded softly into a brocade belt that rose to the point of the V'd decolletage. At the back the shawl collar fell deep and round. A wreath of gold myrtle held the puffed cap made by the lace veil.

In contrast to this, two French brides were gowned, one in white point d'esprit with a white chiffon velvet over-drapery, that, continuing, made the square train, the other in the new white satin ondoyant with a brocaded draped overdress. In the former the satin draped like a Roman toga about the figure, falling on the back from the shoulder only; in the other the train of the satin fell Watteau like from between the shoulders. One Guimpe was a round, high neck, the other with an unlined guimpe and stock of tulle. Both had long sleeves and kerchief tops of lace.

An Alencon lace veil was worn by the bride of the satin ondoyant gown, and a novelty was the tulle veil worn by the other, draped from a bandeau of orange blossoms posed on velvet, the veil not covering the top of the head.

So it is seen that the tendency of the English gowns is toward long simple lines and elegance of material and color, and the French fashion shows draperies of contrasting materials.

Bolero Tops Added to Children's Frocks.

JANUARY is a month in which many mothers replenish the children's wardrobe. Little dresses that one can make in advance for the summer are selected from the sales in the shops or made up by the seamstress or dressmaker, who works at reduced rates in this month, of which the mother of a large family usually takes advantage.

When the dress is bought at a sale in the shop a little retouching will change it so that the ready made look vanishes, or the unbecoming detail that prevented its sale in the season can be deftly removed and a modernizing touch added by even a tyro in dressmaking skill.

A few hints to such mothers taken from some little French dresses may be a help in such arrangements. It is a known fact that children who are dressed with taste when little always keep well dressed later in life, for forming a taste for dress is very like forming the character. Some of the prettiest of the little girls' frocks seem to be made in one piece, and over this plain or accordion pleated dress a little closed bolero of another color of material is placed to a high waist line depth, so it gives somewhat the effect of a waist and skirt without tightening any part of the child's figure. In one frock made on this order the pleated slip and sleeves were made of dark blue voile, the overwaist of Egyptian red velvet, cut straight across at the waist line, apparently slipped over the head, the short oversleeves giving a drop shoulder seam effect to the undersleeve. Braided revers bias bands pass over each shoulder and divide the width of the bolero. Two big buttons fasten each side of the panel formed by this over-shoulder seam to the under arm portion.

In another frock the little taffeta closed bolero slips on over the cloth foundation dress; the lower edge is gathered in a few inches from the edge, making a tiny ruffle beyond. At the back a bow with ends is fastened, sashlike. Little squares of the taffeta make a border round the skirt, embroidered and festooned together by braid. A little yoke that shows above the bolero is decorated in the same manner.

Breakfast Caps.

Point d'esprit makes the latest breakfast caps that are shaped like the various peasant caps of Europe. The ruffle about the face is more often of the material, hemmed and accordion pleated, than the gathered flounce, and the cap itself is often laid in tiny pleats. Ribbons are very fanciful on these caps, striped, flowered and fashioned in odd knots and loops. For instance, the ruffle about the face will be caught up in the centre of the front by two loops of striped dark blue and white ribbon placed flatly on the top of the head. Again, it will wreath the crown and, forming one large loop at the side, fall in two long ends over one ear, sweeping the shoulder. In a hood shaped cap the ruffle shows only at the back

THAT ISLAND BILLBOARD

The civic authorities in many cities are moving against the ugly bill board, yet the City of Peterborough permits bill boards for outsiders to remain on what should be a civic beauty spot—the island near the C.P.R. bridge. The local Ad Club deserves credit for calling attention to this matter. It should go further and advocate the planting of flowers and shrubs on this spot, and illuminating of it at night with one of Turner's electric signs.

THE GRAIN GROWER'S BLUFF

The Manitoba Grain Growers' Association sent a copy of a resolution affirming that the Western Canadian farmers did not want to see Britain put a duty of foreign wheat for the sake of giving the Dominions a preference. They asserted that they would very much rather deny themselves any added profits or advantages through such a move, than run the risk of making food dearer to the British workingmen. They were unalterably opposed to the food taxes business, even though they would be the greatest beneficiaries from any such scheme.

Premier Asquith used their memorandum in one of his political speeches. It was certainly a bold and successful stroke of political policy by the Manitoba Grain Growers, for anyone acquainted with the working of the organization knows perfectly well that it is more political than vocational. But the Grain Growers came a little bit late with their memorandum. Before it came to the public, the Unionist leaders and principal adherents had talked over the preference on wheat, and decided to leave it over in any event to a second general election. After the Unionists would be in power for a while, and had a chance to consult the Dominions officially about a scheme for welding together the various parts of the Empire commercially, they would be in a position to judge what could be done in advancing the imperial preference which is their main political creed.

The wishes of the Manitoba Grain Growers will tend to make the matter of imperial preference still more one for the voluntary action of Britain, as it should always be, in any case. Britain alone, and unencouraged by any of the Dominions, must decide on what preference she will give to the Dominions. The Grain Growers did not harm themselves by their message, but played to the gallery with a fine show of disinterestedness.

A FINANCIAL OLIGARCHY

On several occasions the Review has referred to the fact that in Toronto and Montreal there are groups of financiers so powerful, and so directly interlocking the big railway corporations, the banks, and the larger industrial concerns, that they virtually constitute a money trust. Very few newspapers have had much to say about this, because they have probably not realised the real extent to which the interlocking directorship business may concentrate the financial control of the country. But Hon. H. R. Emmerson, former Minister of Railways in the Laurier Cabinet, made a speech in the House of Commons that is rather notable. He said that Canada's money trust consisted chiefly of 23 men, and that in the hands of 50 men lay the control of most big Canadian business. He says that twenty men practically control Canadian transportation, financial and industrial institutions. The Toronto Telegram publishes a list of about twenty men, with the names of the companies in which they hold offices or directorships. A summary of that list is very interesting: Senator Cox, 28 companies; W. D. Matthews, 17 companies; Frederick Nicholls, 20 emopanies; Senator Robert Mackay, 16; R. B. Angus, 6; Sir Henry Pellatt, 24; Sir William Mackenzie 15, Sir William Van Horne, 20; Sir E. B. Osler, 14; Z. A. Lash, K.C., 12; Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, 4; Sir Donald Mann, 2; Lord Strathcona, 8; C. R. Hosmer, 20; Sir Rudolphe Forget, 14; Sir H. M. Molson, 8; D. B. Hanna, 10; E. B. Greenshields, 5; Sir Hugh Allan, 19.

Now it cannot be said that Canada has suffered materially from such concentration of power yet. It has developed more than would have been the case otherwise. But the creating of a financial oligarchy in so young a country as Canada, a country of such immense natural resources, is not for the ultimate good of the people. The centralization of money power is being fought in the United States with much vigor, yet it is something seemingly impossible to control. The over-capitalization of the great corporations, and their demands for dividends upon the over-capitalization, is one of the real causes of the increased cost of living. We are existing in an era of high finance, and though the workers have received some benefits, in the shape of higher standards of living, and more opportunities, yet the great benefit, or increment, is going to these captains of the financial fleet.

HAD A VERY SUCCESSFUL YEAR

The summary of the annual report of the North American Life Insurance Co., which appears on page 5, shows that the company had a very successful year.

In point of amount of new business issued, 1912 easily ranks first in the Company's long history of thirty-two years. New policies amounted to $7,630,336, an increase of $1,500,910 over those for 1911. The volume of policies on the Company's books now runs close to $50,000,000. During the year $422,000 was paid to beneficiaries of deceased policyholders, bringing up the total death claim payments since organization to the large sum of $4,969,220.

In the matter of profits to policyholders, payments made by the Company during the year is stated to compare favorably with those made by many of the other companies operating in Canada. The amount thus disbursed during the year 1912 was $166,000. This shows the management is in strong hands, and, as the President, Mr. Edward Gurney, pointed out at the annual meeting held in Toronto on Thursday, Jan. 30th, the affairs of the Company are in a flourishing condition.

R. J. Kidd, Charlotte street, is the Peterborough representative of the Company.

STEEL CITY PLANNED.

Incorporation Sought For U. S. Trust's Place Near Sandwich.

WINDSOR, Feb. 1.—Early activity on the part of the U. S. Steel Corporation in building its Canadian plant below Sandwich is indicated by the fact that steps are now being taken to incorporate the new city which is to spring up on the Canadian river front.

Application for incorporation of the promised steel city as a separate municipality has already been made to the Ontario Legislature. In compliance with the requirements of the law, the first publication of application appears in The Ontario Gazette this week, and the bill sought by the Steel Corporation will come before the Legislature in Toronto during the session which opens this month.

The property named in the application is the tract of about 2,500 acres owned by the Steel Corporation, beginning at the westerly limits of the town of Sandwich and extending two miles along the river front. The name of the new city is yet to be selected.

Government by commission is the system sought in the bill which will be brought before the Legislature. The proposal is that the administration of municipal affairs be placed in the hands of three commissioners.

CHARGES TRIFLING.

Another Day Taken Up With Guelph Police Chief Enquiry.

GUELPH, Feb. 1.—The investigation into charges against Chief of Police Randall was resumed before Judge Jamieson in the council chamber yesterday, when the particulars of six charges were laid on the table. Three of the charges were dealt with, a number of witnesses being examined. The charges were of a very trifling character, and on the surface of things they appear to be the result of personal animus.

The evidence yesterday did not in the least affect the honesty of the chief, and his many friends in the city are confident he will come out of the investigation with colors flying.

The investigation will be resumed to-day and may be concluded before night.

TIMELY WORDS OF COUNSEL IN THE INTEREST OF PETERBOROUGH BOYS

Written by Mr. Nash, Boy's Work Secretary Y.M.C.A.

Feel Kindly.—You cannot always be in the best of health and there will be times when you think someone has acted wrongly, and yet away down deep in your heart should dwell a kindly feeling, even towards the evil doer. A feeling of revenge can only bring disaster, and an unforgiving spirit will cause your ruin. Feel kindly. Jealousy leads to disgrace and the I-am-better than you feeling breeds contempt. Feel kindly if you would enjoy your home, and feel kindly if you would have others enjoy it with you. Make yourself feel kindly.

"They are such dear familiar feet that go
Along the path with ours — feet fast or slow
But trying to keep pace; if they mistake
Or tread upon some flower that we would take
Upon our breast, or bruise some reed,
Or crush perhaps until it bleed,
We must be mute,
Not turning quickly to impute
Grave fault; for they and we
Have such a little way to go, can be Together such a little while upon the way—
We must be patient while we may,

"So many little faults we find;
We see them, for not blind
Is love. We see them, but if you and I
Perhaps remember them some by and by
They will not be
Faults then, grave faults, to you and me
But just odd ways, mistakes, or even less—
Remembrance to bless.
Days change so many things, yea hours;
We see so differently in sun and showers,
Mistaken words to-night
May be so cherished by to-morrow's light—
We will be patient for, we know
There's such a little way to go."

CONVENTION OF SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Round Table Conferences, Addresses and Election of Officers

The annual convention of Smith township Sunday schools was held in the Methodist Church, Bridgenorth, on Tuesday afternoon and evening.

Mr. Richard Lees of Peterborough was present at the afternoon session and conducted a round table conference. The evening session was opened with devotional exercises conducted by Rev. Mr. Ireland, pastor of Bridgenorth Methodist church The election of officers was also held.

The convention adjourned to meet next year in Gilmour Memorial church.

When about one mile from Bridgenorth, the whiffle tree on one bus containing a load of young people going to the convention broke and the occupants had to walk the remainder of the distance.

NEW BRIDGE AT THE NARROWS

Victoria Council Will Proceed With the Work

The Victoria County Council has decided to proceed with the construction of Mud Lake Narrows bridge. The structure will be on cement piers, having a reinforced steel cement top with steel railing.

NEEDY CHURCHES

The offering taken at the communion service in the Murray street church on Sunday morning will be devoted to the work of the Church Edifice Board of Ontario and Quebec Convention. This society assists churches in new places in the erection of their first buildings, and each church in the Convention is asked for for one communion offering each year toward its funds. Doubtless the offering of the Murray street people will be worthy of this deserving cause.

STREET CAR ETIQUETTE

A woman should get on a car ahead of a man, but when they leave it the man should descend first and be ready to give the woman his hand to help her to the ground. If the car is crowded and another man rises to give a seat to the woman escorted by a man the latter should lift his hat in recognition of the courtesy. If a woman is alone she should acknowledge the offer of a seat with a bow and a word of thanks. The man who is escorting a woman pays her fare, but should they meet by chance it is not etiquette for him to do so.

Candor and Manners.

Pitt was once canvassing for himself when he came to a blacksmith's shop. "Sir," said he to the blacksmith, "will you favor me with your vote?" "Mr. Pitt," said the son of Vulcan, "I admire your head, but hang your heart." "Mr. Blacksmith," said Pitt, "I admire your candor, but hang your manners."

North American Life Solid Continent

THE thirty-two years of North American Life history have been years of uninterrupted growth. But in 1912 more substantial gains than ever were registered all along the line. WHOLE COUNCIL TO DEAL WITH QUESTION OF INCREASE FOR FIRE CHIEF AND OTHERS

F. W. and L. Committee Recommend That Sub-Station be Built in South End of the City.

Chief Howard's request for a $300 increase in salary was referred to the Committee of the Whole Council, at the meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee last night. It will be considered along with several other requests for salary increases. This action was in accordance with the resolution brought in at the Finance Committee meeting in the afternoon, when Relief Officer Miller's request for more remuneration came up. The matter of increases for the firemen will also be dealt with at that meeting.

Ald. Green thought that the application of Chief Howard should be dealt with by the Fire, Water and Light Committee, instead of postponing it to the Committee of the Whole Council.

HIS EXTRA WORK.

Ald. Buller referred to the extra duties imposed upon Chief Howard as superintendent of the fire alarm system in the south end of the city.

"As long as Chief Howard carries himself right, befitting the head of the fire department, I am ready to support him in an increase of salary," said Ald. Buller.

Mayor Bradburn—"I am of the opinion that its up to the Council this year to grant an increase to the Chief, but just how much I am not prepared to say. As long as the Chief is conducting that department as he is to-day, he is a valuable servant of the city. The fact that there are few fires in the city is an indication that he is looking after fire preventitive measures."

Ald Anderson also felt satisfied Fire Chief Howard was entitled to an increase of salary, although he hardly felt prepared to make it $1,500 per annum. Ald. Duffus agreed with the idea that he was entitled to an increase.

"There is no doubt he is the right man in the right place," he added.

Ald. Buller said that a look at progressive cities the size of Peterborough would show that fire-chiefs all received larger salaries than Chief Howard. Ald. Duffus gave Chief Howard credit for visiting many buildings and schools that previously had been neglected more or less.

"It doesn't pay to have a man with the responsibility that is resting upon Chief Howard, dissatisfied," said Ald Green.

A petition for a couple of incandescent lights on Benson and Aberdeen Avenue; a request for a light at Charles and Maria streets, and a third petition, largely signed, for an arc light at the corner of Aylmer and Wolfe, were all left in abeyance. It was pointed out that the city would not be justified in going ahead and putting up lights when the probability was that Hydro-Electric lighting would shortly be installed. In consideration of that no action was taken with any of the requests for lights.

CHEMICAL ENGINE.

Ald. Buller brought up the advisability of purchasing a chemical engine for the fire department. His suggestion led up to the question of building a sub-fire station for the protection of south end property, which the committee have had in mind for some time.

"I think it a wise plan to go ahead with a sub-station," said Ald. Buller, "and also the acquisition of a motor chemical engine.

"There is no doubt we have been very fortunate," said the Mayor, "as far as serious fires are concerned, but it is of no use looking the stable door after the horse is out. I think there should be protection for the industries in that section. Ald. Duffus also thought the time was opportune to take the sub-station matter in hand. Ald. Green agreed with the suggestion, as "all the people are crowding down that way," he added.

It was estimated that a motor chemical engine would cost nearly $10,000. The beauty of such an engine is that it does not cause nearly so much damage as water to stock and buildings.

Ald Duffus moved,—"That this Committee recommend the erection of a sub-station in the south end of the city."—Carried.

Ald. Buller moved,—"That the chairman and Fire Chief Howard investigate sites suitable for a sub-station."—Carried.

Good Form

New Year's Party.

Invitations in the following form were sent out for what proved to be a specially pleasant little gathering of married couples:

"Mr. and Mrs. Cuthbert Smith request the pleasure of Mr. and Mrs. James Whiteing's company at a New Year's party to meet Father Time, on New Year's eve, at 9 o'clock."

Arriving guests at the hour appointed were received not by their genial host, but by Father Time in flowing robes, wig, beard (and holding the traditional scythe imitation), whom the hostess presented to each in turn.

Time did not remain to the close of the entertainment, but he stayed long enough upon the scene to get the fun of the little sociable into swing by devising some amusing contests.

For one of these a mysterious looking box, labeled "The Ages," was passed, from which each in turn drew a slip marked with a certain date, as A. D. 1492, A. D. 1066, B. C. 55, A. D. 1815, and so on. When all had drawn Father Time called upon the players to say what event occurred on the date drawn. If successful in naming it he or she retained the slip. If not the little paper was returned to the box This latter was passed again and again until no more slips remained. The person with most slips to his credit received a prettily bound diary for the coming year.

Father Time also posed for his portrait (a pencil sketch), pads and pencils being distributed for the purpose to all. He awarded a calendar as a prize for the cleverest likeness.

Funny, too, were the resolutions for New Year which they were requested to formulate mentally and to write out in rime. The absurd jingles were read aloud by the master of ceremonies, and a prize consisting of a book of nonsense verse was presented to the competitor adjudged most successful.

In another round pencils and paper were retained, and ten letters of the alphabet were read aloud. Ten minutes were allotted in which to write out a New Year's resolution of ten words, each word beginning with one of the letters given. The characters, it was understood, might be used either in or out of the order in which they were named. The player whose message was accounted cleverest won a prize.

Each guest later on was blindfolded and led, so bandaged, to a large book, a dictionary in this case, which he was asked to open at random. The first word on the page turned up, it was understood, would have some mystic bearing upon the fate of the subject during the coming year.

At the conclusion of the games Father Time disappeared and mine host entered, full of apologies for his tardiness, but nevertheless in time to take the guest of honor out to supper.

BALLOTS CAST BY PARALYTIC AND INVALIDS

Derry Election Will Live in Annals of Hard Fights.

LONDONDERRY, Feb. 1.—Both sides left absolutely nothing in Thursday's bye-election. The result is seen in the record vote polled, despite a drenching rain, which fell all day. The result was:

Hogg (Nat.)	2,699
Pakenham (Un.)	2,642
Nationalist majority	57

The result makes the Parliamentary representation in Ulster: Unionist 16, Nationalist 17.

Nationalist committee rooms were converted into schools for voters, and the presiding officer who conducted a test to which all doubtful electors subjected, was in almost every case a Catholic priest. Any man who could not pass the test was told he must vote as an illiterate.

There was one paralytic voter who could not even pronounce the name Col. Pakenham, but by repeating the first syllable he gave the presiding officer to understand for whom he wished to vote. Three confirmed invalids, bedridden since the election of December, 1910, voted Unionist. Corpl. Stewart, of the Royal Scots Fusiliers, who was invalided out of the regiment when it was in Derry last year, and has since become stone blind, also traveled from Edinburgh. Immediately after the voting he returned to Edinburgh to enter the Royal Infirmary, to undergo a delicate operation, which, if successful, may restore his sight.

Gideon Wilson, who had intended to vote for Col. Pakenham, dropped dead in his house while a motorcar was waiting outside to convey him to the polls. He rose to greet the electioneers. "I am ready for you," he said. Next moment he collapsed and died instantly.

Tripe.

Tripe, says a London paper, is a dish for the gourmet, cooked in a pipkin, as they do it in France, with a delectable brown sauce. And yet this excellent and delicate food has fallen into disrepute with us. Where now are those "tripe and trotter" shops that used to be quite common in London twenty years ago? And we have turned the word to the purpose of scornful slang. We say that a silly book is "tripe" or that a man talks "tripe." It is a deadly condemnation. As to cheese and onions, one thinks of Shakespeare's "cheese and garlic in a windmill!" and shudders. But add tripe to the cheese and onions and you have a really worthy dish. It all depends on the cook.

TORTURED FROM BABYHOOD

"Fruit-a-tives" Cures Constipation

MISS E. A. GOODALL

EDMONTON, ALTA., Nov. 20th. 1911

"I have been a sufferer since babyhood from that terrible complaint, Constipation. I have been treated by physicans, and have taken every medicine I heard of, but without the slightest benefit. I finally concluded that there was no remedy in the world that could cure Constipation.

About this time, I heard about "Fruit-a-tives" and decided to try them. The effect was marvellous.

The first box gave me great relief, and after I had used a few boxes, I found that I was entirely well.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine that ever did me any good and I want to say to all who suffer as I did—"Try this fruit medicine and you will find—as I did—a perfect cure"

(MISS) E. A. GOODALL

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit and the only one that will positively and completely cure you of Constipation.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

FOR FAMILY USE

An Ideal Remedy for Coughs, Sore Throat, Catarrh, Weak Chest.

After having made a special study of the treatment of the throat and lungs for twenty years, Prof. D. Jackson states that in his opinion no preparation for general family use is so efficient, so healing, so certain to cure as Catarrhozone.

As his reasons for making this claim for Catarrhozone, Dr. Jackson says:

"Catarrhozone is free from opium.

"The patient can breathe its rich, balsamic fumes direct to the diseased spot.

"It is a remedy that treats and cures causes—prevents disease spreading.

"Alleviates chest soreness.

"Stops coughing instantly.

"Prevents bronchial irritations.

"Relieves clogged nostrils.

"Cures sniffles and nasal catarrh.

"Prevents La Grippe.

"Has proven itself a cure for weak lungs, loss of voice, speakers' sore throat, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, coughs, colds, and winter ills."

Catarrhozone is unquestionably the world's greatest breathable cold, cough, and catarrh medicine, and being free from all drowsy drugs, entirely safe for children and old folks; it makes an ideal family remedy. Recommended by the medical profession, and sold by all reliable dealers. Beware of imitations, get "Catarrhozone" only; large size lasts two months, and is guaranteed, price $1; smaller sizes 25c and 50c. By mail from The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

be erected upon it, to prevent marring or destroying the appearance of the King Edward school.

Ald. Duncan—They have too much land there now.

Mayor Bradburn—Its a good move though.

Ald. Buller—It will pay all right, but I think they should have consulted the council in the matter, as a business proposition. They require the land apparently not for school purposes, but merely to beautify the grounds.

Ald. Gillespie—Where did you obtain all your information?

Ald. Buller—One of the trustees told me.

Ald. Johnston—The School Board should meet this Committee in reference to the matter.

Ald. Buller—I don't think they can buy the land unless the Council says so.

Ald. Duncan put up a strong kick against tying up of a lot of land in such a manner, by preventing buildings going up on it. The property in question and the Fair Grounds farther south constituted about fifty acres upon which there would be building restrictions.

It was moved by Ald. Johnston and Buller, that a committee from the Board of Education be asked to meet the Finance Committee to explain fully why the land was required.

The Board of Education purchased the property some time ago, according to Mayor Bradburn.

On motion of Messrs. Gillespie and Buller a copy of the Municipal World will be ordered for the City Clerk's Office.

A recommendation for a grant of $50 for the King Edward Memorial Fund of the National Sanitarium Association was carried.

The sum of $10 will be granted to the Dominion Tactile Press for aiding the distribution of literature to the blind, specially adapted for persons who have lost their sight. A list of those persons afflicted with blindness in Peterborough will also be forwarded to the Company.

Relief Officer Miller's request for an increase in salary was referred to a meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council which will convene at an early date.

IDEA OF CONTRIBUTION IS APPROVED

Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Co., and Major Leonard, a letter from Major Leonard to the Minister of Railways, and considerable correspondence upon the subject between Chief Engineer Grant and the district engineer at Cochrane.

The return indicates that some "momentum" grades were introduced, increasing the grade at certain points from 4-10 of one per cent. to one per cent. These changes were justified from an engineering standpoint by Chairman Leonard, but elicited a vigorous protest from President Chamberlin, who more than intimated that the change in the gradients, if persisted in, would justify the Grand Trunk in refusing to take over the road. In the entire correspondence Mr. Chamberlin adheres to this stand.

Major Leonard volunteered the opinion that such modifications were in accord with the practice of the Grand Trunk Pacific on the portions built by that company from Winnipeg west and from Fort William to Superior Junction. It was, he said, necessary in some cases to put in wooden trestles instead of steel structures.

The advantages to be gained were chiefly saving of expense and the expedition of the completion of the road.

Major Leonard gives a list of witnesses examined by F. P. Gutilius and Lynch Staunton, who are stated to have given evidence that by the introduction of "velocity grades" the cost of the road would have been greatly reduced.

The matter will doubtless come up in the House before long. Mr. Cochrane says he courts the fullest investigation and that he is confident that the charges which have been made against the N.T.R. Commission will not be sustained.

Keeping an Eye on the Fee.

The prisoner was charged with so trivial an offence that the judge told him that if he would plead guilty he would let him off with a fine.

"Before we plead guilty," replied the man's lawyer, "we'd like to know what the fine will be."

"Isn't it rather unusual to attempt to bargain with the court?" asked the judge.

"Perhaps it is, your honor," replied the lawyer, "but in this case it is important. You see, the prisoner has only $12, and as my fee is $10 we can't afford to plead guilty if you intend to fine him more than $2."

Running as Exercise.

The fact that a person is capable of doing the best running and speed walking before the thirtieth year need not lead those who have passed the third decade to think that they are on the down grade of life, says an authority. These exercises call for elasticity of the arteries, and that lessens soon after the thirtieth year, but powers of endurance increase in the well preserved man or woman up to fifty or fifty-five or even later. Soldiers of fifty are like leather and can perform feats of endurance that would kill the stripling, and the same is true of women.

Dame Fortune.

"Pa, why do they call it 'Dame' Fortune?"

"Because Dame is feminine. Fortune is symbolized as a woman."

THE HOME PHYSICIAN

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Cure Most of the Family's Ills.

This Little Box is Mother's Stand-by.

Perhaps if the children, and the "grown-ups" too, always ate exactly the right quantities of exactly the right things, at just the proper times, and in every other way obeyed the rules of health, there would be no sickness in the family, and no need of medicine.

But they never have and probably never will, so in every family there are sure to be more or less frequent attacks of sick headache, biliousness, indigestion, constipation, and kidney and liver troubles, and occasionally some one is "sick in bed".

It is worth a good deal to the mother, then, to have on hand that perfectly safe and reliable remedy for these ills —

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

They invigorate those organs which cleanse the body of waste and impurities, regulating the bowels, stimulating the kidneys and opening the pores of the skin.

Thus Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cure the common ailments and keep the family healthy. This they have been doing for over half a century in every part of the world.

Police Have Three Lads and Man Who Received Goods

Alexander Caldwell doesn't recognize the superiority of the judicial bench

"I'd rather be tried by you Mister" were the words with which he replied to His Worship Magistrate Dumble this morning, when asked how he preferred his trial.

Caldwell was accused of unlawfully receiving a pair of mits, knowing that they were stolen property. He pleaded "guilty" and was remanded one week.

The mits which were a pair of several that have been stolen, were alleged to have been taken from J. C. Braund's store by a sixteen year old youth, named James Patrick Jennings. The boy is one of a youthful gang whom it is alleged have been doing a lot of stealing from various stores. The two boys who were in court yesterday and remanded to the Children's Shelter, are said to be his companions in crime.

Jennings was remanded for one week and the four parties concerned will all come up before the Magistrate at the one time.

A GRATEFUL COUPLE

Nova Scotia Man and Wife Both Benefited By GIN PILLS

JUST how much difference GIN PILLS can make in the home life can be guessed from the letter below. Where formerly both husband and wife were in more or less constant misery with backache, they are now delighted to be almost free of the old trouble.

Lyons Brook, N.S.

"You are perfectly free to use my name in any way to benefit GIN PILLS, for they deserve the highest praise. My back has never troubled me since taking GIN PILLS, and my wife feels much better after taking GIN PILLS for her back. She thinks GIN PILLS will make a complete cure."

JAMES L. NAUSS.

Why shouldn't you or any of your friends who may be suffering with Backache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Weak or Strained Kidneys, Burning or Scalding Urine, Painful Urination or frequent colds in the Kidneys and Bladder, get the same relief that so quickly came to the Nauss home when they started to use GIN PILLS?

THE SPORTING WORLD

PETES MADE OSHAWA GO OVERTIME TO LAND GAME

OSHAWA, Feb. 1.—The local junior O.H.A team added one more to their unbroken string of victories by defeating the fast Peterborough team by 2 to 1, it requiring ten minutes of overtime. The teams were evenly matched and neither was able to score in the first half. In the second half both scored one, necessitating overtime. In the first five minutes no score resulted, but the locals notched the winning goal in the second period. This victory practically gives the locals the championship of their district. The ice was soft and fast hockey was out of the question. The teams:—

HOCKEY

The Strathcona Hockey Team challenge the P.C.I Seconds to a game of hockey to be played next week if possible in the Brock Street Rink. R. P. Armstrong, Capt. The Straths' line-up is: Goal, B. Hamilton, point, P. Armstrong, cover, Condon, rover, Barnett; centre, Bartley, left, L. Rose, right, T. Doughty.

Feeney's team white-washed Huycke's seven by 6—0 in a P.C.I. game at the Brock street rink yesterday afternoon between 5 and 6. Both teams were inclined to play the man instead of the puck. Stratton and Huycke worked hard for the losers while Jobbitt and Feeney were there with the goods for the winners.

Upper Canada College defeated Lakefield Grove School 10—0 in a rather one-sided game of hockey at the Brock street rink this morning. Creary and Peyson for Upper Canada, starred, while Clark worked hard for Lakefield and was easily the best man on the ice. The line-up was:

Upper Canada.		Grove School.
	Goal.
Howard		Fenwick
	Point.
Sanders		Hilliard
	Cover.
Peyson		Stewart
	Rover.
Northey		Clark
	Centre.
Creary		McCullough
	Right
Ingroes		McCullough
	Left
Dean		Stewart

Orme Cavanah was satisfactory as referee.

The Exploits challenge the Strathconas to a game of hockey to be played sometime next week.

IN COUNTY JAIL

A resident of Smith township, named George Faror, who is believed to be mentally unbalanced is lodged in the County Jail pending a medical examination. He was taken to the jail on Thursday night, as his actions were of such a character as to make him dangerous. He will likely appear before County Police Magistrate Edmison, next week.

COUNTY BOARD OF CONTROL.

Wentworth Council May Decide on an Innovation.

HAMILTON, Feb. 1.—At yesterday morning's session of the Wentworth county council, a move was launched to have the Provincial Government pass special legislation so as to allow the county to have Government by a board of control, similar to Toronto, Hamilton and several other cities.

At present there is a lot of dissatisfaction among the county residents. The councillors, who receive $5 per day, are said to meet whenever the spirit moves them, calling special sessions for all sorts of trivial affairs, so that their fees will soar.

Snowstorm In Germany.

BERLIN, Feb. 1.—A snowstorm of unusual violence prevails throughout northern Germany. Trains arriving in the capital are subjected to great delay, while many minor branch lines have suspended traffic.

A train composed of eight passenger cars was derailed in the storm near Oppelsdorf, in Silesia. One of the cars was burned, but none of the passengers were injured. At Flensburg the German cruiser Augsburg was driven ashore in the storm.

Frenzied Arithmetic.

Three-year-old Amy, who had a very lively little brother, was being put through a lesson in arithmetic by her uncle. She had successfully added one and one, but stuck at two and one.

"Your mamma," said her uncle, "has two children. If she had one more what would that make?"

"Oh," cried Amy, "that would make my mamma cwazy!"—Woman's Home Companion.

More women are looking for an opportunity to elope from men than to elope with them.

ANIMAL ETIQUETTE.

They Have a Well-Defined Code of Action All Their Own

Every animal lover can tell numerous stories illustrating the devotion of animals to their human protectors. Anecdotes of one animal risking its life to save another are rare, but still sufficiently numerous and authentic to leave no doubt as to the occasional existence of deep love between animals. But any close observer of nature will know that there exists throughout the brute creation a sort of moral system which, in the case of domestic animals, translates itself into what really amounts to a code of etiquette.

The old proverb, "The dog with a bone has many friends," is nothing else than a recognition of canine etiquette. It does not matter how small is the dog with the bone. It may be a Pomeranian surrounded by mastiffs. The mastiffs will still remain friendly. They will hover round the Pomeranian, perhaps whining for a morsel (which is never offered), and eagerly picking up any splinter that may be dropped, when nothing would be easier than to bowl the little dog over and seize the bone.

You will notice, further, that the little dog becomes filled with new courage, presumably in the moral consciousness of the justice of his claim, and will growl and even snap at a dog he otherwise fears if the latter should come too close.

But the moment a dog drops his bone a new rule of etiquette operates, for it becomes the property of the first dog who cares to pick it up. True, a dispute will sometimes arise as to whether the bone has actually been dropped "within the meaning of the Act." But once this is clear the law of the bone will be observed by all save the exceptional "hooligan" dog, met with occasionally, who outrages all the laws of dogdom, even to the biting of his master.

Another rigid social law is that no gentleman dog must ever in any circumstances, offer violence to a lady dog. It is not the slightest use to plead that "she began it." If a female should so far forget herself, as not infrequently happens, the mere male has no alternative to enduring her snaps save seeking safety in flight.

Of course, a dog, being only canine after all, will sometimes, under severe provocation, break this law. But if he is one of a pack it is ten to one that the other males will set upon him and mete out severe punishment for this grave offence.

Moreover, although a dog is quite entitled to rush suddenly upon a foe and take him unawares, he may not do so if the other is eating or drinking.

Dogs are by no means the only animals that have a distinct sense of property. The squirrel regards his tree much as the dog regards his bone. He has a definite right to it, both as a dwelling and a means of subsistence; and on the rare occasions when another squirrel disputes the right or blunders accidentally on his tree, he will fight fiercely in defence of that which the law of the woods allows him to regard as his own. If he wishes to forage afield, he must choose a tree that has not been appropriated by one of his tribe.

He Got It From Pa And Ma.

Little Jack was struggling through his home lessons, and there were many signs of woe and perplexity written on his impish young face.

"Ma," he began in rather a quavering voice, "what does her-e-dity mean?"

Mother wasn't quite sure herself, but she was sufficiently artful not to say so outright, so she answered vaguely:

"Well, John, it's—er—it's something to do with what you get from your father or me."

Little Jack pondered deeply for a few moments. Suddenly a look of knowledge, the outcome of past unhappy experiences, appeared on his countenance.

"Then is whipping heredity, ma?" he asked.

Economy and Consolation.

"It is so easy to save when you know how!" she exclaimed. "Oh, so easy! Do I wish to save $25? Very well. I go down town and find something I would like that costs $25, and then I don't buy it. Nothing could be simpler."

She did not deny, however, that her method involved a sacrifice.

"But if the sacrifice is too painful," she went on to explain, "I go and find something my husband would like that costs $35 and don't buy that!"—Puck.

The Great Jenner.

An Englishman had occasion to go often to an eminent physician and said to Jeames, "You will be tired of opening the door for me." "Not at all, sir," was the gracious reply. "You are but a hunit in the hocean."

Another Jeames was accustomed to say during his master's occasional absences. "You had better try hopposite. There's a very respectable man hopposite as we often sends to when Sir William is habsent. His name is Jenner."—London Mail.

For the Children

The Happy Boy Who Had a Dog Named Pete.

I've got a dog. The other boys
Have quantities of tools and toys
And heaps of things that I ain't seen
(Ain't saw, I mean).
They've oars and clubs and golfin' sticks—
I know a feller that has six.
And, gee, you ought to see him drive!
But I've
Got a dog!

I've got a dog. His name is Pete.
The other children on our street
Have lots of things that I ain't got (I mean have not).
I know a boy that's got a gun.
I don't see why they have such fun
Playing with things that ain't alive.
But I've
Got a dog!

I've got a dog, and so, you see,
The boys all want to play with me.
They think he's such a cunnin' brute
(I mean so cute).
That's why they leave their toys and games
And run to us and shout our names
Whenever me and Pete arrive,
For I've Got a dog!

Plum Pudding—A Game.

The players sit at a table with a plate on it to represent a plum pudding (a tin plate would be best, being light and unbreakable). Each player takes the name of some article of food or something used at dinner. One tells a story about a plum pudding, and when he utters the name spins the plate and mentions some other dish. The person so named instantly gives the plate another twirl and continues the story, spinning the plate when it begins to slow down, until he names another player, who must catch the plate before it falls, keep it going and go on with the story.

"Plum pudding" must be brought into each story and its continuation, and the plate must never be allowed to fall.

The story may be something like this: "It was Christmas, and we were all at my grandmother's house. She let me help her order the dinner. Of course there was a plum pudding (spin the plate) of great size, and we all liked it better than mince pie." Mince pie must then catch the spinning plate, give it a fresh impetus and continue: "In which they showed bad taste, I think, for, while mince pies are fine at Christmas, I should prefer plum pudding to roast chestnuts." Roast chestnuts seizes the plate and goes on: "Yes, but they are for dessert. I think plum pudding would be better than cranberry tart." And so the game goes on till all are tired or wits give out.

Any one letting the plate fall or failing to continue the story pays a forfeit or leaves the game as previously arranged.

Children's Bird Party.

It was at a party that this scheme was used, and it proved so satisfactory others may wish to try the same thing. Birds drawn in sepia ornamented the invitations, and the favors were Japanese paper birds that chirped in a most natural manner.

On the wall a peacock was drawn without the tail, which was to be supplied after the manner of the old time "donkey" party. Each child was blindfolded and had three chances to supply the missing glory to this vainest of birds. The prize to the one pinning on the most tails in the place where they should go received a copy of the "Birds' Christmas Carol."

Origin of an Old Saying.

"Whole hog or none" refers to the alleged custom of Mohammed to allow his followers to eat all except one portion of a pig, which portion, however, was not specified. The result, therefore, was that if a Mohammedan did not wholly avoid the use of pork he might as well run the risk of consuming the whole portion as to eat any portion thereof.—New York Press.

A Riddle.

A ferret finds twelve ears of corn in a basket and carries off three every night. How long will it take to empty the basket?

Twelve nights. He carries off one ear of corn and his own two ears.

Not To Be Cheated.

"They tell me Tinkleton is at work on a big canvas which he calls 'The Retreat of the Ten Thousand'."

"What does he expect to do with it?"

"Sell it to old Bondelipper."

"Any chance of that?"

"No. Tinkleton has only 933 figures in the painting, and Bondelipper will insist upon the full 10,000."

Those Dear Girls.

Marie: Considers it a sort of triumph, I suppose. They say the true artist delights in difficulties.

PHYSICIANS
Failed to Cure Rheumatism

Miss Flora Chapman Vividly Describes Her Sufferings and Ultimate Cure With "Nerviline."

"After being an enthusiastic user of Nerviline for years, I feel it my duty to tell you personally what your wonderful preparation has done for me.

"I suffered torture from rheumatism and heart trouble, tried scores of so-called remedies, consulted for weeks and months with Toronto's most eminent physicians, but derived only slight benefit.

"A friend insisted on my using Nerviline, and to my surprise a vigorous rubbing of this powerful liniment eased the pains and reduced the stiffness in my joints. I continued to use Nerviline and was permanently cured. I am now perfectly well, and for three years have had no rheumatism at all. I know many families where no other medicine but Nerviline is kept—it is so useful in minor ailments like earache, toothache, neuralgia, coughs, colds, lumbago, and sciatica. I call Nerviline my "Life Guard," and urge all to try its merit."

Haphazard, occasional saving seldom accomplishes much. It's the steady, persistent, regular depositing of so many dollars a week, or month, or season, in the Union Bank of Canada, which makes one financially independent. The money accumulates all the more rapidly, too, because of the interest which is added every six months.

Music and Drama

Mrs. John Billington, the veteran English actress, has just entered her eighty-ninth year, with unimpaired mental faculties.

Plans are now under way for the presentation of Charles Nirdlinger's play, "The First Lady of the Land."

Edward Sheldon, author of "The High Road," has already earned a life competence in playwriting, and he is only in his 28th year. "Salvation Nell" brought him a fortune.

Arnold Daly will probably be the American actor of the part originated in London by Charles Hawtrey in "General John Regan," the first play by "George A. Birmingham," as the Rev. John Hannay, of County Mayo, Ireland, calls himself when he writes novels.

Rehearsals have begun for "Romance," the new play by Edward Sheldon, which the Schuberts will produce. In the cast are Doris Keane, William Courtenay, A. E. Anson, Jennie Eustace, William Raymond, Louise Seymour, Ann Carlton, Gladys Wynne and George Le Soir.

Roy Horniman has sold a new play to H. B. Irving, who will present it upon his return to England from South Africa. It is called "After Many Days."

Arthur Bourchier will return to the boards of the London Garrick Theatre on February 6. He will appear in a new play by Stanley Houghton, called "Trust the People," which is said to be free from party bias, although strongly political in character.

E. Phillips Oppenheim and Jack London have been engaged to contribute two scenarios a week for the moving picture factories. Each of the gentlemen is an expert in the art of producing thrills, which is a prime qualification in the eyes of the cinematograph followers. The moving picture seems to be destined to be to the author what the vaudeville stage already is to the actor.

A bill was introduced in the New York Legislature the day which, if it goes through, will cause consternation in the theatrical profession, for it makes it a misdemeanor to use any other name but your own. Says the New York Telegraph: One's imagination can hardly do justice to the mixup the bill would cause in the show business were it to become a law. At least one-third of the total number of "Irish comedians" now playing would turn out to be of Hebrew origin. Then, again, most of the "Misses" on the present day stage would have to bill themselves as married women and use their husband's names. The art of using alliteration and euphony in forming a name for stage use would be lost. Just suppose the billboards should announce the coming of Robert Hudson in Shakespearian repertoire! How many people would know that Hudson is none other than Robert Mantell! And how many would recognize Madame Melba billed as Mrs. N. Armstrong? Then, again, the Billies, Frankies and Gwendolyns of the chorus—or most of them, at least—would become Marys and the like.

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—Julia Marlowe is not suffering from ptomaine poisoning, but is merely overworked, according to Mrs. J. H. Benham, to whose home Miss Marlowe was taken on her arrival here from St. Louis, after serious reports of her illness had reached here.

"Miss Marlowe simply had to take a rest," said Mrs. Behnam. "She isn't ill, just played out."

Mr. Sothern will continue his tour with Miss Lenorie Chippendale acting as leading lady.

The New York Tribune's London special says:—A. H. Woods, the New York theatrical manager, who is now in London, predicts within the next six months one of the greatest theatrical panics America has ever known. He added:—

"It wouldn't surprise me if before long half the theatres on Broadway were turned into automobile garages, where people will store their cars while enjoying the evening at the picture palaces.

"The whole trouble is that there are too many theatres in New York and no plays to put in them—that is, no successes. At the present time, there are only four real successes in New York, and there are sixty-eight theatres."

"A Good Little Devil" is the name of the fairy play which Mr. Belasco has provided for grown-up folks. It has been adapted by Austin Strong from a fairy play which Madame Rostand and her son Maurice played in Paris some years ago. Here is the story: "Once upon a time there lived in the northern part of Scotland a little boy whose aunt made him live in a garret with the rats. She starved him and clad him in rags, while all the time hoarding up money sent her by a rich uncle for his bringing up. But the fairies intervened, and one night when he was sent to bed, supperless, they came to his garret, bringing little Thoughts-from-afar who had seen his mother in heaven. He brought three kisses for him, one for memory, one for love, and one for courage. Equipped with these and befriended by a wandering poet, the boy, who proved always a "good little devil," has many experiences and adventures in the real world. Finally, having been tested and tried, he comes home to the garden of his blind little sweetheart to find that the fairies have restored her sight. Then everyone gets his deserts. The wicked are punished, the virtuous rewarded, the boy marries his sweetheart and both live happy ever after. Mr. Belasco has shown his customary skill in producing a perfect illusion of fairy land.

"Cheer up" is a new farce by Mary Roberts Rinehart, part author of "Seven Days" The scene is a sanitarium on the top of a mountain, during a blizzard, after the house physician has eloped with the head nurse, the bath attendants gone on a strike and the patients become unmanageable. The story relates the struggles of a young heir to manage the institution and at the same time keep away from an irate father-in-law and an actress who is suing him for breach of promise. Walter Hampden plays the leading role.

William Franklin Riley, personal representative of the general Manager, Edward M. Beck, of the Sheehan English Opera Company, arrived in this city to-day and after going over the situation with J. J. Turner, manager of the Grand Opera House expresses himself as pleased with the outlook. The advance mail orders of seats has exceeded all expectations and from present indications the coming of the Sheehan English Opera Company will proove the most brilliant society event of the theatrical season. Not only from this city but from every nearby town orders are coming and the probabilities are that hundreds of late comers will be unable to secure seats. Mr. Riley is very enthusiastic about the Sheehan English Opera Company this season.

"THE TRAVELLING SALESMAN"

The great comedy success "The Travelling Salesman," by James Forbes, the author who gave the public "The Chorus Lady," will be presented at the Grand Opera House next Saturday. This announcement should arouse unusual interest among the theatre-going fraternity, as "The Travelling Salesman" has been heralded for the last five years as the greatest laugh-provoking play ever produced. The play deals with incidents in the life of the drummer on the road, and besides containing abundant material for laughter, is so true to life that it has received the endorsement of two travelling men's organizations, namely, The United Commercial Travellers of America and the Travellers' Protective Association. 51

SHEEHAN ENGLISH OPERA COMPANY

The Sheehan English Opera Company will come to the Grand Opera House, Thursday, February 6th, in Balfe's charming operatic gem, "The Bohemian Girl."

The Sheehan English Opera Company has earned for itself an enviable reputation, built upon the policy of keeping faith with the public and living up to its promises of presenting the famous operas in English, with the foremost artists, carefully selected chorus and a magnificent mounted production.

For the season of 1912-13, all previous efforts have been eclipsed. The country has been scoured, and money has not been spared in securing the foremost operatic stars. In addition to Mr. Joseph Sheehan, the greatest of all American tenors, the list includes such artists as Francis J. Boyle, Miss Alma Stetzler, both of whom were for years two of the Henry Savage's leading stars; Louis La Valle, conceded to be one of the best baritones on the English singing stage; John L. Dickinson, the noted English baritone, and William Young tenor. Among the prima donnas are Miss Gladys Caldwell, known as the American Tetrazzini; Miss Doris Marvin, alternating prima donna; Miss Helen Jeffries, Miss Ruth West, and Miss Louise Hoerger, as well as Miss Mirth Carmen, the noted French contralto. This galaxy of stars will be supplemented with a carefully selected chorus. For this engagement Mr. Sheehan has secured the services of Mrs. Emily Grey, famous harpist from Covent Garden, London, England, and Miss Sibley Remus, Violinist Virtuoso, Paris Opera Comique, and a special Grand Opera Orchestra under the baton of William Glover England's famous director. 51

Four Runs for the Firemen — One Was False Alarm

Considerable excitement was caused this morning by the smoke gushing out of the windows of the Beehive, on George street. The fire department found some hot ashes and rubbish had been thrown up against a joist in the cellar under the front window. The fire was soon put out and the damage will be very slight.

The firemen had only returned to the hall when an alarm was sent in from box 42. The trouble was a chimney fire at 215 Dublin street.

Yesterday at 4.25 p.m. the fire brigade gave their attention to a chimney fire at 589 Patterson street. A call was also sent in from the corner of Robinson and Patterson street this morning at 6.53 o'clock. The firemen quickly responded, but it was a false alarm.

ALMOST ONE DEATH EACH DAY DURING JANUARY

Of this number five deaths were due to consumption. Generally in weahter so wet and changeable as was January, there are many deaths caused by pneumonia, but the statistics show that only one death from that disease occurred

Appendicitis, peritonitis, typhoid fever each caused a death, and cancer two deaths. One cancer victim was ninety-two years of age.

Bronchitis also carried off one whose age was ninety.

FUR COAT STOLEN FROM HOTEL YARD

After investing $200 in a brand new fur overcoat, and then inside of one hour to have the same mysteriously disappear, was the experience of a prominent farmer named David Jackson, who was in the city on January 20th The purchaser bought the coat in Lech's fur store, with an otter collar; in fact, one of the most expensive that could be secured. He carried the coat, after it had been tied up in a long box, down to the King George Hotel, where he was temporarily staying.

There he placed the box in his rig and went into the hotel. When he returned, however, inside of half an hour, the parcel was gone. Some one had spotted and made off with it. The victim of the theft reported his loss to the police department, who have since instituted a thorough search, but so far without success. A young boy, however, was noticed on the evening of the theft carrying a large box, proceeding in a southerly direction. It is quite possible that others may have seen some person weighted down with the parcel, as it was distinguishable by its very large dimensions. The coat was lined with farmers' satin and was diamond quilted.

An advertisement offering $25 reward for information leading to its recovery will be found in another column.

THE WEATHER IN JANUARY

A Few Interesting Comparisons by the Weatherman

Last fall it was prophesied by some who had made a study of such matters that we would have an open winter to balance the very cool summer season we had in 1912. If the month of February bears any comparison with January it will certainly be a remarkably mild winter, however that is yet to be seen.

The month opened [illegible] mild and continued so until the 9th, when we had the first cold dip. That morning we had a temperature of [illegible] degrees below zero; the next cold day was the 14th, 3 degrees below, and the only other low reading was on the 29th, with zero registered.

The highest temperature was on the 17th, the mercury rising to 45 degrees. On two other days the temperature was over 40, and above the freezing point (32) was reached almost every day in the month.

The snowfall was 15 inches, but sleighing could only be called good for about a week, from the [illegible]th to the 13th. The rainfall was 30-100 of an inch.

To give the reader an idea of what a January can do in the way of low readings we give the official figures for Peterborough of the weather for January, 1912.

5th	10	below
7th	12	"
8th	11	"
10th	2	"
12th	16	"
13th	29	"
14th	10	"
20th	1	"
28th	17	"

A comparison of the above figures with those of the past month is convincing proof of the unreasonable mildness of the past month.— W. P.

THOSE CLAIMS AGAINST CITY FOR DAMAGES

Mr. Robert Gibbs, the livery proprietor, was asked to-day what action he intended to take in reference to his claim for $500 damages against the city arising from the death of a valuable horse.

"I don't know anything about it," said Mr. Gibbs; "I am leaving the matter entirely in the hands of my solicitor."

Dr. Sutton, who gave notice to the Legal Committee of $4 damages to the wind-shield of his auto, caused by the irregular condition of a road in East City, was also undecided about whether he would press a claim for damages.

"I haven't considered the matter much of late," he stated to-day, "and consequently do not know what I will do yet."

Messrs. Peck, Kerr & McElderry were asked if they had decided whether to go ahead with an action on behalf of their client, Mrs. Emily Wynne, who slipped and fell on the sidewalk in East City, straining her wrist. The firm were not in a position to say just yet what they intended to do in the matter.

KAISER ADVISES BULGARIA TO TAKE WHAT TURKS OFFER

Turkey Wants Loan From the Deutsche Bank, But None Forthcoming Until Peace is Made Says Manager—Turks Must Now Give Way or Fight to a Finish Declare the Allies.

Canadian Press Despatch.

BELGRADE, Feb. 3.— Two of the Servian delegates who arrived here from London to-day, said hostilities would not begin before to-morrow. "Europe desires peace." he added. They did not intimate concessions on the part of the allies but they suggest that Turkey might at the last moment accept the advice given her by the European powers.

LONDON, Feb. 3— Bulgaria made one concession to Turkey to-day, of permitting Turkey to appoint a representative to reside in Adrianople after the cession that city to the allies. The finances of all belligerents are in a demoralized condition. and Turkey is practically bankrupt as a result of the war.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The Berlin correspondent of The Express understands that the German Emperor has sent personal instructions to the German minister at Sofia to advise King Ferdinand to abandon his policy of obstinacy regarding the peace terms offered by Turkey.

The Constantinople correspondent of The Times says that the Turkish Government is anxiously seeking financial assistance, but the manager of the Deutsche Bank says that no advance will be made before the conclusion of peace. The national defence committee contemplates a levy of five per cent. on the capital possessed by wealthy citizens.

Prince Charles Max Lichrowsky, the German ambassador, speaking at the German Emperor's birthday dinner at London Saturday evening, dwelt upon the consistent efforts of the emperor to foster good relations between the kindred island people. Especially during the last three months, he said the German Government and the emperor regarded it as a paramount duty to work in accord with Germany's allies and with the friendly British Government to maintain peace in Europe, and therefore hopes that the meeting of the ambassadors in London would lead to the preservation of peace, the desired goal.

They had counselled the Balkan states to observe moderation with a view to preventing further bloodshed.

Turkish Delegates Stay.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The Porte has ordered the Turkish plenipotentiaries not to leave London until hostilities are resumed. and has instructed the army to await the attack before firing a shot.

Thus the Ottomans, who, with the exception of the Montenegrins, are the only delegates left in London, remarked yesterday that nobody could accuse [illegible] having done all that was [illegible] possible to come to terms. Animated by a humanitarian spirit, they added, Turkey wished to avoid useless carnage and wished to show also deference to the advice of the powers, although Europe had been unfair toward Turkey.

Dr. Daneff, head of the Bulgarian delegation, before leaving the capital recalled what he had said in his first statements on arriving in London that the Balkan people, who had adopted the Monroe doctrine to their peninsula, aspired to became the Americans of Europe. They had inaugurated a policy of sincerity and straightforwardness as was approved by their frank conduct in the peace conference.

The Balkan representatives would not have waited to their own disadvantage so before resuming hostilities, but for the genuine regard which the Balkan kingdoms held for the powers, said he. Dr. Daneff again rejected the idea that even a small fraction of Adrianople should be retained by Turkey.

"Turkey should have understood that they must abandon Europe entirely, her permanence there being opposed, not only by the allies, but by the powers themelves, as shown by their collective note. Turkey has refused to quit peacefully, but will be forced to do so by another war, after which, fully realizing the strength of the Balkan states, she will become their friend," said Dr. Daneff in conclusion.

No Internal Fighting.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 3.—The grand vizier, Mahmoud Shefket Pasha, has issued a statement denying the reports of fighting among the troops of the Tschatalja army. He declares that the troops were never more united in their devotion to the fatherland, as the enemy will find to their cost.

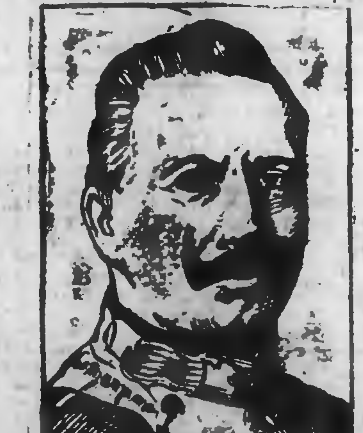
The grand vizier expressed the belief that Roumania would reach an agreement with Bulgaria. He had never shared the belief of those who for the past three months had counted on the support of Roumania, and he sincerely hoped that Roumania would have no occasion to regret her attitude in the war.

Will Observe Neutrality.

BERLIN, Feb. 3.—The weekly review of The Norddeutche Allegemein Zeitung says:

"Hope has not yet been given up that the powers will be able to prevent further blood-letting in the Balkans, but in the event of the renewal of hostilities, Germany will continue to observe the strictest neutrality."

The Cologne Gazette's Berlin despatch says that the powers will endeavor to the last month to prevent hostilities. Germany acting a good example by her advice to the allies.



KAISER WILLIAM.

He has advised King Ferdenand of of Bulgaria to abandon his policy of obstinacy regarding the peace terms.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—For misapplying $70,000 of the funds of the Audobon National Bank in a deal to obtain control of the institution, D. S. Beating C.P.R. To It.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—(C.A.P. The destination will be St. John in winter and Montreal in the summer."

BRITISH AUTHORITIES FEAR SUFFRAGETTE OUTRAGES

Favorite Resorts of the People Have Been Closed.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Owing to the threats of the militant suffragettes to wreck and ruin public property until their demands have been granted, the royal palaces of Kensington, Hampton Court, Kew and Holyrood have been closed to the public until further notice. The official notification published Saturday, however, is silent as to the cause of this action by the public authorities.

All the palaces are favorite resorts of the people, whose wrath it is thought will be visited on the suffragettes whenever an opportunity offers.

The public museums and public institutions are also expected to be closed.

The precautions taken by the authorities in the various public buildings, were fully justified, as Saturday afternoon a suffragette entered the Tower of London and smashed a glass case in the jewel house with a piece of iron, hidden in the sleeve of her coat. She was arrested.

West Wants Lower Duty.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 3.—By a movement in the form of a petition which started at the head of the lakes, another attempt is being made to induce the Dominion Government to permanently reduce the duty on cement from 53 1-2 cents a barrel to 26 cents a barrel.

The petition, which is said to bear a large number of signatures of both contractors and consumers throughout the Canadian prairie west, is expected to be presented to the Government in the early spring.

Map of Jolo Island

Further details of the fighting between American troops and Moros six miles west of Jolo, Philippine Islands, have been received at the War Department from Brigadier General John J. Pershing, commanding the Department of Mindanao.

Following up his proclamation of two years ago ordering the disarming of all of the natives of the Jolo group, General Pershing dispatched Colonel Eben Swift, of the Eighth Cavalry, to clear up the country in the neighborhood of Jolo. An expedition was organized under command of Captain Patrick McNally, of the Philippine scouts, who lost his life in the fight which followed.

According to General Pershing's report, Captain McNally handled his troops with great skill, and the final assault necessary to carry the breastworks was marked by many acts of individual gallantry. While the American loss was one killed and six wounded, the Moros left on the scene of the fight between forty and fifty dead.

PANIC IN PICTURE SHOW; TWO WOMEN KILLED AND ELEVEN OTHERS ARE HURT

Boy in East Side Theatre in New York Cries "Fire" and This, Combined With Smoke From an Exploded Reel, Causes Stampede.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—A boy's cry of "fire" and the smoke from an exploded reel of a moving picture machine in an East Side theatre last night resulted in a panic among the audience of four hundred persons and a rush for the exist, in which two women were killed and eleven other persons were so badly injured that they had to be sent to the hospitals.

The panic occurred in one of the most densely populated sections of the east side, and the thousands who poured in East Houston street, in front of the theatre and rushed to the doors, added to the confusion and to the number of injured. The two women, who have not been identified, were trampled to death in the crush of the crowd to reach the doors. The operator of the machine soon extinguished the burning film, and the flames did not spread beyond the fireproof cage in which he worked.

With the exception of one rear exit door, the only means of escape from the theatre were through the main vestibule, and it was here in a narrow space that most of the injured were found. The two women who were killed were picked up in the main section of the theatre, where they had been trampled underfoot.

Steep steps lead from the sidewalk to the theatre entrances, and down these hundreds fell while those behind piled on top. Children became separated from their parents, and frantic searchers for friends or relatives mingled with the panic-stricken audience. It was more than an hour after the theatre had been cleared that the police were able definitely to say that only two had met death.

In the panic clothes were torn from the backs of their wearers, and the police gathered up a great pile of hats, coats, shoes, eyeglasses and even pocketbooks. A few rings and watches were among the salvage taken to a police station for identification.

At the time the panic started fully a hundred persons were waiting in the theatre, and as the doors burst open from within these people were caught in the rush to reach the street.

Fire Commissioner Johnson arrived at the theatre soon after it had been cleared. In a statement that there were eight hundred similar theatres in Greater New York where conditions were equally perilous. He said, however, that the theatre owners had complied with every ordinance governing such places. In addition to the usual Sunday night throng, the management had advertised an added spectacular attraction, which caused an unusual large crowd to gather

MODERN FASTING

Should be Suited to Present Life Says Bishop.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The Bishop of Birmingham, discussing the question of fasting during Lent in The Birmingham Diocesan Magazine, speaks thus of the danger of overstrict adherence to the rules of abstinence: "I have found sometimes that the Anglican takes even the rules of fasting too literally. Some day I hope the Church will deal with the whole question of abstinence on lines suited to our own age and circumstances. I only ask now for a judicious and wise observance on the part of devoted enthusiasts, but no words can be too strong in calling upon people generally to use Lent as a season for not clothing themselves in or even increasing the garments of undue and selfish luxury."

MEMORIAL TO KING EDWARD

Ottawa Committee Will Chose Statue for the Capital.

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—An award will shortly be made by the committee, headed by Sir Edmund Walker of Toronto, appointed by the Government last year to choose the best design for the proposed King Edward memorial on Parliament Hill. Some forty-two designs were submitted to the committee by Canadian and European sculptors.

The committee, at its first examination of the designs some weeks ago, could not agree on its choice. A second meeting was held in Ottawa on Saturday, and it is understood an agreement was reached, but the result will first be communicated to the Government. The amount voted for the statue is $20,000.

Simpson Gould, president of the local Conservative Association, has announced his candidature for the South Lanark seat in the Ontario Legislature, made vacant by the death of Hon. Col. Matheson. He is a former mayor of the town, which has one-third of the entire vote in the riding.

Hold-Up Near Hespeler.

GALT, Feb. 3.—Christian Rubech, who resides at Pin Bush, was held up by a man wearing a mask who demanded and got his money, halfway between Pine Bush and Hespeler, about 6.45 p.m. on Saturday. Rubech was employed in Hespeler, and had just received a week's pay. It appears the robber knew this. Chief McMaster has a clue to the highwayman.

THE BIG ! PROGRAM

Twenty-two Battleships and Cruisers to be Built.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Great Britain's constant effort to maintain her supremacy at sea is evidenced by the fact that twenty-two battleships and battle cruisers for her navy, all of the most modern design, will be under construction in British shipyards during the present year. Furthermore, the First Lord of the Admiralty, Winston Churchill, has practically promised to ask Parliament for money for five more large ships, and it is possible that this number will be increased to six on account of the situation in the Mediterranean, and the action of Austria-Hungary and Italy in increasing their naval programs.

Then there are the three battleships which Premier Borden of Canada has asked the Dominion Parliament to present to the Mother Country, and the vessel for which the federated Malay States have voted the money, and which, like those from Canada, will be a modern battleship.

British shipyards are also building six more large modern warships for foreign Governments. The total new displacement under way amounts to 650,000 tons, and the cost will run very near $400,000,000.

To complete these ships with the necessary speed will require very careful organisation. Already recent British programs are in arrears, and there are likely to be some delays with this record in warship construction. Heretofore the Admiralty has calculated on two years for the completion of a battleship, but it is probable that they will now have to revise this estimate.

DUCHESS IS RECOVERING

MONTREAL, Feb. 3.—The following bulletin was issued Saturday regarding the Duchess of Connaught:

"Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught was allowed up in a chair yesterday for one hour for the first time. Convalescence after so severe an illness will necessarily be slow. Their Royal Highnesses will remain in Montreal at the residence of James Ross, to which place the duchess has been removed."—E. S. Worthington, M.D.

STEAMER BURNS AND GOES DOWN

OWEN SOUND, Feb. 3.—Loss to an extent that cannot be fully appraised yet was caused by a fire which broke out about 11 o'clock on the Dominion Transportation Co.'s steamer Manitou. Desite all that could be done the vessel sank at her moorings, and now lies with the water, or rather the ice, flush with her cabin deck. The fire was first noticed about 11 o'clock, and an alarm was at once turned into the fire hall, the brigade making a fast run to the wharf. Reaching the waterfront they found the fire in the Manitou had gained dangerous proportions, an immense volume of smoke and steam issuing from the after part, the fire being apparently near the engines. So dense was the smoke that the firemen could not effect an entrance to the craft between decks. The result was that the fight with the flames was carried on at a distinct disadvantage, and for three hours it was doubtful whether or not the craft would be burned to the water's edge. It was only after herculean efforts on the part of the brigade that the flames were checked. But it was too late to save the vessel from sinking. The large amount of water poured into her caused the Manitou to go down aft until the discharge pipes and other openings in the hull were awash. After that she gradually sank until now she lies on the bottom at her moorings.

The total loss cannot be ascertained until next spring, when the ice goes out of the harbor and the damaged boat can be raised.

"You aggravate me so much," a little girl said to her younger brother, "that I'll have no patience left for my own children."

AMBITIOUS DESIGNS OF CHANCELLOR LLOYD-GEORGE

Speech Causes a Sensation in London and the Older Landowners Are Blaming Conditions on the "New Riches"—Outlines of the Proposed Legislation Are Being Hinted At.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The speech on Friday night of David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, before the National Liberal Club, on the land question, has caused a considerable sensation. The Conservatives declare that it was a protest against Premier Asquith's refusal to make the question the leading feature of the Liberal program of this session after home rule, and that Lloyd-George is attempting to supplant Mr. Asquith as party leader by appealing for the party's support against his chief.

The report of his investigating committee is awaited with the deepest interest, and in the meantime a small coterie of Conservatives are contributing to the gaiety of the nations by conducting what they call "a radical plutocrat enquiry."

They assert that great manufacturers who are prominent in the Liberal party and "newly rich" land owners treat their workmen and tenants far less considerately than do the old aristocracy. They have sent to them a series of questions designed to prove this, and propose to publish the results alongside the report of the Chancellor's Commission.

During the course of his speech, Chancellor Lloyd-George asserted that the reports of his commission would prove conclusively that "hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of men, women and children are living under conditions with regard to wages, housing and labor conditions, which ought to make this great Empire hang its head in shame."

The Daily News' Parliamentary correspondent now outlines some of the main features of the Chancellor's policy for the regeneration of rural and urban life. The Acland Committee, appointed to investigate the problem, are now preparing the report, and, according to The Daily News, have abundant evidence available to justify the following forecast of the reform scheme:

Every laborer who requires a cottage shall have one with a plot of land independent of the farmer or landlord.

As a consequence these reforms in farming have to be placed on a scientific basis, including the extension of the co-operative principle.

ENTITLED TO KILL HUSBAND

He Had Come Home Drunk and Thrown Dirty Water on Wife

LYNN, M.S., Feb. 3.—Mrs. William Power, who killed her husband, a navy yard employe, by a blow with a wooden vice screw when he came home intoxicated and threw a pail of dirty water upon her, was freed yesterday. She had been charged with murder, but after hearing Judge Lumnus declared that probable cause for holding her for the grand jury had not been found.

Strikes Cost $750,000.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 3.—Almost $750,000 was spent for strike relief work by the United Mine Workers of America during the year ending Dec. 1, 1912. Most of this went into West Virginia.

HIGHWAYMAN WAS KILLED

Chicago Desperado Slain in Fight With Police.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—James Higgins, a 22-year-old highwayman, was killed here early yesterday in a fight with the police. Wm. Cantwell, a companion, was clubbed into submission.

Higgins and Cantwell had held up one saloon and were going through the pockets of the patrons of another saloon, when city detectives rushed in. Higgins dropped a revolver at the detectives' order, but was drawing a second when Detective Herman Otten shot him through the head.

POLICE CHIEF DIES FROM WOUND

Canadian Press Despatch.

DAUPHIN, MAN., Feb. 3—Charles Rooke. Chief Manitoba Police and local Magistrate, died this morning as the result of a bullet wound received two weeks ago when trying to arrest John Baran, a Galican homesteader. Chief Rooke was a son of an Inspector-General of the Indian army, and was educated at Wellington College. He was in command of the Provincial Mounted Police for several years and had established a condition of perfect order along the international border.

THE CHANGE IS APPROVED

Measure For Six Year Presidential Term is Passed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—A constitutional amendment which would restrict the President of the United States to a term of six years and would bar Woodrow Wilson, Theodore Roosevelt and Wm. H. Taft from again seeking election, was approved by the Senate yesterday by the narrow majority of one vote. After a three-day fight in which the Progressives joined with many Republicans in opposing the restricted Presidential term, the Senate adopted the original Works' resolution by a vote of 47 to 23.

The language which it is proposed to insert in the constitution in place of the first paragraph of article 2, is as follows:

"The executive power shall be invested in a President of the United States of America. The term of the office of President shall be six years; and no person who has held the office by election, or discharged its powers or duties, or acted as President under the constitution and laws made in pursuance thereof, shall be eligible to hold again the office by election."

The resolution now goes to the House for its approval. If ratified there by a two-thirds' vote, it will be submitted to the Legislatures of the states and will become effective when three-fourths of the 48 states of the Union have officially approved it.

The adoption of the resolution came at the close of a three-day fight, in which repeated attempts were made to so change it that it would not affect past Presidents or the President in office when it may finally be ratified by the states. All these efforts failed. The vote taken Saturday again demonstrated the fact that the Senate did not care to exempt any person from the operation of the single term provision.

An amendment by Senator Hitchcock that would have exempted past Presidents and made the new provision take effect March 4, 1917, was voted down 42 to 27, and an amendment by Senator Sutherland, to exempt the President in office when the constitutional amendment may finally be ratified, was defeated 38 to 29.

Naval Cadet Examinations.

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—Naval cadet examinations will be held on May 15 at Toronto and other Canadian cities. Applications must be filed with the Civil Service Commission at Ottawa on or before April 15.

WOMAN TESTIFIES AGAINST SLAVERS DESPITE THREATS

Friends of Defendants Used Sign Language in Court.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Frank Filaste, a wine merchant, said by special agents of the Department of Justice, to be connected with the Camorra in Italy, was convicted of "white slavery" by a jury in the federal court Saturday. Joseph Ribuffo, a barber, of Paterson, N.J., indicted with him, was also convicted. U. S. Judge Hand remanded the men for sentence and complimented the jury, declaring they had rendered a service to society.

The Government's leading witness was Annie Grecco, who testified she was threatened "with the knife" if she did not obey the commands of the defendants to enter a resort in Paterson. While she was on the stand she was told in sign language by the defendants' friends in court, she declared, that she would be killed if her testimony convicted the men. A large force of Government detectives attended the trial as a precautionary measure.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST
BY GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Company.

"All depends on how this fever leaves me. Uncle says the nights are too cold and the days too hot there for me. He thinks I had better stay in an even temperature until I am strong again. I'll have this cut out in a minute. You better say 'yes.'" he persisted. "It would be a real kindness. It would keep me out doors all day and give an incentive to work. I'm good at it. I'll show you if I am not in a week or so. I can 'sugar,' manipulate lights and mirrors and am familiar with all the expert methods. I'll wager moths are thick in the old swamp over there."

"They are," said Elnora. "Most I have I took there. A few nights ago my mother caught a good many, but we don't dare go alone."

"All the more reason why you need me. Where do you live? I can't get an answer from you. I'll just go tell your mother who I am and ask her if I may help you."

The cocoon came loose. Philip Ammon stepped down the embankment, turning to offer his hand to Elnora. They went to Mrs. Comstock.

"Mother, this is Mr. Philip Ammon of Chicago," said Elnora. "He has been ill, and he is staying with Dr. Ammon in Onabasha. He came fishing down the creek and cut this cocoon from under the bridge for me. He feels that it would be better to hunt moths than to fish until he gets well. What do you think about it?"

Philip Ammon extended his hand.

"I am glad to know you," he said.

"You may take the handshaking for granted," replied Mrs. Comstock. "Dandelions have a way of making the fingers sticky, and I like to know a man before I take his hand, anyway. That introduction seems mighty comprehensive on your part, but it still leaves me unclassified. My name is Comstock."

At last Mrs. Comstock finished the greens.

"You are three miles from the city and less than a mile from where we live," she said. "If you will tell me what you dare eat, I suspect you had best go home with us and rest until the cool of the day before you start back. Probably some one that you can ride in with will be passing before evening."

Philip Ammon was on his feet. Picking up the pail of greens and his fishing rod he stood waiting. Elnora led the way. Mrs. Comstock motioned Philip to follow and she walked in the rear.

Elnora proceeded slowly, chattering about everything along the trail. Philip was interested in all the objects she pointed out, noticing several things which escaped her. When Elnora turned toward the gate of her home Philip Ammon stopped, took a long look at the big hewed log cabin, the vines which clambered over it, the flower garden ablaze with beds of bright bloom interspersed with strawberries and tomatoes, the trees of the forest rising north and west like a green wall and exclaimed, "How beautiful!"

Philip Ammon was ravenous for the buttermilk, and when he stretched on the bench in the arbor the flickering patches of sunlight so tantalized his tired eyes, while the bees made such splendid music, he was soon sound asleep.

When Elnora and her mother came out with a table they stood a short time looking at him. It is probable Mrs. Comstock voiced a united thought when she said, "What a refined, decent looking young man! How proud his mother must be of him! We must be careful what we let him eat."

They returned to the kitchen where Mrs. Comstock proceeded to be careful. She broiled ham of her own sugar curing, creamed potatoes, served asparagus on toast and made a dandelion salad and a delicious strawberry shortcake. When everything was ready she touched Ammon's sleeve.

"Best have something to eat, lad, before you get too hungry," she said.

"Please hurry!" he begged laughingly as he held a plate toward her to be filled. "It's mighty kind of you to take me in. I hope I will be man enough in a few days to do something worth while in return."

They talked of flowers, moths, dragon flies, Indian relics and all the natural wonders the swamp afforded, straying from those subjects to books and school work. When they cleared the table Ammon assisted, carrying several tray loads to the kitchen. He and Elnora mounted specimens, while Mrs. Comstock washed the dishes. Then she came out with a ruffle she was embroidering. At last Ammon said he must go or his friends would become anxious about him.

"May I come tomorrow afternoon and chase moths awhile?" he asked Mrs. Comstock as he arose. "I've got to remain outdoors some place, and I'm quite sure I'd get well faster here than anywhere else. Please say I may come."

"I have no objections if Elnora really would like help," said Mrs. Comstock.

In her heart she wished he would not. She wanted her newly found treasure all to herself for a time at least. But Elnora's were eager, shining eyes. She thought it would be splendid to have help and great fun to try book methods for taking moths, so it was arranged. As Ammon rode away Mrs. Comstock's eyes followed him. "What a nice young man!" she said.

"He seems fine," agreed Elnora.

The next morning Mrs. Comstock called to Elnora, "The mail carrier stopped at our box."

Elnora ran down the walk and came back carrying an official looking letter, in which the position of lecturer on natural history was offered to Elnora, at a salary of $750 a year, with $200 for expenses.

"It is a new position. They never have had anything like it before. I suspect it arose from the help I've been giving the grade teachers in their nature work. Mother, dear, I am going to accept this, of course. The work will be a delight. I'd love it most of anything in teaching. You must help me. We must find nests, eggs, leaves, queer formations in plants and rare flowers. I must have flower boxes made for each of the rooms and filled with wild things. I should begin to gather specimens this very day."

Elnora was on her feet. Her face was flushed and her eyes bright.

"Can I help you?" Mrs. Comstock's strong face was pathetic.

"Indeed, yes!" cried Elnora. "I never can get through it alone."

Ammon came whistling down the walk between the cinnamon pinks, pansies and strawberries. He carried several packages, while his face flushed with more color than on the previous day.

"Only see what has happened to me!" cried Elnora, offering her letter.

"I'll wager I know!" answered Ammon. "Isn't it great? Every one in Onabasha is talking about it."

He laughed as he sat, breathing shortly.

"It doesn't seem possible that a fellow could lose his strength like this. My knees are actually trembling, but I'll be all right in a minute. Uncle Doc said I could come."

Then he began unwrapping packages and explaining to Mrs. Comstock how to cook the compound. He followed her into the kitchen, kindled the fire and stirred the preparation as he talked. While the mixture cooled he and Elnora walked through the vegetable garden behind the cabin and strayed from there into the woods.

CHAPTER XIX.

Wherein Philip Ammon Is Shown Limberlost Violets.

AMMON looked at the girl in wonder. In face and form she was as lovely as any one of her age and type he had ever seen. Her school work far surpassed that of most girls of her age he knew. She differed in other ways. This vast store of learning she had gathered from field and forest was a wealth of attraction no other girl possessed. Her frank, matter of fact manner was an inheritance from her mother, but there was something more. Once, as they talked he thought "sympathy" was the word to describe it and again "comprehension." She seemed to possess a large sense of brotherhood for all human and animate creatures. She might as well have been a boy, so lacking was she in any touch of feminine coquetry toward him. He studied her wonderingly.

As they went along the path they reached a large slime covered pool surrounded by decaying stumps and logs thickly covered with water hyacinths and blue flags. Ammon stopped.

"Is that the place?" he asked.

Elnora assented.

"The doctor told you?"

"Yes. It was tragic. Is that pool really bottomless?"

"So far as we ever have been able to discover."

"And you were born here?"

He had not intended to voice that thought.

"Yes," she said looking into his eyes. "Just in time to prevent my mother from saving the life of my father. She came near never forgiving me. A little farther along is my violet bed. I want you to see it."

She led him into a swampy half open space in the woods, stopped and stepped aside. Ammon uttered a cry of surprised delight. A few decaying logs were scattered around, the grass grew in tufts long and fine. Blue flags waved, clusters of cowslips nodded gold heads, but the whole earth was purple with a thick blanket of violets nodding from stems a foot in length. Elnora knelt and slipping her fingers through the leaves and grasses to the roots, gathered a few violets and gave them to Philip.

"Can your city greenhouses surpass them?" she asked.

Ammon sat on a log to examine the blooms.

"They are superb!" he said. "I never saw such length of stem or such rank leaves, while the flowers are the deepest blue, the truest violet I ever saw growing wild. They are colored exactly like the eyes of the girl I am going to marry."

Elnora handed him several others to add to those he held.

"She must have wonderful eyes," she commented.

"No other blue eyes are quite so beautiful," he said. "In fact, she is altogether lovely."

"It is customary for a man to think the girl he is going to marry lovely. I wonder if I should find her so."

"You would," said Ammon. "No one ever fails to. She is tall as you, very slender, but perfectly rounded; you know about her eyes; her hair is black and wavy, while her complexion is clear and flushed with red."

Elnora knelt among the flowers as she looked at him.

"Why, she must be the most beautiful girl in the whole world," she cried.

Ammon laughed.

"No, indeed," he said. "She is not a particle better looking in her way than you are in yours. She is a type of dark beauty, but you are just as perfect. She is unusual in her combination of black hair and violet eyes, although every one thinks them black at a little distance. You are quite as unusual with your fair face, black brows and brown hair. Indeed, I know many people who would prefer your bright head to her dark one. It's all a question of taste—and being engaged to the girl," he added.

"Edith has a birthday soon. If these last will you let me have a box of them to send her?"

"I will help gather and pack them for you, so they will carry nicely. Is she interested in nature?"

"What interests Edith Carr? Let me think. First, I believe she takes pride in being just a little handsomer and better dressed than any girl of her set. She is interested in having a beautiful home, fine appointments about her, in being petted, praised and the acknowledged leader of society. She likes to find new things which amuse her and to always and in all circumstances have her own way about everything."

Chest Inflammation

Suffered From a Heavy Cold, Pleuritic Pains in Side—Constant Coughing.

"Anyone that goes through all that I suffered last winter will appreciate the value of a remedy that cures like Nerviline cured me." These are the opening words of the solemn declaration of E. P. Von Hayden, the well-known violinist of Middleton. "My work kept me out late at night, and playing in cold drafty places brought on a severe cold that settled on my chest. I had a harsh racking cough and severe pains darted through my sides and settled in my shoulders. I used different liniments, but none broke up my cold till I used Nerviline. I rubbed it on my neck, chest and shoulders, morning and night, and all the pain disappeared. Realizing that such a heavy cold had run down my system, I took Ferrozone at meals, and was completely built up and strengthened. Since using Nerviline I have no more colds or pleurisy, and enjoy perfect health."

Nerviline CURES CHEST COLDS

It's because Nerviline contains the purest and most healing essences and medicinal principles, because it has the power of sinking through the pores to the kernel of the pain—these are the reasons why it breaks up colds, cures lumbago, stiffness, neuralgia, sciatica, and rheumatism. Refuse any substitute your dealer may suggest—insist on Nerviline only. Large bottles, 50c, trial size 25c. Sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE present day tendency toward individual fashion has resulted in more than the usual number of style innovations this season. A sleeveless little mantle is worn thrown over the shoulders with a black velvet gown. It is of caracul, lined with white ermine, and is brought forward and fastened about the neck and hips in front. It is curiously reminiscent of the sheepskins that shepherds of ancient times tied about their shoulders. The velvet dress worn with it has a skirt that wraps about the figure, with folded edges crossing in front, the lower part forming the indispensable slash. The skirt lengthens out to make a pointed train at the back. The corsage is long sleeved and crossed in front in surplice fashion over a dainty guimpe of white tulle. It has a simple decoration of jet buttons. Worn with this gown is a close velvet turban on latest lines, with the highest point in front decorated with a standing osprey ornament.

Festooned drapery is one of the most graceful innovations of the season, and in the gown pictured here is combined with the odd new apron tunic of lace. Over a white satin foundation of green voile de soie, headed by sable fur bands, a deep encircling skirt breadth is draped in graceful festoons, caught by jewelled buttons to the apron tunic of Chantilly lace. About the shoulders the corsage, fur edged, is posed over a semi-transparent lining.

Of pale tone is the charmeuse gown with the panel of lace falling in Watteau fashion at the back, a fashion detail seen on many of this season's evening dresses. The draped skirt, overlapping in front, is cut away sharply to show folds of matching mousseline de soie beyond.

Afternoon and evening costumes that show the lace apron effect in front, as in the gown here pictured, are one of the quaintly picturesque fashion features of this season. In this model the skirt of black satin has an apron of Alencon lace, veiled in part by a coatlike overtunic at sides and back of red embroidered voile. The corsage is made of this same voile, posed over a semi-transparent lining, and black chiffon is introduced as collar and lapels. The lace ruffles at the wrists are of Alencon lace. Black satin belts the waist and falls in long ends behind.

The pretty fashion of winding materials about the figure is shown here in a draped sash of blue charmeuse, which wraps about the high Empire waist line, winding downward with an added lace [illegible] the length of the skirt.

A model of an afternoon or informal evening dress has a peculiar separate blouse appearance, as the top of the dress is of two transparent materials, black chiffon over white chiffon. Both the [illegible] of the black charmeuse skirt and the [illegible] of the chiffon blouse are decorated with rhinestones.

THE CANADIAN MILITIA

Col. Hamilton Merritt, president of the Canadian Defence League, bemoans the fact that Canada is so far behind the European countries in the training of a militia force. He says that Canada's expenditure in 1910 per capita was $119, compared with $17 in the case of Switzerland, the country of an army of citizen soldery the like of which has never been duplicated. The present war strength of Canada he held to be utterly insufficient, giving the following table to illustrate the real inferiority of Canada in fighting strength:

	Establishment Peace.	War.
Greece	65,000	135,000
Servia	95,000	195,000
Bulgaria	64,903	394,903
Canada	42,112	60,000

	Cost.	Population.
Greece	$4,630,045	2,631,352
Servia	6,028,265	2,911,701
Bulgaria	8,099,105	4,437,516
Canada	7,579,884	7,204,838

Col. Merritt is a strong advocate of universal military training. He does not think that the training of young men would induce a spirit of militiarism. But, it might be asked, what harm if it does? Is Canada likely to engage in war with some other country on her own account? On whom would the spirit of militiarism expend itself? The reasons in favor of general military training are that they teach a young man orderliness, promptness, precision, give him physical training, and instil a habit of obedience that must quell many of the evil ideas of rash and "know-it-all" youth. But we question very much if Canadians would like to strengthen the regular militia very much. The last inspectional report showed that half of the present Canadian regiments were much inferior in efficiency to what they ought to be. It is notorious that the rural regiments are gathered together for two weeks' training in a pick-up fashion, men being specially hired to serve so that the ranks may not be too much understrength. The present system could be much strengthened, but it must be done principally by the method adopted by Col. Hughes in encouraging the formation of strong cadet services, thus providing real material for effective militia service. Col. Merritt's exposition was interesting, but it does not lead us anywhere in particular.

THE S.A. IN MANITOULIN

The passing of the Scott act prohibition by local option in Manitoulin Island is highly significant. One difference between such prohibition and that to be had under the Provincial local option law, is that a whole county is engaged at a time. Another is that a simple majority only, not a three-fifths, is necessary. Another is that Dominion prohibition puts a stop to manufacture as well as sale. The great weakness, however, of the Scott act prohibition heretofore has been that it is a Dominion measure, and that therefore the Provincial authorities do not seem as directly charged with the duty of enforcing it as they are in respect to the Provincial law. It remains to be seen to what extent, under such circumstances, the very sweeping measure just enacted will become really effective. There is now, in power in Toronto, a set of men who honestly try to enforce every law.—Hamilton Spectator.

MOTOR FOR MIDDLE CLASS

Observers of the automobile world have long been looking for the appearance of a vehicle about halfway between the motorcycle and the regular motor car, somewhat like the tricycle or the quadricycle of early bicycling days. With almost startling suddenness a large number of manufacturers have begun putting such machines into the market. They are expected to meet the needs of people who are unable or do not choose to spend the sum necessary to buy the cheapest motor, and yet want something better than the motorcycle, with sidecar attachment. From this time forward, at every automobile exhibition, much interest will be taken in the array of "cycle cars."

Knowledge of that fact may console him even as much as a smoke by himself. May his pipe of contentment never go out!"

PRESENTATION

To Miss Annie Deyell From Stewart Memorial Church

On Tuesday evening, Jan. 28th, the members and adherents of Stewart's Memorial Presbyterian church proceeded in a body to the residence of Mr. Samuel Deyell, Otonabee. The object of their coming was made apparent when Rev. D. A. McKenzie, of Centreville, read the following address:

Miss Annie Deyell:

Dear Friend,—We, the members and adherents of Stewart Memorial Presbyterian church, Otonabee, take this opportunity to tender to you our hearty and sincere thanks for the very efficient services you have rendered for nearly five years as organist. Good singing is a very important part of the services of the church. You and the other members of the choir have been very faithful in your attendance, and you have done your utmost to make the services enjoyable and helpful.

We ask you to accept this gift as a slight token of our great appreciation of the splendid work you have done for Christ and His Church. We hope and pray that you may be long spared to labor in the Master's vineyard, and when He calls you away may He say, "Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things. I will make thee ruler over many things. Enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

Signed on behalf of the congregation.

D. A. McKENZIE,
Pastor.

The address was accompanied by a beautiful case enclosing a handsome manicure and toilet set, mounted in sterling silver, which Miss Maud Stewart presented in the name of the congregation.

Miss Deyell was completely taken by surprise, but made a suitable reply, after which refreshments were served by the ladies of the congregation, and a most enjoyable evening was spent with music and song.

After dinner, while wearing a suit of the guid man's clothes till his own were dry, he met the mistress on the stairs with a broom in her hand, and she, mistaking the stranger for her husband, gave him a thump on the head with the broom, remarking, "That's for askin' the man to stay a' nicht!"—London Weekly Telegraph.

MABEL'S CHITCHAT

The Best Cook In America, Who Didn't Make Good.

DINNER ALL IN THE SOUP.

Confusing Results That Ensue From Reading Magazine and Newspaper Stories About What to Eat and What Not to Eat.

My Dear Elsa—I have such a good joke on Dick. You know, the dear boy was recently hunting in Canada, and just before he started for home I received this telegram: "Am bringing on the best cook in America. Get ready the fatted calf."

Well, dear, you know how excited I was at the prospect of acquiring such a domestic prize, for between you and me I had reached a state when anything that could cook potatoes was a blue ribbon winner. And my neighbors were almost as excited over the "find" as myself.

In a few days Dick came breezing in, and following after him in a shambling fashion appeared a woman without a hat, attired in a bright red sweater, a yellow skirt and necktie. Closer view elicited the fact that she was a full blooded Indian squaw. I bore the shock of the discovery "manfully" for Dick's sake, merely inquiring her name. "Gwendolyn," he replied, "and she's the finest cook in America, and, so to speak, we own her."

Trying to feel hopeful about our recently acquired possession, I introduced Gwendolyn to Nora, our second girl, and then initiated her into the mysteries of the kitchen. Next day Gwendolyn took hold in good earnest, and, feeling secure in the culinary ability of my prize, I invited several of our nearest friends in to have dinner. Time passed, and the assembled guests expectantly awaited dinner—assembled and waited. At last, with some misgivings, I sought the kitchen, and as I opened the door a most alarming volume of smoke greeted me. I returned to the dining room with the report that it might be all right, but Gwendolyn didn't seem to understand the use of coal exactly. She had built a kind of bonfire on top of the range. I refrained from looking at Dick during the recital.

Well, Elsa, dear, there was a long and ominous pause. Then the door swung open and Nora entered with the largest tureen I own in her hands. She set it down in front of Dick with a thump and a swash.

"It's for you to serve it," said she. "It ain't soup; it ain't roast; it's Injun stew, and I'm leaving this place tomorrow."

Nora retired. It was evident she was emotionally stirred.

"Dick," I cried appealingly, "what is it?"

Dick gingerly removed the tureen cover and ladled forth a conglomerate mixture. The dinner was in the soup, literally and entirely, from oysters to cheese, while the sirloin roast appeared ignominiously cut into chunks swimming in the midst. A shout went up from the company, and in a chorus we gasped:

"Why did you think she could cook?"

"Why," explained Dick, "you just ought to have tasted the ducks she roasted for us. Hung 'em up by the necks, you know, and turned them round and round. George, they melted in your mouth! They were wonderful. We drew lots, the fellows and I, to see who should bring her home with us. I can't understand how she made this mess."

"Dick," I laughingly interrupted, "what else did she cook for you?"

"Well, if you had tasted those ducks you would have said that was enough."

What did we do for dinner? We phoned for a taxi and beat it to the nearest good hotel for a square meal.

Dick? Well, he hasn't complained about any of the awful things served up to us by ladies of various countries and principalities who have reigned in our kitchen since the departure of his rara avis.

I'm afraid you are heartily tired of the "eats" subject, but while on the warpath doesn't it make you tired the advice one gets from magazine and newspaper stories on what to eat and what not to eat?

After conscientiously perusing a score or two of these articles you find that meat heats the blood, clogs the liver and spoils the complexion; that fish contains the germ of leprosy and shellfish harbors ptomaines; that the starch tucked away in wheat, rice and potatoes is the source of untold ills and sugar causes rheumatism and gout, fruit teems with dysentery, raw vegetables are a mass of indigestible cellulose and cooked vegetables are only a degree less so, eggs are not always particularly nourishing and decidedly indigestible and spices are poison pure and simple.

You discover in another article perhaps that tea is a fearsome alkaloid, causing dyspepsia and shattered nerves, and that coffee is more so, while milk is the awful transmitter of tuberculosis. I really was in a state of collapse when I read that too many hearty meals wear out the stomach and too light ones cause general debility. Now, what is a poor mortal to do—go on nibbling sweets and drinking sundaes until the bank account dwindles? Write and advise your bewildered

Newfoundlanders Interested In Canada's Hudson Bay Route.

Down in Newfoundland, where the business people are ever alert to the possibilities of new industrial ventures in far north waters, steps are already being taken to secure a substantial share of the steamship traffic that will follow the opening of the Hudson Bay railroad. The powerful steel sealing ships that have been built within the past few years will be promptly utilized by their owners or by charterers for this service as soon as the railroad to Fort Churchill or Fort Nelson is completed.

This new sealing fleet in Newfoundland is one of the most remarkable in the world. Until six years ago wooden ships were employed entirely for sealing and whaling, as the hulls could be built of solid wood many inches thick and the bows planked with balks to a thickness of two or three feet and then shod with iron bands as a further security in ramming the ice. In 1906, however, the idea was devised of constructing steel ships of special design and so buttressed internally as to give practically the same strength as the wooden vessels. The latter were mostly crafts making not more than five to seven knots in speed, and the largest only 700 tons burden, so that except for this work they could not be profitably employed and had to remain tied up at the wharves in St. John's for ten months of the year.

Whatever the period for which Hudson Bay is navigable, the fact remains that in the opening there every year and again in the fall, about the closing time, floe ice and bergs will be met on the way, swept south by the Labrador current on its way from the Greenland fastnesses. To navigate successfully such ice-laden waters will be a task for which there are no men in the world so fit as Newfoundlanders, who have been expert at it for generations, and it is probable that the completion of the proposed northern route will mean a great deal to the sailormen of the island colony. Not alone do they venture their ships into the midst of the ice mass, but, they will themselves rove miles over the crystal plains off in the North Atlantic day after day in quest of the seals which they hunt from these steamers. Ship owners, therefore, who intend utilizing these waters in the near future, will find in Newfoundland a splendid supply of the best material for the crewing of the ships that will be engaged.

The decision of the Canadian Government to construct the new railway has naturally directed much attention to the possibility of the successful navigation of that region for commercial purposes. The general impression elsewhere appears to be that the feasibility of the route is substantially determined, but in Newfoundland, where practical problems arising out of the navigation of ice-encumbered waters are a matter of every-day study, the situation is regarded by no means so favorably, and there is much doubt expressed by Newfoundland shipmasters and experienced ice-voyagers as to whether it will be found commercially feasible.

M. P. Keeps "Chicks."

There are some decidedly interesting points in the career of Ald. W. F. Garland of Ottawa, who has just been elected by acclamation to represent Carleton County in the Commons. Born in Bell's Corners, Carleton, thirty-seven years ago, his earliest days were spent chiefly at a tollgate there, of which his father was keeper. Probably his first step in the race from a tollgate to the Commons was when he began to teach school at Harbord, Ont. But that apparently was not quite to his taste and he next became an employe of a big lumber firm. Once more he changed his occupation for he became a drug apprentice. Into this he threw all his energy, with the result that he graduated at the Ontario College of Pharmacy in 1901. He went forward rapidly now, and became manager of one of Ottawa's most pretentious drug stores. Finally he purchased this business, of which to-day he is still proprietor.

Last January he won a keen fight handily when he was elected alderman for Victoria ward. Two Conservative conventions in Carleton he contested, in opposition to the late Edward Kidd, M.P., and he gave the late member his hardest contest a year ago.

Raising chickens is the hobby of this new Commons member. He is a prominent exhibitor at many poultry shows, and is a consistent prize-winner.—Toronto Star Weekly.

Toronto's Dark Side.

"The whole south end of the city is congested. A visit was made recently to eighteen families and fourteen of these were living in basements, with no more light than a coal cellar window affords. These people are not earning enough to secure decent habitation. The price of living has advanced by leaps and bounds, so that, with the wages earned, only a bare existence is possible.

"Imagine—and it is a true picture—a family with five children living in one room, the children having only dry bread and cheese, no bed clothing, no boots or shoes fit to wear.

"Or imagine again, within 200 yards of the church, a child dying for the lack of nourishment, and the parents unable to afford even the necessary amount of milk."—Rector's letter in December Monthly Calendar of St. George's Church, Toronto.

DANIELSON, CONN., Feb. 3.—Six hundred persons, most of whom were suffragettes, who were listening to an address by Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, President of the Nationalist Suffrage Association, in the Danielson Theatre were thrown into confusion when John Frisbie, a wealthy farmer of Merchantsville, interrupted the speaker and proposed marriage to her.

"Just a minute," Miss Shaw," "I have been a widower for eighteen years. Will you marry me and make me happy? I have plenty for us both!"

For several minutes Dr. Shaw stood speechless. Then she cried out, dramatically:

"I don't want a wedding ring. All I want is the vote."

"I hope you never get the vote if that's the way you feel about it." was Frisbie's parting shot as he left the hall.

SPLENDID SHOWING

Annual Report of the Dominion Bank Directors

With net profits of over $901,000 for the year ended the 31st Dec., 1912, and total assets of over $79,000,000, the Dominion Bank ranks as one of the strongest and most progressive of our financial institutions. The net profits were at the rate of 18.38 per cent on the paid-up capital, and show a gain of almost $200,000 over the earnings of the previous year. The Bank had $1,698,000 available for distribution at the close of their year, made up of a balance carried forward from 1911 of $500,000, net profits of $901,000 and premium on new stock of $297,000. After paying the regular dividend of 12 per cent. and a bonus of 2 per cent. the bank contributed $25,000 to the Officers' Pension fund and transferred $297,000 to the Reserve fund, leaving a balance carried forward of $688,000.

During the year the bank increased its paid-up capital to $5,000,000 and its reserve fund is now $6,000,000. It made large gains in circulation, in deposits, and in total assets. The deposits now stand at over $59,342,000—a gain of $5,800,000 during the year, an indication that the bank is growing in favor and in the confidence of the public. The extent to which the Dominion Bank is providing for the business needs of the public is shown by the fact that the paid-up capital loans amounted to $46,415,000. This indicates that the bank is doing an increasingly large business in the communities where its branches are located, which is further evidenced by the fact that the paid-up capital is being increased by $1,000,000, to be issued at $200 a share, thus giving the bank additional facilities of $2,000,000.

An analysis of the report, which appears on page six, shows that it is particularly strong in specie, bullion and other quickly available assets.

It is apparent that the bank's business in the west is growing in importance, as two new directors were appointed—one a resident of Winnipeg and one of Vancouver.

The Dominion Bank has a prosperous branch in Peterborough, the local manager being Mr. John Crane.

ELEVEN FIRES IN JANUARY

Fire Loss for the Month Amounted to $6,915

During the past month of January, the fire loss in Peterborough was $6,915, the greatest damage being done to the home of Mr. T. C. Elliot, on McDonnel St. There were 11 fires.

In January of 1912, with 10 fires the loss was only $1,710.

The strongest men, morally, are those who know they cannot afford to do all the mean things they are able to think of; for when it comes to meanness, we all have more vivid imaginations than are necessary.

PLANT IS BURNED

BROCKVILLE, Feb. 3.—The head offices here of the Canada Foundries and Forgings, Ltd., were notified yesterday of a blaze at their subsidiary plant in Welland, the Canada Forge Co., which might have proved a very serious one. Owing to a terrific gale blowing at the time, it was with difficulty that the main portion of the plant was saved, the fire being confined entirely to the forging department. The cause is unknown. The loss is entirely covered by insurance.

In an interview with officials at the head offices, they state that a temporary structure will be erected immediately, pending the construction of a steel building. It was also given out that the department will be in full operation in a week or ten days.

Shadeless Forests.

Large tracts of dense forest in Australia are practically shadeless. Many kinds of trees in that strange country turn their edges instead of the flat surface of the leaves to the sun, and thus one may stand under a tree of enormous size and be as fully exposed to the sun as though he were in the open plain. Travel through these forests is said to be exceedingly arduous work, as the trees, while they do not cut off the sun, prevent the breeze from reaching the ground, and thus the traveler experiences a stifling heat.

She Said It.

A visitor of noble birth was expected to arrive at a large country house in the north of England, and the daughter of the house, aged seven, was receiving final instructions from her mother.

"And now, dear," she said, "when the duke speaks to you do not forget always to say 'your grace.'"

Presently the great man arrived, and after greeting his host and hostess he said to the child, "Well, my dear, and what is your name?" Judge of his surprise when the little girl solemnly closed her eyes and with clasped hands exclaimed, "For what we are about to receive may we be truly fankful, amen."—Ladies' Home Journal.

No Hero.

I never, never rode to hounds
Across the fields and brooks
Or drove a golf ball out of bounds
As people do in books.

I never talked in epigrams
To girls in cozy nooks
Or passed around those witty slams
As people do in books.

I never entertained a king
Or went out after rooks—
In short, I've never done a thing
That people do in books.

Sending Wedding Gifts.

A gift to a prospective bride must always be sent to her individually, whether she is personally known to the sender or not—this, of course, where the bridegroom is a friend, but the girl he is to marry not known. If there is silver and it is marked it should be with the name or initials of the bride to be. Table or bed linen, an embroidered centerpiece or anything that has the name must be in her name.

There is a reason for these laws. The old saying of "many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip" applies. Something may happen to prevent the marriage. Death or even a misunderstanding that cannot be straightened may mean that the marriage will never take place. Then would come the difficulty of the bride elect having assumed beforehand a name that is not legitimately hers.

In sending a gift the donor's card without any writing at all is inclosed with the present; if sent after marriage, a short note of congratulations may accompany the same. Husband and wife may send a gift jointly; then the calling card must have "Mr. and Mrs." on it, but always the gift is sent to the bride to be.

Of course in a note of congratulation the name of the bridegroom must be included, and the more simple and friendly such notes are the better.

Chicken and Veal Pie.

Buy chicken giblets, the necks, gizzards, hearts and livers. By adding to these half a pound of veal cutlet there is enough for an excellent chicken pie. Put the giblets into a saucepan with a pint of cold water, a slice of onion, a small carrot and a level teaspoonful of salt. Simmer until there is only half a cup of liquid. Strain this and set aside. Cut the veal into small cubes and cook slowly until well done and a light brown. Put into a baking dish with the giblets cut up and scatter a little salt fat pork, cut to shreds, through the meat. Thicken the chicken liquor slightly with flour moistened with water to a paste. Cover with good, rich pie paste, puff paste if you have it, and bake in a steady oven for an hour and a half.

PROMINENT SOCIETY WOMEN WHO MINISTERS TO WASHINGTON'S SOCIAL REQUIREMENTS

MRS. PETER RATHBONE LABOUISSE

There is one woman socially prominent in Washington who declares she is not ashamed of work. She is Mrs. Peter Rathbone Labouisse, daughter of Mr. Frederick H. Townsend, of New York. She was formerly the wife of Mr. S. Osgood Pell, of New York.

When Mrs. Labouisse married the second time and went to Washington she found it necessary to find something to do, despite the luxury she had been accustomed to all her life.

A concern with offices in New York, London and Paris, known as the Bureau of Social Requirements, wanted to open an office in Washington. Mrs. Labouisse applied for the place and got it. This was several months ago, and according to her friends she has "made good."

"We are not in the first aid to society climbers' business," said Mrs. Labouisse, "but our field is large. When a woman finds the details of carrying through a ball or dinner too much for her, we gladly do it. We will make anything from a flimsy masquerade dress to a handsome evening gown costing thousands. We deal with the servant problem or find houses."

The young couple were unattended, as only the friends of the contracting parties were present, Rev. C. W. Holdsworth officiating. The bride was prettily attired in a cream serge dress with lace trimming. After the ceremony, the guests adjourned to the dining room, where they partook of a sumptuous dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left on the afternoon train for a tour to Toronto, the bride traveling in a smart tailored suit of grey with black picture hat and sable furs.

On their return they will take up residence in Havelock. Their many [illegible] friends join in wishing them every happiness.

Winnipeg Police Honors.

An item of interest in the recent New Year's honors was the presence of three Winnipeg police officers who received medals. Their exploits justify the recognition bestowed on them.

Ex-Chief McRae, who has been living in the city in retirement for many years, since his resignation, has a long career of thirty years' service behind him, he having held every office on the Winnipeg police force from constable to chief.

William Patrick Traynor and Hugh J. Brown, who have been given the medal for heroic conduct in the performance of their duty, earned it Aug. 23, 1911, when they took part in the arrest of the notorious "Kelly and Jones" bandits—the Mecum brothers—now in Kingston Penitentiary.

The brothers were fleeing before a posse of constables when Traynor, then a constable, rounded them up in a house on Rachel street. Traynor was badly wounded by the bandits as they came out, he having fired upon them twice, although covered from the start by four revolvers. Traynor is now desk sergeant in the Central police station. He has been on the force for seven years.

Brown, who left the force a few months ago after two years' service, was a constable who helped make the arrest. Unarmed, he leapt on a street car on which were the two men with drawn revolvers, fusillading the streets. A bullet passed through the leg of his trousers, but he was unhurt, and assisted to down the desperadoes.

MUST PROVE RILEY KILLED HIS WIFE

His Admission of Guilt Will Not be Considered

The One Regret of Murderer is That He Did Not Kill Durfey

HAMILTON, Feb. 3.—Although Thomas Riley pleaded guilty to murdering his wife on Thursday evening a trial will be necessary. A peculiar feature of the law is the fact that Riley's admission of guilt will not be considered, it being up to the crown authorities to prove that he really did commit the heinous crime. After the preliminary hearing in the police court next Wednesday morning, Riley will be sent back to the jail until the spring assizes in March. When his case is called, the crown will have to furnish counsel for him and prove without a shadow of a doubt that he is a murderer.

Inquiries at the jail this morning elicited the information that the confessed wife murderer is maintaining the stoic indifference which has characterized him since his arrest. His one regret is that he did not make what he termed a "good job of its" by killing Sanford Durfey. Riley has slept soundly and at no time has expressed the slightest remorse for the brutal murder.

Chief Smith, who has taken complete charge of the case, announced this morning that at the preliminary hearing on Wednesday morning Mrs. Durfey and her daughter, Maud, would be the only witnesses called to testify.

The Word "Lubber."

And where he is louted and laughed to scorn
For the veriest dolt that ever was born
And the veriest lubber, sloven and beast
Living in the world from the west to the east.

Tusser uses the word in "Five Hundred Pointes of Good Husbandrie," 1580, page 131 (E. D. S):

For tempests and showers deceiveth a menie,
And lingering lubbers loose many a penie.

The word "lubbers" was in constant use in the sixteenth century and occurs at least twice in Udal's translation of Erasmus' "Apophthegmes." Almost 200 years before this Langland told of the "grete lobres and longe" who were too idle to work.—London Notes and Queries.

Not For Fashion's Sake.

The criminal law of England was formerly marked by indiscriminating severity. Theft of an article valued above 10 shillings was punished with death. In writing about "Sweet Hampstead and Its Associations" Mrs. White records a pleasant thing of Lord Mansfield, who as a rule leaned to the side of mercy. It was Lord Mansfield who directed a jury to find a stolen trinket less in value than 10 shillings in order that the thief might escape capital punishment. To this the jeweler who prosecuted demurred, asserting that the fashion of the thing had cost him twice that money.

"Gentlemen," replied the judge, with grave solemnity, "we ourselves stand in need of mercy. Let us not hang a man for the fashion's sake!"

Lofty Golf Course.

Gyantse, in Tibet, boasts the highest golf course in the world. The next highest is the course at Gulmerg, in the Himalayas, which is 8,500 feet above the sea level, but Gyantse, standing at a height of 13,100 feet, easily bears off the palm for golf at a high altitude.

Forwood, T. O. Anderson, A. H. Black (Oshawa), W. C. Armstrong (Chatham), D. T. Hepburn (Uxbridge), N. F. Davidson, K.C., E. H. Osler (Cobourg).

It was moved by A. W. Austin, seconded by E. W. Hamber, that Sir Edmund B. Osler, M.P., do take the chair, and that C. A. Bogert do act as Secretary.

Messrs. A. R. Boswell and W. Gibson Cassels were appointed Scrutineers.

The Secretary read the Report of the Directors to the Shareholders, and submitted the Annual Statement of the affairs of the Bank, which is as follows:

TO THE SHAREHOLDERS:—

The Directors beg to submit the Forty-Second Annual Report of the affairs of the Bank, and the result of its operations for the twelve months ended 31st December, 1912, which they feel will be received with satisfaction by the Shareholders:—

Balance of Profit and Loss Account 30th December, 1911		$ 500,116 10
Net profits for the year, after deducting all charges and making full Provision for bad and doubtful debts		901,529 44
Premium received on new Capital Stock		297,200 63
Making a total of		$1,698,846 17
Which has been disposed of as follows:—
Dividends quarterly at Twelve per cent. per annum	$588,536 53
Bonus, Two per cent.	100,000 00
Total distribution to Shareholders of Fourteen per cent. for the year	$688,536 53
Contribution to Officers' Pension Fund	25,000 00
Transferred to Reserve Fund Premium on New Stock	297,200.63	$1,010,737.16
Balance of Profit and Loss carried forward		$ 688,109 01

RESERVE FUND.

Balance at credit of account, 30th December, 1911	$5,702,799 37
Transferred from Profit and Loss Account	297,200.63
	$6,000,000.00

There has been a further gratifying increase in the business of the Bank, as evidenced by the figures in the Statement presented. The prosperity of the country, and the consequent demand for banking accommodation, permitted the employment of its funds to unusual advantage throughout the year, resulting in earnings sufficient to enable the Directors to distribute a bonus of 2% in addition to the usual dividend of 12%.

To meet the general expansion of business in Canada, in which this Bank continues to participate, your Directors decided to issue to the Shareholders of record of the 15th February, 1913, a further $1,000,000 of new Capital Stock at a premium of 100.

This issue is a part of the $5,000,000 of new Stock authorized by the Shareholders at the Annual Meeting of the 26th January, 1910, and duly approved by the Treasury Board at Ottawa. Particulars of this allotment will be given forthwith to the Shareholders by circular. When payment of this issue has been made in full, the paid-up Capital of the Bank will amount to $6,000,000, and of the total Authorised Capital of $10,000,000 there remain unissued $4,000,000.

Owing to the growing importance of the Bank's business, the Directors considered it advisable to recommend an increase in their number from nine to eleven, and a By-Law will be submitted to you covering this change.

You will also be asked to give your sanction to a By-Law increasing the remuneration of the Directors, made necessary by these additions to the Board.

In connection with Bank Premises, the year just closed was one of unusual importance, several transactions of great moment having been brought to completion.

You were informed at the Annual Meeting in 1911 of the purchase of the property on the Northeast Corner of King and Yonge Sts., Toronto, for purposes of Head Office premises, as your Directors were at that time unable to acquire sufficient land immediately adjoining the present site. Last year, however, they succeeded in purchasing the property directly south of that now occupied and extending to Melinda street. A sale of the Northeast Corner was subsequently effected at a satisfactory price.

Plans have been prepared, and it is the intention to begin active operations at an early date for the erection of a building that should meet the Bank's requirements for many years to come.

Necessary outlays have been made for improvements to several Offices already established, for new Branches opened, and for the purchase of the premises which the Bank has for many years occupied at the Corner of Queen and Sherbourne Streets, Toronto, and at Oshawa, Ont.

Sites were also secured at West Toronto, Edmonton South (formerly Strathcona), Elmwood (Winnipeg), and additional property was acquired adjoining our Windsor, Ont., Branch.

Branches of the Bank were opened in 1912 as follows: In Ontario—Dupont and Christie Sts., Roncesvalles and High Park Avenues, Dufferin St. and Lappin Avenue, Dufferin St. and St. Clair Avenue, Toronto; By-Ward Market Branch, Ottawa; and Port Arthur.

In the Western Provinces—Swift Current, Moose Jaw (South Hill Branch), Saskatchewan; Edmonton (First St. Branch), Calgary (Riverside Branch), Alberta; North Vancouver, British Columbia.

New Dundee and Malton, Ont., and Wawota, Sask., Branches were closed in 1912.

Every Branch of the Bank has been inspected during the year by Head Office officials, specially qualified for such duties, and, as is customary, the Balance Sheet of the 31st December, 1912, including the Cash Assets and Investments of the Institution, has been verified by a Committee of your Directors.

E. B. OSLER,
President.

Toronto, 29th January, 1913.

The Report was adopted.

A By-Law was passed, authorizing an increase in the number of Directors from nine to eleven.

The thanks of the Shareholders were tendered to the President, Vice-President and Directors for their services during the year and to the General Manager and other Officers of the Bank for the efficient performance of their respective duties.

The following gentlemen were duly elected Directors for the ensuing year:—Messrs. A. W. Austin, W. R. Brock, James Carruthers, R. J. Christie, J. C. Eaton, J. J. Foy, K.C., M.L.A., E. W. Hamber, H. W. Hutchinson, W. D. Matthews, A. M. Nanton and Sir Edmund B. Osler, M.P.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Sir Edmund B. Osler, M.P., was elected President, and Mr. W. D. Matthews, Vice-President, for the ensuing term.

The Two Coats Were There.

Sometimes the more you get a negro cornered the less cornered you have him. This fact, long known to many, was discovered the other day by a leather man in the "swamp."

This man suddenly awoke to the fact that certain back walls were dingy with dirt and decided they'd look much better if whitewashed.

So he summoned his old negro factotum and told him to get busy with his whitewash brush, giving special directions to put two coats on.

When the job apparently had been finished the leather merchant inspected it and found the whitewash suspiciously thin looking.

Summoning Sambo, he said as sternly as he could, "You didn't go over those walls twice as I told you to."

"No, sir," was the quick reply. "I ain't gone over twice, but I done put two coats in de pail, sir—two coats in de pail."—New York Mail.

She Was So Sure.

A woman who may be called Mrs. Smith placed her umbrella against the counter at which she was making some purchases in a department store the other day and when she finished picked it up and started away. At least that was the way it ran through her mind.

"Pardon me," said a strange woman, "but you have my umbrella."

"Oh, no," said Mrs. Smith; "that is my umbrella."

"Pardon me again," insisted the strange woman, "but it is mine."

"I guess I know my umbrella," said Mrs. Smith, beginning to show fight. "If you have lost your umbrella I am sorry, but I can't give you mine."

"Did you carry two umbrellas when you left home?" asked the stranger.

Then Mrs. Smith discovered that she had an umbrella in each hand, and she surrendered.—Cleveland Press.

Salmon Cutlets.

For a hot dish salmon cutlets are easily prepared. They may be made from the surplus of boiled salmon. Shred cold boiled salmon with a fork; moisten it with a little melted butter or, better still, if you have it, some lobster sauce. Season with salt and cayenne pepper. Form into flat pear shaped cutlets about half an inch thick, roll each in breadcrumbs, dip in beaten egg, cover once more with breadcrumbs and fry to a delicate brown in butter. Serve, with sprigs of parsley stuck in, on a platter. They look well when surrounded by marble potatoes which are garnished with little sprigs of parsley.

THE SPORTING WORLD

TWO SENIOR GAMES AND ONE INTERMEDIATE THIS WEEK

Peterborough fans will have a full hockey bill-o'-fare this week as the seniors have a game with Kingston Frontenacs on Wednesday and another with Toronto Varsity on Friday night.

Trenton intermediates are also due to play here this week, the scheduled game having been postponed. The "last hopes" too, must play away from home, with Port Hope and Cobourg.

PETES HAD BETTER OF PLAY BUT FAILED AT THE NETS

TORONTO, Feb. 3— Varsity, with three players on their team that played Friday evening, defeated Peterboro Saturday afternoon at the Arena in a senior O. H. A. contest, by the score of 7 to 6, the winners being ahead at half-time by 3 to 1.

Peterborough had much the better of the play, especially in the second half, and but for Parker's brilliant work in goal, would have won, although their poor shooting at critical stages was perhaps the real cause of their downfall.

The closeness of the score was the only thing that made the game interesting, the players being inclined to bunch together too frequently, and the roaming away from their positions broke up combination, and resulted in a case of individualism all through.

Peterborough had it on the students for speed and stickhandling ability, but they wasted their good efforts by bad work when in close. Coughlin did some great stickhandling and rushing, but was inclined to be too hoggish with the puck.

The teams.

Referee— H. Sproule.

JUNIORS LEAD IN GOAL GETTING

Their Record for Season is 44 For and 21 Against

Peterborough seniors have scored 19 goals, and 34 have been scored against them. The intermediates have netted 27, or eight more than has been marked against the team. The juniors have allowed 21 get past, but have tallied 44.

HIS 24th TRIP TO WINNIPEG

Lindsay's Veteran Curler Off to Western Metropolis

The veteran J. D. Flavelle and his rink of colts left for Toronto to-day, where they will entrain on Pullman sleeper for Winnipeg, the sporty western city, where the big curling bonspiel is pulled off yearly. The rink this year will be made up as follows: R. Butler (lead) E. Williams (second) F. J Carew, (vice-skip,) and J. D. Flavelle, (skip.) It is expected that Messrs. Carew and Butler will take turn about in playing vice-skip, in the various competitions.

"J. F." the king of curlers, has been in the game for 40 years, and enjoys the game just as much now as he did in his youthful days. In fact, he never seems to grow old. He has gone to Winnipeg for 24 years, and only three of all those taking part in the first bonspiel he attended there were presnet last winter.—Lindsay Warder.

SUSIE HALL AND HARRY DIRECT IN STRAIGHT HEATS

Two Peterborough horses, Susie Hall and Harry Direct, both owned by Dr. Johnston, found the wire for first places in the ice races at Port Hope on Saturday. The local steppers, driven by Merton Storey, were bang full of ginger, and Susie Hall's work against Sylvia T., of Woodstock, was a bright feature of the meet. Sylvia T. was a big favorite till the horses went away for the first heat in the free-for-all, when Susie Hall surplanted the western horse and came home as she liked. Jerry Dillard made a strong showing. The standing was:

Sylvia T.	3	2	3
Dot L.	4	Drop

Time 2.24; 2.24 1-2; 2.23.

Harry Direct	1	1	1
Gilford Boy	3	3	3

Time 2.26 1-2; 2.27, 2.30 1-2.

Susie Hall's fine work came as a big surprise to the visiting horsemen, as Sylvia T. was conceded the race. The performance of the Johnston horse, however, was not any surprise to her owner, as she did a mile in 2.16 1-5 several days ago. The two rivals will likely meet again at the Picton races next week.

HOCKEY

Denison, the Peterborough tourist, is said to be playing with Ottawa College in the Interprovincial Association. He is classified by the O. H. A. and the Amateur Athletic Union as not eligible for amateur competition. Denison was banished with Hamilton Alerts, and was not long in locating elsewhere. Another bona fide resident, young Langman, was here seeking employment with the Toronto professionals before the voice of the exposition had died away. They made him so trifling an offer after a trial, that he returned to Hamilton to appear again in the bona fide class. As Langman's hockey record also includes a term with Detroit, where he worked for the ice company that owns the rink, his prospects of ever receiving an O. H. A. certificate cannot be described as brilliant.—Toronto Globe.

The intermediates go to Port Hope to-morrow night.

The T.C.S. hockey team, of Port Hope, arrived on the noon train for the game with the local P.C.I. at the Brock street rink this afternoon between five and six o'clock.

He Needed Proof.

It was after 10 o'clock at night, and the jury had just been discharged.

A stout juryman came over to the reporters' table. He had a worried look.

"You are an Evening News man aren't you?"

"Yes."

"Are you going to report this case?"

"Yes."

"For tomorrow's paper?"

"Yes."

"Would you mind putting in a line saying that the jury was out until 10 o'clock?"

"I'll mention it, if you wish."

"I certainly hope you will. You have no idea how much I want you to. You are a young man and probably you're not married yet, but some day you'll have a wife, and then you'll understand."—Newark News.

Food Tasters at Feasts.

The sixteenth century feast was a round of precautions. The table laid, the pantler at once tasted the bread and salt as a preliminary "feeler." Then my lord washed in water tested for poison and dried with a towel already kissed as a like precaution, this the while each dish of the first course, then on the dresser, was being tasted by the stewards and cooks under the direction of the sewer. The dishes then came to the high table, and "assays" was taken by the carver and the sewer himself. Nothing was left to chance. Pieces were chipped from each leaf and corners from all meats. Pies were broken open and "cornets" of bread dipped into several places and swallowed by the tasters. Granted the well being of these tasters, the feast could then proceed.—London Chronicle.

A BACHELOR'S POETIC OUTBURST

Dear sir, I am a bachelor.
My income is twelve hun'.
'Tis small no doubt, yet I contrive
To have a lot of fun.

You'll think me selfish, yet until
I'm richer, I must own,
I'd rather be a bachelor
And jog along alone.

Far be it from me to deride
Or scoff at wedded bliss.
I've thought the matter over well,
And my opinion's this:

Though bachelors are selfish things,
'Twould just as selfish be
To take a wife and bring her to
A life of drudgery.

Suppose I loved a girl (I do),
D'you think I'd care to see
Her toil and soil her pretty hands
The livelong day for me?

If I grow rich I'll crave the hand
Of her whom I adore;
If not, dear sir, I must remain
A lonely bachelor.

Controlling a Trust.

London traffic is now in the grip of Sir Edgar Speyer, who is the head of a newly-formed trust which controls several motor-bus' companies, six railway companies, and two tramways.

This financial genius is a Frankfort Jew, who went to London at the age of twenty-five to take charge of the business of Speyer Bros., and he has greatly prospered and made his home in the metropolis. The trust which he controls has a capital of something like twenty-seven millions, figures which bear ample testimony to the scope of his financial operations. In the business world Sir Edgar is one of the big men who quietly pull the wires behind the scenes, and he is known to the general public for his munificent donations. He has given large sums to the King Edward VII. Hospital Fund, and the founding of an Art Gallery in Whitechapel was largely due to his efforts. He is chairman of the Queen's Hall Orchestra, and has done much to popularize orchestral music.

Sir Edgar Speyer possesses a handsome town house in Grosvenor street, which he has filled with precious works of art, and he also maintains a pleasant retreat on the Norfolk coast.

High Priced Poems.

What is the highest price ever paid by a publisher for a poem? It would be interesting to know whether any advance has ever been made on the £3,000 ($15,000) that Scott received for "Rokeby." Stephen Gwynn, in his "Life of Moore," tells us that Murray offered 2,000 guineas for the copyright of "Lalla Rookh," "but Moore's friends thought he should have more and, going to Longman, they claimed that Mr. Moore should receive no less than the highest price ever paid for a poem. 'That,' said Longman, 'was £3,000, paid for "Rokeby."' On this basis they treated, and Longman was inclined to stipulate for a preliminary perusal, Moore, however, refused, and the agreement was finally worded, 'That upon your giving into our hands a poem of the length of "Rokeby" you shall receive from us the sum of £3,000.' "—London Chronicle.

The Alps Will Be Washed Away.

The Alps, from a geological point of view, are very recent. The Welsh hills, though, comparatively speaking, insignificant, are far more ancient. They had been mountains for ages and ages before the materials which now compose the Rigi or the Pilatus were deposited. Indeed, we may say that it is because they are so old that they have been so much worn down. The Alps themselves are crumbling and being washed away, and if no fresh elevation takes place the time will come when they will be no loftier than Snowdon or Helvellyn. They have already undergone enormous denudation, and it has been shown that from the summit of Mont Blanc some 10,000 or 12,000 feet of strata have been already removed. Denudation began as soon as the land rose above the sea and the main river valleys were excavated.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Grewsome Wedding Present.

Among the Brass river tribes of west Africa when a young couple get married it is the custom for the oldest member of the bride's family to present the bride with a plot of ground six feet long. This is for the grave of her family and herself when they die. The first member of the new family who dies is buried about twenty feet below the ground and the next one almost sixteen feet, and this goes on until all the family die and are buried. The grave holds them all, and this, they think, prevents them from being separated. This grewsome wedding present is the one most valued by the bride, the favorite native saying being, "When all other things are gone this remains."

The Wasted Witticism.

"I always thought," said the hostess, "that Scotchmen were humorous. One night I showed a departing Scotch guest a great pile of overcoats in the dressing room.

"'Here,' I said, with a wave of my hand, 'you are the first to leave. Take your choice.'

"'Thank you,' said he as he fumbled searchingly among them; 'I'll 'ave me own.'"—Exchange.

LOCAL POWER COMPANY IS NOW CUTTING PRICES

Fight Against the Hydro System Has Started, According to Ald. Johnson.

The leading local Power Company has started in to fight the Hydro electric system already, and in the same way that the big corporations have fought the people's power distribution plants in other cities that declared for municipal ownership—by offering low rates for a long term of years. It is claimed that reductions amounting to 30 and 40 per cent. have been made to George street merchants for signing a five year contract.

Speaking about the civic power system this morning, Ald. Johnson, chairman of the Power Committee, said he was surprised to hear that some strong exponents of the Hydro had listened to the song of the siren—the electric ring—and signed long term contracts with the company, although it is expected that the civic plant (which will be their own) will be installed at no distant date. The aldermen takes the stand that every ratepayer who voted for the Hydro by-law is morally bound to co-operate to make the system successful, and the more users there are the lower the price will be.

WOMAN MET HER DEATH FROM INFERNAL MACHINE

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The Cuban superintendent of a Jewish tenement house at 1475 Fulton Ave., the Bronx, found a mysterious-looking package, wrapped up and not addressed, in the vestibule of his apartment house last night at 9 o'clock. He took it into his wife, and she opened it in his presence and in the presence of a woman boarder. The wife was killed, the superintendent and the woman boarder were badly injured. The injured were taken to Fordham Hospital with two score or more wounds in their bodies made by brass and steel and iron slugs, pieces of glass and other scraps which had been put into the infernal machine.

BRAKEMAN DIED FROM INJURIES

Was Crushed While Adjusting Coupling Pin

TORONTO, Feb. 3—While coupling cars in the Mimico yards Saturday afternoon, James Mitchell, a Grand Trunk brakesman, received injuries from which he died a short while later. He had stepped between the two cars, but the one which was being shunted along came faster than he had expected, and he was caught while fixing the coupling pin.

Mitchell was rushed to Grace Hospital, but died as he was being taken to the operating room. Deceased was 45 years of age and married, and lived at 232 River Street.

PLUMBERS WANT HIGHER WAGES

ST. CATHARINES, Feb. 3.—The journeymen plumbers of St. Catharines went out on strike Saturday, completely tying up all plumbing work in this city. About forty men are involved, and unless a speedy settlement is brought about much suffering will be felt in this district, as the sudden cold snap has created a great demand for work of this kind.

The men who now receive a minimum of thirty-five cents per hour, are asking for an immediate increase to forty cents and an additional advance to forty-five cents on August 1st. The master plumbers have offered forty cents for the year round, but this has been refused by the journeymen.

HOME RE-UNION ASSOCIATION

Many Applications Are Expected This Spring

On Saturday night a meeting was held at the office of G. N. Gordon, Chairman of the Home Re-union Association, and applications were passed upon to make advances to bring families of British workingmen employed in Peterborough to this city. The Association expects to have a very large number of applications this Spring and nearly $1,000 so far has been loaned to workingmen and in every case, the repayment of the advances by instalments, has been met promptly.

For the information of those who may be thinking of taking the advantage of the existence of this Association, it might be said that there are no charges whatever, except that the bank charges 6 p.c. upon the amount of the advances and gives credit as payments are made, direct to the bank. The members of the association guarantee to the bank repayment of the advances and if an applicant has a good steady position and his reputation is good, the committee invariably passes favorably upon the application.

G. N. Gordon is chairman of the Committee and J. J. Turner, jr., is Secretary, and the members of the Committee are Walter Stocker, Samuel Jay, William Guy, Walter Oke, and Thomas Pitchford.

MANY WILL RESPOND TO CALL OF THE WEST

Present indications all point towards a big exodus of local people to the West in the spring. The railway offices are receiving numerous enquiries concerning rates, routes, etc., and they anticipate heavy traffic just as soon as the weather opens up warmer. While quite a number of the enquiries are received from rural residents and prospective farmers, yet there are also many from residents of the city. The West will take quite a number of the younger element this spring, many of whom are attracted by the expectations of greater opportunities in the Prairie Provinces.

Dear Sir,—May I ask you to be kind enough to publish the enclosed letter:

In my pages on "The Canadian and British News," I have a section called "The Young Britannic Legion," where there is an interchange of letters between children here and in the Mother Land, and I hope through it to prepare good citizens better versed in the ways of the Dominion than are many of those who have come to our shores.

As my correspondent is a Peterborough maiden, I am sure she would specially appreciate letters from a little girl from Peterborough in the new world.

Yours sincerely,
G. C. MARY WHITE.

BOYS HAD A LONG SKATE

Three local youths, who are rather fond of outdoor exercise, decided to take a walk to increase their appetites. Starting out yesterday morning, they walked to Chemong Park, a distance of about 7 miles. After reaching there they had a cool and refreshing skate on the lake. One of them dared his companions to skate to Young's Point. Of course the challenge was taken up. After skating a short distance, they found the channel was open and were forced to take to land and walk for a considerable distance. After skating and walking by turns, they reached Young's Point in the afternoon. After a short rest in that hamlet of peace and quietness, they hit the trail for home, arriving in the city last evening in time for supper, which was enjoyed very much.

The three pedestrians are known in this city as Harold Hill, "Bill" Hall and "Bill" McNight.

Many people do not want to hear the truth, or acknowledge it, or act upon it. They want to fool along with a theory that is more troublesome, more unprofitable, more objectionable in every way, than the truth.

ALLIES AGAIN BOMBARD THE OUTER LINES OF ADRIANOPLE

After an Armistice of Two Months the Balkan States and Turkey Are Again at Each Other's Throats--Allies Plan to Drive the Ottoman Empire Completely From European Soil.

Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON, Feb. 4— A terrific bombardment of Adrianople at the outer line fortifications was begun last evening by one hundred thousand Bulgarians and Servians. The Turks are said to have forty thousand men in the garrison and commander Shukri promises to not surrender the place until the last soldier is killed. The prophecy of the Bulgarian staff that Adrianople will fall in two weeks is not taken seriously by impartial military men.

SOFIA, Feb. 4.—Unofficial advices from the front report that bombardment continued this morning with greater intensity, and parts of Adrianople are in flames. All is quiet along the Tchataldja lines.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The Balkan war has been resumed. The bombardment of Adrianople began at 7 o'clock last night and a small skirmish occurred at the Tchataldja lines. The armistice has lasted exactly two months. Bulgaria has turned a deaf ear to the remonstrances of the powers, and, unless Turkey yields to the Balkan demands, the allied armies will now attempt to drive her completely out of Europe.

According to a despatch from Belgrade last night, Scutari is already on the point of falling. It is reported that the Turkish commander has sent two representatives to the Servian commander to propose the capitulation of that town.

Dr. Daneff, head of the Bulgarian delegation, in an interview in Paris last night, said he had promised Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, that if the Turks immediately accepted the allies conditions, they would conclude peace, but whatever happened there would be no further armistice.

Osman Nizami Pasha, the second Turkish delegate, will leave London to-day to resume his ambassadorial duties at Berlin. He said last evening that from information received from military sources he believed that the allies under-estimated the condition of the Turkish army, and that they would find themselves confronted by a redoubtable enemy—the best Mussulman warriors, veterans from Arabia, who had fought under Izzet Bey and tried soldiers and good marksmen lately engaged in Tripoli under Enver Bey and Fethy Bey.

He added: "That ambassador was right who predicted that if driven to despair the Turks would fight like wild animals."

MURDER CHARGE

Against Bruce Flintall Whose Father Died From Blow.

BRIGHTON, Feb. 4.—Reuben Flintall, a farmer of Murray township, Northumberland county, who it is alleged was struck with a sleigh stake, died yesterday, and the arrest of the son on a charge of murder followed. The trouble between father and son is reported to have arisen over the refusal of the father to allow his son to take out one of the horses for a ride. Bruce Flintall is in Cobourg jail, where he was taken yesterday by Provincial Constable Jarvis of Bowmanville. The arrest was the outcome of an investigation made by Provincial Inspector J. Miller, who arrived yesterday morning from Toronto. An inquest was opened yesterday and adjourned a week.

According to information received here by Inspector Miller, Bruce Flintall, the son, enjoyed a good reputation in the neighborhood of his home, being a prominent worker in the local church. His father, it is alleged, had resorted to violence on more than one occasion. Not long ago, it is said, the father left his son, Bruce, lying insensible in a field, having hit him with a shovel.

It is also stated that deceased recently threw a stone at a cow, breaking the animal's leg.

Provincial Inspector Miller was busy yesterday gathering evidence relating to the quarrel which resulted in the death of Reuben Flintall. It is said that as the young man walked towards the barn to take out the horse his father followed, throwing stones at him. The son, according to this version, was driven into a corner, and picked up a sleigh stake to defend himself. The father was struck once, and his skull fractured.

READ POEM AT GRAVE

Beattie Nesbitt's Own Verses Recited at His Funeral.

TORONTO, Feb. 4.—Together with a grief-stricken family and relatives, hundreds of citizens of this city paid their last tributes to the late Dr. Beattie Nesbitt at his funeral from 71 Grosvenor street, his late residence, yesterday afternoon. The service at the house was conducted by the Ven. Archdeacon Cody, who also, with District Master George Rowe, W. J. Stathers and District Chaplain W. T. Hockins of the Loyal Orange Order, read the services at the chapel in St. James' Cemetery.

Strikingly appropriate to the occasion Archdeacon Cody, in the course of the service at the family residence, read, at the request of Mrs. Nesbitt, a poem of three stanzas, composed by the former Conservative member on his sick bed last Christmas Day. The last stanza is as follows:

"Looking, they felt that wondrous love—
Messages to man from God above,
Who gave His own to suffer and die,
From lowly manger to cross on high,
For thus He sought to make it plain
That only through love can we all regain."

SPOKEN OF AS DUKE OF CONNAUGHT'S SUCCESSOR

EARL BEAUCHAMP

William Lygon, seventh Earl Beauchamp, who is spoken of as the Duke of Connaught's successor as Governor General of Canada, was born on February 20, 1872, and succeeded his father in 1891. He married in 1902 Lady Lettice Grosvenor, daughter of the late Earl Grosvenor and sister of the Duke of Westminster. He has two sons and four daughters. He was Mayor of Worcester in 1895 and Governor of New South Wales from 1899 to 1900. He was Lord Steward of the Household to King Edward.

DR. WORKMAN WILL APPEAL

MONTREAL, Feb. 4.—That an appeal would be taken from the judgment of the Court of Appeal of this province, upsetting the finding of Mr. Justice Weir, who allowed Dr. Workman $3,500 for his dismissal from the position of professor of the Wesleyan college here, was announced by Elliott and David, lawyers for Dr. Workman, yesterday morning.

"Such an important case cannot rest where it is," said Mr. Elliott. "Theological thought and belief must be modernized. We must bring them up to date, and in an attempt to do something towards that end we shall take this case to the highest court in the Empire. I thoroughly believe that our client will be vindicated by the Privy Council."

WILL REGULATE WATER POWER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—A favorable report on a bill for general regulation of the use of the water of Niagara River for power purposes was agreed upon late yesterday by the House foreign affairs committee. The measure would provide that the Secretary of War issue permits for the diversion of water on the American side under condition that the company receiving it shall comply with any and all regulations as to rates and service of the state in which power is generated or transmitted.

No change would be made in the existing law limiting the amount of water to be diverted on the American side to 15,600 cubic feet a second. The Secretary would be authorized to issue permits for the diversion of water below as well as above the Falls, and the transmission of power from the Canadian side would be directed in issuing permits for plants above the Falls to have "due regard for those investments which already have been made."

Big Dock Strike Spreads.

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, Feb. 4.—The strike of dock laborers at this port is rapidly extending. The men demand 20 cents an hour instead of the customary payment of eight cents an hour. The steamship companies are firmly opposed to the increase.

Johnson's Appeal Dismissed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The Supreme Court yesterday dismissed the appeal of Jack Johnson, the negro pugilist, indicted in Chicago on a charge of violating the federal white slave act, from the decision of the Federal Court of Northern Illinois.

THREE WEEKS IS TOO RACY

Book is Among Publications Seized by Police.

MONTREAL, Feb. 4.—With a bundle of books entitled "Three Weeks" and a box filled with a publication called "Illustrated Bits," special detectives who have been looking in all news stands for immoral literature, arrived at police headquarters yesterday and asked for the arrest of several news dealers on a charge of offering and keeping for sale immoral and obscene literature.

The raid is a result of special efforts made lately to stamp out all immoral literature in Montreal.

Bonds To Be Extradited.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 4.—C. A. Bonds, arrested in Winnipeg, is wanted here to receive a sentence in the U. S. District Court. A jury found him guilty of having used the mails to defraud in connection with the operations of his bank and those conducted by E. L. Hendrey, W. C. Wynne, and Abner Davis, who received sentences on similar charges.

Casey Todd, U. S. district attorney at Memphis, said he would leave at once for Winnipeg and personally conduct extradition proceedings against Bonds.

Spanish Anarchists Arrested.

CERBERE, France, Feb. 4.—An anarchist plot has been discovered at Huelva, Spain. Prof. Francisco Sanchez, of the Barcelona modern school, Emiliano Barral and Antonio Oliveria, the latter two well known as anarchists, have been arrested on the charge of being implicated.

REBELS MAKE ATTACK ON TRAIN

Many Women Passengers Were Carried Away.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 4.—Rebel followers of Gen. Zapata attacked a passenger train traveling from Mexico City to Ozumba, 45 miles south of the capital, Sunday night, killing or wounding all the soldiers of the train's escort of twenty men. Four male passengers were killed and many of the women passengers were carried off by the rebels.

The train was halted by the derailment of the engine in a cut. The rebels then began firing on the train from all sides of the cut at a distance of less than two yards, concentrating their fire on the troop car.

RICHEST BABY GETS SPANKING

And Maid Did Not Wait to Receive Notice.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 4.—Palm Beach went into history yesterday as the place where Vinson McLean, the $100,000,000 baby, got his first spanking.

According to the story circulated the three-year-old son of Edward B. McLean of Washington, received a brief but thorough, barehanded castigation from Mrs. McLean's personal maid, who, to avoid the expected wrath to come, immediately packed her things and left for parts unknown.

What makes it particularly humiliating for young McLean is the fact that he is to be "a man's boy," his father has said, and for that reason only men nurses and detective guards were presumed to touch him.

CONFESSES TO POLICE

Canadian Press Despatch.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Feb. 4.—John Paul Farrell, employed in the Bronx apartment house, where a bomb exploded Sunday night killing Mrs. Herrera, has made a full confession to the police.

Farrell constructed at police headquarters a bomb similar to the one exploded in the Herrera flat. The police will try to connect Farrell with bomb explosions which killed Mrs. Helen Taylor and failed to kill Judge Rosalsky, some months ago.

ENGLAND'S CHANCELLOR OF EXCHEQUER, WHOM SUFFRAGETTES ARE DENOUNCING

MR AND MRS LLOYD GEORGE

Mr. David Lloyd-George, England's Chancellor of the Exchequer, is in the limelight just now as a result of the activities of the militant suffragettes. Whenever he appears in public Mr. Lloyd-George is openly denounced by the suffragettes, some of whom have threatened that there will be "war to the knife" and "lots of trouble" for the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

The above is a recent snapshot of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd-George taken in the streets of London.

OPENING OF THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE THIS AFTERNOON

Ontario's Progress Commented on in Speech From the Throne.

Canadian Press Despatch

TORONTO, Feb. 4.— The formal opening of Parliament this afternoon was, as usual, a brilliant social function. It is one of the occasions on which the handsomely gowned women occupy a large portion of the floor of the house, while the more sombre clad legislators are crowded into the back ground. The speech from the throne, which was supposed to forecast legislation for the session, referred to the general prosperity of the province and the fact that ten thousand immigrants had arrived during the year. Comment was made on the construction of the Elk Lake branch of T. & N. O., which was formally opened to-day. Good progress has been made at the new asylum at Whitby and the Central Prison at Guelph. The Hydro-Electric Commission serving nineteen municipalities a year ago, is now serving 85. On this business there is now a considerable surplus. The appropriation of a large sum of money for improved highways in the older portions of the province is indicated. The amount called for would be much larger than the five millions of dollars voted last session. Legislation affecting the hours of labor in mines and other matters of public importance are promised.

TORONTO, Feb. 4.—With the booming of cannon this afternoon the legislative mill will again begin to grind out new laws in the interest of all classes. For then the second session of the thirteen Legislature is opened with all the usual pomp and ceremony—which lasts about twenty minutes—before a large throng of dignitaries in all walks of life. The chamber this year presents an entirely new appearance. The walls and ceilings have been renovated, new carpets have been laid, and in fact there has been a general house-cleaning, preparatory to the opening of the Legislature by the Lieutenant-Governor, Sir John Gibson.

Sir John Gibson will make reference to the satisfactory condition of agriculture in Ontario during the past year, notwithstanding the unusual conditions which prevailed. This fact, he will say, testifies to the diversity and stability of this great industry. Satisfaction will be expressed at the new arrangement with the Dominion authorities whereby the Federal Department of Agriculture assist the Provincial Departments in their work. The general prosperity of the province as indicated by the large number of immigrants, who have settled in Ontario, will be referred to, along with the extensions and operations of the Government railway and the very considerable output of the mines.

He will mention the progress of the Central Prison Farm at Guelph, and the new asylum for the insane at Whitby, as well as other Government works, such as the Government House and the Parliament Buildings. It will also be intimated that the extension of agricultural education as well as the new provision for industrial training are showing satisfactory results. The Hydro Electric Commission will be commended for its greatly increased business and reduction of rates to the municipalities.

The new policy of development in New Ontario will be referred to, especially the vote of $5,000,000 by the last session has brought it about. Regret will be expressed that the action of the Canadian Senate prevented the Dominion Government from assisting in the development of highways in Ontario.

In connection with the new district of Patricia the Legislature will be informed that the report of the commissioner sent to select the route to Port Nelson will be laid before it, which report indicates that the country promises to be of considerable value, both from the standpoint of agriculture and minerals.

Legislation in respect of compensation for injuries to workmen and the hours of labor in mines, as well as other matters of public importance, will be foreshadowed in the speech.

A. H. Musgrove, member for North Huron, wil move, and Captain Machin of Kenora will second the address.

Three new members will be introduced to the House, while one veteran—Col. A J. Matheson, Provincial Treasurer—will be missing. His chair will not likely be draped until Wednesday. Immediately after the speech has been delivered, Hon. W. H. Hoyle, the Speaker, will take his chair in his robes of office, and read warrants for three elections—North Waterloo, East Middlesex and Muskoka. The novices in the Parliamentary game who will make their debut are Charles Mill, M.P.P. for North Waterloo; George W. Neeley of East Middlesex, and S. H. Armstrong of Muskoka, all of whom will be introduced by Sir James Whitney and Hon. J. J. Foy. After this little ceremony Sir James will set the time when the debate on the speech from the throne will begin.

FOOD FOR CATS

Oliver Wilcox, M.P., Wants to Know About Felines.

OTTAWA, Feb. 4.—Oliver Wilcox, Conservative member for North Essex, who is something of a practical joker, has given notice that he will move for the production of all letters, papers and documents, relative to an item of expenditure which appears on page 28 of the Auditor-General's report, namely, "food for cats, $30," and a detailed statement showing the bill of fare for the said cats, or wild cats, and if they are still in the service of the Government; together with all other information leading up to the said expenditure of public money."

It is understood that the explanation of this rather odd item of expenditure is that in certain warehouses where supplies are kept, there are a number of tabbies to protect the stores from rats and mice. Apparently, they are not self-supporting cats, or else the officials in charge thought they would be the better for an occasional change of diet.

Most people have a habit of giving away their sympathy, and keeping their money.

BIG INCREASE IN MAIN ESTIMATES

Total of $179,152,183 Will be Asked by Government up to March 31, 1914, Exclusive of Supplementary Estimates.

OTTAWA, Feb. 4.—Estimates for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1914, were tabled in the House yesterday by the Minister of Finance. These main estimates call for a total appropriation of $179,152,183, an increase of $9,925,815 as compared with the estimates for the current fiscal year.

The principal increases are: In militia and defence, $1,604,268; public works, $652,383; subsidies to provinces, $727,758; Dominion lands and parks, $620,800; collection of customs, $760,000; railways and canals, $3,045,815; and postoffice, $1,346,687. A notable feature of the latter increase is that it is principally for salaries of employes, the same applying also to customs and civil government in which the increase amounts to $369,046.

The appropriation for cadet corps is increased from $57,000 to $325,000. Other increases for militia are: For clothing, $191,500; for engineers services and works, $252,140; purchase of ordinance lands, arms, ammunition, and equipment, $530,865 (bringing the appropriation under this head up to $1,980,865) and for training areas a vote of $200,000 is asked for the purchase of land in the various districts.

The sum of $250,000 is asked for a new ice-breaker steamer for the St. Lawrence, and $145,000 for a fisheries patrol steamer for Lake Winnipeg.

Expenditures upon canals chargeable to capital include: $500,000 for waterway improvements at French River, and $2,000,000 for the Welland Canal construction.

The principal railway appropriation chargeable to capital are: Intercolonial, $7,239,650; P. E. I., $1,010,500; Hudson Bay, $4,500,000; National Transcontinental, $19,000,000; Quebec Bridge, $3,000,000.

The votes for Ontario public buildings are mainly revotes or votes to continue work already begun. New appropriations for public buildings include: Aurora, $20,000; Berlin, $40,000; Hamilton, for postal station "B," $10,000; London, for postoffice, $150,000; Milton, $25,000; Norwich, $15,000; Kingston, for construction of ordnance store building, $10,000.

Votes affecting Toronto include the following: Dominion buildings, improvements, renewals, repairs, etc., $7,000; customs examining warehouse, $500,000; military buildings, barracks for permanent corps, to replace property sold to the city, $250,000; military buildings, new stores building, $75,000; postal stations $352,500.

Ontario river and harbor improvements are continued where now in progress. There is also a vote of $30,000 to acquire land for harbor purposes at Port Credit; $50,000 for harbor improvements at Oshawa; $15,500 for wharf extensions and repairs at Brighton; $500,000 for harbor improvements at Toronto; $50,000 for the construction of a shelter basin at Sarnia; $75,000 for harbor improvements at Trenton.

The ports of Quebec and St. John, N.B., are to be liberally improved. Two million dollars are appropriated for Quebec harbor, including drydock, and St. John is granted $2,000,000 for general harbor improvements.

The Dominion Medical Council receives a grant of $15,000.

The House last night discussed at some length a resolution offered by Mr. Devlin (Wright), calling for the immediate construction of the Georgian Bay Canal. Mr. Devlin, Mr. White (Renfrew), Proulx (Prescott), Arthurs (Parry Sound), all earnestly supported the resolution and criticised the Welland Canal project. The debate was adjourned at midnight without any announcement of policy by the Government.

TEN MILLIONS FOR ROCKEFELLER

Shares in the $390,000,000 Standard Oil Melon

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—John D. Rockefeller is $10,000,000 richer today than he was yesterday. Of a special dividend declared by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey this amount approximately represents his share of a total distribution of $39,332,000 on the company's capital stock at the rate of $40 a share.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER

The huge "melon" comes as a result, it was indicated in a statement given out by the company, of the Supreme Court dissolution decree. This necessitated the payment to the parent company of vast amounts owed to it by former subsidiaries. Announcement of the extra dividend sent the stock of the company up 18 points on the curb.

DUKE HOPES TO COME BACK

Expects to be in Canada Again This Summer.

MONTREAL, Feb. 4.—"We hope to return to Canada next summer," said the Duke of Connaught, speaking before the Canadian Club yesterday in regard to his forthcoming visit to Great Britain with the duchess.

His Royal Highness also thanked the people of Canada for the heartfelt sympathy which had been expressed from coast to coast in connection with the illness of the duchess. The duchess, he explained, was not yet convalescent, but was in no danger.

This is the Governor-General's first public pronouncement since the announcement of his forthcoming return to Great Britain.

Italian Aviator Killed.

TURIN, Italy, Feb. 4.—Giuseppi Nosari, an Italian aviator, while making a flight at the aerodrome here last evening, fell with his machine from an altitude of 100 feet and received injuries which resulted in his death.

Nosari was 32 years of age and a native of Bergamo, Lombardi.

CIVIL WAR

Is Suffragette Leader's Description of Coming Fight.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The suffragettes in London are planning "an exciting civil war," according to an announcement made by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst at a meeting of the Women's Social and Political Union yesterday.

The militant suffragettes, said Mrs. Pankhurst, are preparing all sorts of effective strokes. She especially rejoiced over the exploit at the Tower of London, where a case containing some of the crown jewels was attacked, and she praised the raids made by the suffragettes on the Birmingham golf links. She concluded:

"The Government must quickly give us the vote or go. The women will use every method, constitutional as well as unconstitutional, to turn the Cabinet out."

Detectives in great numbers are on watch in all the London streets, but the suffragettes continue their successful raids. Another batch of letter boxes was defiled yesterday.

MYSTERIES IN BRITAIN

Disappearance of Vicar and Baronet Vagabond Causes Comment.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—A sensational development took place yesterday in what is known as the cliff mystery.

On Jan. 18 Rev. Albert Knight, vicar of Hunslet, Yorkshire, disappeared, and it is supposed he met his death by falling from the Flamborough Cliffs while taking a photograph. Mrs. Knight stated she witnessed the accident. Ever since the quest for the body among the cliffs has been continued, often at the risk of the searchers' lives, and a week ago a special memorial service was held in the church, supposedly for the dead vicar.

The Chief Constable of Leeds now announces that Mr. Knight is alive and has left the country under an assumed name. The constable says he gives the information in fairness to the public, but adds that the details are confidential.

Another mystery exercising the minds of British newspaper readers is the fate of Sir Walter Strickland, Bart., who was last heard from on Dec. 1. He was then in the south of France. Strickland was an extraordinary character. He was a scholar, an anarchist and a gypsy, and for thirty years wandered over the world botanizing, translating Horace and Moliere, and getting into trouble in most civilized countries through writing violent pamphlets and verses against the established order of things. Strickland was only once in London. This was in 1909, when he succeeded to the title. He only stayed here a week. He had two adopted sons, who are left without resources. Neither his lawyers nor his publishers can get any trace of him.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST
BY GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Company.

"Good gracious!" cried Elnora, staring at him. "But what does she do? How does she spend her time?"

"Spend her time!" repeated Ammon. "Well, she would call that a joke. Her days are never long enough. There is endless shopping to find the pretty things, regular visits to the dressmakers, calls, parties, theaters, entertainments. She is always rushed. I never get to see half as much of her as I would like."

"But I mean work," persisted Elnora. "In what is she interested that is useful to the world?"

"Me!" cried Ammon promptly.

"I can understand that," laughed Elnora. "What I can't understand is how you can be in"— She stopped short in confusion, but she saw that he had finished the sentence as she had intended. "I beg your pardon," she cried. "I didn't mean to say that. But I cannot understand these people I hear about who live only for their own amusement. Perhaps it is very great. I'll never have a chance to know. To me it seems the only pleasure in this world worth having is the joy we get out of living for those we love and those we can help. I hope you are not angry with me."

Ammon sat silently looking far away, with deep thought in his eyes.

"You are angry," faltered Elnora.

His look came back to her as she knelt before him among the flowers and he gazed at her steadily.

"No doubt I should be," he said, "but the fact is I am not. I cannot understand a life purely for personal pleasure myself. But she is only a girl, and this is her playtime. When she is a woman in her own home, then she will be different, will she not?"

Elnora never resembled her mother so closely as when she answered that question.

"I would have to be well acquainted with her to know, but I should hope so. To make a real home for a tired business man is a very different kind of work from that required to be a leader of society. It demands different talent and education. Of course, she means to change, or she would not have promised to make a home for you. I suspect our dope is cool now. Let's go try for some butterflies."

"You should hear my sister Polly!" said Ammon. "This was her last year in college. Lunches and sororities were all I heard her mention, until Tom Levering came on deck; now he is the leading subject."

"Is Edith Carr a college girl?"

"No. She is the very selectest kind of a private boarding school girl."

As they went back along the path together Elnora talked of many things, but Ammon answered absently. Evidently he was thinking of something else. But the moth bait recalled him, and he was ready for work as they made their way back to the woods. He wanted to try the Limberlost, but Elnora was firm about keeping on home ground. She did not tell him that lights hung in the swamp would be a signal to call up a band of men whose presence she dreaded. So they set out, Ammon carrying the dope, Elnora the net, Billy and Mrs. Comstock following with cyanide boxes and lanterns.

First they tried for butterflies and captured several fine ones with little trouble. They also called swarms of ants, beetles, bees and flies. When it grew dusk Mrs. Comstock and Ammon went to prepare supper. Elnora and Billy remained until the butterflies went to bed. Then they lighted the lanterns, repainted the trees and followed the home trail.

Mrs. Comstock and Elnora were finishing breakfast the next morning when they heard a cheery whistle down the road. Elnora with surprised eyes looked at her mother.

It was just sunrise, but the musician was Philip Ammon. He looked stronger than yesterday.

"I hope I am not too early," he said. "I am consumed with anxiety to learn if we have made a catch."

"We will have to wander along the roads and around the edge of the Limberlost today," said Elnora. "Mother is making strawberry preserves, and she can't come until she finishes. Suppose we go down to the swamp, and I'll show you what is left of the flower room that Terrence O'More, the big lumberman of Great Rapids, made when he was a homeless boy here. He was called Freckles. Of course, you have heard the story?"

"Yes, and I've met the O'Mores, who are frequently in Chicago society."

They went down the road to the swamp, climbed the snake fence, followed the path to the old trail and then turned south along it. Elnora indicated to Ammon the trail with remnants of sagging barbed wire.

"It was ten years ago," she said. "I was just a little schoolgirl, but I wandered widely even then, and no one cared. I saw him often. He had been in a city institution all his life, when he took the job of keeping timber thieves out of this swamp, before many trees had been cut. It was a strong man's work and he was a frail boy, but he grew hardier as he lived out of doors, and he won.

"Some days his face was dreadfully sad, some days it was so determined a little child could see the force in it, and once it was radiant. That day the Swamp Angel was with him. I can't tell you what she was like. I never saw any one who resembled her. He stopped near here to show her a bird's nest. Then they went on to a sort of flower room he had made, and he sang for her. By the time he left I had got bold enough to come out on the trail, and I met the big Scotchman Freckles lived with. He saw me catching moths and butterflies, so he took me to the flower room and gave me everything there. I don't dare come alone often, and so I can't keep it up as he did, but you can see something of how it was."

Elnora led the way and Ammon followed. The outlines of the room were not distinct, because many of the trees were gone, but Elnora showed how it had been as nearly as she could.

"The swamp is almost ruined now," she said. "The maples, walnuts and cherries are all gone. The talking trees are the only things left worth while."

"The talking trees! I don't understand," commented Ammon.

"No wonder!" laughed Elnora. "They are my discovery. You know all trees whisper and talk during the summer, but there are two that have so much to say they keep on the whole winter when the others are silent. The beeches and oaks so love to talk they cling to their dead, dry leaves. In the winter the winds are stiffest and blow most, so these trees whisper, chatter, sob, laugh and at times roar until the sound is deafening. When the air is cold and clear, the world very white and the harp music swelling, then the talking trees tell the strengthening, uplifting things."

"You wonderful girl!" cried Ammon. "What a woman you will be!"

"If I am a woman at all worth while it will be because I have had such wonderful opportunities," said Elnora. "Not every girl is driven to the forest to learn what God has to say there. Here are the remains of Freckles' room. The time the Angel came here he sang to her and I listened. I never heard music like that. No wonder she loved him. Everyone who knew him did, and they do yet. Try that log, it makes a fairly good seat. This old store box was his treasure house, just as it's now mine. I will show you my dearest possession. I do not dare take it home because mother can't overcome her dislike for it. It was my father's, and in some ways I am like him. This is the strongest."

(To be Continued.)

What Hurt Him.

"Did you hear about the accident to Bjinks?"

"Why, no. What happened?"

"Oh, the darned fool was seriously hurt this afternoon."

"In his automobile, I suppose?"

"No, that's the trouble."

"What do you mean? I know he's a reckless driver, and"—

"And you think he was hurt in his car. Well, he wasn't. He was hurt by a tree about ten feet ahead of the car. If he'd been able to stay in the car he'd never have been hurt."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FUN FOR THE ROWDIES.

Some curious particulars of the dangers of London streets in the old days are given in an article on "The Scowrers and the Mohocks" in a British magazine. The favorite practice of the Scowrers was to invade some tavern in the evening, drive out the customers, ill treat the proprietor and his attendants, wreck the premises and, above all, "roar." Steele tells of the Mohocks, one of whose pastimes was to "inclose women in casks and roll them down the street." In 1712 a royal proclamation was issued offering a reward of £100 for the apprehension of any Mohock.

Soon after the accession of George IV. to the throne in 1820 there was a recrudescence, though in a milder form, of Mohock rowdyism, and attacks on the watch—"boxing the Charlies," as the phrase went—once more became fashionable among the wilder spirits of London. These revelries, however, were rudely disturbed by the establishment in 1829 by Sir Robert Peel of an efficient body of police.

Yet again in early Victorian days there was another Mohock outburst under the auspices of the Marquis of Waterford, and once more knockers and bell handles were wrenched off, public monuments injured, lights extinguished and crockery smashed. This form of humor, however, was quite wasted upon the local authorities, the marquis being promptly knocked down by a watchman and taken up half dead. The same authority tells us that in the following year he and some other men of fashion were convicted at Derby assizes of trying to overturn a caravan, screwing up a toll barkeeper and painting houses and people red. For these recreations they were fined £100 apiece.

SHADOW OF THE MOON.

Probably the fastest motion that man can perceive with his eyes is that of the shadow of the moon across the earth in a solar eclipse. This rate is practically that of the moon in its orbit, which is about 2,000 miles an hour. This is roughly half a mile a second. Now, if a person were to be stationed on a mountain whence he could see for some miles he could actually watch the approach of the shadow and keep his eye on its edge. Of course the shade would cover the whole landscape for any one person.

From the testimony of many men who have witnessed the phenomenon in such circumstances it is a terrible and awe inspiring spectacle. Thus Forbes of Turin: "I confess it was the most terrifying sight I ever saw. As always happens in the case of sudden, silent, unexpected movements, the spectator confounds real and relative motion. I felt almost giddy for a moment, as though the massive building under me bowed on the side of the coming eclipse." Another view is described by Langley: "The bright cloud I saw distinctly put out like a candle. The rapidity of the shadow and the intensity produced a feeling that something material was sweeping over the earth at a speed perfectly frightful. I involuntarily listened for the rushing noise of a mighty wind."

There are, of course, many velocities greater than this that occur on the earth, which, too, are measurable, such as the speed of light, which is 186,000 miles a second, and the speed of molecules of hot gases, but they are not directly perceptible to the human vision. —Lawrence Hodges in Chicago Record-Herald.

Transit of Venus.

The transits of Venus came in pairs, with an interval of eight years between them. A pair occurred in 1761 and 1769 and again in 1874 and 1882. The whole of the twentieth century will pass without another transit. Not until the years 2004 and 2012 will posterity have the opportunity of witnessing it. It was long supposed that transits of Venus over the sun's disk afforded the only accurate method of determining the distance of the sun, but latterly the speed of light has become the more favored method for that purpose.—New York American.

How He Lost His Dog.

"I've lost me mine dachshund," said a German resident of Brooklyn. "Those dog catchers got him."

"Meybe dey have got him by der pound. How did they come to took him?" asked his friend.

"They took him by der yard," replied the loser sadly.—New York Press.

Perhaps She Was Skeptical.

"Just my luck."

"What's the matter now?"

"I promised my wife I'd be home at 10 o'clock last night."

"And couldn't make it, I suppose?"

"No; I got in at just 9:45, but she was sound asleep, and I failed to get credit for it."—Detroit Free Press.

The Other Way.

"If I were younger," said the rich old man, "I believe I might win you for my wife."

"Yes," replied the cold beauty, dreamily considering his sixty years, "or, say, fifteen or twenty years older."—Philadelphia Press.

ROAR OF THE ARCTIC.

Sullen Thunder of the Gales and the "Voices of the Ice."

Most of us cherish the idea that in the far reaches of the Arctic circle there prevails an everlasting deathlike stillness. But those who have spent much time in the far north assure us that that region is far from being silent, although so little life is manifest for the greater part of the year.

On polar seas the ice, though thick and solid as granite, is hardly ever still. There are tides in the arctic, and these lift and lower the huge icefields, causing them to give out all manner of noises. Even as late as November the pack will wake up without warning and pile itself in huge heaps with indescribable crashings, groanings and roarings. Peary speaks of the "rabid roar" of the "tumbling chaos of ice blocks." His Eskimos were terribly frightened and set up weird howlings. The dogs whined and barked, and altogether the noise was terrific. Every arctic explorer has given similar accounts.

The movements of the ice—the gradual crowding and pressing, bending and pushing, the breaking of the masses of snow lying at the "ice foot"—have given rise to the expression of explorers, "The voices of the ice." It may be that one will hear a low singing, splashing or grumbling, alternating with various other sounds, cracking and snapping. These sound irregularly from a great distance, like a confusion of human voices, the racket of a railway train or the skurrying of a sledging party. Then, again, the noises are such as to cause the explorer to fancy he hears the steps and voices of various species of animals.

Spring is the noisiest time in the polar seas. McClure of the Investigator compared the breaking up of the ice at that season to heavy thunder or the sound of great guns. Another writer likened the sound of the breaking ice floe to that produced by a volcanic eruption.

Moreover, the air in the arctic regions is seldom absolutely still. Gales are frequent. The winter winds, according to Peary, blow with almost unimaginable fury. On one occasion in the cabins of the Roosevelt the sound resembled that of some gigantic power plant, everything vibrating to the pulsation of the machinery. The whole atmosphere was filled with the deep, sullen roar of the wind, and so thick was the cloud of snow picked up and swept forward on the wings of the gale that powerful lamps were invisible ten feet away.

On high ground, such as that of inner Greenland, the wind is never still. Nansen tells of the constant hiss of the breeze laden with tiny bits of ice, which flowed along knee high like a shining white river glittering in the pale arctic sunlight.

Nor is there lack of sounds caused by animal life. In the arctic may often be heard the baying of wolves and the barking of seal, while in the summer the harsh cry of sea birds echoes along the faces of the cliffs.—Harper's Weekly.

Coughs, Colds
Bronchitis

If there is an ailment in the throat or chest, it is surely essential that the remedy be conveyed direct to the affected part. It's because the healing vapor of Catarrhozone is breathed into the sore, irritated throat and bronchial tubes, because its balsamic fumes kill the germs and destroy the cause of the trouble. These are the reasons why Catarrhozone never yet failed to cure a genuine case of Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, or Throat Trouble.

The wonderfully soothing vapor of Catarrhozone instantly reaches the furthest recesses of the lungs, produces a healing, curative effect that is impossible with a tablet or liquid which goes merely to the stomach, and falls entirely to help the throat or lungs.

To permanently cure your winter ills, your coughs, sneezing, and Catarrh, by all means use a tried and proven remedy like Catarrhozone. But beware of the substitutor and imitator. Look for Catarrhozone only. 50c and $1, at all dealers. 10

Formation of Worlds.

There are two hypotheses in reference to the condition of the matter of the universe at the moment when science begins its discussion of the formation of the worlds. Both these agree that the matter was in a nebulous condition. As Professor Young says: "This does not assume that matter was created in a nebulous condition. As the egg may be taken as the starting point for the life history of the animal, so the nebula may be taken as the starting point for the life history of the planetary system." On one theory the nebula was in the form of a heated gas; on the other, it was a cloud of cold meteoric dust. This latter many astronomers think is more likely to be true. —Scientific American.

DOCTORS SAID IT WAS HEART FAILURE

And Gave Me Up—But "Fruit-a-tives" Cured Me

MOORFIELD, ONT., MARCH 25th. 1910

"I suffered from severe Indigestion and Dyspepsia for nearly two years.

I could not take food without fearful distress. Two doctors thought my disease was Heart Failure and incurable, and I expected to die in a short time. My son asked me to try "Fruit-a-tives".

From the outset, I was better and gradually this fruit medicine completely cured me.

I took perhaps a dozen boxes—now I am cured and have gained over 30 pounds in weight".

OPEN OUT YOUR HAND.

Then Note the Effort It Requires to Keep It From Closing.

Many thousands of years have elapsed since the ancestors of man lived in trees. (It is never to be forgotten that though ape-like forms, they were not apes.) Yet, in spite of these tens of centuries that have passed by, man has not yet forgotten the instinct of self preservation in the forest. As he was a tailless creature he was compelled to depend for his safety on the grasping power of his hands and feet. For many ages, however, he had gradually been going on the ground more and more and in the trees less and less so that his feet became more adapted for walking and his hands exclusively for grasping, with the result that the grip and muscular strength of his hands became immense. This is still most powerfully evidenced in a young baby, which, without muscular development, can within a few days of birth hang by both hands to a stick for as much as five minutes at a time and by one hand only for two or three, a task beyond the power of any adult except an athlete and gymnast.

But a fact which is still more remarkable is that to the present day there is not one of us that can hold his hand open without discomfort and absolutely no one whose hand will stay open at all unless the will is exerted to that end. Try it! Hold your hand open for three minutes by the watch and see how tired you will be! Lay your hand on the table, the palm on the wood, the fingers over the edge, and see how, in spite of yourself, they will curve round and grasp it. Look at the hand of a sleeping person and think if the fingers are ever shown to be out straight.

When the anatomy of the hand is taken up it will be found that on the palm and on the under side of the fingers are numbers of nerves sensitive to touch which respond as readily as the nerves of the eye do to color or the nerves of the ear drum to sound. These were the principal protection of our tree living ancestors, for an immediate clutch at a branch was necessary in rapid travel in the lower branches of great forest trees. The sensitiveness is being lost, but it is being lost slowly. Yet even today we can no more prevent responding to the stimulation of the sense of touch in our hands than to the sensation of light in the eye or sound in the ear.

Disregarding the thumb, the human hand is really nothing more than an adjustable hook. It is at rest only when in the position of a hook. When any one loses a hand the best substitute is a stout metal hook.—New York American.

TWO QUEER ANIMALS.

But the Hook Tail Bear Put One Over on the Sidehill Creeper.

Paul Smith, the famous Adirondack guide and story teller, once met his match. There was an Englishman, supposedly with the proverbial English sense of humor, who went to Smith's for some deer shooting. The morning after his arrival he started out with a gun alone. As he left the camp Paul told him to beware of the "side hill creepers."

"What's a side hill creeper?" asked the Englishman.

"Well," said Paul, "it's an animal that lives on the side of a hill, and as its right legs are long and its left legs short it can only run on sloping ground. They are very ferocious, and if one starts after you you must run up or down hill, as on account of its deformity it cannot catch you when you do that."

The Englishman shouldered his gun and went out. About night time he returned. The guide said to him, "Well, I see you dodged the creepers, all right."

"No, I met one," said the Englishman.

"Yes?" said Paul. "How did you get away from him?"

"I ran uphill," said the Englishman.

"You shouldn't have done that. You could make better time running downhill."

"I know it," said the Englishman, "but you see I met a hooked tail bear, and I just naturally had to run uphill."

"How's that?" asked Paul.

"Well, you know when a hooked tail bear gets started running the only way he can stop is to wrap his hooked tail around a tree. If I had run downhill he could have stopped, but when I ran uphill why every time he hooked his tail around a tree he just tumbled over backward, and so I got away."

Paul owned himself beaten and when the Englishman left refused to accept any money for his board.—New York Herald.

BURNING WOMEN ALIVE.

A Punishment That Was Abolished in England in 1790.

The horrible punishment of burning women alive seems to have existed in Saxon England, but perhaps only in the case of slaves. Under the Norman rulers any woman, bond or free, who killed her husband was burned alive, and the same punishment for this crime and also for high treason and even for coining and other minor offenses continued or arose from time to time through the second and third periods until it was abolished by act of parliament in 1790, the last actual execution of this kind having, however, taken place six years earlier.

The whipping of women for various offenses continued even later. Public whipping was not abandoned until 1817, and cases of private whipping occurred as late as 1820.

There can be no doubt, we think, that the savage human instinct of cruelty had something to do with the barbarous punishments above mentioned. As the old Roman public longed for the carnage of the circus, as the Spanish populace crowded to the auto-da-fe in the flourishing days of the inquisition, so the lower (perhaps not only the lower) strata of English nationality took delight in witnessing tortures which in all probability were devised and kept up partly for their entertainment. Judge Jeffreys in sentencing a woman to be whipped is reported to have said:

"Hangman, I charge you to pay particular attention to this lady. Scourge her till her blood runs down. It is Christmas time, a cold time for madam to strip. See that you burn her shoulders thoroughly."—Cornhill Magazine.

The Bright Guide.

It was a party of visitors seeing the sights in Pittsburgh that finally entered the conservatory presented to the city by Mr. Phipps. The curator while showing them around was called away on business and left the visitors in charge of one of the clerks. They came to a beautiful statue which was admired immensely. It was of translucent marble. He pointed out the excellences of the statue, told the name of the sculptor and showed it from every viewpoint. One asked, "Alabaster, isn't it?" "No," he said, "Venus."—Argonaut.

Spanish Women's Hands.

The hands of a Spanish woman have a classic beauty, and their movements are incomparable. Such hands cannot be described; they can only be admired. When they manipulate a fan or roll a cigarette, when they raise a skirt or arrange a mantilla, it is always done with infinite grace. A Spanish woman alone knows how to use her hands as they truly should be used.—New York Sun.

A FLIGHT FOR LIFE

Dodging Death In the Path of an Onrushing Flood.

THE FURY OF A CLOUDBURST.

A Solid Wall of Water Swept the Canyon, Uprooting Trees and Toying With Huge Bowlders—Exciting Race In a Storm on Lightning Creek.

To understand what follows you must know something of the country where the incident occurred. Lightning creek, a famous trout stream of northern Idaho, rises among the glaciers of the Cabinet mountains and comes tearing down through narrow canyons heavily forested with pine and cedar. At all times the stream is swift. In the spring, when the ice caps are melting, it is a torrent.

July 3, 1906, a fishing party of five were hauled from the nearest railroad station to the end of the wagon trail on Lightning creek, where we made camp. The next morning the professor and myself decided to ascend to the head of one of the creek's tributaries. Shouldering our creels, we made our way through the timber toward the glacier, gleaming in the sunlight. Five miles from camp we came to a fall, where we began to fish. There were plenty of trout, but they were small.

"Let's see if there are larger ones above the fall," my companion suggested.

"Agreed," I replied, and we clambered up the steep rocky walls.

Our hopes were realized. We fished up the stream until past noon, when we sat down to lunch. By the time we had finished eating a tiny cloud had crept above the mountain top and hovered over the glacier. In a few minutes another cloud crept up and joined the first, then another and another until the mountain top was covered.

"It is time we were getting out of here," I said. "I believe we are in for a wetting."

As if to emphasize my words a flash of lightning quivered through the black mass, and in a few seconds the thunder rolled down the canyon with a roar like a battery of siege guns.

As we hurried down the creek the lightning became continuous and terrifying in its brilliancy; the roll of thunder was incessant. We made all the speed we could and had nearly reached the falls when the rain came in a downpour.

"Suppose we get under this spruce and wait until the storm is over?" my companion suggested.

"Suppose we get into more open country as soon as possible!" I rejoined and kept on.

Suddenly the lightning ceased, the thunder died away, and there was no sound save the dashing of rain. The sudden calm was startling, and I paused and looked toward the mountain. I saw a great column of fire shoot downward out of the clouds. The glacier shivered as though struck by some titanic force, split apart and crashed down into the canyon. There was a roar of thunder, and I saw the water pour from the sky as if all the windows of heaven had been opened.

"A cloudburst!" I cried. "Run for your life!"

Fear lent wings to our feet. We sped down the canyon, leaping fallen logs, tearing through dense underbrush, clambering over rocks, fleeing from the pursuing flood that roared down the canyon, uprooting trees and hurling great bowlders before it as it came. A few rods below a small basaltic cliff, with some stunted fir trees growing on it, stood in an open space. To outrun the water was impossible; the cliff was our only haven.

I dashed up, with my companion at my heels. Behind us we saw a solid column of water that bore a tangled mass of drift and advanced with the speed of the wind. We had only time to seize upon a tree before the flood was upon us. It struck with a grinding roar; the rock trembled to its very base; the water surged over us; we were battered by the rushing logs, scratched by the drift, suffocated by the water, but we clung on desperately. In a minute, at the furthest, the flood swept on, leaving ruin in its wake.

About the cliff the trees lay piled in a tangled, broken heap. We crept down, drenched, bruised and bleeding, and made our way to camp. But the spot where the camp had stood was swept clean. We sank upon the water soaked ground to consider what we should do. In a short time we heard the voices of our friends. They had been fishing the main stream above where the branch entered and thus had escaped.

There was nothing left for it but to make our way back to the railroad station, where we arrived after dark. For months fishermen discovered articles of our camp equipage scattered along the stream.—Youth's Companion.

EGYPT'S GREEN SUN.

A Phenomenon That Was Commented Upon by the Ancients.

The appearance of a green light at sunset was noticed and commented upon by the ancient Egyptians and more particularly so because in the clear air of Egypt the tints of sunset are peculiarly distinct.

As the sun there descends nearer and nearer to the horizon and is immensely enlarged and flaming it suddenly becomes for an instant a brilliantly green color, and immediately a series of green rays suffuses the sky in many directions, well night to the zenith. The same phenomenon appears at sunrise, but to a smaller extent. Sometimes, just as the last part of the sun's disk vanishes, its color changes from green to blue, and so also after it has disappeared the sky near the horizon often is green, while toward the zenith it is blue.

This was alluded to in Egyptian writings. Day was the emblem of life and night that of death, and the nocturnal sun, being identified with Osiris, thus rendered Osiris king of the dead. The setting sun was green; therefore Osiris, as the nocturnal deity of the dead, was painted green. The splendid coffins of the high priests of Ammon frequently depict the green sun, and the funeral deities are all colored green.

There are innumerable instances in the Egyptian relics of representations relative to death being colored green. The practice undoubtedly arose from the green tints of sunrise and sunset. The green sun disk is referred to 5,000 years ago in Egypt. This is the earliest known human record of an astronomical phenomenon.

OPEN OUT YOUR HAND.

Then Note the Effort It Requires to Keep It From Closing.

Many thousands of years have elapsed since the ancestors of man lived in trees. (It is never to be forgotten that though ape-like forms, they were not apes.) Yet, in spite of these tens of centuries that have passed by, man has not yet forgotten the instinct of self preservation in the forest. As he was a tailless creature he was compelled to depend for his safety on the grasping power of his hands and feet. For many ages, however, he had gradually been going on the ground more and more and in the trees less and less so that his feet became more adapted for walking and his hands exclusively for grasping, with the result that the grip and muscular strength of his hands became immense. This is still most powerfully evidenced in a young baby, which, without muscular development, can within a few days of birth hang by both hands to a stick for as much as five minutes at a time and by one hand only for two or three, a task beyond the power of any adult except an athlete and gymnast.

But a fact which is still more remarkable is that to the present day there is not one of us that can hold his hand open without discomfort and absolutely no one whose hand will stay open at all unless the will is exerted to that end. Try it! Hold your hand open for three minutes by the watch and see how tired you will be! Lay your hand on the table, the palm on the wood, the fingers over the edge, and see how, in spite of yourself, they will curve round and grasp it. Look at the hand of a sleeping person and think if the fingers are ever shown to be out straight.

When the anatomy of the hand is taken up it will be found that on the palm and on the under side of the fingers are numbers of nerves sensitive to touch which respond as readily as the nerves of the eye do to color or the nerves of the ear drum to sound. These were the principal protection of our tree living ancestors, for an immediate clutch at a branch was necessary in rapid travel in the lower branches of great forest trees. The sensitiveness is being lost, but it is being lost slowly. Yet even today we can no more prevent responding to the stimulation of the sense of touch in our hands than to the sensation of light in the eye or sound in the ear.

Disregarding the thumb, the human hand is really nothing more than an adjustable hook. It is at rest only when in the position of a hook. When any one loses a hand the best substitute is a stout metal hook.—New York American.

TWO QUEER ANIMALS.

"I ran uphill," said the Englishman.

"You shouldn't have done that. You could make better time running downhill."

"I know it," said the Englishman, "but you see I met a hooked tail bear, and I just naturally had to run uphill."

"How's that?" asked Paul.

"Well, you know when a hooked tail bear gets started running the only way he can stop is to wrap his hooked tail around a tree. If I had run downhill he could have stopped, but when I ran uphill why every time he hooked his tail around a tree he just tumbled over backward, and so I got away."

A FLIGHT FOR LIFE

Dodging Death In the Path of an Onrushing Flood.

THE FURY OF A CLOUDBURST.

To understand what follows you must know something of the country where the incident occurred. Lightning creek, a famous trout stream of northern Idaho, rises among the glaciers of the Cabinet mountains and comes tearing down through narrow canyons heavily forested with pine and cedar. At all times the stream is swift. In the spring, when the ice caps are melting, it is a torrent.

July 3, 1908, a fishing party of five were hauled from the nearest railroad station to the end of the wagon trail on Lightning creek, where we made camp. The next morning the professor and myself decided to ascend to the head of one of the creek's tributaries. Shouldering our creels, we made our way through the timber toward the glacier, gleaming in the sunlight. Five miles from camp we came to a fall, where we began to fish. There were plenty of trout, but they were small.

"Let's see if there are larger ones above the fall," my companion suggested.

"Agreed," I replied, and we clambered up the steep rocky walls.

Our hopes were realized. We fished up the stream until past noon, when we sat down to lunch. By the time we had finished eating a tiny cloud had crept above the mountain top and hovered over the glacier. In a few minutes another cloud crept up and joined the first, then another and another until the mountain top was covered.

"It is time we were getting out of here," I said. "I believe we are in for a wetting."

As if to emphasize my words a flash of lightning quivered through the black mass, and in a few seconds the thunder rolled down the canyon with a roar like a battery of siege guns.

As we hurried down the creek the lightning became continuous and terrifying in its brilliancy; the roll of thunder was incessant. We made all the speed we could and had nearly reached the falls when the rain came in a downpour.

"Suppose we get under this spruce and wait until the storm is over?" my companion suggested.

"Suppose we get into more open country as soon as possible!" I rejoined and kept on.

Suddenly the lightning ceased, the thunder died away, and there was no sound save the dashing of rain. The sudden calm was startling, and I paused and looked toward the mountain. I saw a great column of fire shoot downward out of the clouds. The glacier shivered as though struck by some titanic force, split apart and crashed down into the canyon. There was a roar of thunder, and I saw the water pour from the sky as if all the windows of heaven had been opened.

"A cloudburst!" I cried. "Run for your life!"

Fear lent wings to our feet. We sped down the canyon, leaping fallen logs, tearing through dense underbrush, clambering over rocks, fleeing from the pursuing flood that roared down the canyon, uprooting trees and hurling great bowlders before it as it came. A few rods below a small basaltic cliff, with some stunted fir trees growing on it, stood in an open space. To outrun the water was impossible; the cliff was our only haven.

I dashed up, with my companion at my heels. Behind us we saw a solid column of water that bore a tangled mass of drift and advanced with the speed of the wind. We had only time to seize upon a tree before the flood was upon us. It struck with a grinding roar; the rock trembled to its very base; the water surged over us; we were battered by the rushing logs, scratched by the drift, suffocated by the water, but we clung on desperately. In a minute, at the furthest, the flood swept on, leaving ruin in its wake.

About the cliff the trees lay piled in a tangled, broken heap. We crept down, drenched, bruised and bleeding, and made our way to camp. But the spot where the camp had stood was swept clean. We sank upon the water soaked ground to consider what we should do. In a short time we heard the voices of our friends. THE CHURCH AND MATERIALISM

The Kingston Standard says that instead of working toward a common end—the uplifting, the betterment, and salvation of mankind—too many of the churches are working toward the one end of uplifting the particular church to which they belong, and ignoring, if not actually objecting to, the work of all other churches.

There is much ground for comment of this type, and the growing frequency of it perhaps suggests one reason why the churches fail more than ever is reaching the heart of humanity with their message. We think that there is no doubt whatever that the church is becoming more and more a secular institution, dropping the mantle of evangelism for that of social service. The sermons that are preached in any pulpits, more notably metropolitan pulpits, are not evangelical sermons. They are discussions of economics, of sociology, of reforms. They deal with questions concerning the betterment of humanity, but in a mundane sense. The eternal truths are being slighted for the temporal. There are more complaints nowadays than ever that the church is decaying. It is not decaying in the sense that around it clusters more human pride, more worldly show, more selfish interest. The reason that the members of the churches have lost their old zeal for dogmatic distinctions is not so much that they are recognising the superior importance of united and harmonious work in Christianising the world, but that they care less about theological disputation. It is not too pessimistic a view to consider that while the church is yet a great power for good in the land, the chief power of its kind, it, being of the people, is more materialistic with the growth of materialism among the people. Here and there are to be found churches with pastors who earnestly seek to teach the old and fundamental truths of Christianity, but what thanks do they get? They are regarded as intellectually and spiritually inferior to the man who thunders from his pulpit a denunciation of some new-fangled danger, such as the turket trot, or the growth of a money trust. It is, of course, the easiest thing in the world to criticise the church and its work, but one cannot help thinking that the evolution now under way is losing to us some of the old evangelism so necessary to real spiritual welfare.

MORAL REFORM

Certain rather sweeping amendments to the Criminal Code have been asked for by organizations working for moral and social reform in Canada, says the Montreal Herald.

Among others, power has been asked to arrest suspected persons found loitering in public places by day; to fine a spectator at a fistic encounter of more than four rounds; and to punish persons having in their possession books or pictures regarded as obscene.

Many reforms which have been really needed have been in the past delayed because it has been attempted to bring them about by too radical methods. Hasten slowly is as good a motto for the moral refromer as for any one else. It is quite conceivable that, were all of these requests to be granted, personal liberty might be seriously interfered with. It is never wise to leave too much to the officer charged with enforcing the law. Undue severity, either in the law or carrying it out, inevitably reacts, and the last state is worse than the first.

Let Me See Your Eyes

If an hour's reading makes your eyes ache.

If printed matter occasionally "goes misty."

If you are obliged to stop work periodically to rest your eyes for a few moments.

If you find it easier to read nearer than the normal 12 ins.; or further away than this.

If you cannot recognize people across the street.

If you cannot read street names easily, or cannot distinguish the time by public clocks.

If you have to make an effort to see clearly—knitting the brows for example.

If vivid light gives you pain in the eyes, or if you require more light than hitherto.

If you have any of these difficulties let me see your eyes, so that you may learn definitely whether Glasses have become necessary.

EDITORIAL NOTES

As an arrangement in their favor, if the suffragettes in Britain would quote the fact that at one time the country possessed a Queen Elizabeth a Queen Victoria, not to say a Boadicea instead of pursuing their Carrie Nation antics they might get a little nearer their goal.

In some of the editorial comment on the new bank act there is observable more of a tendency to play to the gallery than a desire to get at the truth and speak it—Hamilton Herald.

Turkey, after having two disastrous wars, a cholera epidemic, a revolution, an earthquake, and the German measles, is possibly justified in the conclusion that things cannot get any worse. Anyhow, the Turks decide to let the tail go with the rest of the integument— Pittsburg Dispatch.

A correspondent writes: "Every cubic foot of water that goes down stream without earning its salt is wasted energy, and the water that passes our city in a year, high in the early parts and low in the later parts of the ear, if properly controlled, could be made into a source of untold wealth."

Of the 355,000 books withdrawn from the public library last year, one hundred thousand bore on sociological questions. People are tremendously interested in the relations of capital and labor, socialism profit sharing, minimum wage legislation and kindred matters. They are thinking about them as never before. BENSFORT NEWS

Special Correspondence.

BENSFORT, Feb. 4.—Some months have elapsed since we have seen any correspondence from Bensfort.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Kerr, of Saskatchewan, are spending the winter months with friends here.

Messrs. Huggins and Morrison find it difficult moving their threshing outfit, owing to the condition of the roads.

Poultry thieves are said to have been at work, Mr. Lancelot Nicholson having lost a valuable goose, while Mr. Joshua Nurse, brother of Mr. W. A. Nurse, some valuable Plymouth rock roosters about the same time.

No square ring performances have been pulled off this winter, owing to the open weather the sporting element has been tame, but one of our former champions will shortly be in a position to meet all comers, and some interesting times are promised.

Mr. Norman Watkins will be in the employ of Mr. James Whittington for the summer months.

HIS FIRST CASE.

The Young Lawyer Made the Court Sit Up and Take Notice.

Several prominent attorneys were discussing the peculiar and rather humorous questions put to witnesses by young attorneys entering upon their legal work, and one of the number vouched for the authenticity of this incident:

"I went up to the superior civil court one day to hear a young friend of mine try his first case. All his relatives and friends were there, and the novice wore a most serious expression as he started to question a witness. He did nicely until he asked the man:

"'Did you have a contract with the plaintiff?'

"'Yes,' replied the witness.

"'What kind of a contract was it?'

"'An oral one,' replied the witness.

"'Will you please produce it?'

"The witness stood stock still staring at the attorney and then looked at the judge inquiringly. There was a ripple of laughter throughout the courtroom, but still the young attorney did not 'catch on,' and, looking toward the judge, remarked:

"'Your honor, I ask you to give the witness until 2 o'clock to produce that contract.'

"The court could not longer withhold and joined in the laughter. Then the young lawyer saw his mistake and with reddened face also had a good laugh."—Boston Record.

There probably never was an ugly man who did not excuse his looks by thinking that he was smart enough to brace up for his lack of beauty.

CALGARY WORSE THAN CHICAGO

The Opinion of Lady Detective Who Searched for Young Girl

CALGARY, Feb. 4— Isabel Earnest, a Pinkerton detective who came here to locate a young girl who ran away from her home in Oklahoma with a young Calgary man, and who took the girl away with him, gave out an interview in which she said:

"Though I have been in a good many cities I can safely say that I have found none the size of Calgary that can compare with it in regard to girls living partly vicious lives. Your blocks are full of them, and in my search for this girl, I discovered the fact that girls have sold themselves to obtain the bare necessities of life because of the parsity of their wages.

"If these girls did not sell themselves occasionally to obtain what they need to live the life they are forced to live in the city, they could not afford any longer to live and sleep in comfort, or dress themselves in accordance with the demands of the establishments where they are employed.

"Briefly, if they were good they could not afford to work for the wage they are receiving. Some of these girls are living with men who are enrolled upon the church membership rolls of your city.

"In your blocks you have hundreds of these girls. Some of them are really bad and started bad young but there are others just like the girl I am taking away, who are of good families of Canada and the United States, and their mothers believe they are working hard and living on the wages rightly earned.

"Your city has Chicago beat in this respect."

Four Great Sauces.

A Frenchman has declared that "man has created the culinary art. He does not eat like an animal—he breakfasts, dines and sups."

The French are particularly eloquent on the subject of sauces. Among their famous chefs are recognized four great sauces—Spanish, Velonte, Bechamel and German. The Spanish and Velonte were known as far back as the seventeenth century. In the eighteenth they were modified by the masters of cookery, particularly by Careme, who was called "the Raphael of the kitchen."

The Spanish sauce is composed of juices extracted from a mixture of ham, veal, chicken and pheasant. Velonte is similar, but is not colored. Bechamel is Velonte to which cream has been added, and the German sauce is Velonte plus the yolks of eggs.—Harper's.

BULGARIA'S FUTURE.

Her Great Natural Resources Await Proper Development.

The principal wealth of Bulgaria to-day is in agriculture. The production of grain during the past twenty years has assumed such proportions that Bulgaria, small as it is, is eighth in the world's cereal producing countries. American machinery is in great demand for farms, and one sees everywhere American harvesters, mowers, windmills, traction engines and pumps. They are becoming as familiar as American sewing machines.

The greatest wealth of Bulgaria is in its forests and mines, but these have not as yet been exploited. Nowhere in Europe are there such forests of pine, hemlock, oak, walnut and birch.

Manufacturing is still in its infancy. Not more than $10,000,000 is as yet invested in manufactures, and the greater part of this capital is employed in the making of Bulgaria's one famous export — attar of roses, which comes from the region of Kazanlik. Only one-fourth of one per cent. of the population of Bulgaria is engaged all the year round in factory work.

Sofia and Varna are the only cities with tramways; but many cities are illuminated with electricity. Owing to its mountains, Bulgaria is possessed of tremendous water power, which is going to count in the future industrial and traction development. Except for her railways, the country is not dependent upon coal. Even these are beginning to use oil. Petroleum, coming from the adjacent oil fields of Roumania and by boat from Batoum, is plentiful and cheap.

The Bulgarians are noted for their industry, their ability to save and their foresight. Although naturally possessing many of the characteristics of the Turk, acquired through centuries of subjection and not to be shaken off in one generation, they have not his proverbial laziness. In working capacity they are like the German peasant, while in saving they are like the French. The wealth in the hands of the peasantry is an unknown quantity, for they have no faith in banks, but it must be considerable.

Among the bulk of the people the standard of living is still very much like that in Turkey, but education is spreading and prosperity increasing. If the Bulgarians secure an outlet to the Aegean Sea, the nation is bound to become one of the most important agriculturally in the whole world.

Artificial Eyes.

The use of glass for artificial eyes dates back to about 1818. The Greeks in the fourth century before Christ had a false eye which was practically a thin band of iron which passed around the head and held in place a thin sheet of metal, covered with a fine skin, on which was painted an eye with its eyelids and lashes. About 300 years before Christ a metal shell somewhat like the half of a walnut shell, on which were painted the iris, the pupil and the white of an eye, was forced into the cavity and held very much as our glass eyes are held. The trouble with this older method was the tremendous weight of the metal, and, of course, the painting was necessarily more or less ghastly. Yet, so far as there is any record to show, there was no substantial improvement in these metallic and painted eyes until within the last century.

See that big, fat, red-headed woman? Well, she is the slender, auburn-haired girl you used to know.

BACK WOODSMAN AND SENTINEL

Copy of Paper Issued in 1838 Comes to Light

A relict of ancient newspaperdom was exhibited to a Warder scribe this morning by Mr. Robert Fee, Jr., it being a copy of the Backwoodsman and Peterborough Sentinel, says the Lindsay Warder. The Backwoodsman is 75 years old, being dated at Peterborough on August 24, 1838. Although yellow with age, the type still stands out bold and distinct and the paper contains many news items of importance, including an account of the laying of the corner stone of the jail and court house at Peterborough

There also appears an advertisement re the annual Sturgeon Lake regatta, which was scheduled to be held on Sturgeon Lake on September 13. A list of the races and cash prizes was given, the prize money being paid in shillings and pence.

The original owner of the paper was the late Mr. Ingle, of Lindsay.

Swiss as They Talk.

Many of the Swiss regard themselves as great linguists. I asked one gentleman the reason for this, but he refused to tell me. He seemed, for some reason, to be offended at the question. Another native I met told me he spoke seven languages; to me it seemed as if he spoke them all at once. I know a little of German myself and was quite interested in listening to him. For some reason he put me in mind of a patchwork quilt trying to talk—one of those crazy ones.—Wide World Magazine.

TWO MILLION AT INDIA'S GREAT FESTIVAL

Two Millions at India's Great Festival, is the heading over an article published in East and West and written by Rev. H. J. Keith, of Knox Presbyterian Church. Rev. H. J. Keith was present for the Allahabad Feast, when a missionary in India and his word picture of the scene will be found most interesting.

Imagine looking over the heads of 2,000,000 people. In every direction you see immense crowds—and the throng is gathered in the name of religion. Stand for a while on the south-east corner of the fort just outside of Allahabad and cast your eyes about. It is just towards the close of January, and you are told that what you see now you can see every year at the same spot—but this year is one in which there is a conjunction of the planets. This happens about every 12 years, and that is why there is an extra throng. The officials tell you there are nearly three millions of people. You gaze down upon them from your lofty observatory. What crowds! How they must love Hinduism! Or what a hold religion has upon them!

All colors of the rainbow are before your eyes—and all ages of men and women and children—also bands, banners, elephants, policemen, soldiers, the two last sent by the government to preserve order and protect life.

Away to your right two mighty rivers converge. Ah, there is the secret of it all! These millions are told that such a place is a very efficacious spot for the washing away of sin. What makes it so holy, so the priests say, is that underneath, unseen by human eyes, is a third river. They also say that no time could be more beneficial for the washing than the time when the plantes are in conjunction.

Down towards the spot where the people are pressing is the spot in which to bathe. As you watch you hear the sound of tom-toms, and from your left there issues a great procession. It is ten o'clock in the morning, the hour for the daily procession. It is headed by policemen, but it is made up of naked holy men—so they are called. These holy men are the religious leaders and priests of India, and they have gathered here, some 20,000 strong. They are close by, but you will see them later at even closer range. As it is your heart does not go out in love for them; rather you draw back in repulsion. The procession makes for the point where the rivers join, and when the foremost touch the sacred waters with their toes, the people rush in. There they seek to wash away their sins. So eager are they for the blessing to be derived, that in one day, over 200 were crushed to death as they bathed their bodies in the waters of the Ganges and the Jumna.

A huge pile of human hair—evidence of thousands who have kept their vows.

You turn from your vantage point to go down among the throng. As you leave the fort guarded by British soldiers, you are jostled by a constant stream of humanity entering the fort and paying a pice each as they pass the guard. They are on their way to a sacred spot in the fort, underground, where one of the sacred trees is growing downwards.

You are now among the people, and the sights that meet you beggar description—all India seems to be gathered there, brought by car and carriages, trains and boats. Thousands have been transferred in freight cars like cattle. Many have trudged scores of weary miles, and here they will spend their all in their desire to get the blessings promised. As Dr. Howard Agnew Johnston, of New York, gazed out over that scene, he turned to a prominent young Hindu and said: "This is the fruit of Hinduism?" He answered: "Yes." Dr. Johnston said: "Then the fruit should soon be pulled off—it is getting rotten." And the young Hindu replied: "I fear it is."

Here is an old man, sitting in a bed of sharpened spikes. There are many others doing the same thing. The old man is covered by an umbrella to keep off the sun. He keeps his beads in his hand. He tells you he has observed his vow for ten years—he has two more years in which to fulfil it, before he can expect a blessing. When he is through he is going home, and will send his son to a Mission College. The pity of it is that he didn't go himself to the missionaries and discover that he does not need to wait a single moment for the blessing he seeks.

A little farther on is the snake charmer. Money is what he is after—like the majority of the tricksters there, and he must have your money if you take his picture. And this gathering here! People by hundreds squatted on the ground with barbers busy as bees removing their hair—heads must be shorn in token of the vows made at this religious gathering. In that huge pile of human hair, at least 11 feet high, there is the evidence of the thousands who have vowed their vows. Some of the hair, perhaps all of it, will find its way to America, and dyed and dressed, it will assume the form of "rats." We pass along through the elephant enclosure. Some of these huge beasts are the property of wealthy holy men, some are loaned by Maharajahs and Princes to assist in making the daily procession impressive. That great animal in front of you has a cloth with pattern woven in gold—worth thousands of dollars.

Over the bridge you go—a rough pontoon bridge, safe enough for foot passengers—and you soon enter the district of the holy men. What sights! That one with his arm aloft, rigid by being held in the same position, was faithful to his vow; the next, gazing into that blazing fire, is apparently unconscious to your presence or of anything in this world—he is supposed to be lost in Deity. You enter one of the compounds of the holy men, and now you are at closer range than you desire with the religious leaders of India. Their hair is long and matted. Their bodies are besmeared with the ashes of manure. Most of them are fat and lazy and sensual. You loathe the very sight of such creatures. But after all, they have souls, too, and the lost is sometimes found. The Rev. Dr. Lucas, the veteran missionary in that district tells of one of those holy men who was able to read, who, when wandering in the streets of Allahabad, came to the front of the Presbyterian Church and there read the verse from John 3: 16, on the wall. He sought the missionary to learn its meaning, and found the light he had sought in vain for years. Now he daily preaches the gospel to the thousands who, like him, grope in the darkness at that great feast, seeking in vain for the light it cannot give. Nor will they find the light unless they are fortunate to hear Prem Das, the former holy man, or one of the few missionaries who are able to be there to speak to that great throng. If they are so fortunate, they will hear there is One who can take away their sin.

You return home, but you will never forget the scene, and in your sleep you will see the millions of that great mela, a picture of India, seeking Christ, waiting for you to tell them about Him.

LAID AT REST

The funeral of the late Christina Taylor, sister of Mr. F. O Taylor, of Lindsay, took place yesterday. An impressive funeral service was conducted at the home, 9 Mill St., at 9.40 o'clock, by Rev. Dr. Shorey, who paid a beautiful tribute to the life of the deceased. The service was attended by a large gathering of representative citizens, who accompanied the cortege to the G.T.R. station. The remains were brought to Peterborough on the 10.50 o'clock train, interment taking place at Little Lake Cemetery. The pallbearers were Messrs. Wm. Flavelle, Robt. Ross, G. H. Wilson, Dr. Neelands, S. Britton and Fred Weir, Peterborough.

Many beautiful floral tributes were placed upon the coffin by friends and relatives of the deceased,

WOMEN ARE BARRED OUT OF THIS CURIOUS SPOT

Historic Retreat of Seven Thousand Lonely Monks Is a Place of Exquisite Beauty and Is Full of Mystery and Charm—The Existence of the Celibate Inmates Would Not Appeal to Most Persons.

Among the possessions of disrupted Turkey in Europe there is none to which the Greeks have greater claim than the holy Mount of Athos, the most easterly prong of nature's trident—the three similarly shaped peninsulas that extend into the Aegean Sea a few miles east of Salonica. Among the inhabitants of the sacred mount, some 7,000 in all, the greater part are Greeks, men who have withdrawn, most of them voluntarily, from life to eke out a lonely existence among the rocky defiles of the peninsula, dividing their time between the cultivation of Heaven and earth.

Mount Athos, situated at the extreme southern point of the peninsula, rears its snowcapped summit 6,350 feet above sea level. It looks for all the world like one of the pyramids of Egypt transplanted to a colder clime, and its history is replete with as much mystery and charm. Stand on the plain of old Troy—to-day swallowed up in the name Anatolia—and you may see the hoary peak of Athos against the setting sun. Or climb to the heights of Olympus, in old Thessaly, and there, among the once sacred groves which to-day are infested with bands of thieves who fear neither God nor man, you again see Athos. These two peaks, one famed as the abode of gods who are to-day but myths, and the other the abode of holy men, are soon to become Greek again, if Greek diplomacy can so turn the wheel of fortune.

Nothing perhaps is more interesting of the many peculiarities of Mount Athos than the fact that women and even female animals are barred from setting foot upon it by a decree issued about the middle of the 11th century, although now the rule has been modified to permit the Queen of Greece to visit the place, which probably will be ceded by Turkey to the Kingdom of the Hellenes. Lonely man lives there his miserable existence—for miserable it must be where no woman has a part—and dying disappears. Young monks come from the outside world to take the places of those who in their own belief are merely "translated," but the name of this or that monk remains but a memory. Life there is the downhill stumble to old age and the grave. Never a gay laugh and seldom a smile, so that the sun shines on this God chosen spot in vain.

There are twenty monasteries on Mount Athos, all belonging to the order of St. Basil and twelve affiliated monastic communities where live the lay brothers. Others of these religious devotees occupy hermitages far distant from each other, their goings and their comings guided by the ascetic principles of St. Athanasius.

Of the monasteries the largest is Russian, there are two Serbo-Bulgarian and the rest are Greek, so that the latter race is largely in the majority, and thus dominates the community and the Assembly which governs it. To this Assembly each monastery sends one representative.

The monastery libraries are vast storehouses of information, containing until comparatively recent times many priceless relics which the monks, their intellectual development having been left to its own devices, cared little or nothing for. Many of these documents tell in the language of Xenophon of the glories of a Greece that was. Indeed much of the history of the east is locked up in these dust-filled coffreforts in which from time to time this or that wanderer has come across a priceless relic to carry off to the museums of Europe.

One of the most notable finds was a papyrus containing the fables of Aesop in Coliambic verse. But so many curio collectors, attracted by the fabulous tales of voyagers, have taken passage for Mount Athos that the monks have become suspicious and now refuse entrance to nearly all strangers. The larger part of the monastic valuables, however, are in safe and more worthy hands.

The Turks destroyed much of the valuable papyri in the monasteries in making cartridges during the war of the Greek independence in 1820-29. Other valuable documents were torn up b ythe monks themselves for fishing bait. Such is the value of historical documents to these monks who spend their time apart from their religious devotions in fishing and tilling the land.

In 1749 an attempt was made to establish an academy on the mount. For a time it flourished, drawing the flower of the youth of the east, but the teaching was so primitive that the academy became deserted and to-day is a mass of ruins, over which tangled vines, lizards and other crawling things hold sway. When the star of the Byzantine empire was at its zenith Mount Athos was a chosen retreat for those in court disfavor. Many others, wealthy and noble, had their fling at life and then banished themselves to Mount Athos.

Viewed from the sea in the fall of the year Athos is a mountain of exquisite beauty, with its shades and tints of dying foliage. High up on the mountain the monasteries can be seen clustering in the niches scooped out by nature. They are all strongly fortified and with the exception of Rossikson, the Russian monastery, their architecture is a quaint representation of the Byzantine period which had so much influence on the sacred mount on its inhabitants. On the isthmus which separates the mount from the mainland traces can still be seen of the canal dug before the invasion of Greece in 480 B.C. It is the story that Xerxes dug the canal because he feared lest he lose his ships in doubling the cape.

She Understood.

A young man who had a strong liking for poetry, but a rather mediocre talent for writing it, deluded himself into the belief that the world was determined to keep him down. He continued writing for years, confident that he would win fame in the end. Once in conversation with a clever girl he started in on his pet theme.

"Like the rest of the world," he said, "you don't understand me. But I can afford to laugh at present neglect, for I'm writing for posterity."

"Oh, I understand you now," replied the girl. "So that's the reason your poems are not published during your lifetime!"

Servian Army Drums.

A curious custom connected with the Servian army is the manner in which most of the regiments carry the big drum. It is not, as in most countries, slung in front of the man who plays it, but is placed upon a small two wheeled cart drawn by a large dog, which has been so trained that it keeps its place even through the longest and most tedious marches. The drummer takes up a position behind the cart and performs on the instrument as it moves along.—London Answers.

Chaplains for French Navy.

It will be news to most persons that the French navy has no chaplains afloat, although a moment's consideration would bring to remembrance the fact of the complete divorce between church and state in France. The subject is brought prominently into notice by a petition signed by a great number of the mothers or widows of the sailors who were victims of the accident on the Gloire or the Liberte. The petitioners are to be found in the Midi, Brittany, Var and Finistrre, and they pray the Senate for the reappointment of chaplains on warships.—London Globe.

CATTLE MARKETS

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Feb. 3.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ended Feb. 1 were 1300 cattle, 150 sheep and lambs, 2350 hogs and 300 calves. The supply on the market this morning for sale consisted of 1100 cattle, 100 sheep and lambs, 1500 hogs and 225 calves.

A feature of the trade was the stronger feeling in the market for good to choice steers, owing to the limited supply offered, and prices as compared with a week ago were fully 25c per 100 pounds higher, but the offerings of the lower grades were ample to fill all requirements and prices were unchanged. The demand from packers was good for carload lots, and choice steers, weighing 1150 pounds, sold at $6.65, and some heavier loads at $6.75, while good loads of mixed steers, weighing 900 pounds, brought $6.30, and fairly good mixed loads $5.50 to $5.80 per 100 pounds. A few picked lots of extra choice steers were sold; butchers at $7 to $7.25 per 100 pounds.

Choice butcher cows were sold as high as $6 for carloads, but the top prices paid ranged from $5.50 to $5.75 per 100 pounds. The demand for bulls was slow and prices showed no change.

The trade in sheep and lambs was quiet owing to the very small supplies coming forward. The tone of the market was firm, with a fair demand from butchers for small lots, and sales of lambs were made at from $7.25 to $7.50, and ewes at $5 to $5.25 per 100 pounds. The demand for calves was fair at steady prices.

A much stronger feeling prevailed in the market for hogs, and prices have advanced 50c to 65c per 100 pounds, owing to the higher prices ruling in the Toronto market and the increased demand for supplies on spot, consequently the market was active, with sales of selected lots at $9.40 to $9.50 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.75 to $7.25; do., medium, $5.50 to $6.50; do., common, $4 to $5; canners, $2.75 to $3; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $5.50 to $5.75; do., medium, $4 to $4.50; do., bulls, $3.50 to $5.25; milkers, choice, each, $70 to $75; do., common and medium, each, $60 to $65; springers, $50 to $55.

Sheep, ewes, $5 to $5.25; bucks and culls, $4.50 to $4.75; lambs, $7.25 to $7.50.

Hogs, f.o.b., $9.40 to $9.50.

Calves, $3 to $12.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—Cattle—Receipts, 19,500; market steady. Beeves, $6.35 to $9. Texas steers, $4.90 to $5.75; stockers and feeders, $4.75 to $7.50; cows and heifers, $3 to $7.50; calves, $8.50 to $10.

SAM GRIGG GETS ONE YEAR

Hotelman Who Became an Evangelist Admits Bigamy

WINNIPEG, Feb. 4.—Samuel Grigg, aged 65, formerly proprietor of the Grigg House, London, Ont., later on evangelist, was sentenced in the Police Court yesterday morning to a year in prison for bigamy.

It was alleged that he had three wives, one of whom he married in London, and the other two since coming West several years ago.

He pleaded guilty to marrying a Mrs. Barnes at Portage la Prairie, while he had a wife living at London, Ontario.

Sam Grigg is well known as an evangelist, his conversion having taken place some years ago at London, Ontario, where he is said to have been conducting a licensed house. He did not get along with his wife, by whom he had several children, and came West, for some time being superintendent of the "Men's Own" here.

Aged sixty-six and white-haired Grigg enlisted a good deal of sympathy, and a number of persons pleaded in his behalf, but Police Magistrate Macdonald could find no ground for leniency.

Mr. John Young died suddenly this afternoon at the residence of his brother, Mr. George Young, 569 Park street. He was 85 years of age.

A Storm From Above the Clouds.

The view of a stormcloud from above is one of the most interesting sights ever beheld by mortal man. A storm viewed from above the clouds has the appearance of ebullition. The upper surface of the cloud is bulged upward and outward and has the resemblance of a vast sea of boiling, upheaving snow. Immediately above the stormcloud the air is not so cold as it is in the clearer atmosphere above or in the cloud itself. The falling of the rain can be distinctly heard, making a noise like a waterfall over a precipice. The thunder heard above a stormcloud is not loud, and the flashes of lightning appear like streaks of intensely white light on the gray colored vapor.

A Banknote 4,000 Years Old.

Banknotes have been current in Europe only within the last three centuries, but the Chinese have used them for over 4,000 years. The Asiatic museum at St. Petersburg has acquired a banknote issued in Pekin in the year 2800 B.C., in many respects similar to those now in use. It is of thick white paper, inscribed in blue ink, with the number of the note, the name of the bank and the date of issue, the cashier's signature and the value in words as well as in figures. In addition the following sage counsel is engraved round the border: "However much you may possess, strive to be thrifty."

Agreed With Her.

After an all night session with the boys, a husband wended his way home, arriving there at about 5 a.m. He found his wife waiting for him in the dining room, the confusion of furniture indicated that she had been having an unhappy time.

"This is a nice time for you to be coming home!" snapped the wife.

"Yes," admitted the erring husband; "it's a lovely morning."

"I haven't slept a wink this blessed night!" with a severe look.

"Neither have I," said the husband.

Learning.

Learning, like money, may be of so base a coin as to be utterly void of use or, if sterling, may require good management to make it serve the purpose of sense and happiness.—Shenstone.

Enduring.

"I suppose you and your wife can remember your first quarrel," said the meddlesome person.

"Remember it!" returned Mr. Growcher. "I should say so! It isn't over yet."

AD. CLUB INNOVATION

Luncheon Will be Held at the Noon Hour

Some things that need doing in Peterborough will be aired at the monthly meeting of the Ad Club, which will be pulled off on Monday next. The occasion will be somewhat of an innovation in that the meeting will be held at noon and continue for one hour and twenty minutes. His Worship Mayor Bradburn will be the speaker. It is planned to hold the luncheon in the usual place at Hooper's Palm Parlors.

Mayor Bradburn, it is anticipated will point out some of the unique and unparalleled advantages that Peterborough possesses. He will review the work being done to cause Peterborough to grow and to become more progressive, and he will outline some work that needs to be done to place Peterborough still further in the vanguard of progress.

Any comparison of real estate values in Peterborough with real real estate values in places of similar size elsewhere, especially in the West, show our citizens to be to a great extent unappreciative of the advantages which Peterborough possesses. It has been remarked that were the citizens of Peterborough to become seized of a full appreciation of the many advantages to be had, in a commercial and a residential way, right here in Peterborough land values would advance by 100 per cent and more and people from all quarters at a distance on learning of Peterborough, would flock here to share our advantages with us.

An interesting hour is promised the business men and others who will be privileged in lunching with the Ad Club next Monday at noon, and hearing the address by His Worship Mayor Bradburn.

VICE SKIPS' BONSPIEL TO START AT CURLING RINK THURSDAY NIGHT

At a meeting of the Vice-Skips last night, it was decided to hold the bonspiel, and a committee was appointed to draw up the rinks. All players with the exception of skips play in this bonspiel.

The first draw, it is expected will be played on Thursday night at 7 o'clock. The rinks will likely be arranged to-morrow.

DENISON'S CASE AS VIEWED BY FATHER STANTON, OF OTTAWA COLLEGE

OTTAWA, Feb. 4.—"It looks like another attempt on the part of the Toronto people to exercise control over sport down here," remarked Rev. Father Stanton in speaking of the charge that Denison, the big College point player, is a pro, and received money from the ill-starred Hamilton Alert O.H.A. team.

Father Staunton explains the matter fully and in such a manner that few can doubt Dennison's right to be called an amateur. The defence man worked in Hamilton before the hockey team was thought of and he played a match with the Hamilton Alert rugby team. He joined the hockey team, but did not play any games, and he is willing to take an affidavit that he received no money. When his father heard of the trouble over the Hamilton Alert team he brought him home and sent him to College.

"Denison has an offer from the Wanderers of $1,200 to play with them," stated Father Stanton, "but he refused it. His father will not permit him to become a professional. Just why the O.H.A. can declare the Interprovincial League professional because they claim one member of a league team has associated with professionals is more than I can make out."

PORT HOPE WON FROM P.C.I.

College Boys Had 6-1 Victory in Good Game

The local P. C. I. seven were defeated by the T. C. S. aggregation in a game played at the Brock yesterday afternoon, by 6-1. The winners showed better team work and won easily. Cochrane, Bradfield and Stratton worked hard for the T.C.S. while every player in the local team played his hardest. Long had the honor of scoring the only goal on a lone rush. With more practice and a little more team work the garnet and grey boys have a team that will make things hum when they get working together.

The line-up—

T. C. S.		P. C. I.
Browyall	Goal	M Huycke
Crowther	Point	Cavanah
McDonald	Cover	Lang
Cockrane	Rover	Matthews
Bradfield	Centre	Knapman
Stratton	Left Wing	D. Huycke

EXPLOITS WON FROM C.G.E. SEVEN

The Boston Exploits added another scalp to their list of unbroken victories by taking the C.G.E. seven into camp to the score of 3—1 at the Brock street rink last night. The game was fast and inclined to be rough. Butcher, for the Exploits was the best man on the ice. Barnett played a star game for the losers. The line-up was:

C. G. E.		Exploits
Donahue	Goal	Walker
Cranfield	Point	Galvin
Laundry	Cover.	Clancey
Jackson	Rover.	Bain
Barnett	Centre.	Butcher

HOCKEY

The Toronto Star has the following to say of their local senior O.H.A. team,—

"Spratt was Peterborough's best. His game rushes featured the game. He was ready to take a chance at any stage and hard bumps only brought him back harder than ever. Coughlin displayed some of his great stick-handling and was good until Sinclair slammed him into the fence and damaged his shoulder. Parks was good all through the piece, and so was Kelly. Both played hard and and shot dangerously. Armstrong was doing nicely until he got a cross-check in the mouth. Giroux played his usual rough-and-ready game and looked a whole lot better than he was in Peterborough. Dwyer in goal was good, and Parker in the other goal, good as he was, had but little on the red-headed boy from the lift-lock city.

THE KENNEL

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Six English bull-dogs, said to be worth $37,500, which Arnold Lawson, son of Thomas W. Lawson, of Boston, brought to America from England yesterday, are said to make up the finest and most costly pack of bull-dogs ever imported into this country. The dogs were housed during the trip across the Atlantic each in a tiny cottage on board the steamer Amerika. The collection includes the champion, Centaur, four and a half years old, which has taken twelve championship prizes, and beaten every lightweight bull-dog in England, according to Mr. Lawson. Champion Beamish Blunderious, and Irish Boy were two noted heavyweights in the collection.

"There are no good bulls left in England," said Mr. Lawson, "I have all of them with me."

T.C.C. WITH SIX GOALS

Midland Played an Intermediate Game and Lost

TORONTO, Feb. 4.—Toronto Canoe Club tied up their senior group with Midland last night at the Arena, when they decisively beat the Northerners by the score of 10 to 4. The half-time score was 4 to 2 in favor of the winners.

Midland were outclassed at every angle and at only one stage did they poke their nose in front, that being in the first ten minutes, when they led by 2 to 1. Their methods were, however, all individual work. Moreover, they seldom checked back, and, with the Paddlers running loose on the attack and checking back like fiends, there was never any doubt about who would win.

Midland had a fair share of the play in the first half, at least until "C.P.R." Lavereaux faded away, after making several sensational rushes. The brilliant work of Scott in goal, however, prevented the Paddlers from having a bigger margin at the intermission.

In the second half, the Canoe Club were playing three men short, and even under this handicap held the visitors down to one goal. The Paddlers were in better condition than the visitors, and better balanced, the work of the visiting defence being very loose at different stages.

Canoe Club had a big margin on the visitors in team play, the Northerners taking a zig-zag course to their opponents' goal. This twisting around always worked the men out of their positions, and with them becoming bunched, it was always easy for the local defence to break up the attack.

Going on the form shown here last night, the Paddlers should win the play-off. The teams:—

Referee—Gren Caldwell, Barrie.

Why a Cat's Eyes Shine In the Dark.

A cat's eyes shine in the dark not because they produce light, but because they reflect all the light that may reach them. If the cat is in a totally dark room one cannot see its eyes; it is only when there is at least a glimmer of light that these glow. The cat's eyes is a powerful lens with a reflector behind. This gathers the rays and concentrates them in a horizontal beam. It is possible that these shining eyes exercise a sort of hypnotic fascination over mice and rats.

Properly Situated.

"They may say what they like against him," said the convicted one's defender, "but his heart is in the right place."

"Yes," assented the other, "and so is the rest of him for a few years."

AN OUTLAWED CANINE.

Timid by Day, Coyote Can Fight Well When Cornered.

Skulking along the hillside, or sneaking through the canyon, the coyote is a lonely, rather pitiful figure in the light of day, hated and humiliated, despised and despoiled, hunted and shot at, with a price upon his head, an outlaw without redress. But when the darkness of night has settled over the land, then does he gather courage as he prowls along the trails or through the brush. Taking his station on a hilltop, he yelps and howls defiance at the ranchman's answering dogs, at the ranchman himself and his men, and all whom in the light of day he has so feared, but whom he now challenges and mocks in the safety of the dark night hills. So vociferous, so multifarious, so penetrating is his clamor that the listener is led to believe that there is a dozen or more of him voicing his independence, his contempt and his resentment, instead of one lone, solitary animal who but a few hours before feared to raise his voice above a whisper.

The coyote is a species of wolf, evidently a link between the wolf and the dog. He has the cunning of the wolf, the intelligence of the dog, and in spite of his reputation of a coward, he has the courage to put up a good fight when cornered. He is exceedingly fleet of foot and seems to realize and appreciate the fact. On it he depends for safety, and pursued by dogs, knowing his superior pedal advantages, he seems to take pleasure in tolling them on. He will lead them a merry chase through the brush and over the hills, and when weary—or likely long before— will stop in some spot where the view of the chase is good, and wait and watch his pursuers with a smile of contempt and derision on his face. The time comes for some of his pack, however, when the dogs get him at a disadvantage, but thus cornered he will make a gallant fight with teeth and claws, and some, if not all, of the dogs will learn that they have no mean adversary to contend with.

At one time, some years ago, the coyote was hunted by horsemen and hounds, as the fox is hunted in other places. Packs of fine grayhounds were kept for that purpose, though foxhounds were also used. In recent years the cutting up of a great deal of territory into small ranches, and the building of towns and villages has put an end to organized coyote hunts with horses. Near the towns the coyote stays well back in the hills during the daytime and only descends into the valleys when darkness has obscured the land and he may in its friendly shelter enter the precincts of man unnoticed. Then is he stealthy, making no noise, for he realizes his danger, and knows that if he would be safe he must be quiet.

A Nice Wedding Present.

OTTAWA, Feb. 4.—William Storrie, C.E., in charge of the waterworks plant here, yesterday got back from his honeymoon, after marrying Miss Margaret Paterson Gowan at Toronto on Thursday.

He struck the City Hall yesterday to learn that Ald. Beaulieu has just moved that the council ask for his dismissal.

There is not the slightest chance of the motion carrying. Many consider the Toronto engineer slated for the position of waterworks engineer permanently.

Baby Burned To Death.

WINDSOR, Feb. 4.—Stanley, the infant child of Fred Rocheau, of Sandwich, died yesterday morning from burns received Saturday morning. Two children were sleeping above the store when the building caught fire. Heroic efforts were made on the part of the mother to save the children from the flames, but the younger child was badly burned. The other child will recover.

CITY TREASURER AND TAX COLLECTOR WANT INCREASE

Council Decide That Sign of Toronto Firm Must be Removed

City Treasurer Frank Adams and Tax Collector W. J. Green both applied to the City Council last evening by letter, asking for increases in salary. The communications were referred to the Committee of the whole Council, and will be dealt with at the same time as the other applications for increases already received.

MUST REMOVE SIGN.

Ald. Duffus objected to the clause in the Property Committee report in reference to the sign at the C.P.R. bridge which requests Mr. J. J. Turner to place his sign on another island, and remove the Fairweather sign. He felt that Mr. Turner should appear before the Council before the clause was put through. Mayor Bradburn, however, took objection to such a suggestion, in unmistakable manner. He asked Ald. Duffus if he was willing to sit on the City Council and allow an outside firm to advertise in Peterborough in preference to his own city. The report of the Committee went through without being altered, not before Ald. Duffus however, had expressed himself very strongly in favor of giving Mr. Turner an opportunity to appear before the Council. Ald. Duffus said he wanted it understood that he was not objecting to having Mr. Turner remove the sign, but that it was only justice to him that he should be given a chance to speak in reference to the matter first.

FIRE SUB-STATION.

A little discussion arose over the clause in the Fire, Water and Light Committee report in reference to erecting a fire sub-station in the south end of the city. It was hinted that the erection of the station would tend to raise the fire insurance rates in that part of the city.

The report of the committee was adopted.

BY-LAWS PASSED.

A by-law appointing W. H. Moore, K.C., commissioner to the City Trust passed its several readings.

A by-law authorizing the execution of a petition for legislation, introduced by Ald. Gordon, carried its three readings.

The petition relates to the recommendations brought in by City Solicitor Hall, and which were endorsed by the Legal Committee and recommended to the Council.

Ald. Gordon brought in a resolution recommending that the sum of $4.28 be paid to Dr. F. L. Robinson in settlement of a claim for damages, and Council approved.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The following communications were read:

From G. W. Hatton, notifying Council on behalf of Dr. Thomas Johnston, that the latter had met with an accident whilst driving on Hunter St. at its junction with Stewart St., owing to alleged dangerous condition of the streets at that point. Dr. Johnston's horse was injured, his cutter and harness were broken and he himself sustained injuries.

From The Canadian Manufacturers' Association, quoting rates for advertising in "Industrial Canada" and enclosing contract blank.

From Wm. Maxwell, 708 Concession street, respectfully soliciting the position of foreman on city sewerage work.

From City Solicitor Hall, enclosing memorandum of the principal provisions of the Municipal Drainage Act and giving a list of proceedings that might have to be taken to proceed, under the Act, for the improvement of Downie St. creek.

From Frank Adams, Secretary-Treasurer of the Public Library Board requesting that provision be made for $4,000 for the expense of maintaining and managing of the Public Library for 1913. A statement of the receipts and payments of the Board for 1912 was enclosed.

From Bonner-Worth Company, asking for a sidewalk on the south side of McDonnel St., to remove the necessity of pedestrians having to walk through the mud, leading up to the factory.

From the Peterborough Water Commissioners, asking Council to issue debentures for $10,000 to pay for extensions and improvements made in the Waterworks in the year 1912.

From a number of ratepayers, petitioning for street watering next summer on Park St., from Sherbrooke street to Dalhousie street, and on Dalhousie street from Park street to Reid street.

From the Board of Railway Commissioners, giving notice that a sitting of the Commissioners will be held in the City Hall, Toronto, on Thursday, Feb. 6th, when consideration of the question of protection at the crossing of the G.T.R. over Hunter St., in the city.

FIRE CHIEF'S REPORT.

During the year the Department responded to 131 alarms of fire, and the fire apparatus travelled 87 1-2 miles, we laid 23,650 feet of 2 1-2 inch fire hose, and raised 726 feet of ladders. In addition to attending the number of fires mentioned, fire drill was conducted at intervals throughout the year, laying 12,900 feet of hose and raising 2,868 feet of ladders.

In extinguishing fires we used 434 gallons of chemicals.

The total damage by fire as near as could be estimated for the year 1912 was $20,970.00. Divided as follows: $12,632.00 damage to contents and $8,338.00 damage to buildings. The fire loss per capata for this city is about $1.07, which is much lower than the average for the Dominion, which is estimated by the Monetary Times at $3.05.

While the Department was called upon to extinguish some very serious and dangerous fires, we have been exceptionally fortunate in keeping the fire loss down, and at the same time being entirely free from any accidents. The figures given in my report make a creditable showing for the City of Peterborough.

The systematic inspection of Public and Mercantile buildings conducted by this Department has been conducted throughout the year. During the year your Fire Chief made 275 inspections of buildings and premises, divided as follows.—11 schools, 178 stores, 12 hotels, 14 churches, 32 factories, 4 theatres, and 21 special calls. And I am pleased to be able to report to your Honorable Body that the City of Peterborough is classed as one of the cleanest cities in the province from a fire standpoint. The introduction of the collection of garbage last year has had a far reaching effect. I found the premises of our business district in better shape last year than ever before. And during the year we did not have a cellar fire nor a fire caused by the accumulation of combustable rubbish. There is considerable carelessness with electric wiring, and I believe a by-law should be passed providing for the inspection of all new work and alterations to existing wiring.

NEED CHEMICAL ENGINE

During the last five years the city has been growing in population and area and to such an extent that it is absolutely necessary to make considerable extension to the Fire Department, both in the staff and equipment. As I have previously suggested, the Department is badly in need of a chemical engine, and from present indications there is likely to be an enormous building boom in the southern portion of the city. And therefore it will be necessary to build a sub-station to take care of the factories and buildings in that locality.

ALARM BOXES.

There is not a sufficient number of fire alarm boxes in the streets. Five or six should be added this year. With the introduction of Hydro electric power and underground cable work, provision should be made to place the fire alarm telegraph wires under ground wherever possible. I have much pleasure in reporting the excellent behavior of your firemen, the general good health of the Department, and the happy absence of accidents. The re-arrangement of salaries will need to be taken into consideration by your Committee. You will please find attached to this report a table of fires showing the number of alarms, how received, and causes as near as could be ascertained. I also attach a stock sheet showing the amount of equipment and supplies on hand, at the time of taking stock, Jan. 1, 1913.

In conclusion I desire to express my sincere thanks to the Mayor and Council of 1912, for their generous support and co-operation. To the Chief of Police and his staff of constables who have rendered valuable assistance from time to time. To all the City officials, the public and the public press, for their kindness to this Department during the year.

HON. MR. BURRELL SPEAKS AT LIVE STOCK MEN'S BANQUET

Minister Tells Why the Government is Insisting on the Tuberculin Test and Urges Co-operative Action in Maintaining the Standard of Cattle —Wm. Smith Argues For a Canadian Show Run For the Breeders.

TORONTO, Feb. 5.—In an address last night at a banquet tendered to the officers and directors of the Live Stock Associations of Canada by the Canadian Farm, Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture for Canada, spoke in defence of the Dominion Government's live stock policy in demanding that all imported cattle coming into Canada should be submitted to a compulsory tuberculin test.

Mr. Burrell referred to an article which appeared in The Canadian Farm, in which the Minister of Agriculture was said to have been ill-advised in his policy, and said that he could not let the editorial go unchallenged. He then said that before the legislation was enacted he had given much attention to the subject, and had gone through a report prepared by a royal tuberculosis commission. The Minister said that British Columbia was paying out good, hard-earned cash in an effort to prevent foot and mouth disease from getting a foothold in the province, and he was of the opinion that, although Canadian cattle were still free from this disease, it was better to be safe than sorry. Some stockmen, he said, had been very anxious to have the English embargo on cattle lifted, but he claimed that, in spite of their opinions, the Government's policy was a right, sound, sane and logical one.

Mr. Burrell closed his address with a plea for co-operative action on the part of all live stock men in the work of maintaining the quality of Canadian animals. He asked the breeders to support that provision which calls for the setting aside every year of $20,000 for the support and upkeep of the veterinary colleges of Canada.

William Smith, M.P., the first speaker called upon by the chairman, spoke of the need of a Canadian National Exhibition. His idea of what it should be is as follows: "The time is almost at hand when we should have one great national exhibition in some central place in this country, where the east and the west may meet on equal footing. And let me say it shall be a breeders' show, controlled by breeders and by the Department of Agriculture of Canada."

Some very notable men attended the banquet. Hon. Geo. E. Graham was at Mr. Moore's left hand and proposed the toast to the stock breeders. Two members of the English nobility, Lord Somers and Lord Hyde, farmers of Pickering, Ont., added considerable dignity to the gathering. Others present were: John Bright of Myrtle, live stock commissioner; Robt. Graham, Claremont; J. H. Grisdale, director of Ottawa Exposition; Prof. George E. Day and Prof. Wade of Guelph, J. E. Brethour, Burford; Harry Smith, Exeter, president Shorthorn Breeders' Association; F. Richardson of Smith & Richardson, Columbus; Rev. J. M. Moore, Waterford; John Gardhouse, president Dominion Cattle Breeders' Association; Dr. Torrance, veterinary director-general of Canada; E. P. Westervelt and J Lockie Wilson.

FIVE MILLION TO BE SPENT ON ROADS IN OLDER ONTARIO

Speech From Throne Records Prosperity in Ontario—Brilliant Ceremony in Which Many Notables Participate Marks the Opening of the Second Session of the Thirteenth Legislature.

TORONTO, Feb. 5.—Twelve roars of cannon in Queen's Park, which were audible in all parts of the city, announced the opening of another session of the Legislature at three o'clock yesterday afternoon. The ceremony, with its customary pomp and display, was similar to other years, but with an extra dash of brilliance. Nearly a thousand people crowded the chamber and four galleries, and quite a number were denied admission owing to the great rush. There were notable people in attendance of various professions; and wives, daughters and friends of the Parliamentarians occupied the members' seats. In fact it was a gathering of the elite from all parts of the province.

In the speech the Lieutenant-Governor outlined the progress made by the province.

"The immigrants brought into the province during the year numbered more than 10,000," says the speech. "Indications of the desirable activities of our people are to be seen everywhere. By way of illustration, the Elk Lake branch of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway was completed in the month of December last, and surveys have been completed for the branch to the Abitibi River, while 3,672,407 passengers and 3,500,000 tons of freight have been carried over the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway during the year, without the loss of a single passenger.

"The mineral products for the year amounted to approximately $45,000,000. Of this amount the output of silver was nearly $19,000,000, of gold about $2,000,000, and of nickel $4,500,000, and of copper $1,500,000. This production of these minerals greatly exceeds in value that of any previous year.

"Substantial progress has been made in the operations of the Hydro-Electric Commission, which a year ago was serving nineteen municipalities, and is now supplying thirty-five. In the same period the quantity of power delivered by the commission has been more than doubled.

The question of roads in older Ontario was dealt with and the address said:

"Investigations will be made and informations collected on which to base a scheme or plan for the carrying out of this very important work. Until such scheme is prepared it will be impossible to decide what sum will be required for the purpose, but it will doubtless amount to a much larger sum than $5,000,000.

"It is expected that the commissioner appointed to inquire into the question of compensation for injuries to workmen will shortly make his final report, and a bill dealing with this very important subject will be laid before you."

Mention is made of the recent trip of J. B. Tyrrell, the explorer, to choose lands for the provincial railway line to Hudson Bay and the announcement is made that the report will be laid before the Legislature this session. The address says in conclusion:

"Legislation affecting hours of labor in mines, and other matters of public importance, will come up before you for consideration."

Hon. W. H. Hoyle then took the Speaker's chair, and two new members of the Legislature were introduced — George Neely of Middlesex East, and Charles Mills of Waterloo North. Mr. Neely was introduced by Hon. W. J. Hanna, and Mr. Mills by Hon. Dr. Reaume. S. H. Armstrong, the new member for Muskoka, did not put in an appearance, so will make his debut into Parliament at a later date. Each ceremony was very short. After a few words of introduction by the Ministers, the new members shook hands with the Speaker, after which Hon. Mr. Hoyle said: "The honorable member will take his seat."

Just prior to adjournment Sir James Whitney announced that out of respect to the late Col. A. J. Matheson, Provincial Treasurer, who died a week ago, there would be no session of the Legislature to-day. The House will convene for a few moments during which members of both sides of the chamber will pay a tribute to the late veteran official who served the interests of the people for so many years.

The Premier also introduced a motion to the effect that the debate on the speech from the throne will begin to-morrow. A. H. Musgrove of North Huron and Captain Machin of Kenora will move and second the address. On this day R. R. Gamey will submit a number of questions to the Ministry respecting the development of Northern Ontario. Mr. Gamey wants to know a few things about the adverse finding of Dr. Fernow in regard to the possibilities of the clay belt, and also what the Government has done or proposes to do with the $5,000,000 grant for the development of the northern territory.

JOIN MOVEMENT

Anglican Prelates Endorse "Duty and Discipline" Crusade.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The bishops of Fredericton and Qu'Appelle, and Canon Allman, incumbent of All Saints' Burk's Falls, Ont., are amongst the 35 new adherents who have within the last ten days joined the Duty and Discipline Movement, which, since its inauguration by the Earl of Meath as a creator of healthy public opinion concerning the Imperial duties of parental responsibility to the state, and the individual good citizenship of character, has drawn many into its ranks.

Minimize Wreck Damage.

OTTAWA, Feb. 5.—The Railway Commission had a lengthy sitting yesterday on the subject of reducing the loss of life in wrecks, the idea being to require railways to use truck and body bolster locking devices which would hold cars on trucks in the event of derailment or collision and thus prevent telescoping.

A model of a new devise being tried out by the G.T.R. was exhibited, and pending observation of its utility no action will be taken by the board.

A SPECIALIST WITH BOMBS

New York Janitor Settled Grievances With Explosives.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—John P. Farrell, a discharged apartment house janitor, confessed yesterday that he had killed Mrs. Bernard Herrera on Sunday night by means of a bomb he had made, and that by similar means he had caused the death of Mrs. Helen Taylor a year ago, and attempted the life of Judge Otto A. Rosalsky of the Court of General Sessions last March. Farrell was held for murder last night for the killing of Mrs. Herrera.

Although the police are convinced the man is mentally unbalanced, Deputy Commissioner Dougherty last night declared the detectives he had sent out in numbers to investigate the case have learned enough to lead them to believe that Farrell's startling story is true in the essentials, though false in many details.

Every time Farrell had a grievance he seems to have settled the business with a bomb. The trouble with Mrs. Herrera, he said, was that she "fired" him from his job as janitor and hired a negro in his place. He wanted to get Judge Rosalsky out of the way because the jurist had sentenced Joseph Harvey, a "pal," to serve 39 years in Sing Sing for stealing $16,000 worth of jewelry. Farrell told the police that he had had a hand in helping Harvey rob Peter Johnson's home in the Bronx in 1908, but easily escaped.

He told the police that he had been confined for a short time in an asylum for the insane at Danville, Pa.

MR. J. J. TURNER, JR.

As a member he was welcomed by the Board of Education last night.

NEW TERROR FOR AVIATORS

PARIS, Feb. 5.—An apparatus has been devised which, if all that is claimed for it is substantiated, may have an important bearing on the aeroplane as an engine of war.

Gen. Hirschauer of the flying corps has received a communication from the inventor of the apparatus, Dr. Cousin, a scientist, who has recently been experimenting on this device with Jules Vedrines, the aviator. He informs Gen. Hirschauer that the apparatus, which is small and simple, and can be carried in a soldier's knapsack, by provoking disturbances of the air will cause any type of aeroplane to capsize, even if it has ascended to a height of more than 9,000 feet.

RELIGION WAS NO OBSTACLE

Daughter of Chief Justice and Lt.-Col. Bate Married.

OTTAWA, Feb. 5.—Yesterday afternoon Miss Marguerite Fitzpatrick, youngest daughter of Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, chief justice of Canada, was married to Mr. James Montague Bate, eldest son of the late Lt.-Col. H. A. Bate and Mrs. Bate and grandson of Sir Henry Bate. The marriage took place in the Sacristy of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church. The principals are of opposite religion, the bridegroom being an Anglican and the bride a Roman Catholic.

Y.M.C.A. WANTS CONCESSIONS

GALT, Feb. 5.—On the site of the old Queen's Hotel, formerly the largest hostelry in Galt, the Y.M.C.A., which acquired the property and demolished the building, have put up a $80,000 structure. The board of directors of the association have had prepared a special incorporation to be applied for at the coming session of the Legislature, under which Parliament will be asked to exempt taxes for school purposes and local improvements.

VISIT NIGHT COURT

MISS JESSIE WILSON

MISS ELEANOR WILSON

After attending the theatre the Misses Eleanor and Jessie Wilson, daughters of the President elect, occupied seats in the Women's Night Court in New York with Magistrate Murphy and took a keen interest in the cases of several young women who were arraigned for disturbances in connection with the garment workers' strike. They were escorted to the court by Mrs. J. Borden Harriman and a man who refused to give his name.

FIGHTING AT ADRIANOPLE

Many Stories Regarding Hostilities Are Without Foundation.

Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—A semi-official despatch from Sofia says the bombardment of adrianople continued without interruption to-day. Most of the stories received with regard to operations around the besieged city are without foundation, being either biased statements of one of the belligerents or a surmise of some newspaper correspondent debarred from first hand observation.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 5. — Shukri Pasha, commanding Adrianople, wires that the bombardment continues, and that a number of shell have fallen in the city, killing eight persons and wounding ten.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The Turks remain on the defensive at Tchatalja and Adrianople. The Adrianople fortress replies only feebly to the Bulgarian bombardment and apparently no attempt has been made in the way of a sortie.

The Turkish newspaper, Tanin, asserts that Adrianople has sufficient provisions for four months, and other Trukish reports declare that the fortress certainly will be able to hold out for several weeks.

Official quarters in Constantinople breathe a spirit of great confidence in the new regime and declare that the condition of the country and the wintry weather precludes serious operations along the Tchatalja lines for the present.

Meanwhile diplomacy has made no step forward since the resumption of hostilities and the Porte has made no further communication either to the powers or the allies. Should it turn out that Adrianople can resist for any considerable time, diplomatic negotiations are likely to remain at a standstill, although in the European capitals, a settlement by diplomacy rather than by arms is still hoped for.

There is no confirmation of the reported occupation of Scutari by the Montenegrins.

HERE'S A CHANCE TO BE A HERO

Explorer Stefansson is Looking For Dauntless Companions.

OTTAWA, Feb. 5.—Wanted: volunteers to spend three years in the last unexplored and unknown part of the world, two thousand miles on foot away from the nearest corner of civilization, in the land of the midnight sun and of winter temperatures running as low as 70 or 75 degrees below zero. Applicants must work for fame, not for money; they must be hard as nails, undaunted by anything, young and infinitely persevering; college-bred men with natural science specialties preferred. Apply to V. Stefansson, ethnologist, naturalist, and explorer, and Canadian.

BREEDERS SLIGHTED

Says President of Shorthorn Breeders Association.

TORONTO, Feb 5.—Protests against the actions of the Dominion Government were made yesterday afternoon by Mr. Peter White, K.C., of Pembroke, in his presidential address to the Dominion Shorthorn Breeders' Association. The well-known lawyer-farmer regarded the recent passing of the order in council compelling the submission of cattle entering British Columbia to be submitted to a tuberculin test as "a retograde step," and charged Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, with "showing partiality to the dairying interests for purely political reasons" in connection with the grant of $10,000,000 made by the Government last month in aid of agriculture, declaring that Hon. Mr. Burrell's speech "contained not one syllable which would enable a person reading it to infer there was one beef animal in the whole Dominion of Canada." It was very serious, in view of the shortage of meats and the extreme cost of all kinds of cuts in the butchers' shops, and he considered it high time the beef-raisers "brought their claims to the attention of the Minister and demanded an expenditure at least equal to that given to the dairymen. We have been too complacent," he said.

With regard to the near embargo placed on cattle entering British Columbia, Mr. White said: "I trust this order in council will be withdrawn pending the development of some broad, general policy applicable to the whole Dominion." He explained it was enforced only in British Columbia, and questioned its constitutional validity.

"This richly-endowed country should be developed as a whole," asserted Mr. White, "and nothing which interferes with or hampers interprovincial trade should be tolerated. If it is right to prevent the importation of untested cattle into British Columbia, why is it not right to prevent untested cattle going from any province to any other province?" he asked.

Referring to the comparatively large sums being spent both by the Dominion and Ontario Governments on the dairying industry at the expense of the beef industry, Mr. White remarked that "neither directly nor indirectly is there any considerable sum devoted to the fostering of the beef industry, which is equally as important as the dairying industry."

The speaker thought part of the $10,000,000 grant to agriculture "might have been expended in ascertaining if the present methods of distributing farm produce are wasteful."

MRS. WARWICK IS ACQUITTED

Was Charged With Murdering Her Husband.

REGINA, Sask., Feb. 5.—Mrs. Amy Warwick was last night acquitted by jury of the murder of her husband. The jury was out half an hour.

No trial of recent years excited greater interest in the province when it came before Chief Justice Haultain on Monday, by reason of many confessions alleged to have been made by the woman. She is but 22 years old, and was charged with complicity in the murder of Warwick, whose battered body was found in the stable on his farm last fall.

CROWN PRINCE IS RECOVERING

YALTA, Crimea, Russia, Feb. 5.—The Imperial Crown Prince Alexis of Russia is still unable to straighten his left leg at the knee, owing to the injury he sustained recently, but according to the physician in attendance, Dr. Derovenko, this is rapidly becoming normal.

The crown prince takes a drive daily, either in a carriage or a sleigh.

The members of the Imperial family, according to Gen. Dumbadze, are in the best of spirits, owing to the rapid and satisfactory recovery of the crown prince.

READY TO FIGHT.

Advocates of Present Panama Tolls Prepared to Obstruct.

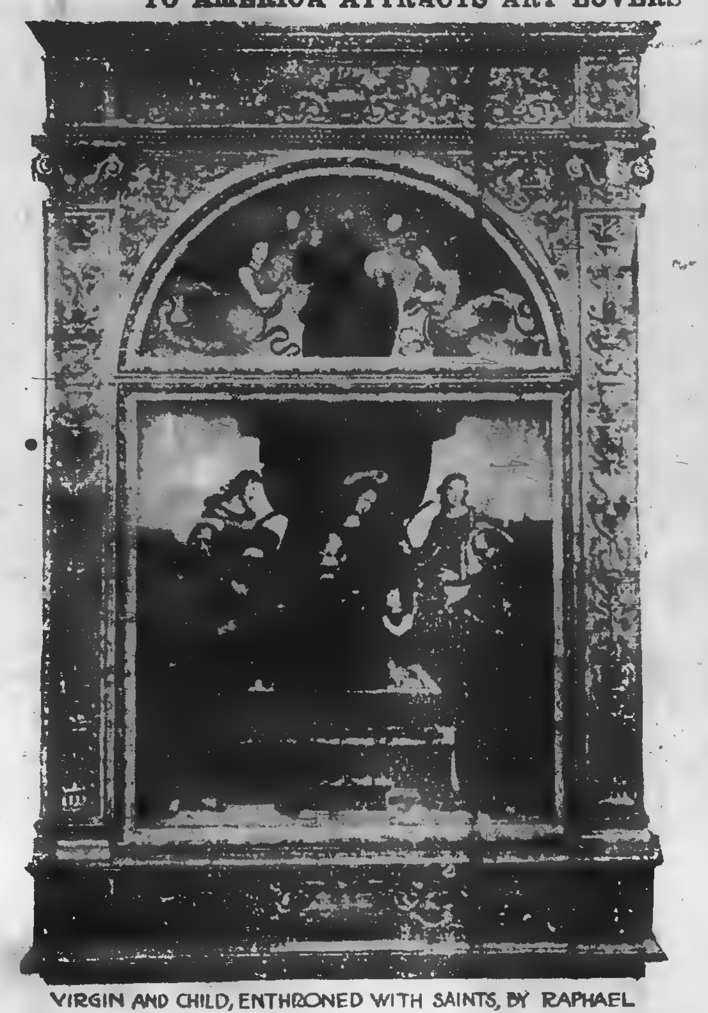
WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The repeal of the Panama Canal free tolls provision, proposed in an amendment by Senator Root to the recently passed canal administration law, is to be taken up Friday at a meeting of the Senate committee on interoceanic canals. The call for the meeting was issued yesterday by Chairman Brandegee.

Advocates of the free toll provision for American coastwise ships are prepared to fight the proposed amendment in the committee and prevent, if possible, its endorsement. Should the provision be favorably reported to the Senate, it is believed it will be impossible to secure final action on it during the pending session.

G. C. Jones Premoted.

MONTREAL, Feb. 5.—E. J. Chamberlin, as president of the Central Vermont Railway, made his first official appointment yesterday, to the effect that G. C. Jones is vice-president in charge of construction, transportation and maintenance departments. Mr. Jones was formerly general manager of the Central Vermont.

MOST IMPORTANT PICTURE EVER BROUGHT TO AMERICA ATTRACTS ART LOVERS



VIRGIN AND CHILD, ENTHRONED WITH SAINTS, BY RAPHAEL

Raphael's "Virgin and Child, Enthroned with Saints," held by many connoisseurs to be the most important picture ever brought to America, is attracting art lovers from all parts of the United States to New York, where, as part of the J. Pierpont Morgan collection recently removed from London, it is on exhibition during the winter months at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. It is the "Colonna Raphael," painted for the nuns of the convent of St. Anthony of Padua, at Perugia, who sold it in 1677 to Antonio Bigazzini. It came into the possession soon after of the Colonna family, where it remained until 1802. Mr. Morgan purchased the painting of a French dealer in 1901 for $500,000.

LIBERALS GIVEN THE FLOOR IN THE NAVAL DEBATE

Conservatives Have Said all That is Needed Regarding Bill But Opposition Seems Willing to Keep on Making Speeches.

OTTAWA, Feb. 5.—The House yesterday settled down to a trial of endurance so far as the naval debate is concerned. This debate will be made the first order on every Government day until a vote is reached, but the Opposition members will be compelled to do all the talking.

The discussion yesterday was carried on by Mr. Turgeon of Gloucester, N.B. Mr. Thompson of Qu'Appelle, Sask., and ex-Speaker Marcil. Mr. Thompson adroitly presented the case against the Government and came out flatfooted in favor of a plebiscite or referendum. Mr. Marcil adjourned the debate.

The naval discussion was interrupted by a discussion which arose during the hour devoted to the consideration of private bills, when a number of Opposition members, including Hon. Wm. Pugsley and Hon. Frank Oliver, protested against mergers, melon-cutting and stock watering.

The bill before the House authorized the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Co. to increase its capital from ten million to fifteen million dollars.

Mr. Nesbitt (N. Oxford) spoke of the steamship line mergers going on, and feared that the increased capital would be used in stifling competition.

Hon. Frank Oliver said that no stock increases should be allowed unless the stock was to be sold at the market price. The people of the west were suffering from increased freight rates on the lakes, and they were opposed to stock watering by transportation companies. Hon. Wm. Pugsley criticized a clause in the bill which permitted the company to invest its funds "temporarily" in any manner it saw fit. It might, for example, loan a million dollars to a single stockholder.

The Prime Minister being appealed to for his opinion, said it was not an unusual thing for corporations to increase their capital. He admitted that the investment clause was somewhat unique.

Mr. O Turgeon of Gloucester, who resumed the debate in the afternoon, quoted from many authorities against the idea of a contribution, including Lord Milner and Mr. Balfour. He declared that the British Government had not accepted the principle of contribution, and that it would be much better for the Empire and for Canada to have a Canadian navy.

We have been told by the Prime Minister that Canada owes England $400,000,000 without interest for money expended for defence purposes during the nineteenth century, said Mr. Thompson, who followed.

"If we owe the principal, we also owe the interest, which brings the claim up to at least one billion. The Minister of Fisheries (Mr. Hazen) says he cannot think of this debt without a blush mantling his cheek, but he says he could get over this blushing habit altogether if $35,000,000 were paid into the Imperial Treasury. He would settle the claim by paying three and one-half per cent. Many of us would like to settle our private debts in that way if we could do so without blushing." (Laughter.)

Mr. Thompson believed that the Asiatic peril was a more serious menace than any European peril, yet we were told that if Canada dared to build and man a warship on the Pacific coast she would be disloyal to put herself out of the British Empire.

In conclusion Mr. Thompson said that the members on both sides of the House should endeavor to get together. No one could but wish that Canada should present a united front. The thing to do was to find out what the people wanted. That could be accomplished in two ways: first by the dissolution of Parliament and appeal to the people. (Liberal applause.) Second, by a plebiscite or referendum.

Hon. Mr. Marcil, who followed, pointed out that the House could not find the answer to the naval problem by two weeks' consideration. The voting of $35,000,000, Mr. Marcil said, was no secondary consideration. No one would refuse to vote the $35,000,000 who thought Britain needed it, but the policy adopted should be a unanimous one, such a one as that of 1909.

The responsibility did not rest with Parliament alone, but with Parliament and the people. Therefore, the people should be consulted before Parliament acted in the matter. Parliament had no power to vote the $35,000,000. According to the British North America Act, money could only be voted by Parliament for the defence of Canada.

The French, declared Mr. Marcil, were loyal in 1776, when they were given their choice, and they would remain loyal now and forever.

Britain should not bring any pressure to bear upon Canada's decision in this matter. Canada should be left to make her own choice.

RAG SORTERS TO KEEP STONES

They Found Diamonds in Bundle of Old Rags.

CORNWALL, Ont., Feb. 5.—Claims are beginning to come in for the diamonds found recently in a bundle of old rags in the sorting room of the St. Lawrence Paper Mills here.

One claimant is Mrs. W. B. Lawson of Central Park, place, New York City, who states that last summer she lost a pink bag containing jewelry from her summer cottage at Sea Cliff, L.I. Another is Lieut. J. T. Abbot, of the New York fire department, who says that his sister-in-law lost jewels to the value of $2,500 while house-cleaning last June.

In the meantime the girls who found the jewels in the rags refuse to hand them over to the police, holding that as they found them they are entitled to keep them.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST
BY GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Company.

CHAPTER XX.

Wherein the Limberlost Sings For Ammon.

ELNORA lifted the violin and began to play. She wore a school dress of green gingham, with the sleeves rolled to the elbows. She seemed a part of the setting all around her. Her head shone like a small dark sun, and her face never had seemed so rose flushed and fair. From the instant she drew the bow her lips parted and her eyes fastened on something far away in the swamp, and never did she give more of that impression of feeling for her notes and repeating something audible only to her. Ammon was too near to get the best effect. He arose and stepped back several yards, leaning against a large tree, looking and listening with all his soul.

As he changed positions he saw that Mrs. Comstock had followed them and was standing on the trail, where she could not have helped hearing everything Elnora had said. So to Ammon before her and the mother watching on the trail Elnora played the song of the Limberlost. To the man it was a revelation. He stood so stunned he forgot Mrs. Comstock. He tried to realize what a great city audience would say to that music from such a player with a like background, and he could not imagine.

He was wondering what he dared say, how much he might express, when the last note fell and the girl laid the violin in the case, closed the door, locked it and hid the key in the rotting wood at the end of a log. Then she came to him. Ammon stood looking at her curiously.

"I wonder," he said, "what people would say to that?"

"I did it in public once," said Elnora. "I think they liked it fairly well. I had a note yesterday offering me the leadership of the high school orchestra in Onabasha. I would gladly play for nothing just to be able to express myself."

"Give up the college idea," said Ammon. "Your mind does not need that sort of development. It is far past it."

"Do you really mean that you would give up all idea of going to college, if you were me?"

"If you could only realize it, my girl, you are in college, and have been always. You are in the school of experience, and it has taught you to think, and given you a heart. God knows I envy the man who wins it! I wouldn't even advise you to read too many books on your lines. You get your stuff first hand, and you know that you are right. What you should do is to begin early to practice self expression. Don't wait too long to tell us about the woods as you know them."

Not until then did he remember that Mrs. Comstock was somewhere very near.

"Should we go out to the trail and see if your mother is coming?" he asked.

"Here she is now," said Elnora. "Gracious, it's a mercy I got that violin put away in time! I didn't expect her so soon," whispered the girl, as she turned and went toward her mother. Mrs. Comstock's face was a study as she looked at Elnora.

To the Man It Was a Revelation.

"Have you found anything yet?" she asked.

"Nothing that I can show you," said Elnora. "I am not sure but I have found an idea that will revolutionize the whole course of my work, thought and ambitions."

"'Ambitions!' My, what a hefty word!" laughed Mrs. Comstock. "I guess we better let ambition lie. I've always heard it was safest asleep. If you ever get a bonafide attack, it will be time to attend it. Let's hunt specimens. It is June. Philip and I are in the grades. What is the miracle of June? What one thing epitomizes the whole month?"

"The birth of these big night moths," said Elnora promptly.

Ammon clapped his hands. The tears started to Mrs. Comstock's eyes. She took Elnora in her arms and kissed her forehead.

"You'll do!" she said. "Find the distinctive feature of each month, the one thing which marks it a time apart. I can't name all of them offhand, but I think of one more right now. February belongs to our winter birds. You should hear those musicians of this swamp in February, Philip, on a mellow night. Oh, but they are in earnest! For twenty-one years I've listened by night to the great owls, all the smaller sizes, the foxes, coons and every resident left in these woods, and by day to the hawks, yellowhammers, sapsuckers, titmice, crows and all our winter birds. It's about the best music we have. I just wonder if you couldn't copy that alone and make a strong, original piece out of it for your violin, Elnora?"

There was one tense breath, then—"I could try," said Elnora simply.

Ammon rushed to the rescue. "We must go to work," he said, and began examining a walnut branch for Luna moth eggs. Elnora joined him while Mrs. Comstock drew her embroidery from her pocket and sat on a log. She said she was tired; they could come for her when they were ready to go. She could hear their voices all around her until she called them at supper time. When they came to her she stood waiting on the trail, the sewing in one hand, the violin in the other. Elnora became very white, but took the trail without a word. Ammon, unable to see a woman carry a heavier load than he, reached for the instrument. Mrs. Comstock shook her head. She carried the violin home, took it into her room and closed the door. Elnora turned to Ammon.

"If she destroys that I will die!" cried the girl.

"She won't!" said Ammon. "You misunderstand her. She wouldn't have said what she did about the owls if she had meant to. She is your mother. No one loves you as she does. Trust her! Myself—I think she's simply great!"

Mrs. Comstock returned with serene face, and all of them helped with the supper. When it was over Ammon and Elnora sorted and classified the afternoon's specimens and made a trip to the woods to paint and light several trees for moths. When they came back Mrs. Comstock sat in the arbor, and they joined her. She went into the cabin, but she returned almost instantly, laying the violin and bow across Elnora's lap. "I wish you would give us a little music," she said.

The violin played on until Elnora was so tired she scarcely could lift the bow. Then Ammon went home. The women walked to the gate with him and stood watching him from sight.

"That's what I call one decent young man!" said Mrs. Comstock. "To see him fit in with us, you'd think he'd been raised in a cabin, but it's likely he's always had the very cream o' the pot."

"Yes, I think so," laughed Elnora, "but it hasn't hurt him. I've never seen anything I could criticise. He's teaching me so much unconsciously. You know he graduated from Harvard and has several degrees in law. He's coming in the morning."

Next morning Ammon came early, and he and Elnora went at once to the fields and woods. Mrs. Comstock had come to believe so implicitly in him that she now stayed at home to complete the work before she joined them, and when she did she often sat sewing, leaving them wandering hours at a time. It was noon before she finished, and then she packed a basket of lunch. She found Elnora and Philip near the violet patch, which was still in its prime. They lunched together. Then Mrs. Comstock carried the basket back to the cabin, and Ammon and Elnora sat on a log, resting for a few minutes.

"Do you remember your promise about these violets?" asked Ammon. "Tomorrow is Edith's birthday, and if I'd put them special delivery on the morning train she'd get them in the late afternoon. They ought to keep well that long. She leaves for the north next day."

"Of course you can have them," said Elnora. "We will quit long enough before supper to gather a great bunch. They can be packed so they will carry all right. They should be perfectly fresh, especially if we gather them this evening and let them drink all night."

Then they went back to hunt Catocalae. It was a long and a happy search. Ammon came to Elnora at dusk daintily holding one by the body, its dark wings showing and its long, slender legs trying to clasp his fingers and creep from his hold.

Elnora studied the black wings intently. "I surely believe that's Sappho," she marveled. "The Bird Woman will be overjoyed."

"We must get the cyanide jar quickly," said Ammon. "I wouldn't lose her for $100. Such a chase as she led me!"

Elnora got the jar and began gathering up paraphernalia.

"When you make a find like that," she said, "it's the right time to quit and feel glorious all the rest of that day. I tell you I'm proud. We will go now. We have barely time to carry out our plans before supper. Won't mother be pleased to see that we have a rare one?"

"I'd like to see anyone more pleased than I am!" said Philip Ammon. "I feel as if I'd earned my supper tonight. Let's go."

He took the greater part of the load and stepped aside for Elnora to precede him. She went down the path, broken by the grazing cattle, toward the cabin and nearest the violet patch she stopped, laid down her net, and the things she carried. Ammon passed her and hurried forward.

"Aren't you going to"— began Elnora.

"I'm going to get this moth home in a hurry," he said. "This cyanide has lost its strength, and it's not working well. We need some fresh in the jar."

He had forgotten the violets. Elnora stood looking after him, a curious expression on her face. One second so—then she picked up the net and followed. At the blue bordered pool she paused and half turned back, then she closed her lips firmly and went on. It was 9 o'clock when Ammon said goodby and started to town. His gay whistle floated to them from the farthest corner of the Limberlost. Elnora complained of being tired, so she went to her room and to bed. But sleep would not come. Thought was racing in her brain, and the longer she lay the wider awake she grew. At last she softly slipped from bed, lighted her lamp and began opening boxes. Then she went to work. Two hours later a beautiful birch bark basket, strongly and artistically made, stood on her table. She set a tiny alarm clock at 3, returned to bed and fell asleep instantly.

COIFFURE STYLES.

Pearls In Hair a Victorian Revival.

CLASSICAL HAIR ARRANGEMENT.

To the face with regular features this classic hairdressing is very becoming, but the woman with a plain or even merely a piquant face should beware of so severely simple a style.

WHEN A ROOM IS STUFFY.

Closeness May Be Overcome When Windows Can't Be Opened.

There is no greater purifier of air than open windows, but sometimes in sickrooms this method of changing the air is impossible.

Have you ever tried overcoming closeness by carrying a rolled burning newspaper through a sickroom? Equally good is a tablespoonful of vinegar ignited over an alcohol lamp.

An atomizer for spraying cologne can be used with toilet water or witch hazel with refreshing effect.

There are special spirit lamps that have a connection with a platinum ball attachment that are excellent to permeate a room with purifying odors. There are special mixtures for burning in these lamps, but a good cologne or toilet water answers.

The lamp burns until the platinum ball grows red hot; then the flame is extinguished. The vaporization of the cologne is increased by coming in contact with the heated metal, and the room is soon fragrant.

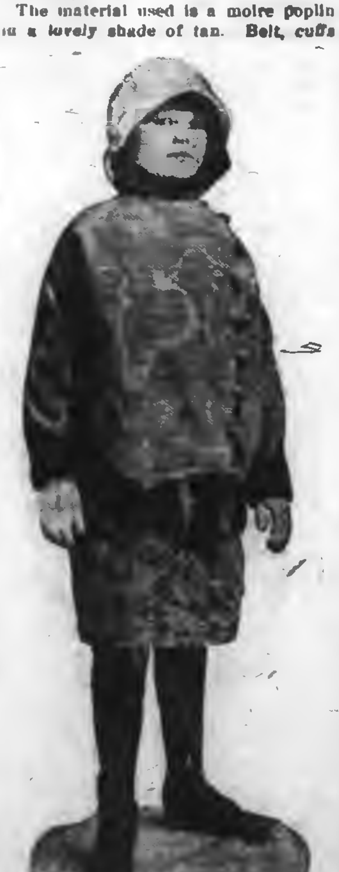
A quick way to cool a room is to wet a small crib sheet with cologne or water highly scented with perfumed bath tablets. Hang in a draft of air or shake the sheet lightly while still wet.

Burning lump camphor is favored by some nurses, especially in sultry weather, as mosquitoes avoid the odor.

The Trousers Coat.

Extremes in juvenile styles are to be met with on every hand, but probably the limit has been reached in the cut illustrated, which is decidedly "Frenchy."

The material used is a moire poplin in a lovely shade of tan. Belt, cuffs and narrow turned down collar are of moleskin.



FRENCH MODEL OF SILK AND MOLESKIN.

As you see, the coat is exceedingly abbreviated at the bottom and narrows into almost the width of a man's trousers leg. On a tall, stylish child this coat is stunning.

Substitute For Hot Water Bottle.

The following suggestion is taken from the Farm and Fireside, where it is published in the housewife's department: "For people with steam heat old magazines stuck in the radiators will be found a fine substitute for hot water bottles. Magazines so heated never burn and when placed in a bed or a baby's carriage hold the heat for a long time."

Good Table Manners.

It is sometimes difficult to make young people, particularly boys, appreciate the value of correct table manners. "Aw, what's the difference?" they ask when told not to eat with their knives.

The difference is that as a whole table etiquette is based upon the fundamental principles of convenience, neatness and self restraint. Disregard of it causes the offender to appear slovenly, greedy and inconsiderate of the sensibilities of others, says the Woman's World.

Sit erect at the table. Don't sprawl with your elbows on the table. Don't attempt to bring your mouth down to your food; raise the food to your mouth.

Don't shake your napkin out with a flourish; unfold it and spread it across your knees. Raise one corner of it to your lips as occasion arises.

In your own home or in a house where you expect to be a guest for several meals fold your napkin when you are through with it. If a guest for one meal only crumple the napkin slightly and lay it unfolded beside your plate. The assumption is, of course, that it will not be used again until it is washed.

Do not break crackers into your soup. Look at the next person you see doing it and observe what an unsavory looking dish it produces. Never dip crackers or bread into any sort of liquid.

In dipping up soup move the spoon toward the outer edge of the dish. Take the soup from the side of the spoon.

When in doubt use your fork is a pretty fair table rule. The knife, of course, is absolutely tabooed except for cutting and spreading. The spoon is used only for liquids and soft desserts. Vegetables served as side dishes are usually eaten with a fork.

In cutting meat take the knife in the right hand and the fork in the left, cut off a proper mouthful, lay the knife down beside the plate, transfer the fork to the right hand, holding the tines pointed downward, and raise the meat to the mouth. It sounds slow, to be sure, but rapid eating is neither healthful nor pleasant to watch.

American Manners.

"Have Americans Any Manners?" is the title of an article by Frederick Townsend Martin in the November number of Harper's Bazar. His discovery of manners here is introduced by the following definition: "Good manners are neither more nor less than good behavior. Behavior is the perpetual revealer. Good behavior is the reflex of good character. Good character is neither birth, wealth nor fashion, but in the mind. To possess character is a dignity in itself, higher than any titular rank or anything we can borrow from dead men's bones."

His article in the Bazar goes on to say: "Manners are of more importance than laws, are stronger than laws. Indeed, it has been well said that upon good manners in a great measure the laws depend. The law can touch us here and there, now and then, but manners are what vex or soothe, corrupt or purify, exalt or debase, barbarize or refine, by a constant, steady, uniform, insensible operation like that of the air we breathe. How often has it been said that good manners are made up of petty sacrifices!

"American conditions are conducive to the development of the best manners, because in America recognition depends not upon birth, nor upon wealth, but upon the force of one's character. America is the country of democracy, in which people do not borrow merit from the dead; in which, so to speak, every one is his own character and every one his own heir, and devises his own future and inherits his own past. In America a grandfather is not a social institution; men do not live in the past."

Dr. Hamilton's Pills Cured

"I think it should be the duty of the schools to teach children how to keep well," writes Miss Nannie E. Naydon, a well-known and highly esteemed resident of Bristol. "Ignorance of the laws of health and the use of improper remedies destroyed my vigor, and led me to the verge of invalidism. I was as a girl ruddy and strong. Nothing seemed to affect me until I was about thirty. Then gas began to form in the stomach. I suffered with bloating and a general failure in strength set in. If I went upstairs my breath hurt. My system was very irregular, and until I grew pretty bad I didn't pay much heed to my condition. Then I got blue, worried all the time, wakened in the night, and couldn't get to sleep again. None of the medicine I took helped me. One day I was reading of a very interesting case like mine cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I took the same treatment. It was just right—didn't physic me to death, but took hold of the weak, sick parts of my system, and set things right. It seems as if Dr. Hamilton's Pills have made me young again, and all my color, spirits, vigor, and health of former days have returned to stay."

Every girl and woman should use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly. They help a woman in many ways. Beware of the dealer who asks you to take an inferior pill on which his profit is larger than on Dr. Hamilton's. Sold in yellow boxes, 25c per box, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone, Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE HAREM SYSTEM OF MOROCCO

Cruelty and Oppression Almost Beyond Human Imagination.

Remarkable revelations of the extent of the Moorish slave trade and of harem life were made recently by Mme. Legey, a French doctor, who lives at Marrakesh, Morocco. That place is the centre of Morocco slavery and there is a great slave market authorized and controlled by the Makhzen, the Moorish parliament, thousands of men, women and children are bought and sold like cattle. Babies are frequently torn from the arms of sobbing mothers, who never see them again

"None can form an idea of the Moorish harem and the number of women concealed behind the walls," says Mme Legey. "I have seen a single harem of more than 500 women. Monogamy, in Morocco, is non-existent, even men of small means possessing sometimes more than 20 wives.

"The Sultan's harem surpasses the imagination. Besides the woman he possesses at Fez, he has at Marrakesh in reserve more than 3,000 females. The royal harem at Marrakesh has a special organization of its own. Each town and each tribe has its debt to pay in women to this modern Minotaur. The women are classed according to their place of origin. They live in groups in separate pavilions under the control of female wardens. This enormous female population is constantly added to by the contributions from Kaids who have offended the Sultan and wish to propitiate him.

"I can personally testify to the silent misery of the poor creatures who swarm in the Moorish harems and the revoltingly cruel treatment they undergo for the smallest offences They have absolutely no real protection from the most savage treatment. They have no work to do except in the case of domestic servants, and in accordance with Moorish traditions, receive no education. There lives are one long round of unbroken monotony, wherefrom, to my knowledge, they suffer cruelly It is the duty of France as soon as possible to abolish slavery in Morocco. Then the harems will be deprived of the supply of women and will disappear gradually, as was the case in Algeria."

Better Than the "Verses."

Children, as a rule, have a natural sense of courtesy too often misunderstood or depreciated by the unthinking adult. For some strange and incomprehensible reason the child who is brusque and blunt is apt to be dubbed "natural," while the budding man or woman of gentle tact and sweet politeness sometimes is discouraged by the prevailing belief that such conduct must be insincere. Yet the simplest "little citizens" not infrequently rise to an unexpected or trying situation with surprising, but quite untutored, gifts and grace. A pretty little tale is told, for instance, of the time when the present Dowager Queen Margherita of Italy was the lovely young bride of the youthful crown prince.

Her majesty, passing through one of the hill towns, was accorded the usual reception by the residents. A little boy was to present the usual bouquet, and he, coming of fine literary family, had been taught a brief poem offering graceful praise of the princess. But when the moment came for delivering flowers and verses the little fellow, overcome by nervousness or some similar emotion, stood mutely gazing at the great lady, saying never a word. After a few moments the sympathetic princess, seeking to relieve the situation, extended her hand for the flowers.

The little fellow, waking to life suddenly, yielded them gracefully, explaining confidentially the while:

"There were verses to be said, but you are so beautiful that I can't remember a line!"

SERVIA AS A NATION.

It Originated in the First Half of the Seventh Century.

The birth of Servia as a nation, settled in or near its present home, may be dated in the first half of the seventh century. About 600 A. D., when the Avaric empire of desolation was established on the Danube, two tribes, the Croats and the Serbs, retiring before the ravages of the Tartar horsemen, settled in the countries now known as Croatia, Bosnia and Servia.

They were Slavs, but the Croats perhaps had, like the Slavs of Moesia in after years, adopted the name of a Tartar tribe. Both, fleeing from the Avars, were naturally hostile to them, and it is possible that they settled in the empire with the consent or even at the invitation of the Emperor Heraclius I. At any rate, they appear to have been considered as vassals of the empire. Their first settlements lay rather westward of the country now called Servia, the Drave, the present western boundary, being the dividing line between Bulgar and Serb in the eighth century. Here the Serbs dwelt more or less uneventfully for three centuries. They generally formed a loose confederacy under chiefs called zupans. They were commonly, in a loose fashion, loyal to the eastern empire mainly through fear of their dangerous neighbors, the Bulgarians. About 840 they united under a chief named Vlastimiz to repel the latter.

The country rose to great heights under Stephen Dushan, the czar of the Serbs, but after his death Murad I. conquered the country, and it was not until 1815 that the Serbs partially threw off the Turkish yoke.—Exchange.

PRECIOUS MUGS.

The Crucibles Used In the New York Assay Office.

In the government assay office on Wall street, New York, there is a corner that looks very much like a mug rack in a country barber shop, where every customer has his individual mug highly decorated in gilt letters.

On this rack are perhaps fifty crucibles for melting down gold. The crucibles are decorated with crude initials and numerals and are the property of the biggest gold mining corporations in North and South America.

The reason for the individual mugs is that the clay of crucibles takes up a considerable quantity of gold in the process of smelting which otherwise would be lost to the customer bringing the gold to the government to be refined. After two or three smeltings the clay is saturated and takes up no more gold. When it is finally succeeded by a new crucible it is returned to the customer to be broken up for its hidden gold.

Mugs that are used for melting down random lots of gold are carefully preserved by the government refiners and sold. Uncle Sam pockets the proceeds, as in these random lots there is no way of computing to what amount each of perhaps twenty customers may be entitled. It is only the smelting concern that sells the government enough gold at one time to monopolize a single melting that obtains the right to a mug on the rack. — New York Tribune.

Ice Cream and a Nerve.

Why do we sometimes get an ache in the nose when eating ice cream. There is a nerve running along the back of the nose which doctors call the anterior palatine nerve. This has a branch running along the base of the nasal cavity and another branch running along the palate. The ends of these branches join through finer branches which run through openings in the palate near the front teeth. When we get some ice cream in the mouth and keep it in front for a moment so that the irritation produced by the cold reaches the fine connecting branches the sensation may be carried to the branch in the nose. Irritation of this branch produces the sensation of pain. We get the same sensation when breathing very cold air.—New York American.

Meredith and Words.

George Meredith, according to the London Chronicle, "employs that abominable contraction 'alright.' It can't be a printer's error, for it occurs more than once. And he uses it as early as 1863, so that the abusers of our language may now claim Meredith of all men as their prophet. This is one of those things that baffle explanation, particularly from a writer whose use of words was meticulous and who always refused to delete the first 'e' in 'judgment,' always spelling it 'judgement' in his novels. Some of us, however, will fight 'alright' to the bitter end."

Social Surgery.

The newly rich dame took her daughter to a fashionable school and interviewed the haughty principal.

"I want my daughter to learn to act as if she had moved in aristocratic circles all her life," she explained.

"I see," mused the principal. "And are you willing to be separated from her that long?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Historical.

"Children," asked the visitor who was addressing the school, "how many of you can tell me what it was that Napoleon's soldiers used to call him?" Nobody answered. "Think a moment. 'Little'"— Still nobody spoke up. "'Little Corp'"— "A little corpulent!" shouted the children. — Chicago Tribune.

BOWSER ON HERBS

He Goes to the Druggist to Prove That Mrs. B. Is Wrong.

BUT COMES HOME IN DISGUST.

Accompanied by a Bunch of Catnip, the Entire Feline Population and a Well Developed Grouch — He Manages to Save His Honor, However.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.]

MR. BOWSER hadn't said anything right out, but he had come home a bit irritated and ready to find fault. There had been no opening offered, and he was wondering if he shouldn't begin on the stock subject of the gas bill when the cat entered the room and began rolling about on the rug. There was his chance, and he exclaimed:

"Now, then, what in thunder ails that old cat?"

"He acted like that this afternoon when Mrs. White was in here, and she said he wanted catnip," replied Mrs. Bowser.

"Wanted catnip?"

"Yes. You know what catnip is, don't you?"

"I've heard of a plant called catnip, but what has it to do with cats?"

"A good deal. At certain seasons of the year, particularly in the fall, cats are crazy for it. I've heard it said that they would die if they didn't get it."

"Bosh! What our old cat wants is a blamed good thumping with a club, and he'll get it if he tries any funny business around this house!"

"I meant to have got some catnip of the old man who comes along here every week selling it," said Mrs. Bowser

"SHE WANTS SOME CATNIP."

"but he passed yesterday before I could call him. I'll be on the watch for him next Wednesday."

"Are you an idiot, or do you take me for one?"

"I don't know what you mean. What is there to call for such vigorous language?"

"Our old cat comes up and rolls around and meows, and you tell me he wants catnip."

"Well, what of it?"

A Lecture on Catnip.

"What of it? Are you trying to make me believe that because some idiot named a certain plant catnip cats like it or must have it? Don't attempt to get funny, Mrs. Bowser!"

"Cats love catnip, and everybody knows it," she replied. "Your mother used to raise it for her cats, and you ought to remember that she did. Would a man come along here selling the plant every week if cats didn't love it?"

"And I say that catnip is a medicinal plant and is used to make poultices of. No human being ever saw a cat taste of it or ever will. You might as well look for a cat to eat thistles or hay. When a woman of your age will believe such stuff and nonsense it's no wonder I find clothespins scattered all over the place and have to figure on how long I can keep out of the poor house. Catnip! Catnip! I'll catnip that old cat if he gives another yell!"

Mrs. Bowser realized that argument would be of no avail, and she had read a page or two in the magazine when Mr. Bowser returned to the attack. He wanted the catnip question settled then and there, and he wanted it settled in his favor.

"You have made certain statements about cats and catnip," he continued, "and I want you either to back them up or admit that you were guying me I want your authority for saying that catnip is grown for cats."

"There may be other uses for it as well, but everybody knows that cats love catnip. If a cat is sick it is better after eating of the plant."

"That won't do, Mrs. Bowser; that won't do at all. I have only your unsupported word. I must have more than that."

"Then go over and ask the druggist, the butcher—ask people on the street. It's a funny thing. You were born on a farm and lived on one until you were fifteen years old, and you must have been as familiar with catnip as with burdocks."

He Goes to Prove It.

"I may have, but that proves nothing. I have also seen cats eating hay and corn and oats and fish bones. I never make a positive statement to you without being able to back it up. Can you find in the encyclopedia that cats must have catnip or perish? Is there anything bearing on the subject in the history of America? Did Columbus discover cats eating catnip when he landed on these shores? Did the pilgrim fathers bring their cats and catnip along to Plymouth rock? Woman, answer me or admit that you were trying to belittle your own husband in his own house?"

"All that I can say is that cats love catnip," she replied.

"You make that as a plain statement of fact, do you?"

"I do."

"Then I will prove that you don't know what you are talking about and need a guardian."

Mr. Bowser clapped on his hat and took a walk. He knew his family butcher to be an ex-farmer, and he called at his shop and looked around and then in a casual way inquired:

"Jones, did you use to raise catnip on your farm?"

"The old woman raised a few bunches—just enough for her cats," was the reply.

"How, for cats?"

"Why, cats eat it like fun, particularly about this time of year. If you have a cat over home and she is ailing just let her get at a bunch of catnip."

"And you stand there and tell me that catnip is so called because cats nip at it?"

"I have never heard any other reason."

"Then you don't know enough to come in when it rains! Cats and catnip have no more to do with each other than bulls and bulrushes. No wonder you can't tell bones from beef!"

"I can tell a jackass when I see one!" exclaimed the butcher, and after glaring at him for a minute Mr. Bowser snorted in contempt and walked out.

A farmer who had been selling potatoes to the grocer on the corner was just about starting for home, and Mr Bowser walked up and asked him:

"Say, friend, do you grow any catnip on your farm?"

"Not as a crop," smiled the man.

"Then how do you grow it?"

"A few bunches in the garden for the cats."

"But what has it got to do with cats?"

"Everything You could have found that out by asking your wife."

Mr. Bowser Is Beaten.

Mr. Bowser felt like calling him names and getting up a row, but the agriculturist was in a hurry and was soon driving away. An old man who was leaning against a barrel had overheard the conversation, and he now butted in with:

"You must have lived in a catless country not to have heard about catnip."

"Did I ask your opinion, sir?"

"No, but when I find a man who doesn't know catnip I feel it my duty to post him. I wouldn't wander very far from home if I were you! You might get lost!"

"You old villain! But for your gray hairs I'd—I'd"— And Mr. Bowser put his fist under the other's nose and held it there for a few seconds and then passed on. His family druggist was a proper man to appeal to, but it was ten minutes before the searcher after information entered the store. It was another ten before he asked:

"Doc, do cats eat catnip?"

"Do cows eat grass?" answered the druggist.

"But is it really true that they do?"

"They love it. Catnip is for cats Cats are for catnip They are one and indivisible. You can bet your last dollar on that."

"But I never heard of such a thing."

"Probably not. I believe there are several things you never heard of However, you can settle this thing very quickly. Here's a bunch of the stuff I bought for my cat today. She's wandered off somewhere, and you can take it along."

Mr Bowser took the bunch and walked off. He hadn't got ten feet from the door when a stray cat meowed at his heels. Before reaching the other end of the block the number was six. When within 100 feet of his gate it seemed as if there were twenty wailing, meowing felines around him, all making threats against his life if he did not give up that bunch, and he suddenly became panic stricken and fled.

"Well?" queried Mrs. Bowser as she opened the front door and found him on the steps breathing heavily.

But he gazed steadily at the rising moon and made no answer. He had been defeated, but he meant to save his honor.

Dr. Paulin Mery, ex-deputy, died in Paris from burns on the hands inflicted by Roentgen rays; blood poisoning set in, necessitating an operation, from which the scientist failed to rally

A FREE AMERICAN MARKET

The intimation is given by the Democratic in Washington that the full Democratic program of giving relief to the American consumer from dear food is to be carried out. This means the taking off of the duties on Canadian wheat, Canadian cattle, other Candian food products, and lumber also. Thus if the intentions of the leaders are carried out at the Congress soon to be convened, Canada will obtain all the benefits of reciprocity in the provision of wider markets that the making of the agreement would have gained for us. We shall gain what there is in the markets of the 90,000,000—it may be little or much—without exposing ourselves to American competition.

We think that such an attitude by the American people would be much to their own advantage and to Canada. It is undoubtedly true that except in the case of wheat and such products as cotton, the United States is ceasing to be a real exporter. South America is taking the lead as the provider of meats to Europe. The seasonal advantages that the warmer climate of the States gives to American producers would have worked very much harm to Canadian production, had our markets been opened, but, the defeat of reciprocity assures the Canadian farmers that they will be protected, while it assures the Canadian business man, and manufacturer, that there would be no hangrope around Canada's neck by which this country could be given a timely squeeze now and then when our American cousins wanted to get something out of us. The fact is becoming most apparent, however, that Canada is not going to be in the position to take as much advantage of the American market as some of the reciprocity pleaders thought. Canada is growing so rapidly that in many lines it is becoming unable to supply its own market with food stuffs. We have to import meat from the Argentine, butter from New Zealand, mutton from Australia, and eggs and milk from the United States. It is an interesting question as to how far the opening of the American market will benefit Canada. The satisfactory element in the situation is that Canada is under no agreement to open its own. What it does in that respect can be done with an eye single to the mixed good of the Canadian producer and consumer.

A U. S. QUESTION

The passing by the United States Senate of the resolution calling for a single presidential term of six years, marks the culmination of an attempt by the Republicans to get at Roosevelt. The third-termer in seeking to renew his hold upon the White House violated what was an unwritten law of the American constitution, and the violation having been nearly successful, it is proposed to put into the statutes a precise formula defining what a president may achieve in the matter of length of service. The amendment to the constitution must, however, pass by a two-thirds majority in the House of Representatives, and then receive the assent of two-thirds of the States singly. Thus long before it will be come law, there will be many opportunities for killing the measure. It is probable that if he lives, Roosevelt will be a candidate in 1916.

There is no reason why the Democrats should not support the amendment, however. It applies to Wilson, but six years is a long time, and if they have a six year term, and be in a splendid position to rout the Republicans, with Roosevelt out of the field. He is the main contender to be feared in the future, for there is no doubt that the ex-president will keep at his effort to get to the centre of the American stage once again. Wilson promises, with his academic views, and his college bred fearlessness, to be the most startling innovation as a president the United States has ever seen, but his very idiosyncrasies, viewed politically, will endear him to the mass of Americans who would like to see a man in office who is governed solely by his ideals for the national good, and a man to whom party machination and manoeuvring is repugnant, and unacceptable. During Wilson's term of office, whether it be six years or four, the United States is going to have some troublous economic times, and we in Canada should be much interested.

One of two girls of Baltimore who engaged in a mock duel with revolvers found in a brother's room was shot in the cheek and disfigured, it is feared, for life. That comes of sham fighting. It is only the real duels that are harmless.

Following the visit of the industrial commission of Edmonton, Alb., to the secretary of the Carnegie Library Fund in New York, it is announced that the millionaire American who lives in Scotland will give the Canadian city $75,000 to build a library instead of the $60,000 originally asked. Thus will the progressive city come into possession of a library that it could afford to build itsel, with its own money.

LURE OF THE MIST

Curious Experience In the Clouds In an Aeroplane.

It was at Manchester. Aeroplanes were sweeping the skies in the circuit of Britain race. Vedrines had landed, and impatient at the rules that made him wait ten minutes before taking up the race, went about jabbering in French. One of the officials asked him what kind of a trip he had had. Vedrine's answer was to hold up his hands expressively.

He was quiet for many seconds, then he said:

"I was blanketed in clouds so that I could not see ten meters before me. Below me was nothing but rolling mist that gradually took on all fanciful shapes and colors. I caught myself wanting to descend, to drop suddenly into it and see what it was like. To escape this feeling I flew higher and higher, until, venturing to look down again, I saw wonderful lights and shadows that never before had been revealed to me from the sky. I saw a dreamy city, a wonderful mirage, and I believe I would have forgotten everything but those exquisite colorings, released my levers, and"— (He laughed.) "But I was fortunate, for I became sick—as sick as a dog—away up in the clouds."—Edward Lyell Fox in Harper's Weekly.

FIRST EDUCATED INDIAN TO SEEK COMMISSIONERSHIP

THOMAS L. SLOAN

Thomas L. Sloan, of Pender Neb., is the first educated Indian, so far as is known, to avow himself a candidate for appointment to the post of Commissioner of Indian Affairs. Mr. Sloan, a member of the Omaha tribe, is one-eighth Indian. He was educated at the Hampton Institute, in Virginia.

A HINDU IDOL.

Its Strange History Caused Mme. Carnot to Order It Destroyed.

When Mme. Carnot, widow of Sadi Carnot, died and her will was read a clause in it caused considerable comment. This was to the effect that a certain small Hindu idol carved from a hard stone which would be found among her property must be taken out and crushed until completely destroyed. Many marveled at this apparently singular request, for the idol seemed a harmless, ugly little thing, but her instructions were carried out to the letter.

The idol had been presented to Sadi Carnot years before he had ever thought of the presidency of France by a friend who had brought it from India. Later he learned that there was a legend attached to it which asserted that whosoever would retain it in his possession would rise to the fullest height of power in his chosen profession, but die of a stab wound when at the zenith of his career.

M. Carnot traced the history of the idol and found that for 500 years the rulers who had possessed it had all died either in battle or by assassination from stab wounds. Yet he laughed at the story, called the facts adduced by his search a mere chain of coincidences and retained the idol. He died by a dagger in the hands of an assassin, hence Mme. Carnot's strange request.

QUEER BURIAL SERVICE.

How Adaman Islanders Protect Their Dead From Evil Spirits.

Strange is the burial service among the Adaman islanders. It is the custom of the islanders to drop the bodies of their parents into the sea at the end of ropes and leave them there until nothing remains but the bones, which they then gather and hang from the roofs of their huts.

It is a common custom for a relative to sit by the hour and watch the bones of some relative. This is the way they have of showing their love and respect.

The bodies are treated in this fashion so that the evil spirits cannot tease and pinch them. All that is left are the dried bones, and these are placed high so that if the evil spirits wander into the huts they will have a hard time to find them. If a bone is carried away it means some bad spirit has seized it, and this means that some terrible calamity will befall the family.

In the Katanga district of central Africa when a chief and his wife dies there is great feasting and celebrating. Some of these festivals last three or four days. After the bodies are laid to rest with dancing and rejoicing because they are going to rule over a higher sphere their relatives and friends do not depart until they leave one or more chairs and a supply of clothes. This is done because the souls are expected to come out and wander about their graves.—Chicago Tribune.

MEXICAN BRIGANDS.

Pleasant Sort of People That Merely Robbed Travelers.

"I was once for some weeks at a sugar plantation, near a small provincial town in Mexico," wrote the late Mr. Labouchere in 1879. "In the town lived a brigand. He was highly esteemed by his neighbors, and I passed many a pleasant evening with him and his family. His daughter was a 'beauty,' and this estimable parent was amassing a little fortune for her.

"His habit was to ride at night to the road between Mexico and Vera Cruz with two or three associates and to levy contributions on the diligence. When I left the town I wanted to strike this road, and I went with him and his friends. We reached it at about 6 in the morning. Having partaken of chocolate, the brigands posted themselves behind some rocks, and I looked on. Soon the diligence was seen approaching. The brigands emerged, the coachman stopped, the passengers were requested to descend and were politely eased of their money.

"The passengers then took their places again in the coach, and it drove off, while the brigands courteously bowed to them. So honest were they in their peculiar way that they wished me to take my share in the spoil, but this, of course, my standard of morality being different from theirs, I declined, and I wished them goodby.

"Riding on to Pencia I dined at a table d'hote that evening with the despoiled travelers and was greatly amused to hear them recount the valorous manner in which they had defended themselves and how they at last had to succumb to numbers."

Marriages In Burma.

A curious idea among the Burmese is that people born on the same day of the week must not marry and that if they defy the fates their union will be marked by much ill luck. To prevent these disastrous marriages every girl carries a record of her birthday in her name, each day of the week having a letter belonging to it, and all children are called by a name which begins with that letter.

A Good Stove Lining.

A good stove lining, one that will last two years or more, can be made from blue clay. Brick clay or one that does not contain much sand, is good also. Clay found in salt water marshes is one of the best for stove linings. The clay must be reduced to a paste about like putty. The bed for lining should be brushed clean and moistened before the clay is applied. Put on with hands, smooth with a trowel or thin piece of board.—National Magazine.

CHEAPEST HAMS EVER YET SOLD

Sometimes an error creeps into the published announcement of a big store, due to the negligence of the proofreader or to the compositor in the printing office of the paper. It is rarely funny in its results, although it may make humorous reading when first issued. One day a department store in New York advertised "Sugar-Cured Hams at 4c a lb." Rather cheap, you say? Well, 130 odd persons thought so too, for that was the number that asked for the ham at this ridiculously low price the morning the ad. appeared. It transpired that the printed proof O. K.'d by the grocery buyer and sent down to the newspaper office for insertion in the day's issue read "14c a lb." The first numeral had simply dropped out of sight; 125 sales were made at a loss of 10 cents per pound.—Woman's Home Companion.

Poetry and the Child.

Read poetry to the child. Read easy, simple verse, read nonsense verse, read real poems, read sometimes such poems as "Thanatopsis" and bits of "Paradise Lost." Of course the child will not understand the thought, but he will enjoy the sound, and he will unconsciously learn the words. Poetry was never meant to be read to oneself, but always to be read aloud or recited. It is harder than prose. The order of the words is often like our everyday speech, and the words themselves are frequently different. Here especially children need help. If they find it they learn to love poetry, and there are few things that so sweeten life as a genuine love for poetry for its beauties and for the helpful lines that come to one's mind in hard places.—Home Progress Magazine.

FAINT HEARTED MEN IN BATTLE

The Fight is on Says Rev. John McNeill Who is to Preach Here

TORONTO, Feb. 5.—"What part do you take in the battle of the Kingdom of God?" This is the question that the Rev. John McNeill hurled at the men and women who had gathered yesterday at the inaugural service which he is holding every Tuesday during the lunch hour, at Cooke's Church.

Mr. McNeill scored those sanctimonious members who did nothing but make an outward show of their religion.

"There is a tendency in Christian people to forget God and in times of prosperity to vaunt ourselves and lose Him in the midst of machinery. When God speaks listen, listen more intently if it is going against your reason. If you have doubts, keep them to yourself, keep your mouth shut, and they may die of suffocation. If God seems to be severe rub your eyes and look deeper, for God is too wise to err, too good to be unkind," said he.

The pastor then spoke of the faint-hearted man in the battle of the Kingdom of God. "And how do you feel about it, my brethren, how do you feel? Remember the battle is on, on in Toronto. Light against darkness, life against death, heaven against hell, and in all charity I say to you there are a lot of people in the city of Toronto, yea, in the churches of Toronto, and these people will never be found on the firing line. They are forever executing stragetic movements toward the rear. To these I say let them out. The red coat doesn't make the soldier, and to hear hymns, sing them, and sit in churches, to partake of sacraments, these things do not soldiers in the Army of Christ."

Mr. McNeill, in closing his address, stated that he had but touched on the fringe, the very edge of his subject, but that on next Tuesday he hoped to go into it further. He then called upon the congregation to stand and sing the Doxology.

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor opened the service. Rev. Dr. W. A. Armstrong, of the Metropolitan Church, assisted.

Rev. John McNeill is to preach in Knox Church Thursday, Feb. 27th.

The purchaser will arrange for the congregation to continue possession.

HERE IS A STORY OF THE VICRROY OF INDIA

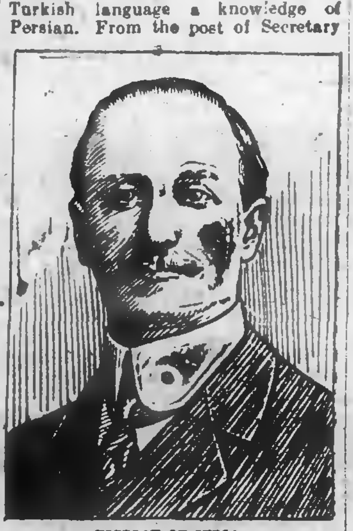
LORD HARDINGE WAS KING EDWARD'S OWN DIPLOMAT.

The Ruler of India, Who Was Wounded In Delhi Recently, Accompanied the Peacemaker on His Celebrated Tour and Later Did Important Work In St. Petersburg—Entered the Service In 1880.

The steady improvement in the health of Lord Hardinge, Viceroy of India, who was wounded by a malcontent while entering Delhi in state recently, is a matter of congratulation throughout the British Empire.

Lord Hardinge became Viceroy of India in 1910 in succession to Lord Minto. As Sir Charles Hardinge, he had already made for himself a great reputation in diplomacy. He was the Minister chosen to accompany the late King Edward on his famous peacemaking tour of Europe in 1903, and later, as Ambassador at St. Petersburg, he played an important part in the settlement of Anglo-Russian disputes and the creation of the existing entente between the two countries.

Son of the second Viscount Hardinge, brother of the present holder of the title, and grandson of a former Governor-General of the great Dependency, Charles Hardinge was born in June, 1858, and is, therefore, in his fifty-fifth year. After a brilliant career at Cambridge he entered the diplomatic service in 1880, his first appointment being to Constantinople, where he had the good fortune to serve as private secretary to Lord Dufferin, then Amabassador. Berlin in 1884, Washington in the following year, and Sofia in 1887 were his next steps, and as Charge d'Affaires he negotiated treaties at Buchafest. After three years in Paris he became Secretary of Legation in Teheran, where he added to his mastery of the Turkish language a knowledge of Persian. From the post of Secretary of Embassy at St. Petersburg, to which he was appointed in 1898, he was recalled in 1903 to take up the position of Assistant-Secretary for Foreign Affairs.



VICEROY OF INDIA

In the following year the young diplomatist was created K.C.M.G. and K.C.V.O., and returned to St. Petersburg as Ambassador to the Russian court. His appointment to a position of such importance at the age of forty-five was probably unique. But his qualifications for the post were also exceptional. They were referable to his previous experience of the Russian capital and of Paris and Teheran, as well as to his intimate association with the master diplomat, King Edward. The sequel to his Ambassadorship was the agreement concluded three years later, by which Great Britain and Russia composed ancient and dangerous differences concerning their respective spheres of influence in Asia.

In February, 1906, Sir Charles succeeded Sir Thomas (now Lord) Sanderson as Permanent Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. In the same year he accompanied King Edward on the visits to Athens and Friedrichshof, and was also his Majesty's Minister in attendance in 1907 at Wilhelmshohe and Ischl; in 1908 at Copenhagen, Stockholm, Christiania, Friedrichshof, and Ischl; while in February, 1909, he was again called upon to attend the King during his visit to the German Emperor in Berlin. On his appointment to be Viceroy of India, Sir Charles, who has been the recipient of a great many titular distinctions, was raised to the peerage as Baron Hardinge of Penshurst.

There is only one case on record of the actual assassination of a Viceroy of India—the Earl of Mayo being fatally stabbed by a prisoner in 1872 during a visit to a convict settlement. The murder had no political motive, but during recent years, as a result of the unrest which followed the partition of Bengal, the life of a Viceroy has been aimed at on more than one occasion.

In November, 1909, an outrage occurred which presents a remarkable parallel to the recent attempt. Lord Minto was making a tour of India, and during a procession through Ahmedabad two bombs were thrown at his carriage. One was cleverly intercepted by the sabre of a sergeant of the Inniskilling Dragoons; the other hit the umbrella which was being held over Lady Minto and fell harmless to the ground. The culprits were never discovered, although three men was sent to penal servitude for giving false information to the police.

Lord Minto's predecessor, Lord Curzon, it appears was also once in peril. Four men were deputed to kill Lord Curzon as he was passing in the Delhi Durbar of 1891, but the courage of the conspirators failed at the last moment.

Dublin's Lord Mayor.

By virtue of his office the Lord Mayor of Dublin is a captain in the British army.

Clothes and Conduct.

Every man and every woman feels the influence of clothes and appearance upon conduct. You have heard of the lonely man in the Australian bush who always put on evening dress for dinner so that he might remember he was a gentleman. Addison could not write his best unless he was well dressed. Put a naughty girl in her best Sunday clothes and she will behave quite nicely; put a blackguard into khaki and he will be a hero; put an omnibus conductor into uniform and he will live up to his clothes. Indeed, in a millennium of free clothes of the latest fashion we shall all be archangels.—London Chronicle.

SITE FOR THE INCINERATOR

How Would Foot of Sherbrooke Street Do.

London Disposes of Garbage Near Centre of City.

It has not yet been decided where the proposed incinerator for the disposal of garbage should be located. The site where the big chimney stands at the terminus of Sherbrooke street was suggested the other night at the meeting of the Property Committee. The Hilliard property has also been proposed as an advantageous site.

Sanitary Inspector Spence favors the chimney site. He considers this would not be objectionable to the neighborhood and would be a convenient and centrally located spot.

To support his suggestion he mentioned the City of London as a place where the incinerator is almost in the centre of the city.

Speeches were given by several of the visitors, who referred in glowing terms of the order. A most successful evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

PRESENCE OF MIND.

A Woman's Cool Nerve in a Moment of Deadly Peril.

An Englishman in traveling through Ceylon was the guest of a dockyard official at Trincomalee.

"The dinner was excellent," he says, "but when it was about half over I was startled by hearing the wife of my host tell the native servant to place a bowl of milk on a deer skin near her chair.

"Although she spoke as calmly as if giving an ordinary order, I knew at once there was a snake somewhere in the room, for they prefer milk to anything else. As a hasty movement might have meant certain death, we all sat like statues; but, for all that, my eyes were inspecting every nook and corner, with a peep under the table. However, it was not until the milk was placed on the deer skin that the snake appeared. And then, to our amazement, a large cobra uncoiled itself from my hostess' ankle and glided toward the bowl, when, of course, it was immediately killed.

"But just fancy the nerve of the woman, though she fainted when the thing lay dead on the floor. How many could have remained motionless in such circumstances?"—London Tit-Bits.

Couldn't Resist.

Willie and Tommy were each given a bit of auntie's wedding cake, nicely wrapped in white tissue paper, by their romantic mother. The cake was to be placed under each pillow for the wee boys to "dream on."

After the prayers and the "good nights" had been duly said the mother retired to the sitting room.

Shortly afterward she heard the announcement in a clear, boyish treble:

"Mother, Willie's eaten his dream!"—London Telegraph.

Very Much Settled.

An elderly woman, on being examined before the magistrate of Bungay as to her place of legal settlement, was asked what reasons she had for supposing that her deceased husband's settlement was at St. Andrews.

The old lady looked earnestly at the judge and said:

"He was born there, he was married there, and they buried him there; and if that isn't settling him there, I'd like to know what is!"

She Was So Timid.

A military man laughed at a timid little woman because she was alarmed at the noise of a cannon when a salute was fired. He subsequently married that timid little woman, and six months afterward he took off his boots in the hall when he came in late at night.

The Silent Father.

"I'll bet that man is the father of six or seven children."

"Why?"

"If he had less than three he'd be bragging about them."

The Natural Part.

"She seems to be a natural flirt." he said.

"Natural!" the woman impatiently replied. "There's nothing natural about her but her framework."

CARNIVAL HELD AT LAKEFIELD

A carnival was held in the Lakefield skating rink last night, with a big crowd in attendance, and some very catchy and striking costumes were in evidence. About twenty young people from Peterborough drove out and enjoyed a skate after the judging was finished.

Mr. J. Meharry loaned the organ, which was formerly used at the roller rink, for the occasion.

The rink was patronized to capacity and the occasion was particularly enjoyed by everybody. No local people competed for prizes.

PETERBORO

With Tonka's Aid

And After the Storm Came Happiness.

By HONORE WILLSIE.

Barbara wandered about the great pleasant room restlessly. She liked the huge fireplace with whips and rifles above the mantel. The couches, with the fur robes tossed across them, and the long study table in the middle of the room, heaped with magazines and a varied collection of pipes, made her forget that the nearest human habitation was fifteen miles across the plains.

She paused at one of the windows, snubbing her nose against the pane like a child, and looked out over the brown, dusty plains toward the mountains. This visit to her bachelor brother was suddenly proving lonely, since he had forbidden her her daily ride because of threatening snow. Until today everything on the ranch had been so new and strange to this eastern girl that she had forgotten to be homesick.

"The sun is shining!" she exclaimed aloud to the empty room. "It is only that funny hazy ring around it that keeps it from being really bright. Richard is so silly and funny over me, like a hen with one chick! What is a snowstorm, anyhow, but fun? I'm going to take Tonka out for just a little while."

Ah Lee, peering from the kitchen window a little later, shook his head dubiously at the sight of a slender figure in a heavy riding habit making its way toward the stables.

"Me no like missy glo," he said. "Weather velly bad." Then, with an indescribable gesture not unmixed with disdain, he calmly washed his hands of the matter and went on with his pie making.

Barbara found the stables deserted, but Tonka nosed her softly with welcome in her great eyes, and pony and girl swung eagerly out beyond the corral to the open plain. Barbara shivered a good deal at first. The air lacked that clear, invigorating quality that had hitherto made riding a delight. There was a raw wind rising that penetrated her heavy habit.

"We won't go far today, Tonka," she said, with chattering teeth—"just the five miles out to the irrigating gate and back again."

The murky ring about the sun grew thicker and thicker until the sun was a mere pale yellow dinner plate resting on a gray blanket. The wind began to sting Barbara's face unpleasantly.

"Oh, dear," she said, "this isn't any fun! It's so hazy I can't see the ditch, and"—she turned in the saddle and looked about in a puzzled way—"I can't see the ranch house either. Why—why, Tonka, where are we?"

She looked up into the sky, but during her short moment of uncertainty the sun had become totally obscured, and as she looked fine, driving particles of snow pelted her face. Tonka shook her head stubbornly and started off abruptly, but Barbara pulled her in. "Silly thing," she said. "I don't want to go to the irrigating ditch. We must get home as soon as ever we can."

But Tonka had ideas of her own on the subject. As Barbara pulled on the rein she shook her head again and started to back.

"Tonka," scolded Barbara, raising her voice above the roar of the wind. "I want to go home! Don't act like a goose!"

With the aid of the whip she finally persuaded Tonka to turn, and they started off in the teeth of the wind. The drive of the snow was so heavy that Barbara could not see a horse's length in front of her. The cold was so intense that she felt as if her face were being seared, and she began to be frightened.

"It must be a blizzard," she thought. "Richard will be frantic."

For half an hour Tonka struggled through the blinding storm, while the frightened girl on her back clung to the reins with numbing hands and urged her on. As the cold grew unbearable Barbara pulled the pony in and dismounted.

"I've got to walk," she thought, "or freeze to the saddle."

With the reins on her arm, she plunged on, her heart sinking more and more. "We are lost, Tonka," she said, "lost in one of those terrible blizzards!" She stopped to breathe and to pound her aching hands against the pony's side.

Suddenly Tonka lifted her head with a shrill whinny, which was answered from out the storm by another whinny. Barbara looked about eagerly. "Is it only a stray pony," she thought, "or is some one looking for me?"

Out of the whirlwind of snow came the shadowy form of a man, like Barbara, leading his horse. Barbara's heart gave a great throb.

"Mr. Ingraham!" she gasped.

"Great heavens, Miss Barbara, what does this mean?" exclaimed the man, turning his back to the gale and shouting to be heard above it.

"I'm lost!" called Barbara.

"This is awful," answered the man, his face tense. "You poor child! Why on earth did your brother let you out on such a day? I—I shall call him to account for this. And I am of no use! This is my first experience with an American blizzard. I, too, am lost!"

Barbara's heart sank. Her month's acquaintance with the young Englishman, who was their nearest neighbor and who during her visit had ridden the fifteen miles regularly three times a week, had inspired her with a profound faith in his capabilities. As he owned himself lost, she unconsciously moved a little closer to his stalwart figure. The man pulled off his fur coat and in spite of her protestations wrapped it about her shivering figure.

"First," he said, "you will put that on."

"No. I won't!" she cried.

"Oh, yes, you will!" he shouted, buttoning it firmly under her chin. Barbara changed the subject.

"It's lucky I didn't let Tonka carry me on to the ditch," she called. "She almost refused to turn. I really got mixed up with her backing and turning."

The Englishman pondered for a moment. "Oh, I say," he shouted, "that's too bad. You are the one that probably got mixed up. Those Indian ponies always head for home, they say, as soon as a blizzard strikes them. My horse didn't know enough. But wait. Give Tonka her head and see what she does. I'm afraid we'll have to walk or freeze."

With the horses on either side of them they started out, Tonka, without a moment's hesitation, taking the lead. It was a terrible journey. In spite of Ingraham's assistance Barbara constantly stumbled and fell. Without the protection of his fur coat he could only fight hopelessly against the numbing cold that assailed him, his heart aching over the misery of the girl who depended on him so pathetically, but Tonka, with drooping head, plodded slowly on.

As Barbara, assisted to her feet for the hundredth time, dimly concluded that it would be better to lie still than to struggle against the fearful cold, Tonka gave a glad whinny and stood still. They were standing before the stable door!

That evening after the two had recovered somewhat from ice baths and hot blankets and Richard had left them alone for a few moments Ingraham looked across the fire to the girl's sweet, pale face. All the love that he had so bravely suppressed during their terrible journey welled to his voice.

"Miss Barbara, Barbara," he said hesitatingly. "I'm glad it happened."

Barbara looked up.

"I hadn't much hope before," he went on, "but now somehow you seem to belong to me a little."

Barbara's pallor disappeared. "It wasn't such a bad storm in some ways," she said.

Spain's Ancient Lighthouse.

At La Coruna, in northern Spain, may be seen a fire tower which is, with the exception of the ruins of the Roman lighthouse at Dover, the oldest of all existing structures of this kind. The exact date of the erection of this tower is unknown. According to an ancient tradition, it is accredited to Hercules, whence its name, Torro de Hercules. Others say that Phoenicians, who had established several colonies in Spain, had erected this light tower for their northland [illegible]. However, judging from the inscription, it is more probable that the Roman Emperor Trajan erected this structure. The inscription also mentions the name of Servius Supns of Lusitania as the architect. The tower is built of ashlars and is 27 feet square and 120 feet in height. It has six separate stories, which can only be reached by circular staircase around the exterior of the tower. The lighthouse was restored in 1084, but at the end of the eighteenth century was again in ruins. In 1797 it was rebuilt by the Spanish government and still sends forth its beams.—Argonaut.

Poverty Stricken.

Ethel—How unfortunate, with everything so high!—New York Globe.

As They Dress Now.

We observe that the fifteen-year old miss is endeavoring to stanch her tears.

"What is the matter, little girl?" we ask.

"I think grandmamma is too mean for anything!" she sobs. "My new frock came home this morning and she said it was too daring for me to wear and put it on herself to wear to the matinee."—Judge.

ACROBATIC FISH.

Leaping Powers of the Tarpon, the Salmon and the Trout.

A considerable number of fishes are remarkable for their leaping powers, and several of these performers are on that account specially favored by anglers, since by jumping clear of the water, in some cases many times in succession, they tax the fisherman's skill more severely than fishes less active, and thereby give added zest to their capture.

Members of the salmon family are universally famous for their high jumps. The sea trout, which gladden Devon rivers under the name of "harvest peal," are untiring acrobats, and a fish of a pound weight will more than once jump several times its own length out of water when hooked before coming to the net. Unless the fisherman responds by promptly lowering the tip of his rod, the fragile gut is likely to part, and as it is part of every sportsman's creed to appreciate his pastime in proportion to the difficulties it presents, the sea trout stands high in the angler's estimation.

This readiness to jump when hooked distinguishes the lively spring salmon from the more sluggish run of an autumn fish, which rarely clears the water in its efforts to throw out the maddening hook.

Precisely why these October fish should be less nimble than those of March has never been satisfactorily explained, but the higher temperature of rivers in the fall of the year may perhaps have something to do with their conspicuous indolence.

At their best salmon can jump at least ten feet above the surface, a feat achieved by slapping the water with the powerful tail and flexing the body until the head and tail all but meet.

The association of the maximum of vigor and activity in fishes with a low temperature enjoys wide acceptance, but should be received with caution in view of the fact that nowhere perhaps in the world's seas are jumping fish more continually in evidence than in the Gulf of Mexico.

The grandest of all these leapers is the tarpon, otherwise "silver king," or "grand ecaille," a monster herring, which may measure six or seven feet and weigh a couple of hundred pounds.

Magistrate Tells Two Strangers They Must Work or Depart

"Guilty, sir."

The plea came from John Turner, charged with vagrancy, and a likely looking applicant for the Down-and-Out Club.

Turner with a companion named Benjamin Clark have enjoyed the friendly shelter of the police station for the past two nights. Both hail from Toronto, and claimed to be here looking for work.

"You're both able-bodied men," said Magistrate Dumble, "and if you won't work, why get out of the city."

The two men said they walked from Toronto to Peterborough.

HE WAS LUCKY.

With a wad of greenbacks amounting to $76, John McCabe, an Enniskillen man, came to the city yesterday and got drunk. He managed to fall on the ice and lay open his chin. Two dollars of his money went to a physician who was called in to stitch up the cut. He spent the night in the cells and was discharged this morning, on promising to go back to the farm.

"You're lucky to have any money left," said the Magistrate; "there are people looking for 'greenhorns' like you to relieve them of their money."

STORY OF MURDER OF WARWICK

As Told by Neighbor — His Wife Wished to Die

REGINA, Feb. 5.—At the trial of Mrs Warwick, charged with conspiracy to murder her husband Mrs. Trotter, a neighbor, said that Mrs. Warwick stayed at the Trotter home from the time Warwick was found dead under the horse's feet, until her arrest. Mrs. Warwick told the court the story of Warwick's murder by Stanley Price, who afterwards suicided, as was told to her by the Warwick woman. According to this account, Price went to the stable and found Warwick with a pitch-fork. "I have come to kill you, Warwick," he said, grabbed the fork and struck him over the head. Then he secured a scantling, and struck Warwick until dead, placing his body in a stall.

"Good-bye, Amy, good-bye," Warwick cried, as he succumbed under the blows.

A letter was produced, written by Mrs. Warwick to friends in England her intention of suiciding since Price was dead.

PETES WON AT PORT HOPE IN 20 MINUTES OVERTIME

The intermediates in their game at Port Hope last night found the homesters full of fight from start to finish and it was only after twenty minutes of extra play that the victory came the way of the Petes by a 5—4 score.

The tally at full time was 3—3, and in the next ten minutes the locals were able to even up on a shot by Whitty Bearss. In the next ten minutes, while the Port Hopes got right in on Flowers, they were held safe and Ross tallied the deciding score that placed his team in the front. The local line-up was: Goal, Flowers; point, Bond; cover, Bearss; rover, Halpin; centre, Hall; right, Keneally, left, Ross.

SPORTING GOSSIP

New York fans are bursting with glee over the fact that Frank Chance, the peerless leader, is at the helm of the Yankees, and they fully expect him to convert the Highlanders from a cellar position outfit into the world's champions in one year. Just as they are bursting with glee now, they will be bursting with condemnation of the former Cub leader if the Yankees are not leading the bunch in Ban Johnson's circuit when the hot weather rolls around. But they are expecting altogether too much, for even though Chance is a great leader it takes time to build up a machine.

Each day brings us closer to baseball weather, and nothing has been heard of the difficulties among the Hamilton ball club's owners being straightened away. It's about time they came to an understanding.

James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion of the world, thinks that Bub Anderson is a comer. Anderson defeated Sammy Mattee at Vernon this week. "He seems to be a mighty good boy," said Corbett. "He has the punch and that will carry him far toward the top of the lightweights even if he should never win the championship."

Speaking of the heavyweights, Corbett said he thought Sam Langford the best one of the bunch of either color.

"I would bet my money on him to beat any heavyweight in the ring to-day," said Corbett.

Dr. Adkins of the Baltimore pitching staff was released on Saturday and is a free agent.

When the Eastern Carolina association went out of business Jim Thorpe became a free agent. Had the circuit remained intact his owners would probably have received a big price for his release.

President Chivington of the American association announced on Saturday that he had received the signed contract of J. E. Johnstone, for many years a National league umpire. Johnstone resigned from the National league at the end of last season because of differences with President Lynch.

Battling Nelson, [illegible] a few days [illegible] left for Denver on Saturday and then turned to a telegraph office and sent a [illegible] challenge to Willie Ritchie for a battle for the lightweight title.

"Retire from the ring, I should say not!" declared the durable Dane. "Most fighters, after being married, sidestep matches by saying their wives won't let them fight again. In my case it is different. If I had to fight 17 years to support one person—myself—just figure out how long I must continue in the ring to support two."

"Willie holds the title and, of course, he can dictate," says Bat. "Wolgast refused me a return match in the face of the fact that I always gave my opponents a second and sometimes a third trial after I had beaten them. Ritchie is using Wolgast's refusal to give me a return match as an argument why he (Ritchie) should ignore Wolgast. That is all right from Ritchie's standpoint, but where do I come in? I ought to get at least consideration from Ritchie for the use of my name as an argument.

"I am absolutely certain I can defeat Ritchie, especially over the Marathon distance. My stamina is still unimpaired, and my hands are again in good shape," says Bat.

Nelson has started training for his February campaign, four fights being booked. The Dane first meets Ray Sorenson, at Racine, Wis., Feb. 5. Then he has two fights in Pennsylvania for the following week, and on Feb. 22, he clashes with Bay Woods for 10 rounds at New Bedford, Mass.

HOCKEY

The Plumbers defeated a scrub team at the Brock St. rink last evening by 3—1. Reynolds played well for the winners.

South Centrals defeated the Centrals yesterday at Parker's rink by 8 to 0.

The Royal-Commerce added another laurel to their growing list of victories, by defeating the Dominion-Ottawa aggregation, 8—1 in a fast game of hockey at the Brock St. rink between 5 and 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Both teams worked hard. Bradshaw and Morrow on the defence for the winners were effective, while Cole and Corkery for the Dominion-Ottawas worked hard.

Willing to Conform.

"Richard," said his precise wife in an undertone, "it is all right for you to avoid elaborate ceremony in introducing the guests to one another, but I wish you would not say, 'Mr. Throgson, shake hands with Mr. Wigmore.' I do not approve of that style of introduction."

"All right, Amaryllis," heartily responded the host. "I'll cut that out. Hello, Flatbush! Awfully glad to see you. Mr. Flatbush, wiggle flippers with Mr. Skimmerhorn."

Not a Bluff.

"You're not going to punish me, are you, father?" inquired a youth in circumstances that threatened to be trying.

"Of course I am," was the grim encouragement he received. "Didn't I tell you this morning that I'd settle with you for being so rude at the breakfast table?"

"Yes, father," came the whimpering reply, "but—but I thought it was just a bluff like when you say you'll settle the grocer's bill every Saturday night!"

Buy Coal Scientifically.

The Growth of Glasgow.

Absentminded.

One of the most brilliant of all Eton's masters some years ago was a very absent-minded man. He was reported to have been seen one day chasing a hen down Windsor hill in the fond belief that she was his hat!

A DISAPPOINTED SHAH.

Queer Story of a Prizefight In an English Royal Garden.

In his book of memories Major-Gen. Sir Owen Tudor Burns tells a story of the first visit of a shah to Great Britain.

The shah wanted to see a prizefight, with blood. After much anxious thought and consultation with Lord Queensberry an innocent glove fight was arranged in the Buckingham Palace stables, to take place quietly half an hour before the shah was to receive Lord Shaftesbury and the archbishops and bishops with a memorial asking him to protect the interests of the Christians in Persia.

But the shah slept late. The prizefighters overlapped the prelates. A footman made a mistake in opening the door. Archbishops and bishops following the shah in a moment found themselves more or less in a ring round the two prizefighters. The bishops hustled back to the reception room, the fight was stopped, the shah was angry and disappointed, and Lord Shaftesbury was heard shouting: "A prizefight in the garden of the queen's palace forsooth! I will denounce you all over the kingdom!" Mutual explanations followed, the matter was set right, we sent special messages to the reporters to keep it out of the press, and I was later on privileged to explain it all to the Queen, who took the matter much more calmly than her Lord Chamberlain. Once back, however, inside Buckingham Palace, we all smoothed our ruffled feathers and listened to a most gloomy oration from Lord Shaftesbury.

The shah, angry at the interruption of his prizefight, turned round to Sir Henry Rawlinson and growled in Persian: "Hang the Christians in Persia! Tell them they're all right!" Rawlinson translated that into a long, eloquent, beautiful reply to the deputation, while doubtless the disappointed boxers were having a consolation scrap in the stables. Lord Shaftesbury did not denounce them, though the shah's bear leaders lived in terror for some days.

The Lord Chamberlain blamed me, I blamed the shah, the shah blamed the equerry, the equerry blamed the footman, the footman blamed every one all round, and we gave the prizefighters $25 a piece, with a resolution written in blood that never would any of us again arrange a prizefight, even for a shah of shahs, in a royal palace garden.

Fortune's Darling.

This is how they style the Right Hon. George Wyndham, one of the most virile of the Opposition Frontbenchers in the House of Commons. Handsome and conspicuously smart—though he has by no means been able to get all his own way in public life—Mr. Wyndham possesses a perfect mastery of the grand manner, and he is the step-father of the Duke of Westminster. Once he was Mr. Balfour's private secretary, and he has been Under-Secretary at the War Office and Chief Secretary for Ireland.

Whilst holding the latter thorny post he piloted the Land Act of 1903 through the Commons, and boldly made Sir Anthony MacDonnell, a Catholic Home Ruler, his Permanent Under-Secretary. He has been in the Coldstreams, rides regularly to hounds and is a profound Shakespearian scholar. Still under fifty, Mr. George Wyndham married the Countess Grosvenor and got himself elected for Dover in 1889, and everybody expects that he will come into high office again when the Unionists revert to power. He has a seat on the board of the Chatham and Dover Railway, and holds the burgesses of the chief of the Cinque Ports, so to speak, in the hollow of his elegant hand.

He Admitted It.

"English as She is Japped," is the title of an article in a recent number of the Oriental Review.

The oriental capacity for using our mother tongue with strange twists of unconscious humor is well known, but few examples are equal to this delicious sign on a Japanese baker's shop:

"A. Karinura, Biggest Loafer In Tokyo."

Fired With Enthusiasm.

"Do you know what it means to be fired with enthusiasm?" asked the suffrage evangelist. "Yes; my last three bosses all showed unmistakable enthusiasm in firing me," replied the female stenographer.

NERVILINE CURES ALL PAIN

WANTED MIXED TEA.

How the Iron Duke Ordered It Served to His Timid Guest.

The reports of a revival in the consumption of green tea in England recall a story of Wellington, told in Horsley's "Recollections of a Royal Academician:"

"At Strathfieldsaye it was customary at breakfast time for the duke's favorite man servant to bring in a long tray with a number of small silver teapots, one for each guest. In those days people had their choice of black or green tea, and the duke, himself putting the tea into each pot, questioned his guests individually:

"'What do you take, sir, black or green?' in stentorian tones.

"On the particular occasion referred to his guests included the future Lord Denman, who had been consumed with nervousness ever since he had entered the house at the thought of converse with his distinguished host, and when the question was shouted at him as to black or green the poor youth hesitated, stammered, and when the question was put a second time with some impatience the reply came out with a rush at last:

"'I take it mixed, your grace!'

"The duke was taken aback at the unaccustomed answer, but in a moment roared out:

"'Take Mr. Denman two pots!'"

Bringing the Sea to Rome.

Projects for making Rome a seaport have been discussed for years past. One of these is to lay out a seaport of a thirty-five foot depth near Caste. Fusaro, formed by running two jetties out into the sea for some distance as at the port of Ymuiden, Holland. From the port will lead a ship canal 15 miles long and 300 feet wide and 27 feet deep. At Rome adequate shipping accommodations will be laid out in the river below the city, and this will be connected with the navigable part of the Tiber by a system of docks. It will cost about $15,000,000 to carry out the project.

The Board of Education held their monthly session in the Board Room last night. The following members were present:—Dr. Morrison, chairman, and Messrs. The Assistant Adjutant General at Kingston notified the Board that a short course in Physical training would be held at Toronto towards the end of February at which candidates would be so instructed that they could act as instructors at Normal Schools and High Schools semi-annually or as required, remuneration to be made to them at the rate of $1 per hour. The Board was asked to forward names of possible candidates.

FIRE BRIGADE OUT EARLY

Went to East City But Found No Cause for an Alarm

Fire Chief Howard found it necessary to summon an East City resident, Mrs. Patrick Lavery, jr., to police court this morning, charging her with causing a false alarm of fire to be sent in to the department. The brigade had a long dangerous and unnecessary run at 6.50 a.m., on February 1st, to the corner of Burnham and Robinson streets merely to find the [illegible] on the cook stove a little heated.

Chief Howard has answered three alarms each time needlessly sent in from the house of Mrs. Lavery.

He related the circumstances of the case on February 1st. In response to a telephone call the brigade had turned out at an early hour in the morning and on reaching the house, found no sign of a fire, nor any cause for a message being sent in.

"I asked Mrs. Lavery where the fire was," said Chief Howard, "and she said the pipes were red."

"They were a little red," he explained, "but there was not the least danger."

Chief Howard said that in ten years experience, he had never found it necessary to proceed against anyone for sending in false alarms.

A false alarm causes the brigade just as much work and liability to accidents on the road as does a genuine alarm, and for that reason they are to be stopped and offenders severely dealt with.

The Chief claimed that Mrs. Lavery became abusive when he told her he must summon her to court. He explained to the Magistrate that he had warned the woman on a previous occasion of the consequences which would follow a repetition of sending in a false alarm.

Magistrate Dumble dismissed the case but lectured Mrs. Lavery on her act. He felt that it was probably due to her nervousness and dread of a fire which caused her hasty and needless fear.

APPOINTMENT NOT YET MADE

Many Applications for City Engineer to be Considered

Since the reading of the thirty applications for the position of city engineer, there has been no further action taken towards making an appointment. At the meeting of the Board of Works when the applications were read, it was recommended that the Water Commissioners be consulted in selecting an engineer as the services of the new man would be required by the Commissioners as well as the City, in connection with getting the Hydro-Electric under way. The selection is likely to be a difficult one as the letters of applicants were read from all over Canada as far west as Vancouver, B.C., and even a couple from New York City.

NOTICE re HYDRO Light & Power

The citizens having decided to enter into the business of supplying electricity for light and power, we wish to remind them that the success of their enterprise will depend upon themselves taking light and power from the City's system. The more light and power that is used from the City system the cheaper it will be. Consequently NO CITIZENS SHOULD ENTER INTO A NEW CONTRACT FOR LIGHT OR POWER UNTIL THE CITY IS READY TO SUPPLY THEM.

The Hydro Commission and the Power Committee are making all possible speed to have everything ready to begin work when spring opens, and there will be no delay. Every citizen should be ready to support them and thus enable all to get the light and power at the cheapest rate.

Chairman Power Committee.

FOLLOWING THE TRAIL

Big Grafters May be Uncovered in New York.

Further Disclosures Made to the Police.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—As a result of further disclosures in the police graft situation, made to the district attorney yesterday by Eugene Fox, the policeman who has confessed to levying tribute as collector for superior officers, it was decided, with the consent of Supreme Court Justice Goff, to hasten the investigation of the extraordinary grand jury, by having that body convene to-day instead of Monday next. District Attorney Whitman conferred with Justice Goff after Fox and a relative had been on the stand all afternoon, and it was agreed to subpoena a police inspector, mentioned by Fox, to appear as a witness before the grand jury to-day. A direct trail to the much-talked-of "men higher up" in the police department is thought now to have been struck by the prosecutor.

The inspector under subpoena is declared to be the one mentioned by Geo. Sipp, resort-keeper, [illegible] declared a fund of [illegible]00 was raised to keep him out of the state so that he could not testify before the grand jury regarding Fox's graft telling. Sipp gave sworn testimony, which was speedily followed by Fox's indictment, the patrolman later pleading [illegible] and agreeing to disclose facts in graft collecting of the police extending back over five years. Supplementing these facts with further details yesterday, Fox mentioned 21 resorts which contribute "protection money" in amounts aggregating $1,500 monthly. These collections were all confined to one small section of the city.

EMBARGO MAY CAUSE FAMINE

TORONTO, Feb. 6.—An embargo on coal and other imperishable freight has been placed at Black Rock by the Grand Trunk Railway, the given reason being the freight congestion at the international bridge and lack of sufficient G.T.R. locomotives.

It is quite likely that the matter will be brought before the Dominion Railway Board, which meets here today. It is pointed out that, although Toronto is pretty well supplied with coal, the supply in Western Ontario towns is short, and a continuance of cold weather might result in much hardship.

HON. MR. BURRELL TELLS WHY B.C. GOT CATTLE EMBARGO

It is the Only Province Which is Making a Serious Effort to Grapple With the Question of Disease—C. C. James Advises Farmers.

TORONTO, Feb. 6.—That not only were twenty per cent. of the deaths from tuberculosis of children under five years of age directly attributable to bovine tuberculosis, but that in a great percentage of the cases among adults the tuberculosis bacilli from milk had entered their system when children and had not taken effect until a number of years afterward and thus not attributed in the records as due to bovine tuberculosis, was the contention made by Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, in an address to the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada at the fifth annual banquet last night.

The Minister challenged the charge that had been made that this change in the Health of Animals Act would hurt interprovincial trade.

"British Columbia is the only province in the Dominion to grapple with bovine tuberculosis by destroying animals effected and giving compensation to the owners," said Hon. Mr. Burrell. "In order to make their work effective they asked the Dominion Government not to allow infected animals into that province. It was a moderate request and one that might well be granted.

C. C. James made a strong plea in favor of the farm. Every year, he said, the rural population was becoming depleted through the attractions of the west and the benefits of city life. He strongly protested against the western movement, as the Ontario farmer who had previous to this time been a mixed farmer, on his removal to the west became a wheat farmer only. In this way, Mr. James showed the double loss sustained by the western trend of Ontario and eastern farmers.

The other toasts of the evening were replied to by Hon. Dan. Derbyshire, Prof. G. E. Day, Frank Herns, A. F. McLaren, ex-M.P., H. B. Cowan, John Weld and J. B. Wheaton, while Mr. J. E. K. Herrick, president of the association, acted as toastmaster.

"Mischief E.," the pure Scotch Shorthorn heifer that carried off the grand championship for the best beef animal in Canada at the Guelph Winter Fair two months ago, was yesterday sold by auction for $700, which averages something like fifty cents per pound live weight.

"Mischief E." was bred by Messrs. W. R. Elliott & Sons of Guelph, and after being exhibited at the Winter Fair, was sold to Mr. Robt. Miller of Stouffville, who disposed of her yesterday to Mr. Frank Harding of Wankesha, Wisconsin.

The Guelph heifer brought the highest price of a string of sixty-five Shorthorns which passed under the hammer at the Union Stock Yards. The animals were from the herds of Messrs. J. A. Watt, Salem; Peter White, K.C., Pembroke; John Miller, jr., Ashburn; W. R. Elliott & Sons, Guelph, and Robert Miller, Stouffville.

Breeders from all parts of Canada and the United States to the number of three hundred were present, and bidding was fairly keen, though hardly as spirited as in former years.

ESTABLISHMENT BILL BEFORE LORDS

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Extraordinary scenes marked the passage of the Welsh disestablishment bill through the Commons last night by a Government majority of 107.

For the first time in the long history of Parliament members of the House joined in the chorus of a song within the precincts of the House while it was sitting. This occurred in the inner lobby, just outside the open door of the House. Immediately after the announcement of the division, a Welsh member came hurrying out, flushed and excited, and, led by John Williams, miners' representative, began to sing with great fervor "Hen Wilad Fy Nhadau" (Land of Our Fathers), the Welsh national anthem. A cry for silence was followed by still louder demands to "go" on, "go on!" Encouraged by this exhortation, Williams raised his voice again, and about a dozen Welsh members joined him, singing in Welsh. The lobby was crowded at the time with members, who gather round, surprised and amused at this departure from Parliamentary decorum. At the close the Welshmen gave loud cheers.

The measure has been considerably modified since it was introduced. Roughly, it may be said that, while the Government has won in regard to disestablishment, the church has won in respect to disendowment. Thus after the bil becomes law, the church will continue to receive $1,000,000 out of the present annual income of $1,300,000.

Fight To Keep Shops.

BROCKVILLE, Feb. 6.—The Brockville town council and Board of Trade have united in signing a strong memorial to the Minister of Railways and Canals, the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada, the Ontario Legislature and the Ontario Railway Board, protesting against the proposed removal of the G.T.R. shops from Brockville.

Hoax on Emperor.

BERLIN, Feb. 6.—The garrison of Strasburg was the victim yesterday of a mysterious hoax as the result of which it paraded in honor of an expected surprise visit by the Kaiser. As a matter of fact the Emperor was a long way from Alsace Lorraine, having spent the day in the opposite corner of the empire.

MESSAGE OF LIGHT

Services to be Held in Memory of Livingstone.

TORONTO, Feb. 6.—Every Presbyterian Sunday school in the Dominion will this week receive the copy of a call to celebrate the approaching Livingstone centenary. The call is being sent out by Rev. J. C. Robertson, general secretary of Presbyterian Sabbath schools and young people's societies. It announces that the actual anniversary, March 19, will be celebrated throughout the entire Christian world.

In addition to the anniversary celebration Easter Sunday is to be marked by a Livingstone service, termed the message of light, in which prominence will be given to graphic episodes in Livingstone's life.

CHINA PLANS AIR FLEET

PARIS, Feb. 6.—The President of the Chinese Republic on the suggestion of his French military adviser, Major Brissaud Desmailles, has decided upon the creation of an aerial fleet, the organization of which will be entrusted to French officers. All Chinese staff officers, according to an announcement made here yesterday, will be required to pass through the aviation school, either as pilots or observers, and a series of competitions, to which all aeroplane constructors will be invited to send machines, will be held in Pekin in 1914.

The Chinese Government, it is said, is anxious to have a great fleet of aeroplanes, which will be used for police work in time of peace.

WILL SEEK GRANT.

Guelph Needs Money To Improve Winter Fair.

GUELPH, Feb. 6.—The civic officials are beginning to get thoroughly aroused over the apparent attempt to interfere with the winter fair which is held in this city and which has now reached a point where more accommodation will have to be provided if the show is expected to grow. Mayor Carter discussed the matter with a number of the aldermen yesterday, and all are in hearty sympathy with the movement to send a strong deputation to Toronto to interview the Government along the lines of securing a substantial grant in order that the necessary extensions may be made, or new buildings put up.

TOO MUCH MIDWAY AT THE FAIRS SAYS LOCKIE WILSON

He Advises That They be Abolished From Rural Fairs.

TORONTO, Feb. 6.—The growing tendency on the part of boards of directors of the fall exhibitions of the Province of Ontario to regard the midway and its accompaniments as a necessary institution at their annual fairs was roundly denounced by J. Lockie Wilson, superintendent of fairs and exhibitions, at the annual meeting of the Ontario association held yesterday. "The midway seems to be recognized as a necessary evil at our larger fairs, and even the smallest fairs are now trying to give place to such an attraction," said Mr. Wilson. "The first idea of these fairs should be to educate the people of the community rather than degrade them.

Supt. Wilson expressed satisfaction with the fact that this past year only fifty-three societies applied for wet weather insurance as provided by law, as against one hundred and six for 1911.

In his presidential address, Dr. J. N. Simmons, Frankfort, alluded to the necessity for still greater sums being set apart for exhibition purposes, and made some cogent observations on the labor situation. "Railways and land companies are booming the west to such an extent that our young people are being lured away from us to meet conditions in our western provinces that are said to be made of wheat and sunshine," he said, "but there is no use blinking the fact that there are clouds in the western horizon."

PRESIDENT-ELECT WILSON.
He will not announce his Cabinet before he is inaugurated as President.

Farrell Now Recants.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Yesterday afternoon Farrell made to an assistant district attorney a sweeping denial of all the statements credited to him Tuesday. He declared he knew nothing regarding the Rosalsky, Taylor or Herrera bombs, and that he had neither constructed nor sent any of them. He admitted having made a "confession" at police headquarters, and explained that he had been "bounded" until he decided to "get it over with."

PLEAD GUILTY

Ottawa "Repeaters" Remanded For Sentence.

OTTAWA, Feb. 6.—Hearing of the two charges of ballot-stuffing in the civic election against Joseph F. Durocher of the customs department was yesterday adjourned for two weeks. Counsel for the prisoner challenged the jurisdiction of the magistrate, and it was argued to have a high court judge pass upon the point.

Five men charged with "repeating" all pleaded guilty and were remanded until Monday for sentence. They all claimed ignorance of the Election Act as regards this offence. The men are Joseph Phillips, George Mercure, V. Dumoulin, Albert Benoit and Napoleon Lafleur.

Now Has Dog's Brain.

ANN HARBOR, Mich., Feb. 6.—W. A. Smith of Kalamazoo submitted to an operation in University Hospital, here yesterday that is said never to have been performed before in the history of surgery. A portion of his brain was removed and the brain of a dog was substituted.

Mr. Smith had been suffering from abscess of the brain, and this operation was resorted to in a last effort to save the man's life. Last night he came from under the anaesthetic, and is resting comfortably.

Fitzhugh Steps Out.

MONTREAL, Feb. 6.—At a meeting of the directors of the Montreal Southern Counties Railway, held yesterday, the resignation of E. H. Fitzhugh, president of the line, was accepted, and a new president, William Wainwright, elected.

BAPTEST CHURCH GUTTED BY FIRE

Canadian Press Despatch.

WINGHAM, ONT., Feb. 6.—The Baptist Church was gutted by a fire which is supposed to have been caused by an overheated furnace pipe last night. A new organ was destroyed. The loss is stated at seventy thousand dollars.

PROVINCIAL MEMBERS SPEAK HIGHLY OF LATE TREASURER

Premier Whitney, in Moving Adjournment of Legislature in Memory of His Dead Colleague, Testifies to Col. Matheson's Worth.

TORONTO, Feb. 6.—"I can trust myself to say very little indeed about the life of the Hon. A. J. Matheson. He was so closely associated with me and I feel his loss so keenly that the task of speaking about his life and character is more than I can do." It was very slowly and with evident effort that Sir James Whitney spoke of the death of the Provincial Treasurer in the Legislature yesterday.

The House convened at three o'clock and rose about twenty minutes later during which time the Premier and members of both parties gave dignified expressions to the loss to the province, the Dominion, and the British Empire, by the death of Col. Matheson. The second chair on the right of the Premier, which had been occupied since 1905 by the veteran official, was vacant and on the desk was placed a large vase of lilies.

"In the moving that the House adjourn out of respect to the late Col. Matheson I desire to say but a very few words," said Sir James. "I ask the House to take this action as a tribute of respect to the memory of a gentleman who for many year, eighteen I think, was a member of the Legislature for the constituency of South Lanark.

"He was a man with definite and clear-cut ideas and beliefs," continued the Premier, "and he was always ready and determined to live up to them. The lives of such men where government by the people and free institutions prevail can hardly be overestimated, and they are indeed, in my opinion, the salt of the earth. Col. Matheson was my colleague, my comrade, my intimate friend for a number of years, and I will always feel indebted to him."

Sam Clark, Liberal member for West Northumberland; J. W. Johnson, of Hastings; G. H. Ferguson, of Grenville, Hon. Thomas Crawford, and T. Marshall, Liberal member for Monck, also spoke.

Immediately after the opening of the House, S. H. Armstrong, the new member for Muskoka, who succeeded Judge Mahaffy, was introduced to the Speaker by Hon. W. H. Hearst.

J. A. Ellis of Ottawa West will introduce a bill shortly aiming at reciprocity of automobile licenses between Ontario and Quebec. For some time there has been much agitation by motorists of both provinces, as now there is a heavy tax placed on those passing the boundary.

Two license inspectors who have not given satisfaction have been discharged. They are Samuel McDougall of Dundalk, inspector for Dufferin, who has been succeeded by Thomas J. Robinson, of Orangeville, and Andrew Innes of Port Dover, who has been replaced by John A. McBride.

It has been announced by Hon. W. J. Hanna that for Inspector J. A. Ayres, who resigned to go west some time ago, will return to his old position in the liquor license branch of the department.

Owing to an attack of influenza, N. W. Rowell, K.C., leader of the Opposition, has been unable to attend the Legislature. It is expected that he will be able to take his seat in the chamber within a few days. In the meantime Sam Clarke, M.P.P. for Northumberland, will lead the Liberal forces.

KINGSTON, Feb. 6.—The steamer Wolfe Islander became fast in the ice while on the last trip of the season to Wolfe Island. Fifty passengers on board had to spend the night on the vessel. At daybreak yesterday they were taken off in iceboats, but the vessel was not released until the afternoon. The boat became fast when within a short distance of Garden Island.

BULGARS TRYING TO WIN GALLIPOLI PENINSULA

First Effort Succeeds and if District is Occupied Dardanelles Will be at the Mercy of the Greek Fleet and Constantinople Will Fall.

Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—It is semi-officially announced at Sofia that the Bulgarians inflicted defeat yesterday on a Turkish force, occupying the Peninsula of Gallipoli, defending the Dardanelles straits.

The Turks retreated in disorder. This success puts a large part of the coast on the Sea of Marmora in the hands of the Allies. The objective of the Bulgarians is to reach the shore of the Dardenelles and clear them for the passage of the Greek fleet now in the Sea of Marmora, whence they can directly attack Constantinople

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The Bulgarians are devoting their chief attention to the bombardment of Adrianople and in an attempt to capture the Gallipoli Pennsula and so take the Turkish forts in the rear. An official despatch issued at Constantinople indicate that the Bulgarians have been successful in their first operations in the latter quarter, and, according to a Sofia despatch, the capture of Gallipoli is the chief object of the Bulgarian ambitions for the time being, and no attempt will be made to force the Tchatalja lines.

The same despatch says that the Bulgarian attack in Gallipoli is supported by the Greek navy in the Gulf of Saros. Fifty thousand Bulgarians were landed along this coast last November, and it may be presumed that during the armistice this force was strengthened by artillery.

Should the Bulgarians capture the Turkish forts, there is nothing to prevent the Greek fleet from entering the Dardanelles, where, in the opinion of naval officers, it could easily defeat the inferior Turkish fleet, in which case Constantinople would be at the mercy of the allies.

The Constantinople correspondent of The Standard sends a strange story, reporting that the remnant of the Turkish army of Monastir, which has never been precisely accounted for, is still operating in that district and has captured the important town of Koritza, less than 50 miles from Monastir.

The statement attributed to the Greek Premier, M. Venizelos, that peace will speedily be concluded, tends to confirm the report current in European capitals in recent days, to the same effect, although there has been no evidence in the shape of fresh diplomatic movements to support it. The Turkish Government, however, is evidently in dire straits for money, even attempting to dispose of the crown jewels and making despairing attempts to place treasury bonds in Turkey, Egypt and among the Moslems in India. The Ottoman consul at Bombay claims to have applications for bonds amounting to $5,000,000.

It is announced that the ambassadors' conference at London has arrived at an agreement upon the formula settling the plan under which the allies will take over a portion of the Ottoman public debt, and settling also the allies' liability with regard to the Ottoman railways.

Prince Katsura Censured.

TOKIO, Feb. 6.—Most exciting scenes were witnessed during the dispersal of the Japanese Diet yesterday after a vote of censure on the Government under Prince Katsura had been carried. The exits from the chamber were thronged with people, who cheered the members of the Constitutional party when they assaulted Saburo Shimada and other so-called renegades of the National Liberal party. They were thrown out of their rikishas when they attempted to drive away, and attempts were made to duck them in the canal, but these were frustrated by the police.

ST. THOMAS HAS COSTLY BLAZE

Firemen Were in Control After Three Hour Fight

Canadian Press Despatch.

ST. THOMAS, Feb. 6.—Fire starting in the furnace room of the Baldwin Robinson Co., at nine o'clock this morning, was under control at noon. The building and contents including a large stock of pianos and musical instruments are a total loss. It was the most destructive and spectacular fire in a long time. Help was despatched from London by special train. Tenants of adjacent buildings moved out and the street railway was tied up.

Disorders Occur on Mt. Athos.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The Times publishes the following despatch: "Serious disorders occurred on Mt. Athos as the result of a discussion as to whether the name of Jesus is or is not Divine.

"The monks were divided into two parties, one of whom chased the other from the monastery. The spread of the disorder is feared."

BUCKINGHAM PALACE IS GUARDED BY THE POLICE

Postmen Are Injured by Chemicals Found in Letters.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Sylvia Pankhurst, one of the militant suffragette leaders, was sentenced to two weeks' imprisonment or a fine of $10 by the magistrate sitting at Bow street police court yesterday, for participating in the raid on the House of Commons together with nineteen other women under the leadership of "General" Mrs. Flora Drummond on Jan. 28.

On that occasion the women tried to force their way into Parliament to obtain an interview with David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and they were arrested and charged with resisting the police.

As Miss Pankhurst was leaving the police court for the cells yesterday she shouted: "I shall not serve this sentence."

This is probably correct, as the leaders of the militants have become tired of jail, and their fines are now invariably paid within a few hours of their imposition.

Special but unostentatious precautions are being taken to prevent any untoward happening at Buckingham Palace through the action of the militant suffragettes. If anything is attempted by them there, their reception is likely to be particularly warm.

The King's principal London residence is in direct communication, not only with Scotland Yard, but with Wellington Barracks, close by, and the military protection of the palace can be increased almost immediately by a preconcerted signal.

It is known that certain suffragettes have done their utmost to obtain the necessary passports to be present at the court that takes place in Buckingham Palace on Friday evening, and officials have received stringent instructions as to the manner in which they are to act in the event of any suspicious stranger presenting himself or herself for admittance. The staff of police, both uniformed and plain clothed, detailed for duty will be greater than ever before on a similar occasion.

Postmen Are Injured.

DUNDEE, Scotland, Feb. 6.—Five postmen were burned last evening, several of them quite seriously, by the combustion of chemicals contained in letters. One of the postmen on returning from his evening collection of mail from the public letter boxes emptied his bag on the sorting table at the postoffice. The contents instantly burst into flames.

A large number of the envelopes contained tubes of phosphorus and other highly-inflammable chemicals. They were addressed to Premier Asquith, and the sheets of paper within were inscribed "Justice for Women."

SAMUEL GOMPERS.
His appeal against his conviction in the famous Bucks Stoves case will be heard Feb. 26th and 27th.

ST. KITTS TO GET THE C.N.R.

ST. CATHARINES, Feb. 6.—That the Canadian Northern Railway has definitely abandoned its intention of following the mountain from Beamsville east to the Niagara River for its route from Toronto and Hamilton was definitely shown here yesterday, when Vice-President Hanna agreed in a conference with the city council to build into the central section of the city, and there erect a large modern station, the city to grant a bonus of $100,000.

In consideration of this the company, agrees to build to a double-track railway viaduct, with two vehicular driveways, across the old canal, and bear the expense of the approaches, etc. This proposition received the unanimous approval of the council, and it is expected that the ratepayers will vote upon it at an early date. Mr. Hanna was accompanied by Geo. C. Shaw, general traffic manager, and W. P. Chapman, resident engineer, Toronto.

Pope Receives Envoy.

ROME, Feb. 6.—Fermin Calbeton y Planchon, the newly-appointed Spanish ambassador to the Vatican, presented his credentials to the Pope yesterday. The ambassadorial post has been vacant since the summer of 1910, when the Spanish ambassador to the Holy See was withdrawn as the result of the strained relations which arose between the Vatican and the Government of the late Premier Canalejas.

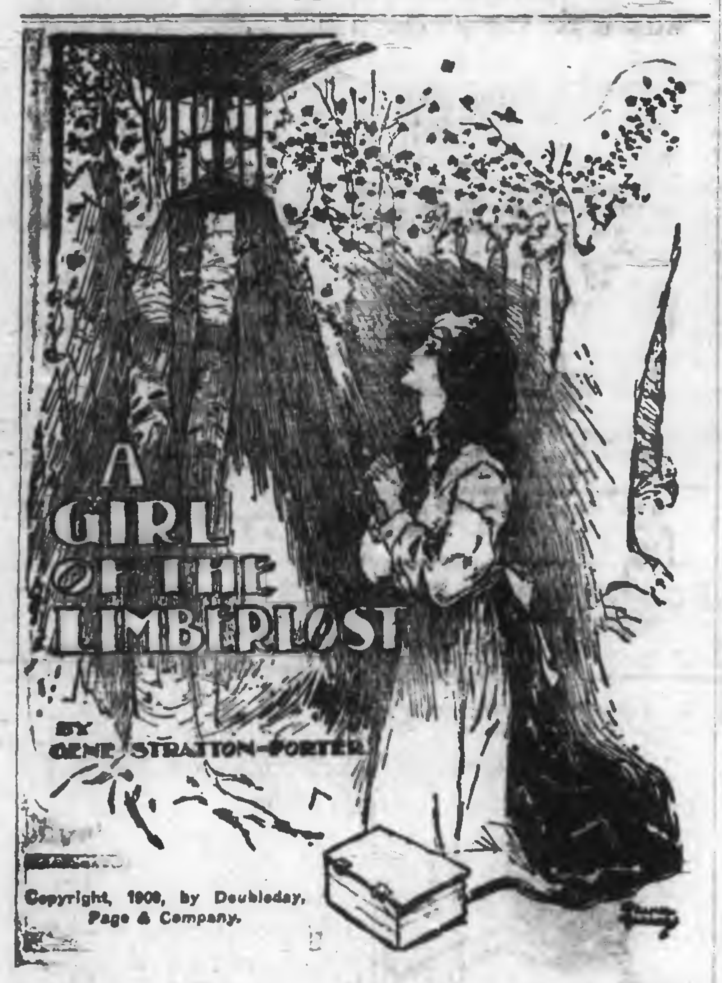
The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.



Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Company.

She was on the floor with the first tinkle of the alarm, and hastily dressing, she picked up the basket and a box to fit it, crept down the stairs and out to the violet patch. When the basket was filled to overflowing, she set it in the stout pasteboard box, packed it solid with mosses, tied it firmly and slipped under the cord a note.

Then she took a short cut across the woods and walked swiftly to Onabasha.

It was after 6 o'clock, but all of the city she wished to avoid were asleep. She had no trouble in finding a small boy out, and she stood at a distance waiting while he rang Dr. Ammon's bell and delivered the package for Philip to a maid, with the note which was to be given him at once.

On the way home through the woods passing some baited trees she collected the captive moths. She entered the kitchen with them so naturally that Mrs. Comstock made no comment. After breakfast Elnora went to her room, cleared away all trace of the night's work and was out in the arbor mounting moths when Ammon came down the road. "I am tired sitting," she said to her mother. "I think I will walk a few rods and meet him."

"Who's a trump?" called Ammon from afar.

"Well, not you!" retorted Elnora. "Confess that you forgot!"

"Completely," said Ammon. "But luckily it would not have been fatal. I wrote Polly last week to send Edith something appropriate and handsome today, with my card."

CHAPTER XXI.

Wherein Elnora Makes a Confession.

THESE days were the beginning of the weeks that followed. After June the moth hunts grew less frequent—the fields and woods were scoured for material for Elnora's grade work. Mrs. Comstock was a great help. Always her practical thought and sterling common sense were useful. When they were afield until exhausted they came back to the cabin for food, to prepare specimens and classify them and to talk over the day.

One warm August afternoon a blue-coated messenger entered the gate.

"I have a message for Philip Ammon."

Mrs. Comstock stepped to the back door and clanged the dinner bell sharply, paused a second and rang again. In a short time Ammon and Elnora came.

"Are you ill, mother?" cried Elnora.

Mrs. Comstock indicated the boy. "There is an important message for Philip," she said.

Ammon muttered an excuse and tore open the telegram. His color faded slightly. "I have to take the first train," he said. "My father is ill and I am needed."

He said goodby to Mrs. Comstock, repeatedly thanked her for all her kindness and turned to Elnora.

"Will you walk to the edge of the Limberlost with me?" he asked. Elnora assented. Mrs. Comstock followed to the gate, urged him to come again soon and repeated her goodby. Then she went back to the arbor to await Elnora's return. As she watched down the road she smiled softly.

"I had an idea he would speak to me first," she thought, "but this may change things some. He hasn't time. Elnora will come back a happy girl, and she has good reason. He is a model young man. Her lot will be mighty different from mine."

On the road Elnora spoke first. "I do hope it is nothing serious," she said. "Is he usually strong?"

"Quite strong," said Philip. "I am not alarmed, but I am very much ashamed. I have allowed him to overtax himself until he is down, and mother and Polly are north at our cottage. He's never been sick before, and it's probable I am to blame that he is now."

"You have had a fine time?" asked Elnora.

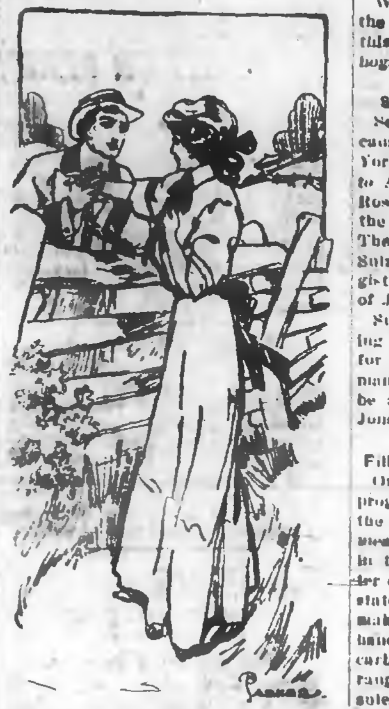
They had reached the fence. Ammon vaulted over to take a short cut across the fields. He turned and looked at her.

"The best, the sweetest, the most wholesome time any man ever had in this world," he said. "Elnora, if I talked hours I couldn't make you understand what a girl I think you are. I never in all my life hated anything as I hate leaving you. It seems to me that I have not strength to do it."

"If you have got anything worth while from me," said Elnora, "that should be it—just to have strength to go to your duty and to go quickly. Goodby! You must hurry!"

Ammon gazed at her. He tried to drop her hand and only clutched it closer. Suddenly he drew her toward him. "Elnora," he whispered, "will you kiss me goodby?"

Elnora drew back and stared at him with wide eyes. "I'd strike you sooner," she said. "Have I ever said or done anything in your presence that made you feel free to ask that, Philip Ammon?"



"Elnora," he whispered, "will you kiss me goodby?"

"No!" panted Ammon. "No! I think so much of you I just wanted to touch your lips once before I left you. You know, Elnora"—

"Don't distress yourself," said Elnora calmly. "I am broad enough to judge you sanely. I know what you mean. It would be no harm to you. It would not matter to me, but here we will think of some one else. Edith Carr would not want your lips tomorrow if she knew they had touched mine today. I was wise to say 'Go quick.'"

Ammon still clung to her. "Will you write me?" he begged.

"No," said Elnora. "There is nothing to say save goodby. We can do that now."

Ammon held on. "Promise that you will write me only one letter," he urged. "I want just one message from you to lock in my desk and keep always. Promise you will write once, Elnora."

Elnora looked straight into his eyes and smiled serenely. "If the talking trees tell me this winter the secret of how a man may grow perfect I will write you what it is, Philip. In all the time I have known you I never have liked you so little. Goodby."

Elnora crossed the road, climbed the fence and sought the shelter of their own woods. She took a diagonal course and followed it until she came to the path leading past the violet patch. She went down this hurriedly. Her hands were clinched at her sides, her eyes dry and bright, her cheeks red flushed and her breath coming fast. When she reached the patch she turned into it and stood looking around her.

The mosses were dry, the flowers gone, weeds a foot high covered it. She turned away and went on down the path until she was almost in sight of the cabin.

Miss Bessie Yoakum Is a Modern Diana.

MISS BESSIE YOAKUM.

Diana, the famous goddess of the chase, in her adventures with bow and arrow never exceeded in prowess and daring the achievements of Miss Bessie Yoakum, daughter of B. F. Yoakum, the millionaire president of the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad.

This young lady is well known not only for her beauty and social grace, but as a sportswoman of no mean ability. While hunting recently in Texas she and her guide were attacked by seven ferocious wild hogs.

Deserted by the guide, who fled panic stricken, Miss Yoakum leaped from her horse, dropped on the ground, aimed a fraction of a moment and fired while the first wild hog was several yards away. Two more of the hogs were killed by Miss Yoakum's gun with as many shots.

When her rifle failed her she ran for the gun dropped by her guide. With this she rounded up the rest of the hogs.

Suffragists on Fifteen Day March.

Several thousand enthusiasts in the cause of "votes for women" of New York state are on a fifteen day march to Albany from New York city. Miss Rosalie Jones, an ardent suffragist, is the leading spirit of the movement. The object is to reach Governor Elect Sulzer in time for him to put a suffragist petition in his inaugural message of Jan. 1.

Suffragists who do not feel like taking the whole 150 mile walk will join for as much of the jaunt as they can manage. In fact, the pilgrimage is to be a sort of relay affair. But Miss Jones expects to be a through pilgrim.

Filling the Carbonic Siphon at Home.

One of the new devices shown in the progressive household departments of the shops is a recharging outfit by means of which any householder can in two minutes convert ordinary water or other liquids into the carbonized state. A glass jar incased in wire—to make the operation quite safe in the hands of experimenters—a package of carbonizing capsules and a metal arrangement for connecting the capsules with the siphon are included in the outfit. One has only to fill the siphon up to an indicated point with water, milk, liquors or other liquids, inclose the capsules in its metal holder and turn a screw and the carbonation is completed.

Billiard Parlor For Women.

A billiard parlor for women has been opened in Kansas City by Mrs. Bertha May King, the champion woman billiard player. It has fifteen tables and female attendants. Speaking of her enterprise, Mrs. King said: "Women will be glad to learn the great indoor game if they are provided proper places. Few if any of the public rooms are exclusive enough for women. I propose to make my place one of refinement and exclusion, where women can learn and enjoy billiards and feel free to come and go. As an evidence of the benefit of the game as an exercise I can say that since I have played billiards I have rarely experienced a day's illness."

Rice Stealing Coolies.

Among Chinese coolies a favored method of stealing rice is to lean up against a pile of sacks and stick a tin tube through the sacking. The rice, which is dry, flowing naturally through the tube into the coolie's clothing. Flour is also stolen in this manner, and a common punishment in this case is to let the thief obtain a large quantity and then pour water into his clothing, which makes matters rather uncomfortable for the culprit.

The Obstinate Cook.

Father—Cooking schools are of some use after all. This cake is delicious. Daughter—Is it? I thought it would be a terrible failure. Father—Why? Daughter—I told the cook exactly how to make it, and she went and made it some other way.

THE OPPRESSOR.

THE folks at my house half the time
 are thinkin' about dirt.
It sort of gives 'em horrors, and they act as if it hurt.
The sight of just a little makes 'em daffy as can be—
They're always washin' sumthin', an' half the time it's me.

It ain't because I wet my feet that gives me colds an' such;
'Tain't runnin' round that keeps me thin;
 it's 'cause I'm washed so much.
It does no good to tell 'em, they're so stubborn, but I hope
That some day they'll discover what deceitful stuff is soap.

I tell you, very often when my hands was clean and white
I've gone along to wash 'em 'cause it did no good to fight.
When I've stuck 'em in the basin it was plain enough to see
The soap would make the water as dirty as could be.

If folks would give me half a chance with soap that didn't cheat
I guess they'd be surprised to find I'm nachurally neat.
I'd take on flesh and leave off havin' colds
 an' such, I know,
And no one could complain about the parts of me that show.

See America First.

In a country so large as ours one may travel extensively without going outside our own borders. Pride in one's home is a good quality, but it hinders development if one is so well satisfied with his own city or state as to care to see or know no other. Even a hurried journey throughout the United States would give a conception of its vastness, the variety of its resources and the diversified interests of the people such as could be got in no other way. See America first! But just as one understands his own language better by having some knowledge of another, so one knows the genius of his own country most truly only as he is able to compare it with other lands. Fortunately travel is no longer a rare privilege, to be enjoyed only by the few. Even those of moderate means are quite able to enjoy the benefits that come from seeing for one's self the strange parts of the earth and becoming familiar with all races and nationalities in their native homes.—Leslie's.

What They Sing For.

A character in W. J. Henderson's "The Soul of a Tenor" breaks a rib in romance as follows:

"Let me tell you something, my dear girl, it doesn't make an ounce of difference what these so called critics say about an opera. They write a lot of pretentious twaddle. Most of them haven't the faintest idea of what it is that makes an opera a success. If the tenor and soprano have plenty of good melody to sing and one or two lively love scenes with a corking climax and there is a fair amount of doings for the barytone and contralto, plenty of loud music for the chorus and a good ballet or procession, it is a tolerably safe bet that the opera will catch on. And that is what we are all in the business for. We are not there for psychology or imaginations or esthetics. We are there to make the public shout and clap its hands and hasten to put more dollars in the box office."

Free Shaves.

A Stepney vicar has, as a branch of his social work, provided free shaves for the unemployed. He secured a somewhat dilapidated building, which provided a large recreation room, for the Helping Hand Club, and in the basement shaving facilities are available. "Gentlemen are requested to wash their faces before being shaved" is a prominently displayed notice. Another notice announces: "Gentlemen may wash their shirts any night. Notice must be given the night before."

India Experts Its First Steel.

The old empire of India has become an exporter of finished steel products. Recently it made its first shipment of steel goods to Japan, amounting to 800 tons at an average value of $32 per ton. The Tata plant, at which it was manufactured, was completed only a short time ago and has a capacity of about 400 tons a day. Its products are pig iron, rails and bars. It is the only steel mill in India and consumes the native ore of the empire.

THE LILY'S MASCOT

Lady De Bathe has a perfect passion for turquoises, and among her many jewels the charming actress-sportswoman possesses one particular gem which has a very peculiar history indeed.

Some years ago—she was Lillie Langtry then—Lady De Bathe was staying in Venice. Always particularly fond of swimming, she was enjoying a dip one morning in the Lido when she saw something at her feet through the clear depths of the blue water.

Down she dived deftly, and brought immediately thereafter to the surface an exquisite specimen of a Persian turquoise. Thereupon she engraved an amatory message in the language of the sunny Eastern land.

She had it set, and has ever since worn the stone round her neck suspended by a thin golden chain. Whatever luck has fallen to her in the theatre, on the turf, or otherwise, its fair owner attributes to her strangely found mascot.

Curious Perquisites of Royalty.

It appears that by a curious statute of the realm the King of Great Britain and Ireland is entitled to every sturgeon landed in the United Kingdom. The King has also the right to the head of every whale caught off the coasts of his kingdom.

The tail of the whale is the Queen's perquisite, the object of this curious division being that her majesty shall always be well supplied with whalebone, although singularly enough, the whalebone is the King's half.

Among other strange perquisites of England's rulers are a pair of white doves, a pound of cumin seed, a pair of scarlet hose and a silver needle from his tailor.

HER AMNESIA

A Young Girl Experiences Loss of Memory

By MARJORIE CLOUGH

There was trouble in the Marsfield home. Bertha Marsfield, fifteen years old, had gone to bed the night before with a racking headache, and when her mother went into her room the next morning Bertha looked up at her with a singular expression on her face and asked:

"Who are you?"

"What's the matter with you, Bertha? Has your headache passed?"

"I don't know who you are!" Bertha looked about her as though dazed. She seemed trying to remember her surroundings, but could not. "Where am I? Where was I yesterday?"

"Great heavens!" exclaimed her mother, kneeling beside her and taking the child in her arms. "Are you ill, dearie?" she asked in a frightened tone.

"No, but I don't know how I came here, and I don't know who you are. I don't know anything."

The agonized mother hurried out of the room, telephoned for the family physician and then announced to the family that something strange was the matter with Bertha. The doctor was asked to come at once. He did so and was immediately taken to the bedside of the little girl. Though he had often attended her, she had no remembrance of him whatever.

It was plain that overnight Bertha had been attacked with amnesia, or loss of memory. How long it would last, whether she would ever recover, was uncertain. Her parents were stunned by the blow. Their daughter had up to that day been a bright, attractive girl just budding into womanhood. Now suddenly she had become, as it were, another being—not another person, for her body remained the same. But all the past fifteen years of her life in which she had been tenderly cared for by her parents, all her love for them, all her associations, had been suddenly blotted out.

A parent is more likely to love a crippled child than a perfect one, and, although whatever affection was to be derived thereafter from Bertha must grow again, her father and mother lavished upon her still greater love than before. For a time they kept a close watch over her, never permitting her to leave the house; but, since she seemed in other respects than loss of memory perfectly well, they finally gave her more liberty, and in time she was returned to school. She was a fairly good scholar, but did not take the high stand in her classes as before her affliction.

An attachment had been in process of formation between Bertha and Paul Drury, a youth of eighteen, who at the time of her affliction had recently entered college. That they were great friends was known to their parents, though the latter were not aware of any more serious feeling between them. Soon after Bertha's stroke Paul came home on a short visit, and the Marsfields were anxious to know if she had forgotten him as well as the others. He came to see her and received the first shock of his life when Bertha, passing through a room where he was, failed to recognize him.

Paul when he next went home on vacation received another disappointment, hearing that Bertha had replaced the intimacy that had existed between them. A young man of twenty, George Atwood, was known to be with her a great deal. Since Bertha was now sixteen years old it was to be inferred that these attentions came from a man to a woman rather than from a boy to a girl. This naturally added to Paul's disappointment.

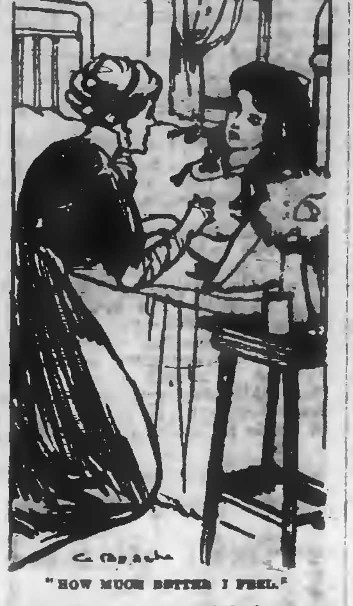
For a short time after Bertha's loss of memory she was told of the relationship that had existed between her and various persons, but it was found better to cease giving her such information, though all those who had previously been intimate with her were aware of her condition. She was not told of the boy and girl attachment that had existed between her and Paul Drury, and whenever they met she passed him without recognition. Being a young man of deep feeling and withal now conscious of his love for the Bertha that had been, these meetings were inexpressibly painful to him.

The affair between Atwood and Bertha progressed and, when Bertha reached her nineteenth year, came to a head. Atwood for a time had not been told that Bertha had had another identity. When he was informed of the fact he was much troubled and attempted to withdraw from his intimacy with her. But he found it impossible. Youth is reckless and prone to take upon itself prospective troubles an older person would shun. Feeling that life without the girl he loved would be unbearable, he resigned himself to accept with her whatever the future might bring forth.

Bertha's parents were bitterly opposed to their daughter's marriage with any one. They considered that she was liable at any time to recover her former identity, and if such a change should occur it would be infinitely better that she should be at home and under their care. They dreaded lest this change might come while she happened to be among strangers and might be attended with unfortunate consequences. Bertha felt they were right about this, and her own judgment told her it would be far better for her to remain under the care of her mother than to run the risks attending the establishment of a home of her own. She therefore told her lover that she had decided to remain with her parents.

Atwood for a time endeavored to acquiesce in the decision, but the wish being father to the thought after thinking the matter over, he came to the conclusion that if Bertha as his wife should return to her former self she could get used to her husband and children as she had done in the case of her father's family. He returned to pressing his suit and finally persuaded Bertha to marry him. But her consent was given only if backed by that of her parents. It required a great deal of time to obtain this consent, and when finally Mr. and Mrs. Marsfield yielded it was rather a permission than a conversion, and only on condition that the engagement should be a long one.

Mrs. Marsfield succeeded in prolonging the betrothal despite the fact that Atwood made several attempts to have a wedding day set. Bertha was twenty-one years of age and had not yet been married when she was attacked by a fever. She grew worse every day till the disease culminated, and the doctor said one evening that she would not live till morning. But during the night there came a change for the better, and she fell into a light slumber. From this she awoke at dawn while her mother was bending over her.



"HOW MUCH BETTER I FEEL."

"Oh, mamma," she said in a faint voice, "how much better I feel!"

Her mother caressed and encouraged her and sent a nurse to tell the others that Bertha showed signs of great improvement, then turned again to the patient.

"Mamma," said Bertha, "has Paul been here to ask for me since I have been ill?"

In a moment it flashed through the mother's mind that the first Bertha had returned, the second—well, she did not know what would become of the second.

"Paul?" she said to gain time.

"Yes. I know he was away at college when I was taken ill. But surely he has sent to learn as to my condition."

Paul Drury had been graduated not only from college, but from a law school and had just been admitted to the bar.

Mrs. Marsfield saw at once that this return to a previous existence must not be broken to the invalid in her present condition. She said that Paul Drury had sent frequent inquiries as to Bertha's condition, and, giving the nurse instructions not to talk with the patient till her return, slipped away to apprise the household of the transformation.

The matter of informing Bertha as to her loss of and return to her memory of the past was put off as long as possible, but when she saw one of her sisters, who had been a child, grown to be a woman, an explanation must be given. When George Atwood heard that Bertha had returned to her former identity and that her first act was to ask for Paul Drury he determined after a struggle that it would be best for himself and all others concerned that he should not see her again. Later he sailed for South America, where a business opening presented itself, and he never returned.

The meeting between Paul Drury and Bertha was a singular one. Paul had often seen her and she had seen him, but not to remember him as her youthful lover. She found it difficult to connect the man of twenty-three with the boy of eighteen. But the germs of a former love were not dead.

As Mrs. Marsfield had not told her daughter after her loss of memory of her first lover, so after her recovery she refrained from telling her of the second.

George Atwood was not resigning the girl he loved. That girl had been a twin, who was dead, or, rather, a continuance for a few years of a new existence in the same body as the former. It was like loving one who had been born into the world at fifteen and passed away without going through the death process after an existence of half a dozen years.

Paul Drury and Bertha were married. Paul was assured by the doctors that his wife was not especially liable to an experience similar to the first, but he never felt sure that she would not.

With or Without.

"Does she sing?"

"Yes."

"With or without?"

"With or without what—her music?"

"No. With or without coaxing."—Detroit Free Press.

THE CHINESE JUNK

A Curious Craft It Is, With Eyes Painted on Its Masts.

SOME TOPSY TURVY METHODS

The Crew's Quarters Are Aft, Not Forward, and John Blandly Sets His Course East South and Tells You the Wind Is Blowing From West North.

The origin of the ancient old world junk, like all things Chinese, is involved in some obscurity, but its first model seems to have been a Chinese conception of some huge marine monster. The teeth which are usually shown in all the terrors of ferocity on the bow denote the mouth. Long boards running aft from the bow, both to port and to starboard, represent the awe inspiring jaws. The sails are fins, while the tail waving aloft, an appendix which all properly constituted dragons of the sea must certainly have, is denoted in the high stern. But most of these characteristics have lost much of their significance in recent years, with the one exception of the eyes, which are always painted on the masts. Captain John is loath to part with them, for, as he warily exclaims:

John Chinaman, shipbuilder, when he takes a notion to build one of his junks does not bother himself much about plans and specifications. Give him the model. Then he will lay his lines off on the floor or on an open space of ground and build his ship as he goes along by the simple rule of thumb. Considering the result he has attained, he is no doubt convinced of the superiority of his method over every other. Fir, teak and pine are the woods he uses in his construction.

The seams of the hull are caulked with rattan shavings and "payed" with a cement of oil and gypsum. The whole of the hull is well tarred, while the upper works are smeared with wood oil. Then comes a final coat of paint—green, blue, white, red—in fact, any color but yellow, which must be reserved for the many flags the completed ship will carry to proclaim her nationality.

When it comes to equipments, they seem antiquated compared with the ones we employ. The windlass is an elongated, barrel shaped roller extending across the broad bow, on either side of which is arranged a series of fixed spokes bearing a strong resemblance to a wheel without a tire. From this is hung great teakwood anchors with iron bound flukes and cables of coir or bamboo rope. This ingenius contrivance is capable of being operated by either hand or foot.

In the way of sail the style depends on whether you are in north or south China. Among the northern Chinese a long mainmast carrying short lug sails is found. In the southern country the sails are generally of woven mat strips sewed into a single sheet and provided with yards at the top and bottom. The bamboo ribs crossing it serve to keep the hoops on the mast in place and enable the boatmen to haul the sail close on the wind. This mainsail is the chief dependence, though sometimes a "driver" is placed on the taffrail and a small sail near the bow. But bowsprits are not considered at all necessary by John Chinaman.

In the matter of rigging we find John quite familiar with everything he requires. Halyards, sheets and braces are used as with us. His blocks, though larger, are not as shapely and are fewer in number. Clumsy as the rudder appears, it is so contrived as to require little effort to manipulate it, for wily John has understood the principles of a balanced rudder and centerboard for centuries. The inboard end resembles just what it is intended to represent—a huge oar handle—and is so cunningly rigged with guys and whips that it makes our own stiff jointed wheel and short helm a poor alternative.

His compass card is stationary. The needle swings on its pivot and points contrarily to the south pole. With twenty-four divisions and some 2,000 minor points or degrees on this faithful guide, John insists on referring to his course as E. S. or the wind blowing from the W. N. How he would disarrange such complex compass bearings as E. by N. ¾ E. or N. W. by N. ½ N. can be left to an imagination sufficiently vivid to embrace such a calamity.

In the arrangement of his ship John again exhibits his consistency by beginning wrong end foremost—that is, considering the matter from our viewpoint. His provisions are carried above deck and aft instead of forward and below. The crew eat and sleep near the stern. The passengers are accommodated in the forward end.

In China there is no Plimsoll mark and no government inspector ready to check off the number of passengers as they go aboard. Neither is there any insistance upon such requirements as life belts, fire appliances and lifeboats. When everything is ready John starts forth on his voyage feeling safe in the happy possession of his pratique or clearance papers, whereby he is commanded to refrain from many practices. These include about everything from smuggling to the carrying of stinkpots. This pratique also commends his soul to the gods and bids him an affectionate farewell and wishes for a safe passage.—Norman W. Browne in New York Post.

It never occurs to fools that merit and good fortune are closely united.—Goethe.

LINCOLN'S CHIN FLY STORY

A certain amount of trouble is a good thing.

Lincoln used to illustrate the point with a story about a chin fly.

It seems that once a man was plowing with a very lazy mule. Suddenly the mule lifted its head, switched its stump of a tail and went across the field at a rapid walk and with most unusual energy.

Reaching the end of the row, there was a man on the fence. When the mule and man came up the fellow got down, walked over to the mule and hit him a slap on the jaw, at the same time remarking, "Well, I killed him that time!"

"Killed what?"

"Why, that chin fly."

"Well, you interfering fool, I wish you would mind your own business. That chin fly was the only thing that made this mule go."—Judge.

Wearing the Trousers.

Ancient Britons were among the people whose wearing of trousers was noted by the more civilized ancients who eschewed them. "Braccae" (breeches) seem to have impressed the Roman mind very much as Chinese pigtails did the modern west. Gaul, beyond the Alps, was at one time known as Gallia Braccata—Trouser land—and Cicero taunts a man with having sprung from "trousered" ancestors. As Roman ways degenerated the use of trousers began to creep in and it is recorded that Alexander Severus wore white ones, previous emperors' trousers having been crimson

Not In Sight.

A countryman named Street owned a runaway cow. As the season advanced Street was compelled to make several long pilgrimages into the country for the reprehensible animal.

On one occasion the trail led on and on until Street had entered the environs of a town where a new trolley system was installed. Just as the cow hunter turned a corner in the outskirts, the car lumbered up and the conductor called out:

"Cedar Street!"

The owner of the estrayed cow stopped in his tracks and bawled back at the man in blue and gold:

"No, darn her, I ain't seed her, and when I do it won't be good fer her blamed old hide either!"

Full House.

One morning last summer President Taft, wearing the largest bathing suit known to modern times, threw his substantial form into the cooling waves of Beverly bay. Shortly afterward one neighbor said to another, "Let's go bathing."

"How can we?" was the response. "The president is using the ocean."—Ladies' Home Journal.

CIVIC SALARIES

Employes of the city are making application for increases of salary, but this need not cause any alarm. In these days of increased cost of living, demands for increase in wages are to be expected—and in many cases must be met. "Good times," hit the salary man harder than any other class of citizens, and the City Council should face the issue in a fearless manner and free all political influence. Applications for increases should be dealt with on their merits. There are men in the employ of the city who are worthy of an increase; and there are others, no doubt, who do not earn the salary they are at present receiving. Let a committee of the Council try to separate the sheep from the goats. By all means pay the city employes what they are worth—but not more.

A PROSPEROUS INDUSTRY

In another column, the statement is given out that a large number of the employes of the Canadian General Electric Company Limited, are to be given a substantial increase in wages. The increase is made voluntarily on the part of the Company, in recognition of good service and as a contribution to meet the increased cost of living, and it may be pointed out that while the dividend to the stockholders has been increased one per cent., the employes will enjoy practically a ten per cent. advance. The addition to the pay roll will aggregate about $100,000 per year.

The Company has increased its business and output during the year just closed, and is concluding preparations for additional business during this year. Two large buildings are under construction, one of which is nearly finished, the floors of which will be used in manufacturing. In addition, ample room has been made to consolidate under one roof the materials, in a stores department, and the space now occupied by these matters in other buildings will be available for additional plant which will increase the manufacturing capacity.

The pay roll now includes over 1800 employes and many more will be required to handle new business. It is a gratifying thing that the city has within its bounds so large and prosperous an industry and one which dispenses so large an amount in its weekly pay roll.

ENDORSES TITLES BILL

The Halifax Chronicle has come out strong in support of Mr. J. H. Burnham's Title bill, and in a recent issue gave a column and a half editorial notice in favor of it. Following are extracts:

"Mr. Burnham's Bill for the abolition of so-called titles in Canada should, and no doubt will, have the approval of the Canadian public, irrespective of party. Mr. Burnham himself is a Conservative. He is independent but by no means radical in thought. He is a Canadian of long descent, naturally devoted to the best interests of his native land. There is, of course, a disposition in certain quarters to regard and treat his bill as a joke. But it is no joke. It deals with a very important matter, and deals with it seriously.

"Self-respecting Canadians do not want these ridiculous titles. They are usually repulsive to them. But while others are getting them and leading it accordingly, they are sometimes not strong enough to resist the importunities of their families and their well-meaning friends. Temptation should simply be removed from the paths of all such men. Mr. Burnham's bill is designed to that end. The gilding of mere money-grabbing has gone quite far enough in the Dominion. In another generation we shall at every turn, be running up against knightly offsprings as bootblacks and billiard-markers. It is high time to call a halt. It is to be hoped, therefore, that Mr. Burnham's bill will receive the Parliamentary and popular support which it merits, and that very soon it will be the law of this land that one Canadian shall be distinguished from another only by good private living and worthy public service."

From the Kingston Whig; Dean Abbott of Hamilton, is right. There is nothing that will so quickly separate him and his friends and make his work a failure.

Wednesday's Globe said "that Mr H. E. Smallpiece entered upon the sixtieth year of his age yesterday. He is probably one of the oldest active newspapermen in the Dominion, having been a lad in the Globe office as far back as 1864." The Advocate editor knocks this record in a cocked hat. He worked on the Globe during the years of 1856 and 1857, when the paper was printed in an old red brick building, which was reached by steps, south side of King street, Toronto. Mr. Tye was foreman in the composing room. Since March 1860, he has been, and is still editor of the Advocate, nearly fifty-three years, and is now in his seventy-third year. — Mitchell Advocate.

RURAL EGYPT.

One of Its Quaintest Spectacles Is a Native Wedding.

However modernised Cairo is or will become, says a writer in the Wide World Magazine, rural Egypt remains the same today as it has been for countless generations. One of the quaintest sights out in the country is a native wedding. I was fortunate in seeing two of them, one from a train and the other while walking near the village of Heliopolis, which is the site of the ancient city of On, mentioned in the Bible.

The bride and bridegroom were completely screened from the public gaze by a canopied arrangement on the back of a camel. It looked like an immense ottoman adorned with a cover illuminated by gorgeous patterns. This camel was followed by the bridal party, all women, seated on a long train of camels, each camel supporting two women.

The great, clumsy creatures (the camels, not the women) were almost enveloped in immense rugs, on the top of which apparently a feather bed had been deposited, and on this the women squatted, giving vent every few moments to a prolonged shrill trill, which I gathered was intended for a festive song. Altogether the incongruity of the spectacle was exceedingly comical.

INGENIOUS PRISONERS.

They Won a Pardon For Their Daring Attempt to Escape.

Among the prisoners in the French convict settlement of New Caledonia were two marine engineers who not long ago received a pardon—strange as it may seem—for making a daring and ingenious attempt to escape.

Living together in the same hut these men were engaged for years in digging a secret tunnel from their hut to the beach. At the end of the tunnel they hollowed out a chamber in which with pieces of driftwood and little bits of steel and iron smuggled into the hut, they fashioned a boat, the metal being at first used to make tools and afterward to form bolts and rivets.

Then with infinite pains they built an engine to propel the boat, and after laboring mightily for seven years they completed their task.

Everything was ready except the provisioning of the vessel, when they were betrayed by a fellow convict to whom they had confided their plan. But so impressed was the French commandant by their marvelous energy, skill and patience that he managed after a year to obtain a pardon for them.—Pearson's Weekly.

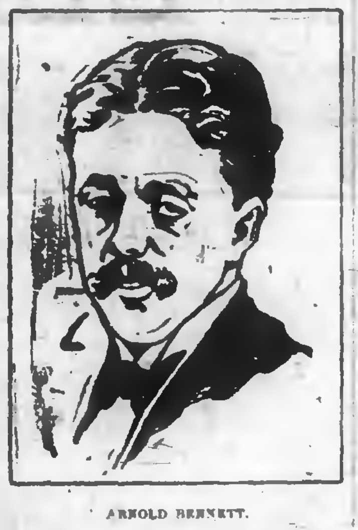
THE TRUTH REGARDING BENNETT

ENGLISH AUTHOR HAS HAD A REMARKABLE CAREER.

His First Literary Success Was the Winning of a Prize In a Popular Weekly Competition and Since That Time He Has Gone on Steadily Winning Laurels In Every Branch of His Art.

About twenty-three years ago London was invaded by a young, unsophisticated provincial, who could not make up his mind what particular niche in the world he could most conveniently fill. He had tried decorative art, but did not make much progress beyond reducing to speechlessness professional house-decorators who inspected his designs for friezes and dadoes. He had dabbled in literature for local papers; wrote startling serials which no one would print, and paragraphs and articles which editors were pleased to publish, but not to pay for. He had also endeavored to follow in the footsteps of his father, a Hanley solicitor. Legal work brought him in enough to live on, so he decided to stick to the law, and at twenty-one was earning a modest competence of $6.25 a week as a shorthand clerk in a London solicitor's office.



ARNOLD BENNETT.

A natural aptitude for certain phases of legal work, "and an equally natural gift for advancing my own interests," as this young man has since confessed, ere long increased that salary to $1,000 a year.

He again, however, in spite of this admittedly good salary for the work he was doing, became infected with the literary germ, and that germ developed into a disease when "the most popular of all popular weeklies" offered a prize of twenty guineas for the best humorous condensation, in 2,000 words, of a serial which had been published in its columns.

The serial story was Mr. Grant Allen's $5,000 prize novel, "What's Bred in the Bone," and the young man who tried for and eventually carried off the twenty-guinea prize, was Mr. Arnold Bennett, now one of the world's most famous dramatists, whose brilliant novels, plays, and essays have placed him among the most influential writers of the day. On both sides of the Atlantic his work has achieved a popularity which is all the more amazing when one considers that it is only twelve years ago since he began to devote himself exclusively to literature.

That twenty guineas was Mr. Bennett's first pen money, and the prize brought to him visions of literary fame, although it is safe to affirm that even in his wildest flights of fancy he never pictured himself attaining the reputation he possesses to-day. The prize whetted his appetite for literary work. After some time in journalism, Mr. Bennett wrote his first novel, "A Man From the North," which brought in very little money.

By no means discouraged, however, he wrote, during the next eight years, a series of novels, among which were his masterpieces, "Anna of the Five Towns," "The Old Wives' Tale," and "Clayhanger."

The only objection some people have to Mr. Bennett's novels is that they are somewhat too long, and some of his admirers chaffed him unmercifully when they entertained him at dinner recently. A hundred or more literary celebrities and others sat down to dinner, and afterwards one of them got up and said:

"I have enjoyed trying to read your books, Mr. Bennett. I year ago I started 'Clayhanger,' and I propose to finish it."

While yet another literary celebrity spoke of the feelings in one's heart on finishing a "sprightly little novelette of 700,000 words, only to be informed at the close of the volume that this is but a preliminary canter towards another novelette somewhat larger, that would deal with the descendants of the first book's characters." And there was no one in the gathering who enjoyed the chaff more than Mr. Bennett himself.

JUDGING A SINGER.

A Case Where Prosaic Fact Jarred Romantic Fancy.

"While we were stuck on a mudbank," writes the author of "Panama," "one of the deckhands, who looked like an Italian, was enlivening his job of stitching a patch on a pair of overalls by singing the duke's song from 'Rigoletto.' And he sang it well. He had a rich baritone. His voice evidently had not been trained, but he sang true. Sitting there on a packing case, beating time against it with his bare heels, he threw into his singing a large measure of the airy nonchalance, the very spirit of the song, that is so often lacking in the performance of professionals.

"'Now, listen to that!' the captain said. 'That's the real Latin for you. Music born in him. I don't suppose he can read or write. But once, when he was a little shaver back in Italy, his father took him to the opera in Naples, and he heard some great artist sing that, and he remembers it still—sings it down here in the jungle, without any accompaniment but his heels, a lot better than an English or an American university man could sing it with an orchestra.'

"'Let's get him to tell us about it,' I suggested. The captain called him up and asked him where he was born. 'New York,' he said. 'Mulberry street?' I asked. 'Sure.' 'Where did you learn that song?' 'Oh, that? That's a Caruso song. I learned it out of a phonograph!'"

Not Missing Anything.

"Great dinner, eh?"

"Yep."

"You are missing some of the brilliant repartee at the end of the table."

"Never mind. I'm getting my share of the turkey."—Washington Herald.

BESSEMER CENTENRAY

January 13th Marked a Notable Anniversary.

January 13 was the centenary of the birth of Sir Henry Bessemer, commonly referred to as the inventor of the Bessemer process of making steel, by which process steel is produced so cheaply that it can be used for rails, bridges, skyscrapers, warships, cars and many other purposes.

Henry Bessemer was English born, the son of a French artist, and he received his mechanical instruction in the type foundry of his father. At 18 he went up to London, a raw country youth, to make his fortune. His first invention was an improved method of stamping deeds, or a process for copying bas-reliefs on cardboard, by which he could produce embossed copies of such works in thousands at a small expense. "The process was so simple that in ten minutes a person without skill could produce a die from an embossed stamp at a cost of one penny." It was a process by which any office boy with average intelligence could forge almost all the expensive stamps affixed to documents, and it was from the sale of these stamps that the English Government obtained an important part of its revenue, the stamps often selling for $25. A large business was then being carried on in the sale of second hand stamps, by which the Government was losing about half a million dollars a year. After several months' experiments Bessemer produced a stamp which could neither be forged nor removed from the document. He had an interview with the chief of the stamp office, and, owing to the perforation feature of Bessemer's stamp, which did away with forgery and removal, the commissioner agreed to adopt it, offering the young man a sum of money, or an office for life at $4,000 a year.

Then young Bessemer went on his way rejoicing. He was engaged to be married, and gleefully he told his fiancee his good fortune, and explained to her the merits of his invention, how it was impossible with it to use a stamp a second time.

"Yes, I understand that; but, surely, if all stamps had a date put upon them they could not at a future time be used again without detection."

When he communicated the new idea to the chief of the stamp department, it was accepted, and Bessemer lost his job, and according to James Parton, he never received compensation for the service, an injustice which embittered his whole life, and caused him to be henceforth most aggressive in protecting his rights.

Parton classifies Bessemer among his "captains of industry"; Sarah K. Bolton, among "poor boys who became famous"; Andrew Carnegie, as one of the 21 "world movers," who have done things that have improved the conditions of mankind. There is no doubt that he was one of the greatest inventive geniuses that the world has ever known, having 120 patents to his credit, among them a velvet machine, a bronze powder process, a sugar making process, a glass polisher, a ventilator, a telephone improvement, improvement in type-casting machinery, a revolving projectile, a method of compressing into a solid block the graphite from which lead pencils are made, a system of rollers for embossing and printing paper, and a ship with stationary cabin, which latter is the only notable failure in his long list of achievements.

African Ivory Smugglers.

Ivory smuggling is looked upon as a very serious crime in British East Africa, and this is only as it should be, for in order to secure the ivory the traders have to kill great numbers of elephants. The game preservation laws, particularly as regards elephants, are most severe, and woe betide the man who is caught breaking the game regulations or in possession of illicit spoils of the chase. The smuggling of ivory therefore is treated in the same manner as smuggling gems and clothing into the United States, illicit diamond buying in South Africa, or other forms of smuggling in England. The rigid laws, however, do not prevent the Arabs and Indians from indulging in an illegal trade in ivory on a large scale.—Wide World.

Made For Concealment.

Stick insects, which are so called because of their resemblance to dry sticks, have two forelegs, which they fold over their eyes when disturbed and evidently think that in so doing they are lost to view. The eggs of these insects take over six months to hatch. They are only one-tenth of an inch in their widest part, yet an insect which at hatching is three-quarters of an inch in length is packed into them. The stick insects destroy the weaklings by eating their legs.

CHIEF THOMPSON ASKS THAT STRENGTH BE ADDED TO POLICE DEPARTMENT

The annual report of Chief of Police Thompson was placed in the hands of the Police Commissioners yesterday afternoon at three o'clock. No action was taken with regard to it, other then receiving it for further consideration. Owing to one member of the Commission being compelled to leave the meeting early it was necessary to postpone the consideration of the various recommendations embodied in the report, until Saturday afternoon at four o'clock.

The following was the report:—

Gentlemen,—I have the honor to submit for consideration and information my third annual report for the Police Department of the City of Peterborough for the year 1912. It is gratifying to report that murder is not included in our calendar for the year 1912, and that serious crime is certainly much under the maximum. I also take this opportunity of thanking the citizens of Peterborough for the kind assistance they have given the Police Department at all times during the year. I also desire to thank your Honorable Board personally for your untiring efforts in endeavoring to keep the department up to a high standard of efficiency and also for the courtesy that you have shown to me. I desire to express my thanks to Chief Howard and his associates on the Fire Department for their willingness to assist the Police Department at any and all times. The number of cases summoned or apprehended during the year 1912 was 690 against 590 in 1911.

Statistical report showing the number of persons apprehended or summoned during the year 1912.

These were issued during the year: 217 summons; 9 warrants; 464 apprehensions without warrant.

JUVENILE OFFENDERS

During the year as usual a number of jevenile offenders were brought before the Magistrate for different offences of petty nature which were not entered in the Police Record, but I am sorry to say it is unfortunate that owing to cirsumstances it was compulsory to deal with some cases and record them in the usual way, which are stated as follows;—

No. 3 Charge, theft. Sentence suspended.

No. 2 Charge, theft. Sent to Industrial School.

No 2 Charge, theft. Sentence suspended, restitution made and costs paid.

No 1. Charge, theft by B. B. Sentence suspended.

No 1 Charge, discharging fire arms. Sentence suspended.

No 1 Charge, carrying concealed weapons. Sentence suspended.

No. 1. Charge, shop-breaking. Sentence suspended.

No. 1. Charge, malicious mischief breaking windows. Fined.

I might say that we owe many thanks to Mr. George Cochrane, Agent for the Children's Aid society and Mr. Goodwill, Solicitor for the above Society, for their untiring efforts in assisting us in coming to conclusions in dealing with juveniles delinquents and helping to save the boys.

The total amount of fines and costs collected in connection with the Police Department during the year 1912, and paid over to the City Treasurer was $2071.00.

Property reported stolen and recovered in 1912— Stolen, $2725.86; recovered, $2131.11.

Property reported stolen and recovered in 1911— Stolen $1958.50; recovered $1071.01.

Property reported lost and recovered in 1912— Lost $2710.43; recovered $2564.43.

Property reported lost and recovered in 1911— Lost $641.34; recovered, $568.74.

LODGERS

During the year 123 persons were given lodgings and shelter in the police cells, and those who we considered deserving were provided with food.

During the warm season from July to September, the Police visited the homes of citizens who were absent from the city twice every night during the temporary absence of the owners or occupants.

The above houses were entirely under our care, and I am pleased to say that no report has reached this office of any of the above mentioned houses being entered or anything stolen therefrom.

The police attended fires during the year to the number of 31.

LOST CHILDREN

During the year as usual, a large number of children who had strayed from their homes were taken care of by the police until their parents could be located and notified.

In addition to our local work there were a number of arrests for outside places, of which I will only mention the most important ones:

1 for Belleville, charge fraud.

1 for Port Hope, charge, discharging a revolver.

2 for Barrie, charge, theft of money.

2 for Ardendale, charge, theft of money.

There were reported by the police to the Inspector of Lights, outages to the number of 662 during the year 1912.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

I am forced to recommend increased police protection, as we are all aware of the increase of population of this city, and the census shows us that during the past ten years Peterborough has increased 63 per cent, which is far ahead of other cities in Ontario centres.

Peterborough covers an area of 2,807 1-3 acres, being two miles wide and 2 3-4 miles in length. It is nearly half the size of London, Hamilton and Ottawa, and the strength of our force is nine, all told.

We have two new factories situated at the south end of our city which are about to operate, and we should be in a position to assure them of proper police and fire protection. as

ARABIAN NIGHTS BAD.

Scene of Oriental Splendor Puts All Previous Efforts In Shade.

The Arabian Nights Ball, held not long ago at the Royal Opera House, in London, proved a magnificent spectacular entertainment, East meeting West in the barbaric splendor of rich Oriental robes, and in the overwhelming mad Carnival of the Farandole, danced for the first time in London.

Every quarter of Asia was represented in the kaleidoscopic scene. Ladies of the harem, fair beauties from Kashmir, contemporary belles of Bagdad, mingled with ancient warriors of the Samurai, Maharajahs, Caliphs, Grand Viziers, numerous Mikados, Siamese merchants, and princes of old Japan.

It was established beyond a doubt that Englishwomen look well in any guise, for although well-known London beauties baffled identification in many cases, it was generally admitted that they wore Turkish dress with especial charm and elegance, and the fascinations of the yashmak never appeared so tantalizing.

Moorish dress was the most popular and a glance from the high boxes showed the fine effects of the judicious mingling of gold and black among bizarre colorings.

Some of the London-manufactured Eastern Princes were not altogether put in the shade by the real Maharajah of Jhalawar, who wore his finest state robes encrusted with gems worth a king's ransom, the very brocaded underdress being identical with that which he wore at the Imperial Durbar a year ago. Turbans covered the heads of all but a few of the men, and, with the long robes, gave an appearance of increased height to the dancers.

Shortly after midnight the evening's entertainment culminated in the much-talked-of "Farandole," a rollicking old Spanish dance. To the tune of a thirteenth century air of Province a procession of eight gorgeously attired Eastern maids and men led the way round the ball room, headed by Espinosa, the sprightly Spanish dancer, who encouraged his followers by waving a ribbon-hung baton.

Arriving at a second group of dancers they invited them to join the chain and so on, till everyone on the dancing floor became so infected with the spirit of jollity inspired by the gay tune that, willy-nilly, they joined in the romp.

For romp indeed it was—around the promenoirs, among the boxes, up and down the perilous staircases, the dancers wound their way—the pace increasing as the tunes changed—now, more leisurely to the simple measured beats of the familiar old nursery rhyme, "Sur le Point d'Avignon," and furiously fast as the endless procession returned to the ballroom to the singing of "Everybody's doing it," the rag-time melody of the moment.

Exhausted and breathless, the chain broken in many places, the Farandole terminated in a graceful tableau, all the men dancers prostrating themselves on the ground at the feet of their fair partners.

Wandering Indian Acrobats.

The wandering acrobats of India are recruited from a low caste of people called Dombaranos, who live by this profession alone. The children are trained from their earliest childhood and do not receive any education in schools.

They travel from village to town and give their performances, which are really wonderful, in the open air before crowds of onlookers. Their tricks are quaint and sometimes astonishingly clever.

Supported by one another, these men will balance themselves in a crazy kind of pyramid rising 15 or 20 feet from the ground, and one of their number will then climb this living pyramid with a heavy weight in his teeth.

Babies not yet able to walk are often seen being made use of in the most dangerous manner during these performances. Rajahs and rich Indians are very fond of the acrobatic displays, and engage the best of the men to perform before their guests at entertainments.

Winston's Joke.

The First Lord of the Admiralty was apprised that a very dear friend was down with appendicitis. Mr. Churchill was about to write a note of sympathy for despatch by messenger straightaway, when word came that the attack had proved to be one of acute indigestion only.

Greatly relieved, the "ruler of the King's Navee" worded his letter thus:

"Dear——, I am very sorry to learn that you are ill; that the trouble is with the table of contents rather than with the appendix."

Mr. Churchill's friend, who dabbled in literature, simply roared on reading this, and having been properly dosed up by his doctor was quickly all right again.

Great Auk's Eggs Down.

The price of eggs of the Great Auk, despite their scarcity—there are but 73 in existence, and the Great Auk is extinct—is going down along with that of the barnyard product. Two Great Auk's eggs were recently sold in London. One went for about $800 and the other for 10 guineas less. The first one was sold in 1894 for considerably over $900.

The best price record ever made by an Auk egg appears to have been in 1888 by one belonging to Sir J. H. Greville Smyth, and now in the Bristol Museum. Some fanatic paid $1,125 for it.

Longest Straight Railroad.

The longest stretch of railway in the world without a curve is in New Zealand, where there is a line of railway, a part of which stretches for a distance of 136 miles in a perfectly straight line. This fact is remarkable when it is taken into consideration that New Zealand is one of the most difficult countries in the world for railway construction, as it is very mountainous, necessitating sharp curves and very heavy grades.

REV. PICKFORD FOR BRIGHTON

Norwood People Regret That He Must Leave

NORWOOD, Feb. 6.—Rev. Rural Dean Pickford, B.A., for the past seven years rector of Christ Church, Norwood, and St. Michael's Westwood, has been appointed incumbent of the parish at Brighton and leaves on the 15th inst., to take up the work in that field. During his ministry in Norwood Mr. Pickford has won the esteem of the people of all denominations, who will regret very much his departure. While here Mr. Pickford became connected with the Boy Scout movement and was instrumental in the organization of the local corpse, its inception he has acted as Scout Master, devoting much time to the welfare of the boys, who too will be sorry to see him go. He has also been prominent in the Masonic fraternity here, having been honored the highest office in the gift of the Lodge.

Some people have the absurd notion that unless they are always talking, they are considered dull.

OFFICERS ELECTED FOR THE CENTRAL SMITH ASSOCIATION

Some Important Points for Men Interested in Cow Testing.

Among the points which should receive the careful attention of the men who are testing their cows, is the one of regular weighing and sampling. The milk of each cow is supposed to be weighed and sampled at least three days a month or every ten days. The dates of weighing and sampling are spread over the month because a better average is thus secured. Occasionally we find a new member who thinks he is improving on the system devised by the Department of Agriculture, and cutting down the labor by weighing and sampling one or two days a month, and it would be well to point out that he is also securing less accurate information.

The system of testing as followed in Canada was only put into practice after carefully studying the systems followed in the dairy countries of Europe, and if a simpler system which would give accurate results could have been devised, it certainly would have been.

A large number of the members are now weighing each cow's milk daily which is a decided advantage, as any variation in the flow is at once detected and the cause located. Those who have changed to the daily weighing claim that it is less trouble than weighing three days a month, as it becomes a habit and they never miss the time.

Another very important point is that of keeping feed records. A number of the members kept complete records for 1912 and they now know exactly the amount of profit each cow in their herd produced. The cost of producing milk from different cows varied from 40 cents to $1.15 per cwt., while the cost of producing fat varied from 11 cents to 34 3-4 cents per lb. The keeping of feed records does not require as much labor as might be expected. The different foods are weighed from time to time to find how much each animal is consuming but it is not necessary to weigh the food every day as it can be measured.

During 1912 a few men tested their cows for 5 or 6 months and then dropped the work thus not only wasting the time of the officials and clerks of the Department of Agriculture, but also their own time as incomplete records are of very little value. On account of the large number of new members and the great increase in the work, it will be necessary in 1913 to refuse to test samples for anyone who does not intend securing complete records, so that anyone who has cows freshening early and who wishes to test this year should make arrangements at once.

At a meeting of the members of the Central Smith Cow Testing Association held in Peterborough during the stock judging course, officers were elected as follows:

President—J. A. McGregor.
Vice-Pres.—Fred Scott.
Secretary—C. E. Moore.
Directors—W. G. Scott, J. K. Moore, Melville Scott.

C.P.R. ISSUES IMPORTANT RULES

In connection with the tracing of either carload or less than carload shipments the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has issued some important rules, which it is hoped will be exercised and thus facilitate in the work of tracing shipments. It is well known that tracing of any shipment before it has ample time to reach its destination does not hurry its movement, but on the other hand prevents prompt attention to legitimate tracing. The rules are as follows: 1.—Tracers must not be started, or requests made to trace freight, until the shipment has had a reasonable time in which to reach destination, and then only at the request of the shipper or consignee. 2.—When tracing a shipment give the initials and number of car, point or origin, route, date forwarded, commodity and destination. 3.—Tracers in connection with carload freight should be addressed to Mr. F. A. Gascoigne, superintendent of car service, Montreal, for eastern lines; and Mr. A. Hatton, superintendent of car service, Winnipeg, for western lines. 4.—In case of less than carload shipments, the necessary information should be obtained through agent at shipping point or destination. 2d1W

"Why do you say that?" pouted the bride.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

Its Two Great Archbishops and Its Two Legislative Bodies.

The highest office in the Church of England is held by the archbishop of Canterbury, officially known as primate of all England in distinction from the archbishop of York, who is simply primate of England. The jurisdiction of the latter extends over the province or county of York, which includes ten dioceses in that part of England from the Humber to the Dee and embraces the Isle of Man as well.

The rest of England is under the jurisdiction of the archbishop of Canterbury. That dignitary, however, as primate of all England, is supposed to possess a certain authority over the church in the whole country. He takes precedence on all public occasions not only of the archbishop of York, but of all the nobility save the immediate members of the royal family. He crowns the king, but the queen is crowned by the archbishop of York.

The church has two legislative bodies called convocations, which attend to ecclesiastical matters. Each convocation, that of York and that of Canterbury, contains two houses. The upper house is composed of bishops and other dignitaries, and the lower house is made up of deans, archdeacons and delegates who are elected whenever a new parliament is chosen.—Harper's Weekly.

The Limb and the Law.

John Moran was summoned to the police court for committing a breach of the peace, but when his name was called he did not appear. A friend attended, however, and stated that Moran could not come, having broken his leg. The magistrate, being somewhat suspicious, sent a policeman to Moran's home to inquire, and the constable found Moran seated at the window, apparently in good health. "Have you broken your leg?" asked the policeman. "I have," replied Moran. "How?" "With a hammer." "Let me see the leg!" "It's out in the woodshed. Go and look at it," said Moran. The policeman found a wooden leg in the woodshed, mended it and then took Moran to the court.—London Globe.

WHEN IS A MAN DRUNK?

Tests of the Police Doctors of the London Courts.

Mr. Plowden, the celebrated London magistrate, is always listened to with interest, and his latest opinion is attracting more than usual attention. In dismissing a taxi-cab driver who was charged with being drunk, he said he was not much influenced by the tests made by doctors at police stations.

Not long ago he was called upon to try a man charged with being drunk, where the doctor's test had been to make the man stand with his feet together, clasp his hands behind his head, and close his eyes. The doctor pointed out that the man, being drunk, reeled and had to be supported, but the magistrate doubted even his own power of maintaining his equilibrium under such a complicated test, and dismissed the case.

A favorite test of sobriety with police doctors is to make the accused person repeat some word or words, their inability to do so correctly being considered proof of drunkenness, but here, again, is a test which, if taken as final, could be made to prove the most sober person drunk, for there are words which few people can pronounce correctly with ease.

This, no doubt, was the view taken by the magistrate in dismissing a chauffeur who had come under the eye of the police, and failed to pronounce "asterisk" after six attempts.

Not so fortunate, however, was the man who was tested with the lines: "When Britain first at Heaven's command Arose from out the azure main." He failed at "azure main," as well he might; but that was only a part of his ordeal—a preliminary trot, one might say. What sealed his doom—three shillings or five days—was the difficulty he experienced in touching his nose with his forefinger when he was standing with his feet together and eyes closed.

A far simpler and, it must be admitted, more conclusive proof of insobriety is the inability to fasten one's clothes. If a man cannot button his coat, presuming, of course, that the necessary buttons and buttonholes are there—why, then, he must be drunk. So thought the Worcestershire magistrates who fined a man for drunkenness after he had unsuccessfully tried to button up his waistcoat.

In some parts of Ireland they have queer ideas as to whether a man is drunk or not. Some time ago a policeman was conveying a man whom he considered quite helpless to the police station, when an Irishwoman stopped him and asked him what he was doing. "I am taking this man to the station," said the constable; "he is drunk." "Drunk?" exclaimed the Irishwoman, in amazement. "Why, you must be dreaming. I saw one of his fingers move!"

Stood Up Apparently Dead.

The porters at Abbeville station, France, recently noticed the curious attitude of a man who had been standing for a considerable time motionless before the board on which the delays of the train service are recorded. It was observed that his eyes were tightly closed. As he still remained without movement, an official touched him on the shoulder. The man, it is said, immediately fell into his arms, his body absolutely rigid. A doctor who was called diagnosed the case as one of catalepsy. It seems that for a considerable time the man had been standing in the middle of the busy station in an unconscious condition.

Ancient Science.

It is generally supposed that those who combated the opinion that the earth was a sphere when Columbus proposed his great voyage were only giving expression to opinions that had always been entertained. But the fact is that long before the Christian era the Greek and Egyptian philosophers entertained the idea that the earth was round and knew vastly more about eclipses, the motions of the moon and other astronomical matters than many do even to-day. The idea of Columbus had been anticipated by more than sixteen centuries.

What He Wanted.

Mr. Pounds, the retired grocer, was very proud of his new country estate. He spared no expense in doing things well. Judge, then, of his delight when a pair of rooks began building a nest in his park!

But the farmer who owned the next land was not so pleased. In fact, he disliked rooks.

So he gave his sons orders to shoot the offending birds.

Along came Mr. Pounds, enraged.

"See here, my man," he said fiercely, "I wish those lads of yours would let my birds alone. I'm trying to make a rookery, and"—

"That's all right, sir," replied the sturdy son of the soil. "But I wish your rooks would let my crops alone. I be trying to make a living."—Baltimore American.

Tea Making Hints.

Use water which has just come to a boil, but which has not been boiled before or allowed to simmer on the stove for some time.

Warm the teapot by pouring in hot water a few minutes before the tea is required and allow it to remain in the pot until the tea is made.

Allow one teaspoonful of tea to each person, with one extra one. Pour boiling water and allow to stand for three to five minutes.

Fill the teapot or the tea will cool rapidly.

Inaugural Ball.

It is probable that for the first time in history the inaugural ball this year will be held in the rotunda of the United States capitol underneath the dome, which is surmounted by the Goddess of Liberty. The pension bureau, where the inaugural balls are usually held, is not available any longer because of the valuable documents and papers stored there, which would be jeopardized if fire should break out.

THE MARKET

Latest Quotation in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 5.—Strength in America yesterday, firmer Australian offerings and increased sales of cargo, as reported late yesterday, together with firmness of Plate offerings, caused covering at opening. These influences, however, were offset by reports of rain in the Punjaub and expectation of rain in the United Provinces of India, and after the opening there was realizing, which caused a decline. Clearances of Argentine wheat are reported liberal, and Australia is shipping freely, and, with expectations of large American shipments this week, holders were inclined to realize.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—Rains in the Punjaub and promise of relief from drought in other parts of India turned today's wheat prices downward. The market, tho firm at the close, was 1-8c to 1-4c under last night. Corn finished 3-8c to 1-2c off, oats at a decline of 1-8c to 1-4c, and provisions varying from 5c down to an advance of 2 1-2c.

MONTREAL, Feb. 5.—Cables on Manitoba spring wheat came weaker at a decline of 3d to 4½d. A strong feeling prevailed in the market for hogs, and some small lots of selected sold as high as $9.75, but the ruling prices for the day for carload lots were from $9.40 to $9.50 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

CHIEF THOMPSON ASKS THAT STRENGTH BE ADDED TO POLICE

There are streets in our city with thousands of people living on them and much valuable property unprotected. Life is the most important, property comes next.

During the summer months we have frequent complaints from ladies and young girls as to being molested in the residential and rural districts of the city, and I contend this is due to the fact of these districts being unpatrolled by the police, as it is an established fact that the presence of a police officer in any district has a telling effect in the prevention of crime.

I think that the above reasons are sufficient to warrant the increase of police service which I am about to recommend, without taking into consideration that the number of police here are far below the average, namely, the addition of two extra men to the Department.

Another matter which I wish to bring before your Honorable Board is the unsightly part of police duty where constables have to fight and drag drunken men through the streets of our city in order to get them to the police station, in the presence of ladies and children, which is one of the most unfortunate matters in connection with our work. I would therefore ask your Honorable Board to consider the advisability of purchasing a patrol wagon, which could be installed at the Fire Station, and worked very economically with the assistance of Fire Chief Howard, who is extremely willing to co-operate with us in the matter.

I would also recommend that a Typewriting Machine be purchased for my office.

There is a large amount of work in connection with the printing of circulars regarding stolen property etc., which could be circulated throughout the country from time to time, all of which could be done from my own office if a typewriter is installed.

REMARKS

P.C.'s Alexander Kidd, John McCarry and John Kane sent in their resignations during the year. These vacancies were very satisfactorily filled by the appointment of James F. Reid, William Sill and Joseph Bullied.

The general health and conduct of the force has been good during the year.

The Chief Constable's Convention meets this year in the city of St. Johns, and I trust, gentlemen, that you will make it convenient for me to attend, with the necessary appropriation.

Accepted the Apology.

An Irishman was going along the road when an angry bull rushed at him and tossed him over a fence.

The Irishman, recovering from his fall, upon looking up saw the bull pawing and tearing up the ground, as is the custom of the animal when irritated, whereupon he smiled at the animal and said.

"If it was not for your bowing and scraping and your humble apologies, you brute, faix I should think that you'd thrown me over the fence on purpose."—London Answers.

Swiss Chimney Sweeps.

There are some strange things to be seen in Switzerland, states The World Wide Magazine, but nothing stranger than the chimney sweeps, who, curiously enough, are the only people in the country who wear top hats. The silk hat, usually of respectable antiquity, is for some inexplicable reason the recognized headgear of the chimney cleaner in Switzerland, and he would probably feel as unprofessional without it as a policeman without his helmet or a muffin man without his flat cap.

Compassionable Nature.

"I haven't much objection to you personally," said Mr. Cumrox, "but you know my daughter has been accustomed to every luxury."

"Well," replied the confident suitor, "I won't ask her to give up anything on my account. I think I could go along and enjoy luxury as much as anybody."

THE SPORTING WORLD

PETES IN GREAT FORM WON EASILY FROM FRONTENACS

Lead at Half Time by 9-6 and Won Out at 17-7 — Locals Had Too Much Speed.

Everything that goes to make up a real live game of hockey was furnished by the Kingston Frontenacs and the locals at the Brock last night. It is a long time since a more interesting game has been witnessed. The score at half-time was 9-6 for the Spratt boys but the full time, they had stretched the count to 17-7.

It was worth an extra fee to watch the locals perform as they did last night. To the limit of their speed there seemed no end. In combination or individual work, they had their opponents beaten at all angles. They shot swiftly and for the most part accurately. At times the work of Kelly, Park and Spratt bordered on the sensational.

Last night saw Maurice Park at his best. He started off at top speed and never once did he stop. His work in centre ice and about the Kingston nets was a treat. He sent shot after shot on the visitors' nets, and figured in the majority of the 17 goals scored.

The local line had everything. Giroux, besides doing some neat rushing, checked and bounced the visitors with an effectiveness that could hardly be duplicated. Armstrong shot from all positions, passed well and was always on the alert. With Kelly going like a bullet on the other wing and Park showing 'em how in centre ice, there was nothing to it but Peterborough.

The grand all round work of the forwards made the programme rather tame for the defence, but it gave Pete Spratt a great opportunity to play the rubber. He took the puck through the whole Kingston team and when in a whole did not forget to pass. Morrow did some good work but did not have the speed of his teammates. Dwyer, while away off color, was good enough to block shots with a man right in on him, but when a shot came from further out, Joseph couldn't see it.

The Frontenacs had a good team but they were simply outclassed. Seventeen shots found their way past Connors but he stopped three times that number. Reid, Morrison and Crawford were most prominent in the attack.

The teams were:—

KINGSTON
Connor
Hyland
Rodden
McNeil
Reid Crawford Lewis
O
Kelly Park Armstrong
Giroux
Morrow
Spratt
Dwyer

DENISON SAYS HE IS PERSECUTED

TORONTO, Feb. 6.—Fred Denison the new Ottawa College hockeyist, now accused of being implicated in the Alert expose of Hamilton, makes the statement that Mr. Francis Nelson, one of the governors of the Ontario Hockey Association, has been on his trail for a number of years and feels he is the victim of a system of persecution.

"I do not know Nelson nor have I ever [illegible] him," says Denison. "But for the past four years he has dogged me for some reason or other and questioned my status wherever I went. I played at Port Hope, Peterborough and Cobourg and each place Nelson was after me. He never got anything on me for the reason he couldn't. I never signed any papers nor accepted any money or cheques from the Alerts and have taken my affidavit to that effect."

Denison makes some rather grave charges against O.H.A. towns of importing men for the hockey teams by inducements of special jobs.

VARSITY GAME IS POSTPONED

Will Not be Played Till Tuesday Night

The senior game with Varsity billed for Friday night, has been postponed till Tuesday. The Collegians have a hard Intercollegiate game on Saturday, and do not care to take any chances of players being injured.

For the game on Tuesday night, they assert the game will be the strongest that can be put on the ice.

Kuntz's OLD GERMAN LAGER

Better Than American

Lagers, because there is no rice, corn or other malt adjuncts used in Kuntz's Old German Lager. Pure Barley Malt, Bohemian Hops, high-class yeast and sparkling spring water—these are the materials from which Kuntz's Old German Lager is brewed. HOCKEY

St. Paul's Sunday School hockey team hereby challenge the St. Andrew's Sunday School seven to a game of hockey to be played at the Sacred Heart rink on Monday between 6 and 7.

There will be no O.H.A. game to-night as Trenton intermediates defaulted to the locals.

Park scored 10 goals for the Petes last night. This record should stand.

Two Mercantile League games will be played at the Brock street rink to-night.

The Strathconas and the Midgets will meet in a lightning fast game of hockey in the Brock Street rink on Saturday night from seven to eight o'clock. The Strathconas are determined to keep up their winning streak. The Midgets are not worrying over the situation and are going out to give them a hard go for the honors from the drop of the hat.

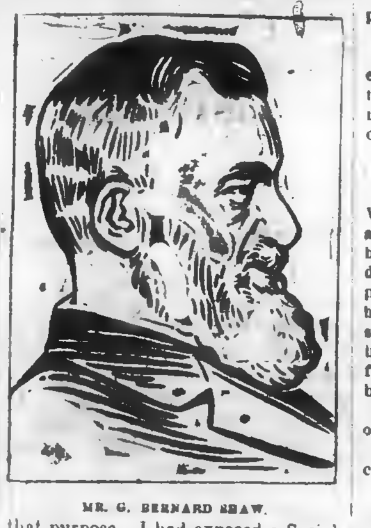
SHAW AT HOCKEY GAME

IRISH PLAYWRIGHT, WAS DISAPPOINTED, HE SAYS.

He Had Expected To See Seven Young Men Perform Wonders In Co-operation, But There Were Seven Other Young Men to Thwart Them—Degenerated Into Something Like Politics Before Long.

The Irish playwright, Socialist and critic, George Bernard Shaw, is like a religious revival. He wanders into strange places. It is not always the elect that are called upon. But the fact remains that Mr. Shaw has deigned to record his impressions of the most characteristic of Canadian pastimes. If there is in his account very much Shaw and very little hockey, those who know him best can assure us that he is making a very generous and unusual concession in not giving us all Shaw. The following is what he gave out for publication, concerning a hockey game which he witnessed in the Dominion:

"I am, whenever I care to be, a Socialist. Consequently, when I heard that seven young men were somewhere banded and sworn together for a common purpose, I started out to search for them, feeling gratified that the wide reading of my plays in Canada had implanted some notion of communism. In England whenever more than three are gathered together, the police scent conspiracy and read the riot act. Being utterly ignorant as to the extent to which Canada is blighted by this characteristically British fair play, I was not without apprehension that my expedition might be dangerous. I at last found my young men, but what their common purpose might be I was utterly unable to discover, as there were seven other young gentlemen equally sworn to frustrate that purpose. I had expeced a Socialistic love feast. I found rival tastes in costume. Still, as I have never yet encountered any two Socialists who pronounce Marx the same way and as I myself am of course, utterly unlike any other living Socialist, and do not pronounce Marx at all, my intellectual aplomb was not in the least shaken by this discovery of a rift in the ranks of Socialism. On the contrary, I was now rid of all danger from the police, for this situation was just English party politics, quite ill-natured, and latently sanguinary, but highly respectable. I even fancied that I could detect a faint aroma of bishop and Established church.



MR. G. BERNARD SHAW.

"Seeing that Socialism was in the usual hopeless cul de sac wherein terminate all varieties of my own, I was about to leave when I noticed that all fourteen young gentlemen had formidable looking bludgeons in their hands. I inferred that since amicable communism had proved impracticable they were prepared to apply the philosophical principles of my "Man and Superman" and to realise their purpose by the simple process of ejecting from the world whether of ideas or objects, all those opinions and persons which were objectionable to them. Two or three were quickly despatched after some very witty and vivacious repartee with the bludgeons and I was beginning to count confidently on the speedy advent of a sole surviving superman, when, to my disgust, their places were taken by others. Clearly there was some philistine censorship behind the scenes that would not let this interesting philosophic drama work out its own solution along the natural lines of destructive evolution. I could not tolerate such tyrannous suppression of the rights of free speech and unimpeded skull splitting, so I clapped on my hat and left the theatre, merely lingering long enough to ascertain the name of the censor's victim.

"This 'Game of Hockey' to judge by the one act which I did not see will in spite of the censorship which is none the less a villainous institution even if the villain disguise himself as a referee, enjoy a long run on the boards. It has to be sure two goals, and a good drama's aim should be single and definite, but the public that stays away from Candida and 'The Doctor's Dilemma' will never notice a trifle like that. I have no doubt that with its attractive slashing of shillelahs it would succeed better in Dublin than my own John Bull's other Island. It might perhaps be taken in New York for a poetical crytogram by Maeterlink, the fourteen wild-eyed and much perspiring young demons violenty assailing a passive and unresisting object—the puck they call it, by a despicable larceny from Shakespeare—these fourteen young men being, I say, symbolical of the worldly spirits that crush the poetical soul. In London where there are no poetical souls it would be violently resented as a satire on the House of Lords.

"I have always held that the stage has as powerful a moral function as the church, for like the church it puts a great many persons to sleep. At 'The Game of Hockey,' however, I made excellent use of my ears if not of my eyes and observed that all the audience was very wide awake and extremely enthusiastic.

UNANIMOUS.

Final Prescription Was Just the Thing to Make Him Well.

A VERY honest man who was sick wanted to keep on living. With that end in view he called the neighborhood doctors into consultation.

"Big dose," said the allopath.

"Small doses," said the homoeopath suplently.

"Fresh air and exercise," said the physical culturist.

"An operation," said the surgeon.

"Starve," said the faster.

"Fruits and nuts," said the dietist.

"Kneading," said the osteopath.

"My favorite prescription," said the patent medicine man.

"This is all very interesting," said the patient, "but likewise it is all very different. Is there any grand principle on which you all agree?"

"Yes," they chanted in chorus, "we all agree that when it comes to fees the proper thing is to charge all the traffic will bear and the devil take the undertaker. We will send our bills by the next mail." And they did.

Which was exactly the prescription that the honest man needed, for he was obliged to get well in order to earn enough money to die free from debt.—Puck.

Just a Slight Mistake.

"The reporter's life is a happy one. When he suffers an indignity the cause of that indignity is usually beneath consideration or else the insult is due to some misunderstanding."

The speaker was Albert J. Beveridge, himself a one time reporter. He continued:

"I know a reporter who went to a house the day after a wedding and said to the servant who answered his ring:

"'Can you let me have some details, please, of yesterday's ceremony?'

"The servant frowned.

"'No, I can't,' she said. 'They ate every crumb! And I think you ought to be ashamed, an ablebodied young man like you going around begging for cold details!'"—St. Paul Dispatch.

Still Going On.

Our friend had married a woman. We thought that he might always stay a bachelor, but he succumbed, and we hastened to interview him. It was a delicate task, for we never had approved of the lady of his choice, and he well knew it, so our congratulations sounded hollow. It was not until he had ordered the third bottle that we found courage to speak, and then we blurted:

"How did you come to marry her, old man?"

"I told her I'd take her on trial," he confessed.

"But you are still living with her."

"Yes. You see, she is still a trial!"

We investigated no further.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A man who owns a big New York restaurant, but does not care to run it, was engaging a manager. He thought he had just the right man and was talking over the matter with him before final arrangements.

"Of course," said he, "you are to have entire charge of the restaurant and the employees. But John, the head chef, has been here for ten years, and I wouldn't want you to fire him, and Pete, the night doorkeeper, has been here since we opened, and I would not want him fired."

"See here," said the prospective manager, before any more were put on the safety list, "you don't want a manager. You want a watchman."—Vanity Fair.

JUDGE BARHORST
DOES HIS DUTY TO RHEUMATIC SUFFERERS

If you suffer from Rheumatism and don't read this advice, then the terrible disease must have robbed you of your power to be fair to yourself. Read it:

"I, John Barhorst, Justice of the Peace of McLean Township, Ft. Loramie Ohio, do certify that after treatment by three doctors without result, I have been cured of a very bad case of Rheumatism by using two bottles of RHEUMA. It is now two years since I used the remedy, and I am still as well as ever. Previous to using RHEUMA I was a cripple, walking with crutches, and I feel it my duty to let other sufferers from Rheumatism know what it will do. The result seems almost miraculous to me. I have advised RHEUMA to at least a dozen persons, and each one speaks as highly of it as I. I will answer anyone suffering from the disease if a two-cent stamp is enclosed"—May 31, 1912.

You can secure a bottle of RHEUMA for only 50 cents at Warner Drug Co., and they say, if not as advertised, money back. It's just as good for Gout, Arthritis, Lumbago and Sciatica.

"A Child Can Run It."

They said that a child could run it,
And—I was a little child!
It looked like a simple fraction,
So meekly and maidenly mild!
I bought it with good gold dollars,
I named it the Honeybee,
And I wish that I had the gay young lad
That sold that boat to me!

The motor was perfectly simple—
You toyed with a jigger here
And twisted a simple thingumabob
And tickled its left hind ear,
You told it a funny story,
You gave it the mystic sign,
And off it would go with a yo heave ho!
Said the fellow who sold me mine.

It ran—oh, yes, when he ran it,
And that was in early May!—
And I was a care free butterfly,
But now I am old and gray.
They said that a child could run it—
Oh, ultimate cosmic smart!
They knew I would look like Methuselah's spook
Ere I ever got it to start.

Overlooked Her.

Two black faced minstrels were giving an entertainment on the sands of a certain seaside holiday resort recently. While one of them was telling funny stories about the humors of boarding house landladies the other went among the crowd making a collection. He at length went up to a stern looking woman, who promptly snatched the tambourine from his hand and poured the contents into her lap. As she returned the empty tambourine to the astonished minstrel she exclaimed:

"Tell your friend who knows so much about landladies that I'm the one he forgot to pay the last time he was here!"—Weekly Telegraph.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH MEMBERSHIP AT 1,007; PEOPLE SHOW APPRECIATION OF PASTOR

Total Missionary Givings for the Year Was $5,007—W. F. M. S. Make Record—More Accommodation is Needed for the Sunday School.

The reports of the various activities of St. Paul's Presbyterian church of this city as given at their Annual Meeting last night, show the Church to be in a most flourishing condition. Membership has increased, the givings of the congregation establish a new record; their missionary activities place them right in the forefront of the Presbyterian churches of Canada, and in spite of greatly increased expenditures, due to improvements, the financial status of the congregation is good.

The feature of the meeting came near the end, when the people showed in a substantial manner their appreciation of the pastor, the Rev. Robt. Pogue. Heretofore, Mr. Pogue has paid the congregation $300 a year for the rent of the manse. By a practically unanimous standing vote his people decided that heretofore Mr. Pogue should have his manse rent free, a form of appreciation which Mr. Pogue, in thanking his people, said was most acceptable.

1007 MEMBERS.

During the past year the membership of the Church has been increased by 71 who joined by profession of faith, and 65 by certificate. A little over half of this number have been removed during the past year, leaving a total membership of 1,007. The report of the Board of Managers, made by Mr. Crane of the Dominion Bank, showed receipts of $8,733.85, a substantial increase over the year previous. A deficit of $1,381.17 at the first of the year was almost wiped out by a special collection. A new heating system costing $3,000 has been installed since the last annual meeting.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Mr. Keyes reported continued interest in the Sunday School with an average attendance in the intermediate classes of 120, in the Adult Bible Class 45 and in the Young Men's Class around 25. The total collections for current accounts amounted to $187.35 and for missionary account $570. St. Paul's seems to be strong on missions. They maintain their own missionary in Corea, and the total missionary givings of the congregation were $5,057. At this point a vote of appreciation of Mr. Innis and the ladies in his office who assisted in handling the missionary funds was heartily carried. The Women's Foreign Missionary Society reported an average attendance of 60 at their meetings and collections amounting to $720.80; 1912 has been a record year with the ladies, but they earnestly requested the ladies of the congregation who have not so far identified themselves with the work to join in the service. The total givings of the various missionary societies—the W.F.M.S., the Fraser Mission Band and the Faithful Workers Mission Band amounted to $1131.28. The Ladies' Aid showed receipts for the year of $227.57.

A big subject and one involving too great an expenditure to be dealt with at the first meeting at which it was introduced, was the idea of enlarging the Sunday School accommodations, discussed by Mr. Keyes and Mr. Logan. The congregation was asked to consider the matter of increased accommodation and take action at a future meeting.

Messrs. Hill and McLean were re-appointed as Auditors. The retiring members of the Board of Managers were Messrs. Wood, Harstone, McLean and Nelson, the first three of which were eligible for re-election. As a result of the ballot the three old managers were re-appointed and Mr. Logan made a fourth.

INCREASE FOR MECHANICS AND FEMALE HELP AT THE CANADIAN GENERAL

Mechanics Receiving 30 Cents an Hour and Under Will Get 10 Per Cent Increase—10 and 5 Per Cent Increases for Female Help According to Length of Service.

Mr. Patterson, general superintendent, has advised the Review that commencing March 1st next, it has been decided to grant a material increase in pay to the mechanics employed at the Peterborough works of the Canadian General Electric Company, as an acknowledgment of the satisfaction of the management at the good services rendered by the men during the past year.

The rate of increase that has been decided upon is 10 per cent to all mechanics receiving 30c an hour and under, but those receiving upwards of 30c, up to 45c an hour, will not participate in this increase.

Mr. Patterson stated that after consultation with the Head Office management, they are quite in accord with this proposition, and feel that the men should be treated generously at this time, and are very glad to take the initiative and voluntarily show their appreciation by having the new regulation become effective early in the year.

In addition to the increased wages to the mechanics, it has been decided to grant increases to all female help in the manufacturing departments of the plant, as follows:

A 10 per cent. increase to all those who have been in the employ of the Company two years and over;

A 5 per cent increase to all those who have been in the employ of the Company for one year and over.

A drinking man who is known as a "bottle man" that is, one who buys liquor by the bottle, and keeps it in his room, is the kind most difficult to reform.

WEDDING BELLS

HENDRICK—TIMLIN.

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday morning, when Mr. David Hendrick, of Viscount, Sask., was united in the bonds of matrimony to Miss Olive Timlin, daughter of Wm. J. Timlin, of 196 Dalhousie St., by the Rev. R. B. Grobb. The happy couple were unattended. A wedding breakfast was given at the home of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Hendrick left for Ottawa, where they will spend their honey moon, before leaving for Viscount, Sask., to reside.

RARE PHOTOS ON EXHIBITION

Some unique and rare photographs of members of the Royal Family of France, fifty years ago, are on exhibition in L. Mendel's photo display windows. The remarkable pictures were loaned to Mr. Mendel by a lady of this city who prizes them highly for their historical connection. There are twenty-two photos in all, and the old fashioned royal garb in which the royal family dotted themselves is most interesting to study.

Such celebrated royal personages as the Empress Eugenie, Emperor Franz Joseph, Louis Napoleon, Jerome Napoleon and Prince Albert are shown in the group.

LANDLORD OR TENANT TO PAY BILLS FOR WORK CARRIED OUT BY SANITARY INSPECTOR

Sanitary Inspector Spence has decided to adopt measures which will provide for the carrying out of the health regulations to the limit, inasmuch as remedying unsanitary conditions are concerned. In many instances the inspector notifies a householder or landlord to make some changes necessary in the interests of sanitation and health. The latter fails to do so, and if after further notice and sufficient time has been given him to make the changes, he still neglects it, the Sanitary Inspector has authority to prosecute.

In place of prosecuting, however the Inspector henceforth purposes to order the said alterations to be carried out independent of the landlord or tenant, in cases where the latter refuses to comply. He has absolute authority under the Provincial Health Act to adopt such methods. The expense of course is charged to the landlord or house owner as the case may be, and in the event of refusal to pay, legal action may be authorized.

RELATIVES OF THE LATE MRS. McCAFFERY DO NOT SHARE

In Estate of $12,000 Left by Mr. McCaffery Who Was Drowned.

TORONTO, Feb. 6— Mr. Justice Britton has dismissed without costs the case in which the relatives of the late Mrs. William McCaffrey sued for a share in the estate of her husband, the late William McCaffery amounting to about $12,000. The point at issue was one that crops up very seldom. On the 25th of September last, Mr. and Mrs. McCaffery and their two children were drowned in the Pigeon River, near Omemee, by the upsetting of the canoe in which they were fishing. No one saw the disaster, but the relatives of Mrs. McCaffery contended that she may have lived some time after her husband, thereby entitling them to share in the estate.

PRECEDENT OF 1860.

Mr. N. F. Davidson, K.C., counsel for defendants, pointed out that the House of Lords had decided a similar action in 1860. In that judgment it was stated that in cases of persons dying in a common disaster there was no presumption arising regarding age or sex as to survivorship. The question must remain one solely of fact and not of law, so that if no evidence could be brought forward to prove survivorship the person making the claim fails.

PROTECTION AT HUNTER STREET

Railway Commissioners Will be Asked to Give Order for Gates

The question of placing gates at the Grand Trunk railway crossing on Hunter street for protective purposes, has been brought up from time to time in the City Council. That such are almost a necessity for prevention of acidents was shown by the mishap, which occurred there recently, resulting in Newton Loft, an Indian, suffering the loss of a limb. Railway gates at this point are almost more of a necessity than at the King street or Simcoe street crossings, as traffic, both pedestrian and vehicle, is as heavy, if not heavier.

The question of protection at this point is being taken up in the City Hall at Toronto to-day at a sitting of the Railway Commissioners. His Worship Mayor Bradburn, City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall, and City Clerk Armstrong, are attending and will urge upon the Commissioners the necessity for the immediate construction of gates. They will also endevor to have the Commissioners provide for the total maintenance and cost of the gates.

"THE TRAVELING SALESMAN"

The comedy success of the past five seasons, "The Traveling Salesman," by James Forbes, who gave the public "The Chorus Lady" and "The Commuters," will be seen at The Grand, next Saturday, Feb. 8 matinee and evening.

This announcement should arouse unusual interest among the theatre-going fraternity, for the fame of this comedy is far-reaching and it has been continually talked about since last season.

The play deals with incidents in the life of a drummer on the road and contains abundant material for laughing purposes, as well as a strongly developed vein of sentiment which puts the ofttimes maligned salesman in the light of a hero.

So true to life is the play that it has received the unqualified endorsement of the United Commercial Travelers of America and the Travelers' Protective Association, conventions of both organizations having attended performances at various times, and the individual members being the best advertising medium of the play "on the road." 61

THE TRUANCY OFFICER ASKS FOR INCREASE

Truant Officer George Cochrane applied to the Police Commissioners yesterday afternoon by letter, asking for increased remuneration for the extra duties in connection with the office arising out of the growth in the city's population.

Mr. Cochrane was appointed to the office six years ago, which yields him $100 per annum.

His communication will be discussed on Saturday afternoon at the continued meeting of the Commissioners, when the recommendation of the Chief of Police for salary increases for the police force will also be taken up.

A number of accounts were passed and recommended for payment.

Those present were, His Honor Judge Huycke, Police Magistrate Dumble, Mayor Bradburn and Chief of Police Thompson.

Judge Huycke was again appointed chairman of the Commission to act during the year 1913.

The matter of purchasing the supply of spring clothing for the firemen will also be taken up on Saturday.

DAN WHETUNG LOSES GAUNTLETS

Frank Seaton is again in trouble. This morning he was charged with stealing a pair of fur gauntlets, the property of Dan Whetung, the veteran Chemong stage driver. He pleaded not guilty and was given a week's remand. There is another charge against Seaton for which he must answer, of stealing a fur cap, the property of Harry Kearney, from the police station.

Philadelphia people paid a French "beau" $3,400 for leading a cotillion. That sounds like a Pittsburg trick.

FIVE THOUSAND TURKS KILLED IN DAY'S FIGHTING

The Main Body of the Turks Has Retired—Bulgars Victorious.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—War reports received here are viewed with complete skepticism, they being understood to reflect the impressions which the respective sides desire to spread. The bombardment of Adrianople continues without advantage to either side. There is nothing clear as to the operations in vicinity of Dardanelles. In Germany it is asserted if the allies actually threaten the Turkish fortifications on the Straits it will be time for the powers to intervene.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—A Constantinople despatch to The Daily News says that heavy fighting has been going on for two days in Gallipoli, and that the Bulgarians have won all along the line. The Turks, on their own admission, have lost 5,000 men.

The fighting began on Tuesday. The Bulgars advanced from Kadikeui towards Kavak, which the Turks occupied. The fight lasted until evening, when the Turks retired to Bulair. Another Bulgar force on the Marmora coast occupied Myriophyto.

It is reported that the Bulgars before leaving Rodosto burned all the military buildings.

The grand vizier, Mahmoud Schefket Pasha, in his recent visit to the front, is understood to have met Gen. Savoff, but nothing came of the interview.

The main body of the Turkish troops has retired behind the main line of defence at Gallipoli, according to a despatch to The Daily Telegraph.

A Constantinople despatch says that the Bulgarians attacked the Bulair forts, but were compelled to retire to their old positions. The Turkish cruiser Messudieh, with two torpedo-boats, has sailed for the Black Sea, apparently to cover the landing near Midia of troops from Trebizond.

Dr. Daneff, head of the Bulgarian delegation, returned to Sofia yesterday. The ambassadors of the powers had another meeting in London yesterday afternoon.

SWEPT OVER DAM TO HIS DEATH

TORONTO, Feb. [illegible] Smith, a carpenter in the employ of the Amburseu Hydraulic Construction Co., of Montreal, who are constructing a dam for Miller Bros., at Glen Miller, was drowned there yesterday afternoon. He was on a crib hanging by a cable, when the cable gave way and he went over the dam, and was carried down in the rapids and disappeared under the ice.

COMPULSORY EDUCATION

Canadian Press Despatch.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 7.—The Legislature last night rejected the resolution of Donald Ross, the Liberal, in favor of compulsory education in Manitoba.

The Premier remarked that such a proposal might re-open the entire school question. He had been through one school agitation, he said, and did not want another.

M.P.'S WANT RAISE.

Western Members Seek Increase of Indemnity to $4,000.

OTTAWA, Feb. 7.—It is stated on good authority that the Government has under consideration a proposal to increase the sessional indemnity of Senators and members of Parliament from $2,500 to $4,000. Yesterday afternoon the Government benches were empty, and while the Liberals discussed the naval question a large number of Conservative members were interviewing the Prime Minister, and there is every reason to believe that the proposed increase in salary was the subject under discussion.

Hon. Robert Rogers is said to favor the increase, which is strenuously demanded by nearly all the western members. There would be no objection in the west to a larger indemnity, and members from that section are quite willing to submit the matter to a referendum.

Women Are Ruled Out.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 7.—The Douma bill admitting women to practice law in Russia was rejected yesterday by the Council of the Russian Empire by 84 votes to 66.

The leading Russian jurists and practically the entire liberal public opinion in Russia are in favor of the bill. The older generation of statesmen, headed by the Minister of Justice, however, pleaded eloquently and successfully against any extension of the rights of women.

WOULD ADOPT LEMIEUX ACT

Good Measure For Britain Says Askwith.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—"Such a measure as the Lemieux Act, while not assuring complete absence of strikes and lockouts, would, in my opinion, be a valuable asset to the United Kingdom, and employers and employed alike," is the verdict of Sir George Askwith, who visited Canada in September last in behalf of the British Government to enquire into the workings of the Canadian act.

The real value of the measure, Sir George says, lies in permitting the parties and the public to obtain full knowledge of the real cause of the dispute, and in causing an investigation to be made as impartially as possible, on the basis of such knowledge for dealing with existing difficulties, whether a strike or lockout has commenced or not, this action on behalf of the public, allows an element of calm judgment to be introduced into the dispute which, at the time the parties themselves may be unable to exercise.

Another satisfactory feature, in his opinion, is the fact that the act differed essentially from compulsory arbitration, in that it does not force unsuitable regulations upon the industry by compulsory and legal insistence, but leaves an opportunity for modification by parties or indicates the basis on which a settlement can be made. Of 132 disputes arising since the act, 20 were settled before hearing, 107 were reported upon by boards of conciliation and investigation, and five were before boards still in session. Generally objections to the act appeared to Sir George to be such as would disappear as the act becomes better understood, or could be remedied by some amendment of the act, without altering its main principles.

RANGE-FINDERS IN USE IN THE BULGARIAN ARMY AT CHATALDJA.

With peace now almost forgotten in the excitement of continued war, the Balkan allies are bending all their combined energies toward the defeat of the Turks at Adrianople and the fall of that most important city. The Bulgarians and Turks are again engaged in fierce battle and heavy losses on both sides are being continually reported.

LIBERALS ARE TALKING AGAINST TIME AT OTTAWA

Conservative Members Sit in Silence Listening to Long-Winded Speeches Delivered on Preliminary Resolution Before Real Bill is Presented.

OTTAWA, Feb. 7.—At midnight the House apparently settled down to an all-night session on the naval question. The so-called debate yesterday consisted entirely of speeches delivered by the members of the Opposition. The Government feels that the subject matter has been thoroughly discussed and that a vote should be reached as soon as possible. This position is the more tenable because the House is only asked to vote upon the preliminary resolution.

Just why the Opposition is holding up a vote on the preliminary resolution is not clear, but Hon. Charles Marcil, E. M. Macdonald, the Liberal member from Pictou, and Judge McKenzie, the Liberal member for North Cape Breton and Victoria, were yesterday evidently talking against time.

The House adjourned at 12.50 a.m.

Hon. Mr. Marcil (Bonaventure) resumed the debate yesterday afternoon. The loyalty cry had been worked to death in Canada, he submitted; it had been worked by both sides. "But it is the essence of loyalty to Canada which imposes itself now," he added. The Premier's policy was not opposed because of its thirty-five millions. That was a small matter. Its danger was in the declaration of an unsound principle, the opening of an era of contribution which would be unfortunate to British rule, and thus to Canada herself. "We must sit six months if necessary, but we must sift this thing to the bottom," commented Mr. Marcil.

E. M. Macdonald, Pictou, followed. He declared that the whole policy had been a procession of blunders. The measure itself had not yet been regularly introduced into Parliament by the Premier, who now sat silent. By the Borden policy Canada was making a confession that she had no men, no artisans, no capacity for a naval scheme like Australia. "What will future Canadians think of this miserable confession of incapacity?" he asked.

Continuing at night, Mr. Macdonald defined the difference that divided the House. "The Borden policy is a policy of contribution," he declared. "The Laurier policy is a policy of construction." The Pictou man dealt personally with each of the Ministers sitting opposite, eliciting no reply save in the case of Hon. Mr. Doherty, whose reply could not be heard for the uproar.

"Canada wants to hear from these men," declared Mr. Macdonald, sweeping his arm towards the silent members of the Government benches. "These men who sit frightened and dumb; these men who have adopted the ostrich policy of putting their heads in the sand."

An answer given in the House yesterday afternoon to a question put upon the order paper some weeks ago by Mr. Martin, the Liberal member for Regina, may furnish the basis for some sensational charges against the administration of the Dominion land department.

It appears from this answer that the north half of the southwest quarter of section 8, in township 49, range 26, west of the second meridian, was prior to 1909, a part of the forest reserve, but was in that year made available for homesteading. No one seems to have taken out a homestead entry until April, 1912, when Arthur L. Donaldson took the necessary steps, receiving his patent the following October.

Now it appears that this piece of land is in the city of Prince Albert, and is worth $100,000, and that Mr. Donaldson is a son of the Conservative whip in the Saskatchewan Legislature. Whether Mr. Donaldson was lucky, and the Government careless, or whether there was some collusion remains to be seen.

Replying to a question by David Henderson (Halton), Finance Minister White stated that the Government anticipated that the report of the royal commission appointed to examine into the affairs of the defunct Farmers' Bank would be received during the present month.

BADLY HURT BY ELEVATOR

Entered Elevator Car While it Was in Motion.

TORONTO, Feb. 7.—In attempting to enter the elevator car at the Walker House last night while it was in motion, James Lemon, aged about 43, a wealthy farmer from Weyburn, Sask., received serious injuries, which may prove fatal. The man was crushed between the jam of the elevator door on the third floor and the carriage gate.

Lemon came to Toronto some days ago and registered at the Iroquois Hotel. He had left his family at Markdale, while he visited this city to buy horses.

TOWN SAVED BY CITIZENS

St. Thomas Narrowly Escapes Loss of Business Section.

ST. THOMAS, Feb. 7.—The heart of the business centre of St. Thomas was saved yesterday from destruction by fire by the determined efforts of the fire department, assisted by a citizens' brigade, including merchants, bankers, managers and real estate men, all of whom worked five hours in a cutting north wind at zero weather, to prevent the fire from spreading east of the Baldwin Robinson store, which is situated on the south side of Talbot street, almost opposite The St. Thomas Daily Times office. The loss is estimated at about $150,000.

Shortly after the store was opened up for business yesterday dense volumes of smoke swept up from the basement. The employes saved only part of the firm's books, and fled to the street. The store, three storeys high, filled with furniture and pianos, burned fiercely, and the flames and smoke prevented the firemen from entering the building. Two who ventured in with the hose were overcome and had to be carried out.

At one time it was feared nothing could save the adjoining building to the east, including the fine jewelry store of C. H. Hepinstall, and the new Merchants' Bank. The valuable stock of Hepinstall was removed to safety vaults. The store and bank, also Dr. Kamis' surgery, on the west side of the fire, were badly damaged by smoke and water.

The loss on building and stock of Baldwin & Robinson was over $50,000, covered by $35,000 insurance, all in English companies, including Atlas, Hartford, Royal, Yorkshire, National and British American. The firm will start again in business. The Anderson Co., Ltd., to prevent the dense smoke from entering their store, covered all their windows on Hincks street with wet blankets.

Americans Will Have To Pay More for Holstein Pedigree Records.

TORONTO, Feb. 7.—Owing to the refusal of the American Holstein-Friesian Association to enter into a pact with the Canadian Association for the reciprocal interchange of stock records and registrations, the Canadians retaliated yesterday when they passed a resolution raising the import certificate fees from $10 and $5, to $25 and $10 on males and females respectively.

The following new officers were elected: President, James Rettie, Norwich; first vice-president, R. F. Hicks, Newtonbrook; second vice-president, D. O. Flatt, Millgrove; third vice-president, M. L. Haley, Springford; fourth vice-president, J. W. Richardson, Caledonia; directors, Neil Sangster, Ormstown, Que.; Stanley A. Logan, Amherst, N.S.; N. Michener, Red Deck, Alta.; W. Dr. Heid told Dr. Foster he had been convinced of the efficacy of the cure, and had obtained from Dr. Friedmann ju enough serum to treat a patient suf fering from tuberculosis of the bone

DEPORTATION FOR MURDERER

MONTREAL, Feb. 7.—John Shepherd, the murderer of Frank McKenna, a Hamilton man, and Dr. Devlin at the Bath Hotel last summer, was taken to Portland, Me., for deportation yesterday.

He will be placed in an asylum in Scotland, where arrangements have been made for his detention by his wife.

Shephard was on his way home to Scotland with his wife and family from Chicago, after being injured in the head while working in the latter city, when he ran amuck in the Bath Hotel and shot McKenna, a bartender, dead and mortally wounded Dr. Devlin.

While his father and Bricker were settling up Lloyd started ahead, leading the colt, but a few minutes later was found dead on the roadside with a hole in his head, the result of either a kick from the colt or falling on a stone.

Two Killed by Train.

WELLAND, Feb. 7.—An Austrian was instantly killed by being struck by a T. H. & B. passenger train when crossing Welland Canal here at noon yesterday. An inquest will be held this afternoon, also at the same time an inquest on a Russian killed Wednesday night near the same place.

The Russian, whose name was Preeak, was killed almost instantly by falling under the wheels of a T. H. & B. train.

SUFFRAGISTS SEEK CONVICT AND IMBECILE FOR MARCH 3 PAGEANT—TO WEAR ATTRACTIVE COSTUMES

COSTUMES FOR THE SUFFRAGIST PAGEANT.
(Miss Hurst) (Miss Stahl)

Although their aim is the ballot the eternal feminine of the suffrage pageant on March 3 will be apparent in the attractive costumes in which the paraders will appear. Many will appear as Pilgrims, and there will be a company of Quakeresses. The women lawyers will be garbed as Portias. In addition there will be floats typifying the progress of the suffrage movement in different countries. Following each float will be a delegation dressed in the national costume.

The suffragists are searching for a baby, a convict, an imbecile and a beautiful woman to take part in the pageant. Mrs. Glenna S. Tinnin, organizer of the pageant, intends to place them all on one float and paint on the sides this legend:—"We Are the Only Persons Who Have No Vote."

FIRST SHOT FIRED IN LEGISLATIVE CAMPAIGN

In Absence of His Leader, Liberal Member For Middlesex Moves an Amendment to Speech From Throne Regretting Tax Reform Situation.

TORONTO, Feb. 7.—After attacking the Government, particularly Sir James Whitney, because of the opposition to tax reform, J. C. Elliott, ex-Liberal member for West Middlesex, in the Legislature last night moved an amendment to the motion favoring the adoption of the speech from the throne, to the effect that the House regretted that the Government had not acted upon the will of the people in revising the Assessment Act.

Mr. Elliott spoke in the absence of N. W. Rowell, the leader, who has been indisposed during the past week. He replied to the two Government members—A. H. Musgrove of North Huron, and Captain Machin of Kenora—who took up the afternoon in applauding the policy of the Whitney administration.

Mr. Elliott rose to speak when the House convened at eight o'clock, and turned his verbal artillery on the Government benches for one hour and a half. He was followed by Thos. W. McGarry, the Conservative member for North Renfrew.

A. H. Musgrove (N. Huron), who moved the reply to the address, dealt with every phase of the speech, and even went outside of this to show that criticism of the Government policy was entirely out of the question. He started off by relating statistics to illustrate the growing wealth of the farming community, which had increased to $213,000,000 in four years. With this great increase, chattel mortgages had decreased from $40,690,000 to $2,600,000.

Dairy farming had improved so much in recent years, that poor butter was almost an unknown quantity. He called attention to the fact that farmers should pay more regard to "pedigreed" seed and less to pedigreed stock.

The speaker referred to the question of tax reform, and denied that the Premier had influenced him or any other member of the committee in the matter of favoring his resolution and upsetting the bill presented by Mr. Rowell. He said that the Liberal leader's motion was crude and unworkable.

Captain Machin's address dealt chiefly with the northland and its development. He said that this great country would for once and all become the binding link between the east and west. The progressive methods of the Government had given the north a square deal. It was a red letter day when the five million dollars was granted for its development and improvement, and the Government had shown wisdom in appointing J. F. Whitson to administer the work. He said the mining people had prospered under the Whitney Government because they had the utmost confidence in it.

TO RECRUIT FOR BRITAIN

MONTREAL, Feb. 7.—That the British Admiralty is more in need of men than battleships, and that the Borden Dreadnought proposal is only a first step towards the recruiting in Canada of men for the English navy, such is the affirmation made by Henri Bourassa in Le Devoir yesterday. The Nationalist chieftain writes: "In its conclusion the Admiralty memorandum said: 'It is desirable that such aid should include the provision of a certain number of the largest and strongest ships of war which science can build and money can supply.'

"Let us take good notice of the word 'include.' If it is there, it is because Great Britain wants other things than battleships. Otherwise, the memo would have read 'such aid should consist' in the provision of ships. Then what is the other part of the program? Why did not the Admiralty say all what the 'aid from Canada should 'include?' "

LOCK GATES TO BE THIRTY FEET

Canadian Press Despatch.

OTTAWA, Feb. 7.—At the [illegible] the Dominion Marine Association [illegible] night the Minister of Railways told the gathering that the lock gates of New Welland canal will be thirty feet. The depth of the canal will be temporarily twenty-four and a half, the same as St. Marys, but capable of deepening to thirty feet when St. Marys is deepened.

ESSEX MAYOR IS A HERO

Clad in Pajamas He Rescued Babes From Fire.

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 7—Dr. Bowie, mayor of Essex, proved the hero of a fire which for a time threatened to destroy that town at an early hour yesterday. Dr. Bowie was awakened shortly after two o'clock by cracking of flames. Rushing from his house in the zero weather, clad only in his pyjamas, he found the home of his neighbor, Mr. Walk, ablaze.

Mrs. Wall and her two young children were trapped in their bedroom, all means of escape having been cut off by the burning stairs.

Summoning Dr. Brien to assist him, Mayor Bowie stood beneath the window and his arms caught the two children who were tossed from the second storey window by their mother. Mrs. Wall then jumped, but her weight proved too great for the men, and she fell heavily, suffering a badly sprained ankle.

The origin of the blaze is unknown. The loss was estimated at $10,000.

CONFERENCE OF THE PREMIERS

Canadian Press Despatch.

REGINA, Feb. 7.—Premier Scott has written Sir James Whitney urging the calling together again of a conference of Provincial Premiers to consider the proposed highway legislation of the Dominion Government which he holds to be a violation of provincial rights.

WAS ALMOST ENTOMBED

Workman Saved From Death in Landslide.

TORONTO, Feb. 7.—Caught by a landslide while working thirty feet below the surface of the earth in the new fill for the St. Clair avenue bridge, two Italians were so seriously injured yesterday afternoon that one of them is not expected to recover. Comrades worked madly to free the unfortunate fellows, who were almost buried beneath tons of dirt.

After a desperate fight the rescuers succeeded in freeing Z. Pedro. It was some time later, however, before C. Suttro could be raised from the hole. He was unconscious, and had both legs broken, as well as being severely crushed. Pedro was found to be suffering from a fracture of the right leg and minor injuries.

Both men were rushed to the Western Hospital, where the staff was in waiting. It is thought that Pedro has a fair chance of recovery, but Suttro's life is despaired of.

Mrs. Comstock could not understand why the girl did not hurry to her with what she would have to tell. She went out and wandered around the garden. Then she stepped into the path and started back along the way leading to the woods, past the pool now framed in a thick setting of yellow lilies. Then she saw and stopped, gasping for breath. Her hands flew up, and her lined face grew ghastly. She stared at the sky and then at the prostrate girl figure. Over and over she tried to speak, but only a word came.

Elnora uttered one wild little cry and fled into her mother's arms. "Oh, mother!" she sobbed. "Will you ever forgive me?"

Mrs. Comstock's arms swept together in a tight grip around Elnora.

"There isn't a thing on God's footstool from a to izzard I won't forgive you, my precious girl!" she said. "Tell mother what it is."

Elnora lifted her wet face. "He told me," she panted, "just as soon as he decently could—that second day he told me. Almost all his life he's been engaged to a girl at home. He never cared anything about me. He was just interested to the moths and growing strong."

"Elnora"—the mother's head bent until the white hair mingled with the brown—"Elnora, why didn't you tell me at first?"

Elnora caught her breath in a sharp snatch. "I know I should!" she sobbed. "I will bear any punishment for not, but I didn't feel as if I possibly could. I was afraid."

"Afraid of what?" the shaking hand was on the hair again.

"Afraid you wouldn't let him come!" panted Elnora. "And, oh, mother, I wanted him so!"

For the next week Mrs. Comstock and Elnora worked so hard there was no time to talk, and they were compelled to sleep from physical exhaustion. Elnora took all the dragon flies and butterflies she could, and when she went over the list for her collection she found, to her amazement, that with Ammon's help she once more had it complete save a pair of yellow Emperors. From every source at her command she tried to complete the series with these moths and could not find any for sale.

Then came a notification that Elnora would be compelled to attend a week's session of the teachers' institute held at the county seat twenty miles north of Onabasha the following week. They went to Onabasha together and purchased a simple and appropriate fall suit and hat, goods for a dainty little colored frock and a dress skirt and several fancy waists. Margaret Sinton came down and the sewing began. When everything was finished and packed Elnora kissed her mother goodby at the depot and the train pulled out. Mrs. Comstock went to the bank and inquired for the cashier.

"I want to know just how I am fixed here," she said. The cashier laughed.

"Well, you haven't been in a hurry," he replied. "We have been ready for you any time these twenty years, but you didn't seem to pay much attention. Your account is rather flourishing."

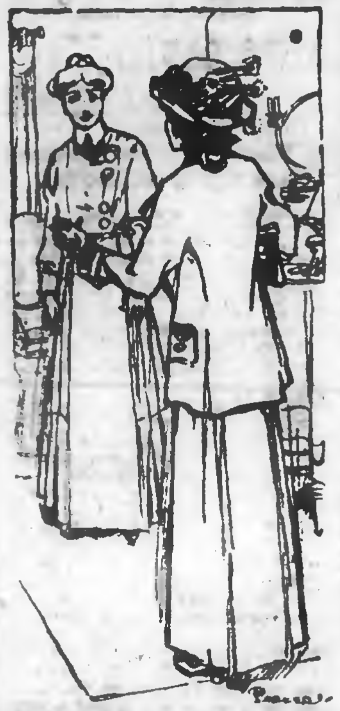
Mrs. Comstock sank into a chair and waited while the cashier read a jumble of figures to her. It meant that her deposits had exceeded her expenses from $100 to $800 a year, according to the cattle, sheep, hogs, poultry, butter and eggs she had sold. The aggregate of these sums had been compounding interest throughout the years. Mrs. Comstock stared at the total with dazed and unbelieving eyes. Through her sick heart rushed the realization that if she merely had stood before that wicket and asked one question she would have known that all those bitter years of skimping for Elnora and herself had been unnecessary. She arose and went back to the depot.

"I want to send a message," she said. She picked up the pencil and with rash extravagance wrote: "Found money at bank didn't know about. If you want to go to college come on first train and get ready." She hesitated a second, and then she said to herself grimly, "Yes, I'll pay for that too," and recklessly added, "With love Mother." Then she sat waiting for the answer. It came in less than an hour "Going to teach this winter. With dearest love, Elnora."

Mrs. Comstock held the message a long time. When she arose she was ravenously hungry, but the pain in her heart was a little easier. She went to a restaurant and got some food, then to a dressmaker. At night she was so tired she scarcely could walk home, but she built a fire and cooked and ate a hearty meal.

Later she went out by the west fence and gathered an armful of tansy, which she boiled to a thick green tea. Then she stirred in oatmeal until it was a stiff paste. She spread a sheet over her bed and began tearing strips of old muslin. She bandaged each hand and arm with the mixture and plastered the soggy, evil smelling stuff in a thick poultice over her face and neck. She was so tired she had to sleep, and when she awoke she was half skinned. She bathed her face and hands, did the work and went back to town, coming home at night to go through the same process.

By the third morning she was a raw, even red; the fourth she had faded to a brilliant pink under the soothing influence of a cream recommended. That day came a letter from Elnora saying that she could not come home until after school Monday night. That suited Mrs. Comstock, and she at once answered the letter saying so.



"Mother!" she cried. "You my mother! I don't believe it!"

The next day Mrs. Comstock was a pale pink and the following a delicate porcelain white. That day she went to a hairdresser and had the great rope of snowy hair which covered her scalp washed and dressed.

Then she went home, rested and worked by turns until Monday. When school closed on that evening and Elnora, so tired she almost trembled, came down the long walk after a late session of teachers' meeting a messenger boy stopped her.

"There's a lady wants to see you most important. I am to take you to the place," he said.

Elnora groaned. She could not imagine who wanted her, but there was nothing to do but go and find out.

"This is the place," said the boy, and went his way, whistling. Elnora was three blocks from the high school building on the same street. She was before a quaint old house, fresh with paint and covered with vines.

Inside she could see bare polished floors, walls freshly papered in low toned harmonious colors, straw rugs and madras curtains. It seemed to be a restful, homelike place to which she had come, and a second later down an open stairway came a tall, dark eyed woman with cheeks faintly pink and a crown of fluffy snow white hair.

Elnora stepped inside the door. "Mother!" she cried. "You my mother! I don't believe it! You are perfectly beautiful, and this house is a little paradise, but how will we ever pay for it? We can't afford it!"

"Humph! Have you forgotten I telegraphed you I'd found some money I didn't know about? All I've done is paid for and plenty more to settle for all I propose to do."

Mrs. Comstock glanced around with supreme satisfaction.

Dishes For Convalescents.

Orange Eggnog.—Two tablespoonfuls sirup stock, juice of an orange, one teaspoonful lemon juice, half a cupful cold water, an egg. Mix together sirup stock, orange and lemon juice. Separate egg, beat yolk light, combine, adding water. Pour on to stiffly beaten egg white, beat well and serve at once in a tall glass.

To make sirup stock for sweetening acid drinks, boil together two cupfuls sugar and a cupful of water for five minutes, using as needed.

Grape Juice and Egg.—One egg, half a cupful rich milk, a tablespoonful sirup stock, a quarter cupful grape juice. Separate egg. Beat yolk light and add milk, sirup stock, a quarter cupful grape juice and pour into glass. To the beaten white add a little powdered sugar and a taste of grape juice. Serve on yolk mixture. Chill all ingredients before using.

Oyster Stew.—Three-fourths cupful rich milk, six oysters, a quarted cupful hot water, a teaspoonful butter, salt and pepper. Wash oysters, discard liquor and steam over hot water till edges are curled. Scald milk, add to it the butter, pour in steamed oysters and liquor, and season and serve with hot toasted crackers.

Coddled Egg.—One egg, half a cupful milk, a teaspoonful butter, one-eighth teaspoonful salt, speck of pepper. Beat eggs and seasonings together slightly. Have milk scalded. Pour into egg mixture, return to double boiler and cook until set. Serve on buttered toast or wheat crackers.

Stuffed Cookies.

Stuffed cookies are somewhat of a novelty, and a very pleasing one. They are quite dainty enough to occupy an honorable place on the afternoon tea table, and they are guaranteed great popularity, particularly among the young folks and the masculine contingent. The ingredients for the cookies are a cupful of white sugar, half a cupful of butter, an egg, half a cupful of milk, one teaspoonful vanilla and three and one-half cupfuls of flour with which two teaspoonfuls of baking powder have been sifted. Make a filling of half a cupful white sugar, half a cupful water, a cupful of chopped raisins, the juice of a lemon and a teaspoonful flour. Cook this until it becomes thick, and it will bear much watching during the process. Roll the cookie dough very thin, as usual, and cut into small rounds; place these in pans, put a teaspoonful of the filling in the center of each and place another cookie gently on top. Bake in a moderately hot oven.

THIRTY-FIRST ANNUAL REPORT OF

The Toronto General Trusts Corporation

being for the year ended 31st December, 1912.

To the Shareholders:—

The Board of Directors have pleasure in submitting the Thirty-first Annual Report of the Corporation, accompanied by the Profit and Loss and Assets and Liabilities Statements for the year ended 31st December, 1912.

The net profits for the year, after payment of entire cost of management and all other fees and expenses, amount to $232,915.93. To this amount the net profit on the sale of the Corporation's old head office premises, corner of Yonge and Colborne streets, amounting to $95,618.74, must be added, together with the premium of $213,746.50 received from the sale of the new stock of $250,000 issued during the year, and the balance of $71,287.37 brought forward to the credit of Profit and Loss from 1911, making a total of $614,518.54, which has been dealt with by your Board as follows:—

To payment of four quarterly dividends at the rate of 10% per annum	$110,892.38
To total cost of office furniture, and equipment for Treasury and Filing Vaults in new Head Office building written off	17,155.08
To Reserve Fund (increasing this fund to $1,100,000)	400,000.00
To amount carried forward to the credit of Profit and Loss	86,471.08

The Assets and Liabilities Statement for the year shows that the total assets in the hands of the Corporation amount to $53,852,564.15, an increase over the year 1911 of $8,765,904.16.

The volume of executorships, administrations, trusts and work of a kindred character which came into the hands of the Corporation during the year ended 31st December, 1912, amounted to $10,424,764.20, which exceeds the amount of new work assumed by the Corporation in any one year since its inception.

The Board of Directors regret to announce that during the year no less than four members of the Board have passed away, viz.: Mr. John Laing Blaikie, Mr. Samuel Nordheimer, Mr. Frederick Wyld, and Mr. William Henry Beatty.

All which is respectfully submitted.

The President, Hon. Featherston Osler, moved the adoption of the report, seconded by John Hoskin, K.C., LL.D.

The President then called upon Mr. J. W. Langmuir, Vice-President and General Manager of the Corporation, to address the Shareholders.

Mr. Langmuir spoke as follows:—

First, I may be permitted to congratulate the Shareholders and all associated with us on the completion and entire occupation of our new building. At our last Annual Meeting on 7th February, 1912, we were able, by ejecting plasterers and painters, to occupy the Board Room in which we are now in session, for the day only, but our offices and vaults were not ready for occupation until Easter, at which time we took possession of our new Head Office home, and transferred, with a good deal of labor and not a little anxiety, the accumulated contents of our Safe Deposit, Treasury and Filing Vaults. You will be pleased to know that the transfer and lodgment of securities, documents, books and records, the accumulation of over thirty years, was effected without inconvenience to any of our clients, or the loss or misplacement of a single document.

A sale of our former premises was made shortly after we vacated at a net profit over the book value of $95,618.74.

I have pleasure in reporting that after over nine months' occupation of our new offices we find them in all respects well suited for the Corporation's purposes, both in regard to location, interior arrangement and general equipment.

Although we have received excellent offers for the purchase of the premises on Melinda street east of our present building, and which were included in the original purchase by the Corporation, the Board decided to retain and rent this property, so that it might be available for any future extensions to the Head Office that may be required.

The Shareholders will doubtless be interested to learn that the Corporation has been successful in providing itself with a much-needed Head Office that in architectural beauty and construction is quite up to the best standards, either here or in the United States, and at the same time produces a fair interest return upon the capital expenditure. The entire space on the upper floors was readily leased to high-class tenants at a rent which, added to a sum equal to less than a $1.50 per superficial foot which we charge ourselves for the ground floor, basement and first floor, produces a net return of 5 per cent. on the investment, or a net return of approximately 6 per cent. if we include the rents derived from our Safe Deposit Vaults.

So much for our new building.

Coming now to a review of the general operations of the Corporation for the past year, after reviewing the very elaborate statements which have been laid on the table, it will, I think, only be necessary in my remarks to summarize the more salient points in connection with the year's operations.

The Corporation has now passed the fifty-million-dollars record in its assets as the residuum under its care, the actual amount being $53,852,564.15, or an increase over the preceding year of close upon $9,000,000.

During the year the Corporation made permanent mortgage and debenture investments authorized under the Act, or by the respective instruments appointing the Corporation, of over $6,000,000, as against $4,750,000 for 1912. It will be observed from the statements placed before you that there is close upon $1,000,000 cash on hand in the various banks, only a portion of which, however, is subject to investment, and for this amount there were sufficient loans in the Solicitors' hands at the end of the year.

The character of our loans in the Province of Ontario may be judged from the fact that out of mortgage investments aggregating $14,081,723.21 94.40 per cent. of the interest was paid as at 31st December, 1912, and a large portion of the 5.60 per cent. arrears has since been paid. Respecting mortgage investments in the Northwest Provinces, it will be obvious that they cannot be judged on the same lines as Ontario loans, for the reason that interest on farm loans is payable annually, and interest payments depend very largely upon weather conditions and means of transportation. Even with these conditions, out of $6,321,067 invested in the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, interest to the amount of 78 per cent. has been paid as at 31st December, 1912, and large collections have been made since that date.

The interest, dividends, rents and general income collected by the Corporation on the assets under its care during the past twelve months amounted to close upon $3,000,000, as compared with $2,643,004.02 in the preceding year, or an increase of about $350,000.

The compensation received for the management of estates for the year, as fixed by the courts or by special arrangement with the beneficiaries, amounted to $195,593, as against $167,909 in the previous year, or an increase of $27,684.14. While this compensation in the aggregate may appear considerable, it represents approximately only two-fifths of one per cent. of the value of the Trusts and Agencies under the control of the Corporation.

I think I can safely assert that there is no business of a monetary or commercial character which necessitates the employment on its staff of a larger percentage of skilled and properly-trained employees than a company having the care and management of estates and trusts. A trust company must at all times be prepared to take over and effectively administer assets of every description, which can only be properly done by having in the service men who have acquired through practical experience a thorough knowledge of almost every branch of industrial and commercial activity. During its career the Corporation has been called upon to conduct or supervise and wind up such businesses as, for instance, wholesale groceries, dry goods, general stores, timber limits and mills, cement plants, contracting enterprises of all kinds, manufactories, elevators, hotels, summer resorts, farms, drug stores, livery stables, stock broking, etc.

Keeping this in mind, I think it will be admitted that the cost, viz., $216,007.22, of managing and administering the large mass of business under the care of the Corporation (now amounting to over $50,000,000) is quite moderate, it being considerably less than one-half of one per cent. on the business in hand. Of this amount the expenditures for the inspection and oversight of properties alone amounted to close upon $20,000.

The foregoing figures as to compensation and cost of management very plainly indicate that the compensation allowed for the care and management of a trust company's assets of a fiduciary nature can only show a reasonably profitable return through the accumulation of a large volume of business. That, at any rate, is the experience of this Corporation, for, as a matter of fact, we are only now beginning to derive a fair profit from the management of our Trust and Agency business, apart from our investments of capital and guaranteed funds.

Owing to the large increase in the volume of business placed under the care of the Corporation during the past five years, the Board of Directors considered it necessary to increase the Capital Stock of the Corporation, and to that end a by-law was passed authorizing an additional capital issue of $1,000,000 (making our total authorized capital $2,000,000), which by-law received the sanction of the Shareholders at a special meeting called for that purpose on the 7th May, 1912. It was decided, however, to issue during 1912 only $250,000 of the amount authorized, and to allot the same at a premium of 85 per cent., or $185 per share, to the Shareholders as of record on the books of the Corporation on the 5th day of June, 1912. Effect was given to this resolution, and, as the statements show, the sum of $213,746.50, representing premium, was credited to the Profit and Loss Account.

From the printed statements which have been placed in the hands of the Shareholders it will be observed that the net profits for the year amounted to $232,915.93, as against $198,392.42 last year, and they further show that we have carried to Profit and Loss Account the surplus profit on the sale of our old office premises on Yonge street, namely, $95,618.74, that we have credited that account with the premiums received on the new stock issue of $250,000.00, amounting to $213,746.50, making a total of $614,518.54 appearing at the credit of Profit and Loss as at 31st December, 1912. Out of this amount your Directors declared and paid four quarterly dividends, at the rate of ten per cent. per annum, amounting to $110,892.38; wrote off the entire indebtedness for office equipment, $17,155.08, and carried to Reserve Fund the sum of $400,000, leaving at the credit of Profit and Loss the sum of $86,471.08. It will thus be seen that our paid-up capital now stands at $1,250,000.00, and the Reserve and unappropriated profits at $1,186,471.08, or a total of $2,436,471.08.

Reviewing the operations for the past year as a whole, I feel assured that not only the Shareholders have reason to be satisfied with the results, but, what is perhaps of greater importance in a Trust Company, our clients, comprising many thousand beneficiaries of estates and trusts, and others whose interests we have in charge, will also be satisfied with the financial condition and strength of the Corporation.

At the risk of wearying the shareholders and the public generally with a repetition of the warning given at almost every Annual Meeting of the Corporation of the great danger incurred in the indiscriminate granting of charters and licenses to companies designating themselves "trust" companies, but many of which are really brought into existence primarily for the purpose of selling their stock in order to obtain funds for speculation in real estate and the promotion of speculative enterprises generally, I must continue to place warnings on record. Were it not that many of these companies—more particularly in the northwestern Provinces—have equal, if not greater, powers conferred on them to act as Executor, Administrator, Trustee, etc., etc., than companies that are legitimately confining themselves to the performance of duties primarily and specially devolving upon trust companies, fault might not be found with the improper and misleading designation of "trust" companies. So long as they are not entrusted with the management of estates and the investment of trust funds it perhaps would make little difference with a discerning man in the appointment of an Executor and Trustee. Unfortunately, however, with the marvellous growth and prosperity of the country we have reason to believe that many of these companies are using their charter powers in the flotation of land schemes and other purely speculative transactions of a more or less doubtful character, which undoubtedly will result in loss to many people who can ill afford to lose even the small sums that they are placing in such transactions.

So long as the Dominion and Provincial Governments cannot see their way to place more drastic restrictions on the work and duties of "trust" companies—so designated—I shall consider it my duty to place my views before the public. Speaking for The Toronto General Trusts Corporation, I again repeat the unalterable decision of this Corporation to rigidly confine itself to purely trust and agency business, and the investment, either as agent or guarantor, of funds committed to its care, but only in securities authorized by the Trustee Investment Act, unless otherwise directed by the investors, together with the transaction of other business of a purely fiduciary character.

Before closing, I have much pleasure in expressing my appreciation of the excellent services rendered by the Advisory Boards of the Corporation at Ottawa and Winnipeg, and also the faithful performance of the duties devolving upon the respective members of the staff of the Corporation both at the Head Office and its Branches.

AUDITORS' REPORT.

We, the undersigned, beg to report that we have made a full examination of the books, accounts and vouchers of The Toronto General Trusts Corporation to the 31st December, 1912, and find same to be correct and properly set forth in the above Statements of Profit and Loss and Assets and Liabilities. We have examined, and find in order, all the mortgages, debentures, bonds and scrip of the Corporation, as well as those negotiated for the Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario, and Trusts, Estates and Agencies in the Corporation's hands, and we have checked same with the mortgage and debenture ledgers and registers. The bankers' balances, after deducting outstanding cheques, agree with the books of the Corporation.

We have also examined the reports of the auditors of the Winnipeg and Ottawa Branches, and find that they agree with the Head Office books.

FIRST SHOT FIRED IN LEGISLATIVE

Mr. Elliott (W. Middlesex) went briefly into the question of tax reform. He said the Premier had whipped the Conservative members of the tax committee into line to defeat the motion presented last year by Mr. Rowell, and to favor the one submitted by the Premier, which branded the Assessment Act as O.K. if properly carried out by assessors.

"The report of the committee was settled by a gentleman who did not attend the meetings of the committee except in the dying hours," said Mr. Elliott, gazing across the chamber at the Premier. This remark brought cries of "No! no!" from the Government benches. He said that the Premier's attitude on tax reform was formed in March, 1912, when he declared in the House that he never would consent to a pie-bald, checker-board system. The investigation by the tax committee, he said, because of the Premier's action, had no result, but was merely a matter of form.

The speaker then turned his guns to the Hydro-electric system, which he felt was a great enterprise, and which the Liberal party, in his opinion, was the originator. He wondered if there was any dissatisfaction in the Hydro Commission; was there lack of harmony among the members? Something was surely wrong. Why should the commission keep dark its plans of extending the system?

T. W. McGarry characterized Mr. Elliott's speech as desultory and wide of the mark. He dealt with many questions that the Government had handled last year; and criticized Mr. Elliott for his statements regarding the Hydro-electric. If Mr. Elliott upheld the report of the Ferris committee of New York State, he was allying himself with the electric ring which the people had been fighting in this province for years.

The customary avalanche of questions from the Liberal side of the House has fallen upon the Ministry. Notice was given yesterday of about twenty questions that will be asked of the Government, and on which answers are expected on Monday and Tuesday of next week.

Constantinople.

The Turks first captured Constantinople May 29, 1453. At that time the city was the sole remnant of the great eastern empire of the Romans. Before 1100 the Turks had possession of the once Roman territory in Asia and ruled as far as the straits before the city of Constantinople. The first sultan to cross over into Europe was Amurath I., who occupied Adrianople in 1360. During the ensuing ninety years the Turks overran southeastern Europe and eventually overcame the desperate resistance of the Greeks and Constantinople fell.

PAMPERED PRINCES.

Luxurious Lives of the Gilded Young Rajahs of India.

"It is almost impossible for an American boy or girl to imagine the extravagance and luxury that surround some of these young India princes," says a writer in St. Nicholas. "Servants attend them night and day, fan them, dress them and obey their slightest wish. If a wind stirs while they sleep curtains are drawn that they may not be disturbed. When they drive out a mounted escort accompanies them, and all the people salaam as they pass.

"Once when taking tea with a rajah in his garden I was amused to notice that as he moved about among his guests a servant followed carrying a cup, which he kept always within reach of his master's hand. The rajah would take a sip of tea and with perfect unconcern set his cup down in midair. With unfailing dexterity the saucer was placed under it by the servant in time to avoid accident.

"One prince had suspended from the ceiling a silver couch, which was kept gently swaying while he slept or read. Another had a beautiful vine covered arbor, where artificial rain was made to fall while the nabob sat under a marble canopy in the center, cool and refreshed, with the rest of the world broiling about him."

Good Advice.

"Surely. Don't borrow, and then you won't have to forget the persons who loan you money."—Buffalo Express.

THE ANTI-TREATING POLICY

The Hamilton Herald suggests that Sir James Whitney would like to get out of his undertaking to put into effect an anti-treating law, that he put it on a local option basis, giving each municipality the right to put it into effect. In the first place, there is no doubt that the anti-treating policy of the Whitney Government has not received much support around the province. It is recognized as merely an attempt to take the edge off of Rowell's abolish-the-bar policy, without going the length to which the Opposition leader would go. But it may well be asked whether the anti-treating option would be exercised by municipalities, any more than the carrying of complete local prohibition. Could it be more effectively enforced by the cities, than by the provincial officers, and the cooperations of the local police? We think that if there is anti-treating legislation, it ought to be uniform, and not a local option matter. As a matter of fact, if an anti-treating law can be successfully carried out, it will rob the liquor traffic of three-fourths of its evil. We can see no real reason why the Whitney Government should hesitate about trying to carry it out. Admittedly the policy was announced in haste, and to offset Rowell's announcement of the Abolish-the-bar policy, but it will have the support of the temperance element, so far as it goes, and it certainly must be preferable to the liquor men to a complete abolition of the bar. Let the Government go forward with the measure, and if it is a failure, it can take a farther step. Under municipal operation, such a by-law would become nothing more than a joke

LLOYD GEORGE AND THE LAND

Lloyd George's recent threat that the Government will take up the land question, in England, and especially the condition of the agricultural laborer, has stirred the camp of the land proprietors to the limit. The aristocrats of the big estates had judged from the comparative quiet of the land question, that Lloyd George had been squelched by his colleagues in the cabinet, that the Liberal party had enough to digest in the way of the Insurance Act, the Franchise bill, Home Rule, Disestablishment, and other of its settled program. But very quietly the investigation, sub rosa, of the conditions in rural England has been going on. Lloyd George declares that when the investigation is complete, the results will produce one of the biggest sensations the country over the water has seen.

Now the program which Lloyd George has in mind, that which he styles "freeing the land" is probably only a much more radical campaign than that to which the Unionists have been committed by their former leader, A. J. Balfour. The Conservative policy has been to recognize that there must come an end of the feudal system on the land; that the break-up of the great estates must be ensured. But instead of driving this through by Lloyd Georgian methods, the Unionists have proposed to apply to England what has been done in the case of Ireland. Some hundreds of millions of dollars have been loaned to the Irish peasantry to enable them to buy their land. The Unionist plan calls for the same process in England. Lloyd George would tax the great estates out of existence, putting a burden upon the present holders, or confiscating their property for the sake of the landless. The Unionist plan is to use the credit of the nation to enable the small holders to buy their land at a fair price, doing justice to every class in the community.

Lloyd George's program will be awaited with anxiety, since it probably foreshadows the biggest political struggle the old land has yet endured.

BOVINE TUBERCULOSIS

Hon. Martin Burrell got into trouble at the Livestock Men's banquet in Toronto a couple of nights ago. He asserted that the prevalence of bovine tuberculosis was responsible for about a fifth of the human tuberculosis in Canada. A prominent breeder called him to account, as it has been recognised as a medical fact, at least, that bovine tuberculosis is not communicable to the humans. But whatever may be the medical theory governing the transmission of bovine tuberculosis, there is no question that tuberculosis in cattle is a dread enemy of healthy milk and meat, and ought to be fought with vigor. It is asserted by some authorities that 90 per cent of Canadian cattle have tuberculosis, but this may not be more true than that 90 per cent. of human beings have tuberculosis in some time of their lives, however slight the infection may be. There is no Dominion or provincial regulation covering the combatting of tuberculosis in Canadian cattle except a provision that cattle can be tested by government officials free of charge. This is not either an educational or an active method of combatting what is really a great evil. British Columbia has obtained the passing of a Dominion-Order-in-Council requiring that all Canadian cattle shipped into it shall be tuberculin tested. British Columbia is trying to stimulate a cattle breeding industry on a sound, non-communicable disease basis. The McBride Government is to be thoroughly commended for its energy in this matter, and if the Ontario and other breeders, whose stock is tuberculous do not like it, they cannot blame the Pacific coast people for not wanting their cattle.

PROSPEROUS YEAR FOR CANADA LIFE

The general prosperity of the year 1912 is evidenced in the sixty-sixth annual report of Canada's oldest life company, published on page 3 of this issue. This company has established new records in 1912, the results surpassing those of any previous year. Five years ago the Canada Life for the first time earned $1,000,000 of surplus in a single year. Since then the amount of surplus earned annually has been steadily increasing until in 1912 it was $1,536,567, being the largest in the company's long history.

The rate of interest earned by the company has been steadily advancing since 1900, and the total income in 1912 was over $7,396,000.

The total business in force now amounts to $144,848,000 having increased in the year by $9,352,000. Mr. E. W. Cox, General Manager, in his address mentioned that for some time past the company has encouraged the expansion of its Canadian business. Last year the Canadian new business showed an increase of over $3,000,000 above the applications of the previous year. The Canada Life now has over $103,534,000 of business in force in Canada.

A striking illustration of the company's growth is seen in the fact that when the company was just half its present age, its total assets were no greater than the increase alone in assets in 1912. The total assets now amount to over $48,000,000, an increase of more than $4,000,000 over those of the previous year.

From every point of view the report of the Canada Life now published stands out as one of the very best in its history and too high praise cannot be given the management and staff who were largely instrumental in bringing it about. 68

A Bride on the Minute.

It was a most ludicrous mistake. She imagined her wedding day was Wednesday, when in truth it wasn't to take place till the day after.

"Just like a woman. And everything went awry, and the bridegroom gnashed his teeth, I suppose?"

"Well, hardly. In fact, everything turned out beautifully. By making the error unconsciously she was dressed in time, and the ceremonies were pulled off according to schedule."

Mother's Johnny Cake Recipe.

This is simple and good and may be baked in muffins, small cakes or in a long shallow pan and when done cut in squares and served smoking hot. Take two cupfuls of white flour—pastry is best—and one cupful of cornmeal and sift together. Add half a cupful of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a teaspoonful of salt. Mix all well together. Add two cupfuls of milk, beat to a smooth batter and then add a scant half cupful of boiling water. Beat in well and bake at once in a good hot oven.

TORONTO GENERAL TRUSTS CORPORATION

The Toronto General Trusts Corporation held its thirty-first annual meeting in the boardroom of its new head office building at twelve o'clock on Wednesday last.

The profit and loss statement shows that the corporation has earned net profits of $213,745.50 during the year, in addition to realizing a profit on the sale of its former head office on Yonge street, of $95,618.74, and a premium of $213,746.50 received on the issue of $250,000 of new stock during the year, making a total of $614,518.54, out of which dividends amounting to 10 per cent. on the capital stock were paid, the cost of office furniture and vault equipment of $17,155.08 written off, $400,000 transferred to reserve, and $86,471.08 carried forward to the credit of profit and loss. The assets under the control of the corporation now amount to $53,852,564.15, representing an increase of nearly nine million dollars over the preceding year. The clients of this institution, as well as the shareholders, are to be congratulated on the splendid financial showing as reflected in the reports submitted at the meeting. It is interesting to note that the estates, trusteeships, etc., assumed by the corporation during the year 1912, amounting to over ten million dollars, exceeded the volume of new work undertaken by the corporation during the first ten years following its organization in 1882, indicating, as it does not only the increasing wealth of the country, but a growing disposition on the part of the public to use the services of trust companies.

Mr. Featherston Osler was re-elected president of the corporation, and the Hon. J. J. Foy and Mr. J. W. Langmuir vice-presidents. 63

PERFUMES IN SURGERY.

They Are Said to Rob Anaesthetics of Half Their Terrors.

The potent effect of perfume upon the senses and the mind is now being utilized in surgery. The administering of the anaesthetic has been one of the incidents of surgical operations most dreaded by many persons. By the use of a compound of ether and elixir of orange peel it is said that the anaesthetic can be robbed of half its terror. The fact that it is the vaporized essence of orange and a mere perfume may produce such an effect upon the mind of the patient that partial hypnosis will result, and in this condition the patient will lapse into unconsciousness without the struggling that usually attends the administering of ether.

The mixture is administered by means of a special apparatus having three bottles, one holding a two gram essence of orange in two ounces of water, another a weak solution of ether and the third a strong solution of it. The liquids are vaporized with a foot pump and are discharged into a large rubber bag which regulates the force of the flow.

This new anaesthetic, which has been successfully used in several cases, is the result of experiments carried on for several years by an eminent physician of New York in the effort to determine the availability of perfumes and odors as aids to effecting annesthetization. Surely if the sickening odor of the ether can be lost in one of sweet perfume a great gain will have been made in diminishing the dread of surgical ordeals.—New York Herald.

WOMEN OF THE BALKANS.

The Picturesque Way They Dress In Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Of all the Balkan states Bosnia-Herzegovina, which was put on the map for most Americans when Austria gobbled it five years ago, is in the most dramatic position. Bosnia-Herzegovina has long had her own dream of freedom, it seems, both under Turkish misrule and under the later Austrian domination, and the question has arisen how will she endure to see all her sister states free while she remains in thrall to Austria.

The interest that has centered on the little territory because of her interesting position has brought forth some recent testimony as to the women of the region. In Serajevo, the capital of Bosnia, the women are divided in their religious allegiance, the Greek church, the Roman Catholicism of Austria and Mohammedanism being in conflict.

In the dress of the women Turkish influence lingers. Nearly all wear the harem skirt, and the national festa dress is exceedingly picturesque. A feature of one of the striking modifications of this costume is a purple velvet headdress, from which depends a gauzy scarf, a full white divided skirt, a velvet corselet, a bolero of Turkish embroidery in gold and silver and a finely embroidered white apron that comes to the feet.

Whoever has been in Mostar, the capital of Herzegovina, must have been impressed by the street suits of the women, that heavy overcoat of somber black which they wear even in the hottest summer. The ugliest feature of the garment is the hood, made out of the elongated collar and brought close up over the head to overshadow the face. The Yashmak is also in evidence, sometimes with the slit for the eyes, sometimes without it.—New York Post.

Reforesting In China.

On Purple mountain just outside the city wall of Nanking Professor Baille, an American, has established a model farm where he intends to teach the Chinese the value of reforesting their naked hillsides. The plan is for the government to put men on small farms—five or six acres—provide them with means of subsistence and workmen until the farm is under cultivation, then plant an adjoining area with forest trees, the proper care of which for a specified number of years will give the farmer a clear title to his land.

Bonuses For Babies.

Australia's baby bonus of £5 just passed into law is not the only scheme of the kind to be mooted in the commonwealth. Entirely independent of it is a proposal recently put forward by the chief secretary of New South Wales, the essence of which, according to the Australian correspondent of the Lancet, is free medical and skilled nursing attendance in maternity cases.—London Telegraph.

Portuguese Money.

The name of the monetary unit of Portugal has at last been changed from the absurd milreis to the escudo. The latter has the same value as the milreis and is divided into 100 centavos, while the milreis represents 1,000 reis; hence 1 centavo is equivalent to 10 reis.

Miss, Mrs. and Mistress.

"Miss" is an abbreviation of "mistress," which, as an English law dictionary explains is the proper style of the wife of an esquire or a gentleman. By Dr. Johnson's time it had become "the term of honor to a young girl." In the earliest part of the eighteenth century, however, it was used respectfully of girls below the age of ten alone. After that age "miss" was rude, implying giddiness of behavior. In Smollett's writings an unmarried woman of mature years and her maid are both "Mrs." It is certain that "miss" has grown older, so to speak, while "master" has become confined to boys.

Membership and Finances Show Increase — Officers Are Re-elected.

It is interesting to note the success of the Peterborough Poultry Association as year after year the financial statement as handed out for the scrutiny of the public, shows the Association increasing in membership and finances and steadily approaching that standing which will answer the challenge of all other similar organizations.

At the annual meeting last night, practically all the officers were re-elected, the only changes being on the Directorate, and made necessary through the departure from the city of two members. Last year the Association had a bank balance of $216.61, but the figures as given last night showed an increase to $350.33 for this year. The fee of $1.00 was paid by 208 members; prize money awarded was $395.25. Nearly 1100 birds were exhibited at the show in January.

It is evident that the officers of the Association are conscientious and hard working. It must be remembered that the annual poultry show has not come in to it's own, in so far as to the patronage, the show merits. But what would be a discouraging element for another organization only serves to make the Association officers and members work all the harder towards the goal of public acknowledgment that sooner or later will be reached.

The report of the auditors, Messrs. R. J. Kidd and J. H. Callandar, as presented last night is as follows:

Annual statement of the receipts and expenditures of the Association as shown by the books of the Secretary-Treasurer:

Burmese Tartar Wooing.

Wooing as done among Burmese Tartar tribes is as simple as it is idyllic. On the first day of winter the tribe holds a great feast at which all the marriageable girls gather and listen to the music made by the bachelors, who sit under the "desire tree" and play their favorite instruments. As the maiden he loves passes him a youth will play louder and more feelingly. If she ignores and passes on he knows she will have none of him. If she steps up to him and lays a flower upon his instrument he jumps up, takes her by the hand, taking care not to drop the flower, and off they wander.—Argonaut.

Sea Anemones.

Sea anemones, delicate and sensitive though they look, may attain great age. Sir John Dalyell, a Scottish naturalist, captured in 1828 a sea anemone of the liver colored sort so common around our shores. Its age was then estimated at seven years. It flourished in Edinburgh until 1887 and was just attaining a vigorous and sober maturity when from some unknown cause it died.—London Express.

GRAVEL SUPPLY IS IN EXCESS OF DEMAND

It is announced that the city of Hamilton can purchase gravel cheaper from outside cities than at home, and that the city may have their gravel shipped in from Brantford as a result.

In Peterborough the gravel for building operations is mostly obtained at the Stoddard farm and delivered at $1 per yard to central places and at somewhat higher price to localities that are farther off. The standard price per yard however is $1.

The price has not increased very materially of late years either. Some two or three years ago it was delivered at 80 cents per yard, and since then has increased by slow degrees up to the present rate.

Neither is there any possibility of the supply of gravel for Peterborough being exhausted, at least not for a considerable time. The Stoddard farm has an abundant quantity and the city has also two lots in East City which can be drawn upon when necessary, purchased from Curtis Bros.

The De Laval Dairy Supply Company secured all the gravel for their buildings from the Stoddard farm, delivered by Mr. Thos. Mitchell, at $1 per yard.

IN FASHIONDOM.

The Negligee Has Long Sleeves This Winter.

OF PINK FLANNELETTE.

The trim lines of this pink flannelette room gown and the long coat sleeves give it a smart up to date appearance.

Pink sateen binds the edges, and a pink cord finishes a practical and pretty negligee.

Cooking Hints.

Orange peel dried and grated makes a very fine yellow powder that is delicious flavoring for cakes and puddings.

Heat a lemon thoroughly before squeezing it and you will obtain nearly double the quantity of juice that would be obtained if it were not heated.

Rice boiled in milk instead of water has a much richer taste. It must be watched closely while cooking, as it burns quicker when cooked in the milk.

If you rinse a plate with cold water before breaking the eggs on it, add to them a pinch of salt and then stand the eggs where there is a strong current of air you will have no difficulty in beating them to a froth.

CAMERA APRON.

It Is Most Convenient For Carrying Paraphernalia.

The camera apron was devised for the convenient carrying of camera paraphernalia on out of door trips. A yard and a quarter of gray denim were used. The body of the apron was a straight piece twenty-six inches long, with a strip eleven inches deep across the bottom for pockets. The remaining eight inch strip of denim was cut into three pockets, two of which were placed above and one as a patch pocket over the middle of the lower row.

Tape was used for finishing the raw edges of the three pockets and served also for dividing the eleven inch strip into three more pockets. All raw edges were finished with wide white tape stitched twice. A facing of thinner cloth was sewed on top, and drawstrings were run through.

The pockets held plate holders, focus cloth, chamois skin, record book, etc. One upper pocket was lined with chamois skin for the shutter, with bulb and tubing which needed special protection. All pockets closed with a snap at the top, and the whole was folded completely when not in use.

For a man this might be made without drawstrings at the top, and it could be folded and carried by shawl straps.

New Peacock Tail Embroidery.

Peacock embroidery has come much to the fore of late, and with some designers it is almost a fetish to introduce the "eye" of a peacock's tail feather into every scheme. There are attractive cushion covers in coarse holland crash, the peacock's tail design being worked in green, blue and gold, which is most effective, while oblongs and squares of this embroidery make charming trays, the bottom being covered with glass. Instead of investing a special tray for this purpose, in itself a usually expensive item, an excellent plan is that of fitting the embroidery like a photograph into an ordinary plain, molded picture frame and fixing two handles on either side, while the back is finished with Japanese silk.

Denounced Asquith, Was Ejected

LONDON, Feb. 7.—A suffragette scene occurred in the House of Commons last night. While division was being taken, H. D. Harben, a well-known socialist and Liberal, shouted from the strangers' gallery denunciations of the Government's treatment of women, and, together with another similar disturber, was ejected.

"Could you learn to love me?" "I don't know," replied the girl. "What is your particular system of instruction?"

The relatives of a mean man, in giving excuses for him, always say the same thing: He's so nervous."

NORWOOD COW HAS FINE RECORD

Is Owned by Mr. G. A. Brethen of Hill Crest Farm

De Kol Mutual Countess, No. 12,461, 3 yrs, 3 mos. 22 days of age, owned and developed by Mr. G. A. Brethen, Hill Crest Farm, Norwood, has just closed an official test in the special or 8 months after freshening divisions that will likely stand some beating.

Beginning her test 295 days after freshening and over five months gone in calf, in 7 days she produced 415.8 of milk, 15,382 lbs of fat, equivalent to 19.20 lbs of butter, 80 per cent. fat. In 14 days official she made 816 lbs of milk and a little over 38 lbs of butter. Her junior three-year-old 7 day official record in 8 months division exceeds that of any senior three-year-old in America (report in the last 1911-12 official blue-book) by over 37 lbs milk and 2.2 lbs butter, while the best heifer in her class in the world last year lacked 54 lbs. of milk and nearly three lbs of butter of equaling the week's production of this Canadian heifer and handicapped by Canadian rules.

Under the same regulations requiring entry to be at least four months bred, no cow of any age on this side of "The Line" has equalled the combined milk and butter production of this second calf heifer for either 7 or 14 days. Only one has equalled her fat for 7 days, and no Holstein-Friesian cow in the world, reported officially last year, beginning record 295 or more days after freshening and five months eight days bred, has produced 415.8 lbs. milk and 19.20 lbs butter in 7 days' official test.

Coming as it does at the conclusion of the first ten months of a semi-official R. O. P. test, in which she has produced over 18,000 lbs. of milk and 600 lbs. fat (nearly equalling the 12 months production of the best heifer in her class in America last year,) but serves to show the wonderful production and staying powers of this heifer.— Norwood Re-

CHAMPLAIN TERCENTENARY

Proposed by the Orillia Canadian Club.

ORILLIA, Feb. 7.—At one of the largest and most enthusiastic meetings in its history, the Orillia Canadian Club initiated a movement for the celebration in 1915 of the tercentenary of the advent of the white race to Ontario and the visit to this district of Samuel de Champlain in 1615. Speeches heartily endorsing the proposal were made by Dr. Fraser, secretary of the Ontario Historical Society; Mr. John R. Bone, president of the Canadian Press Association; Mr. J. T. Simpson, Warden of the County of Simcoe; Mr. J. P. Downey, ex-M.P.P., and a number of others. Letters were also read from Dr. John Dearness, president of the Historical Society; Mr. C. R. McCullough, president of the Association of Canadian Clubs, and others promising their support.

NEW BANK ACT NO GOOD?

Western Liberal Is Scornful of Hon. Mr. White's Measure.

SASKATOON, Feb. 7.—"The new bank act being brought forward by Hon. T. W. White in the Dominion House, is nothing more than a subterfuge and of absolutely no use to the farmers of Western Canada," said Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, in the course of an interview yesterday. "As far as the western farmer is concerned, the banks have all along been lending money, not directly on his grain, which has been illegal, but what amounts to the same thing, on his good name and his check backed up the grain that he has in his granary.

"The new act will not do more. Unless a man can show the bank that he is honest and has no debts that are greater than the value of grain that he possesses, he is not going to be allowed any money under the new act. In my estimation it is not worth a hill of beans."

KILLED WIFE AND SELF

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—In a frenzy of jealous rage, Abraham Spear, a painter, crushed his young wife's skull yesterday, then, after hacking her face with a meat cleaver, severed the head from the body.

He then cut his throat, falling across her prostrate form. He was alive when found, but cannot live. They occupied a tiny flat on the East Side.

Two Indians Badly Hurt.

KINGSTON, Feb. 7.—Two Indians employed in the construction of the new buildings of the canal locomotive works, fell off a building from a height of 25 feet yesterday afternoon and received serious injuries. They are in the general hospital.

PROTECTION ON HUNTER STREET

City Pays Ten per cent. of Cost and Maintenance

The Board of Railway Commissioners in session at Toronto yesterday, made an order calling on the Grand Trunk Railway Company to install gates at the Hunter street crossing, the city to pay ten per cent. of the cost and 10 per cent of the maintenance. The gates will be operated day and night. It will cost the city about $75 a year.

C.P.R. ISSUES IMPORTANT RULES

In connection with the tracing of either carload or less than carload shipments the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has issued some important rules, which it is hoped will be exercised and thus facilitate in the work of tracing shipments. It is well known that tracing of any shipment before it has ample time to reach its destination does not hurry its movement, but on the other hand prevents prompt attention to legitimate tracing. The rules are as follows: 1,—Tracers must not be started, or requests made to trace freight, until the shipment has had a reasonable time in which to reach destination, and then only at the request of the shipper or consignee. 2,—When tracing a shipment give the initials and number of car, point or origin,—route, date forwarded, commodity and destination. 3,—Tracers in connection with carload freight should be addressed to Mr. F. A. Gasceigno, superintendent of car service, Montreal, for eastern lines; and Mr. A. Hatton, superintendent of our service, Winnipeg, for western lines. 4,—In case of less than carload shipments, the necessary information should be obtained through agent at shipping point or destination. 2d1W

ASIATIC IMMIGRATION HAS DONE MORE TO RETARD PROGRESS

Why! Ten years ago there was a strike. The canneries employed Japanese who falsified their oaths of allegiance to Canada were given and the right to fish. As many as half a dozen of these Japanese used one certificate. But they were not naturalized and to-day the canneries were sorry they were under the control of the Orientals. They find them dishonest. The result is that instead of having splendid families of fisher folk, the Japanese and Chinese are in control. A similar condition of affairs existed in regard to fruit.

"In the Southern States the land is cheaper and rich, but there is less development because of the negro population, and the same thing applies to the western coast of this country in regard to the Asiatics."

NO ASSIMILATION.

One reason for the opposition to the Asiatics was that they will not assimilate. The Chinamen, for instance, show not the remotest sign. They will remain Chinamen to the last stroke of doom. In China they have done what no other nation has done—absorbed a colony of Jews. They have absorbed every race of people that has entered their country.

As a whole the Europeans are inferior, the Hindus very much inferior. None can appreciate the view point of the West. We say our superiority will absorb them, let them come. But there is no chance. One hundred thousand Hindus are ready to come here if the bars are let down and as many more as get the notion. Suppose they do come. Could we assimilate them? No, they would get into communities, bringing all the traditions and customs of their race. They will not live under sanitary conditions. We in Vancouver have done everything in our power to get them to conform to our laws, but you can't change their mode of life.

In answer to the argument that the Hindu was a British subject and had a perfect right to come to Canada, Mr. Stevens admitted such to be the case, but he pointed out that they had never been British citizens, and furthermore, they were not capable of exercising the rights and privileges of a British citizen.

"We exclude the Britishers if they do not meet the requirements of the laws. We have no room for men who are drones and who will deteriorate the race, and we alone are the people who are to say who have the right to enter. Coming to this country is a privilege.

HINDU WOMEN.

There are those who say the Hindu women should be allowed to come. We say which wife, and if not which wife we ask. "Do you want to introduce into Canada the system of child wife?"

Mr. Stevens gave some figures showing the terrible state of the children in India through early marriage.

Our missionaries and business men go to India and are received, but they do no good. We do not object to the better class of Europeans coming, but what we do object to is the average coolie coming to British Columbia or Canada.

They say the Sikhs are willing to marry our people, but what man would want to see his sister or daughter so married. Not one, and yet marriage is the basis of assimilation. No man who has not entered into the subject has any idea of what the life of the Asiatic wife is, and the Hindus have no conception of truth. Perjury is one of the commonest crimes on the coast.

In concluding his address the speaker pointed out that which was necessary for Canada in regard to the immigration.

President Morris thanked the visitor for his address, and in reply Mr. Stevens congratulated the Club and the Y.M.C.A., both of which were prominent factors in Canadian life.

The attendance was forty or more, and all enjoyed the excellent repast prepared by Coleman's.

NEXT SPEAKER.

The next address is on February 20, when Dr. Alfred Thompson, M.P., for the Yukon Territory, will speak.

$3,000 FOR WIDOW OF CONDUCTOR

Havelock Railway Man Was Killed in Wreck

TORONTO, Feb. 7.—The Canadian Pacific Railway has agreed to pay $3,000 to the widow and family of Conductor W. H. Green, of Havelock, who was killed near that place on October 19th, 1912. His freight train was telescoped by another from the rear, his trainmen having neglected to put on the usual warning signals. The coroner's jury brought in a verdict finding no one to blame.

The widow, aged 42, is left with six children. The family is being supported by the eldest lad, whose age is 22. The ages of the other children run from 20 years, the age of the eldest daughter, to nine years.

The widow has also $1,500 insurance, which, with the $3,000 will be devoted to keeping the family home together.

A FEW OUTSTANDING FACTS

FROM THE

SIXTY-SIXTH ANNUAL REPORT

OF THE

CANADA LIFE

ASSURANCE COMPANY

A Splendid Year.	In important respects the Company in 1912 excelled its record for any previous year in its history.
Greatest Surplus Earnings.	1. THE SURPLUS EARNED in 1912 was $1,530,667, exceeding by over $237,000 the earnings of 1911, and by a much larger amount the earnings of any previous year.
Interest Rate Increasing.	2. THE INCOME of $7,396,760 was greater than that of the previous year by $853,559, and the greatest in the Company's history. The rate of interest earned, which had been steadily advancing since 1899, was further improved in 1912. This is an important factor in producing surplus.
Assets Show Record Growth.	3. THE ASSETS were increased by $4,044,182, and now stand at $48,301,523. This growth surpasses that of any previous year.
Another New Record.	4. THE NEW PAID-FOR POLICIES amounted to $15,512,339, exceeding the amount of the best previous year, 1911, by over $3,000,000. THE TOTAL ASSURANCES now in force are for $144,877,970.
Payments to Policyholders.	5. THE PAYMENTS TO POLICYHOLDERS in 1912 totalled $2,462,965, an increase of $167,891 over those of 1911. In addition to this, LOANS TO POLICYHOLDERS on security of their policy contracts were made for $1,355,704.
Strong Reserves.	6. THE CANADA LIFE now values $76,500,000 of its business on a 3% basis, and $68,400,000 at 3½%, which means that its Reserves are much stronger than are required by any Government Insurance Department on this continent.

A copy of the Financial Statement and Report of Directors, together with proceedings at the Annual Meeting, held 6th February, 1913, will be mailed on request.

MIDLAND DEFEATED T.C.C. BY 5-3 AT ORILLIA

ORILLIA, Feb. 7.—In a game that was replete with brilliant rushes, and which took ten minutes overtime before a winner could be decided, Midland last night won the championship of their senior O. H. A. group when they defeated Toronto Canoe Club by the score of 5 to 3. The teams were tied at the end of the first half 1 to 1, and at the expiration of the 60 minutes' play the score stood 2 to 2. Neither team scored in the first five minutes of overtime, but in the second Midland tallied in the first two minutes, only to have Canoe Club tie it up. The Northerners, however, finished strong, and rapped in two goals in a minute.

A Rapid Heart Beat.

Along with many other discoveries of greater or less importance scientific men have proved the law that the rapidity of the heart beat is in inverse ratio to an animal's size. Thus in a man it is about seventy-two to the minute, whereas in the elephant it is only thirty, and in the horse forty. The dog's pulse, on the other hand, counts about ninety beats to the minute, and the rabbit's over 150. Most remarkable of all, the heart pulsations of a mouse have recently been counted and recorded by an ingenious machine and found to number nearly 700 every minute.

Easy Way.

An attendant at a certain institute for the deaf and dumb was undergoing a pointless rapid fire inquisition at the hands of a female visitor.

"But how do you summon these poor mutes to church?" she asked finally, with what was meant to be a pitying glance at the inmates near by.

"By ringing the dumb bells, madam," retorted the exasperated attendant.—London Answers.

NO LONGER OWN BOOKS.

Public Libraries Have Done Away Completely With Old-time Custom.

While the last decade has witnessed an extraordinary growth in the number of public libraries throughout the country and while no one denies that these libraries confer many benefits they are no such unmitigated blessings as many would have us believe, argues a western publication. In the first place they are undermining the good old habit of owning books. Not, of course, among the well-to-do; but the well-to-do make relatively small use of public libraries. The usual plea is that most people cannot afford to buy books. This is flatly untrue, the fact is that the ubiquitous library has killed the demand in this country for editions of standard books at really popular prices. In France splendid literature volumes are sold at a uniform rate of 25 centimes (four and a half cents.) In this edition one can buy Homer complete for 27 cents, Milton's Paradise Lost for 9, Descartes' Discourse on Method for 4 1-2, and the works of over 100 other authors at corresponding rates. In Germany one may buy nicely bound volumes of every conceivable branch of science and art at the rate of 19 cents a book. When a man can buy the works of a great philosopher for the price of a glass of beer it is arrant nonsense to say that the public cannot afford books.

We are simply doing our best to pauperize readers. They know that they do not need to buy books; a benevolent fate will provide them gratis; and so they go without. Our publishers find no real demand for editions at prices within the reach of every one, and naturally the editions are not forthcoming. The resulting evil is obvious. A man knows his own books as he can never know those of a library. The books he owns have a double value to him, he has paid for them, which creates the pride of ownership; and he has them always about him which breeds familiarity. No impending fine compels him to hurry when he wants to read slowly.

This pauperizing of readers is the greatest, but not the only evil connected with the indiscriminate use of libraries. We seem to think that if people read anything they are necessarily better off than if they do not. The main business of libraries, especially of small ones, has come to be the circulation of "popular" fiction. Even in the large cities the demand for books of this class is demonstrated by the fact that most of them are listed as "five day" or "seven day" books. It is hard to see what good is accomplished by emptying this mass of rubbish on the heads of people for the most part unable to distinguish real literature from false. Were the libraries less active in discriminating useless and often demoralizing fiction, standard works would be far more widely read; but so long as every library in the land feels called upon to have the latest work, and often several copies of it, by the latest writer of trashy fiction, such books will continue to come out in their thousands and tens of thousands, and their betters will rest unread.

Misled.

TREASURES OF TURKEY

GREAT COLLECTION OF JEWELS KEPT IN ROOM IN PALACE.

Throne and Many Robes of Past Sultans Are Incrusted With Thousands of Gems—Privilege of Seeing Treasures Gained Only by Influence—The Chamber Is Jealously Guarded at All Times.

R. J. Turner, in an interesting article in the London Academy headed "Turkey's Treasure House," discusses the marvelous collection of jewels and curiosities that are in a corner of the old Blachern Palace, known as the treasury.

"Here, in all conscience," says Mr. Turner, "is loot enough alone to justify a triumphal entry into the ancient city of Constantine and to make the mouths water of the Bulgarian or Servian hosts if they were permitted to cross the threshold of the treasure chamber.

"In the time of Abdul Hamid access to this veritable cave of Abdullah was difficult to obtain. Ambassadorial intercession in the case of Europeans was necessary, and not always successful. Since the advent of Mahmud and the Young Turk, viewing privileges have been extended, but the signature of the grand vizier is still necessary to insure the unlocking of the famous portals.

"The procedure for a private view is quite an affair. After passing the sentries at the gate of the old palace and reporting one's arrival in the courtyard, a stately procession of befezzed and frock-coated officials, headed by a venerable Bede, issues from a side building. The guard comes to attention. Before the huge key is inserted in the lock the seal of the door is broken by the venerable one and carefully borne away. A distinct effort is required to turn the lock. The door opens only to reveal another barrier which is as solemnly unlocked. The black-coated procession flows in and takes up strategic positions.

"The most striking object that meets the eye is the famous jeweled throne of one of the Sultan's ancestors. This, as well as a smaller throne in the same glass case, is thickly incrusted with pearls, diamonds and rubies. It would be difficult to estimate the number of stones, some of which are of a fair size, but there must be many thousands, and the effect on the walnut-colored wood is barbaric in the extreme. Its value is estimated at from one to two millions sterling. Here and there one sees a vacant setting, whence the stone has disappeared, probably passing into the possession of some nimble fingered favorite of the Sultan.

"Ranged around the room in cases is a long line of figures of Sultans in their jeweled robes and turbans. Some of the vestments are literally stiff with precious stones, while to fasten the aigret of the turban a stupendous emerald or ruby is invariably utilized. An idea of the size of the ordinary run of the stones may be grasped by looking at half a small sized hen's egg placed on end.

"The scabbard of each warrior's scimitar is elaborately incrusted with similar stones, with a specially large one on the top of the hilt. The collection of swords is magnificent, but it is when one comes to study the daggers that one realizes the huge fortunes embodied in such weapons. In some cases the entire hilt is composed of one stone—an emerald or a ruby, as the case may be—that is to say, a mass of color about three inches long and one and a half inches thick. Displayed separately are some huge uncut but polished rubies and emeralds, quite as large, to use a homely expression, as an ordinary cake of toilet soap. Whether such abnormal gems are of 'the purest ray serene' one cannot vouch for, but the whole effect is to recall the jeweled valley of Sinbad the sailor and his Roc or the more material properties of the pantomime. Rumor has it that occasionally when funds were very low old Abdul would withdraw a choice specimen or two, which would find their way to Paris. All credit to the Young Turks that, amid occasions of great stress, they have steadfastly declined to take toll of their country's ancient treasures.

"Still steadily outflanked by the black coated brigade another room discloses a magnificent collection of coins from the Romans onward, while other cases contain brooches, earrings and ornaments bejeweled beyond the dreams of avarice.

"Preceded and followed by the shuffling band of brothers, we ascend to a gallery and more rooms; more relics of departed padishas and caliphs, more emblazoned costumes and bejeweled swords and daggers and a most appalling collection of paintings.

"Carefully shepherded downstairs and outside, we witness the resealing of the great door, with the guard at the slope. As an additional courtesy we are shown over some of the pleasant rooms of the palace, from the windows of which one gets the most magnificent view in Constantinople of the Marmora and Bosporus. Then, having quaffed the famous coffee and partaken of the luscious roseleaf jam, we return the salaams of the remnant of the black brotherhood, find our araba and make a dashing return to Pera, as becomes those who have feasted their eyes upon the most extraordinary treasure house in the world."

Mutual.

Hardy Shetland Ponies.

The cost of raising Shetland ponies is remarkably low. These little animals are natives of a rough and semi-barren locality, where they are used to rustling for every mouthful of their food. When they are first brought over to this country they don't know the difference between oats and rice. They are complete strangers to a grain ration. In the Shetland islands they run out the year round, without any shelter, and pick their living from between the rocks. For generation after generation these ponies have had to make this kind of a struggle for existence, and the result is a race of hardy little animals that are able to thrive on the coarsest food and to stand an amount and degree of exposure that would put an ordinary American horse out of business.—National Stockman and Farmer.

ASIATIC IMMIGRATION HAS DONE MORE TO RETARD PROGRESS THAN ANY OTHER CAUSE

Says H. H. Stevens in Speaking of the Problem That Confronts British Columbia and Canada —His Address to Canadian Club—M.P. for Yukon to be Heard Feb. 27th

To Mr. H. H. Stevens, M.P., for Vancouver, the Canadian Club is indebted for one of the most interesting and instructive addresses ever given before the Club. Mr. Stevens at the regular meeting in the Y.M.C.A., last night, spoke of the problem of Asiatic immigration, pointing out the great danger which confronted the west and Canada as a whole. Coming as he did from the coast, where the situation is the most critical, the speaker used facts gained by personal observation and to all indications, his hearers were convinced that the West faces a situation that is not desirable.

On being introduced by President Morris, the guest of the evening, referred to the pleasure derived by him, in speaking to his fellow citizens of Ontario. It was a special pleasure to be with the Canadian Club of Peterborough. While not born in Peterborough, he had spent a number of years of his early boyhood here and he had some fond recollections of the city, to which he tendered congratulations for the splendid atmosphere of prosperity and growth. As a manufacturing centre he said Peterborough held an enviable position.

AN IMPORTANT QUESTION

He had chosen the subject of immigration because he had believed it to be one of the most important any country could face, and he had come east with a view to laying before his fellow citizens of Ontario, the difficulties the west had to face in the Asiatic question. A great deal had been said in the East about Asiatic conditions in the West and he had found that a great many people knew more about the subject than he did. This was because the people of the East did not know the true conditions. When the explanation was made he found the Easterners ready to respond.

Mr. Stevens asked his audience to keep in mind certain principals which he would use as the foundation for his arguments. The first was; the value of immigration depends upon its capability to be assimilated. This he believed to be of supreme importance.

2. Every country must keep its national genius if it is to be a factor in the world's civilization.

3. All immigrants should be free from moral and physical defects and capable of becoming loyal citizens.

4. Citizens must realize their obligations to maintain the social ideals and moral standard of our race.

THE SOUTHERN STATES.

The speaker pointed out that the people of the Southern States had been careless and told of the condition in which they now found themselves. In 19 large cities of over 250,000 population, two-fifths were foreign born; two-fifths were of foreign born parents and one-fifth alone was native-born.

"Is it any wonder," he asked, "that you have such corrupt administration in New York?"

If we do not meet these conditions we retard. The duty resting upon us is of far deeper significance than the most of us realize.

UNDER NEW CONDITIONS.

So far as the question of the Britisher was concerned it was our duty to see that he was shown how to adapt himself to conditions here, they being different to what he lived under at home. It was the duty and function of the Government to organize some means that the new comers from the British Isles could be taught to adapt themselves to the conditions they find here.

THE MOST DANGEROUS CLASS.

Those from Southern Europe he considered, to be one of the most dangerous class. A study of statistics would show that the immigrants from Southern Europe were responsible for a very large percentage of the crimes committed. I say it is up to us to be very careful and discriminate against the immigration from Southern Europe unless they can demonstrate that they will live up to Canadian laws and ideals.

AMERICANS A DANGER.

The immigration from the middle west he considered the finest class of immigration. Upwards of $300,000,000 was brought into Canada by American immigrants last year. And the money remained in Canada. They were the most desirable but then, again a grave duty fell upon us. "We should welcome them but also say you have to respect our laws and traditions. Very few Canadians realize that we had greater freedom and more democracy than the people of the United States. The speaker pointed out that not one of the members of President Taft's Cabinet went before the people for election. Then, too, they had the judiciary which could throw out anything passed by the people.

Canada, on the other hand, had a Government elected by the people and answerable to them. A law passed was final. No Judiciary could throw it out. We should be proud of these conditions.

WHAT IF THE BARS WERE DOWN.

The Asiatic immigration during the past year, the speaker said, was 10,000 in number. They came under strict regulations. What would be the result if the bars were let down? Why did they come? They were brought to Canada under conditions that were purely mercenary—to provide a revenue for the railroads through transportation and also for cheap labor.

> We exclude the Britishers if they do not meet the requirements of the law. We have no room for men who are drones and who will deteriorate the race. COMING TO THIS COUNTRY IS A PRIVILEGE. . . . There are some who say the Hindu women should be allowed to come. We say which wife, and if not which wife, we ask do you want to introduce into Canada the system of child-wife . . . . . They say the Sikhs are willing to marry our people. What one of you would want to see his daughter or sister married to a Hindu? Not one, and yet marriage is absolutely the basis of assimilation.
>
> Extracts from address of Mr. H. H. Stevens, M.P., of Vancouver, to the Canadian Club.

But the question may be asked, is not labor scarce, is it not desirable that they be secured?

Yes, labor is scarce and it must necessarily be so in any new country. But I want to say that the transportation companies have done a great injury by importing the American contract system of labor. These men are brought in by hordes and bunches. There is no individuality there, no thought of how long will they remain, or what kind of citizens will they make.

A BETTER PROCESS.

He had what he believed to be a more desirable process. This was to encourage more people from the British Isles to come. The railway companies and the government might co-operate, by which a piece of land might be given to each new comer. Get the proper men to do the work and let them bring out their families. As conditions were now, no self-respecting man would work in the construction camps or where Asiatics were employed.

RETARDING PROGRESS.

He believed that the importing of Asiatic labor had done more to retard the progress of the West than any other cause. It was impossible to get self-respecting men to work in the camps and saw mills. Fifteen years ago there were few Asiatics employed at the work, but they had gradually taken up the places of the white men, till now there were mills with nothing but Oriental labor employed. Step by step they had cut off the market from which the West had drawn its skilled labor. It was the same with the fisheries. Twelve years ago there were 12,000 white fishermen. To day there were practically no whites. Ten thousand Japanese controlled the fisheries.

VETERANS OF '66 HOLD MEETING

Will Ask Department for Grant of $100 Annually

The local veterans of 1866 met at the office of Col. Miller last night. The principal business transacted was the passing of a vote of thanks to be forwarded in due time, to the Minister of Militia and Defence, and Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., for arranging for the recent grant of $100 to the Veterans. It was decided to represent to the Department that the $100 grant might be made an annual affair.

THE SAVAGE ABORS.

They Sacrifice Men, Women and Animals to Their God of War.

More unattractive savages than the Abors it would be hard to find. Of Tibeto-Burman origin they speak a language which is allied to that of the Tibetans, while their arts, such as they are, probably come from Tibet.

Their religion is animistic. The deity, Piang, is the god of war and the chase, and is believed to favor attacks on defenceless neighbors and the ruthless destruction of all game. In pursuance of a policy to propitiate him, men and women are killed or taken as slaves, big game is hunted, birds, squirrels and fish are trapped.

The elemental belief in man as the hunter, and consequently the more fitted to be the protector, still holds good, so the women and slaves toil unceasingly at the crops as hewers of wood and drawers of water, and my lord, bow in hand and with quiver on his shoulder, stalks off on the warpath, his arrows poisoned with aconite or croton berry.

Their burial rites present points of interest similar to those of African savages. Over the grave of each defunct warrior is a grass shelter, where are hung his cane helmet, dao, bow and arrows, the horns of the tame bison which furnished the funeral feast, with a basket containing food to propitiate the deity.—New York Telegram.

What Man Understands Woman?

The query, "What woman understands man?" is not proving half so popular as Hughes le Roux's query, "Qui est l'homme qui comprehend les femmes?" ("Who is the man who understands women?"), the answers to which are filling the columns of Le Matin of Paris.

Says one wise woman, "A man may understand any woman except the one whom he loves at the age of eighteen."

Mme. Saint-Malo says, "The man who understands us is the man who can admire everything in a woman, even her defects."

Another well known authoress asserts, "The man who can understand us is the man who can be our confessor."

One who signs herself Emilie, says: "The man who understands us is the simpleton. He is the man who will recite poetry in our salons and not know how ridiculous he makes himself."

OPPOSITION COMES OUT FOR IMMEDIATE CONTRIBUTION

Liberal Member Startles His Colleagues by Asserting Belief in Real Emergency and Argues For a Joint Policy of Contribution and National Development.

OTTAWA, Feb. 8.—The event of to-day was a speech delivered in the House last evening by Col. M. M. McLean, the Liberal member for Queen's and Sunbury, N.B. Col. McLean is a life-long Liberal, and has represented his district in the House since 1908. His declaration last night in favor of an immediate contribution of three Dreadnoughts to the Imperial navy startled his party associates, and elicited applause from the Government benches.

While declaring that he would vote with the Government upon the naval question, Col. McLean urged the political leaders and the members on both sides of the House to get together.

The debate was resumed by Mr. Martin (Regina), who said he found more people in Ontario who favored doing nothing for Imperial defence, either by contribution or by building a Canadian navy, than in the entire country west of Lake Superior. Mr. Martin maintained the Liberal position that a Canadian navy and not a cash contribution was the most efficient way in which Canada could aid in Imperial defence.

Mr. Martin suggested a non-partisan plebiscite or referendum. Under his proposal the Regina man urged that the Government give the people of Canada a direct opportunity to pronounce upon the naval policy of contribution, the naval policy of construction or a declaration against naval expenditure.

"Outside of Toronto," he said, "one hears nothing of the matter. We in the west are beginning to realize that Ontario's voice is not after all the voice of those Torontonians who sit in their rich men's clubs and undertake to save the Empire. We are beginning to learn that Ontario's Empire builders are not these Toronto clubmen and banqueters, but the artisans and farmers who have made that great province what it is. The gentlemen who are making the noise for centralization are the same gentlemen who go in for the centralization of mergers, the controlling of prices and the [illegible] of the last dollar out of the hard-working artisans." There would be no necessity, Mr. Martin submitted, for the "emissaries of the steel industries to be lobbying round the corridors of Parliament for bounties if the shipbuilding industry were properly developed in Canada."

He was followed by Mr. Pius Michaud of Victoria, N.B., who spoke briefly but with good effect.

Col. McLean said that W. F. Maclean, Major Sam Sharpe, Hugh Guthrie and others had apparently taken the view which he shared, namely, that there was no conflict between the proposals of the Government and the establishment of a Canadian navy. He believed that the Prime Minister and Sir Wilfrid Laurier could come to an agreement in an hour's talk if they wished to do so. He urged his Liberal colleagues to vote the $35,000,000 asked by the Government. Then a Canadian defence committee could be appointed, upon which both parties would be represented, and the naval question could be taken out of politics. He hoped to see the Dreadnoughts given by Canada manned and maintained later on by Canada, and also to see a substantial Canadian navy.

"I am an ardent Imperialist," declared Col. McLean, "and I want to see Canadian ships in the fighting line."

The German peril, Col. McLean declared, was not a bugaboo, but a cold-blooded fact and as the task of building a Canadian navy was too great a one for immediate consummation he was in favor of a contribution.

He pointed out that matters affecting the safety of the Empire were discussed and settled amicably by both parties in England.

"I want," declared Col. McLean, "an efficient naval service; I do not want a baby navy. Carry out the Government's resolution and build the largest and strongest ships which science can devise and money can buy."

He said that he wished to encourage shipbuilding in Canada, but that, at the present time, Canada did not have the necessary shipbuilding plants, able to build ships of such intricate mechanism as the modern warship.

Mr. Lanctot (La Prairie) moved the adjournment of the debate, which will be resumed on Tuesday next. It is understood that a vote will be reached on Thursday.

Awaiting the Defence.

MONTREAL, Feb. 8.—Within four days counsel for Hon. Samuel Hughes will have to file the Minister of Militia's plea to the amended declaration in the slander action for $50,000 damages of B. A. McNab, late managing editor of The Montreal Star. A motion for further particulars may be asked for by Col. Hughes' attorneys, which would further delay the action, but so far nothing has transpired and when the main action will be reached is problematical.

CONSTABLES GET MEN AFTER ARDUOUS CHASE

Held Quarry up at Point of Revolvers and Forced Surrender.

COBALT, Feb. 8.—After following Mike Margret and Arthur Miller, a pair accused of complicity in the whisky robbery at Ville Marie, on a trail which necessitated a drive in a raging blizzard across Lake Timiskaming and then an all-night trip on snowshoes eighteen miles in from Matabitchouan, Provincial Constable Jack MacKay and Constable Robert Sharp of this town effected their arrest.

But for the fact that one pair wore a pair of boots with nails in them and that they found the prints on McDonald Creek of Grass Lake the trip would likely have been a failure. With nothing but the tracks in the snow to guide them the officers continued until nearly nine o'clock, when they saw smoke curling over an elevation. They rushed in and covered Margret and Miller with revolvers, and the men did not have a chance to offer resistance.

The Quebec police informed the officers before they started out that the pair were armed, but if they had been they had evidently disposed of the weapons in the woods. The police at Ville Marie had such a wholesome respect for them that no less than ten of them handled them in locking them up.

A thrilling incident of the trip occurred when the officers were on the last stage. As they were approaching a ledge the point of MacKay's shoe caught in the snow and he fell headlong towards a tree, about which he managed to throw his arm, thus saving himself from certain death. They returned to Cobalt greatly fatigued.

The officers were fifty-three hours making the trip, and Constable MacKay had two hours' sleep, while Constable Sharp managed to get only an hour's nap.

ELDERLY LADY FOUND FROZEN

NORTH BAY, Ont., Feb. 8.—Mrs. Joseph C. Leblanc, aged 40, of Morin street, left home early Thursday evening to visit a neighbor. No anxiety was felt by her family when she did not return as it was thought she had decided to stay the night.

Yesterday morning early pedestrians on High street found her frozen body lying at the side of the street.

It is presumed she was overcome by weakness or a fainting spell.

THIRTEEN KILLED

Canadian Press Despatch.

MANSFIELD, ENG., Feb. 8.—Thirteen pit sinkers were killed and crushed into a shapeless mass, when a huge eight hundred gallon bucket fell five hundred feet to the bottom shaft at Bolsover colliery. Several others were injured.

WOULD LESSEN THE BIRTH RATE

WELLINGTON, N.Z., Feb. 8.—At a general meeting of the Christchurch Labor Union yesterday the citizens of New Zealand were urged by resolution to do all in their power to lessen the birth rate.

Believing that the compulsory defence act is a blot on the record of a civilized country, the union now asks that the number of births of New Zealanders be kept down so as to lessen the number of youths who must take the compulsory military training. Union officials said it was hoped the act would be repealed, and then the resolution would be rescinded.

Would Try System.

ALBANY, N.Y., Feb. 8.—As the result of two years' study of water power plants in other states and in Ontario, Assemblyman Patrie, who wrote the minority report of the Ferris committee, praising Ontario's Hydro-electric system, yesterday introduced a bill which, he says, is the right sort of measure for New York state. He provides $282,000 for an experimental plant in the capital district, by which the people can determine the success of the plan.

THE FALL OF ADRIANOPLE IN THE NEAR FUTURE IS PREDICTED.

VIEW OF ADRIANOPLE FROM THE BYSTANDER

With the termination of the armistice between the Balkan allies and the Turks the centre of interest has been removed from London to the Balkans.

Bulgaria has turned a deaf ear to the remonstrances of the Powers, and unless Turkey yields to the Balkan demands the allied armies will now attempt to drive her completely out of Europe.

Adrianople is still the centre of the renewed hostilities, and the fall of the old historic city is predicted in the near future unless Turkey alters her present policy.

HELEN KELLER'S DEBUT AS SOCIALIST ORATOR

Famous Blind and Deaf Girl Heard by Large Audience

MONTCLAIR, N.J., Feb. 8.—Helen Keller, the famous blind and deaf girl, and who until a year ago was also dumb, made her debut as a public speaker in Montclair last night, at the auditorium in the Hillside school, her audience numbering nearly one thousand. Miss Keller lectured under the auspices of the Montclair branch of the Socialist party. She is a Socialist, and she expressed radical political views.

Previous to Miss Keller's address, Mrs. Macy, her teacher and companion, gave the life-history of the blind girl, and described the methods whereby she had acquired an education and the power of speech.

"I am going to try to make you feel that no one of us can do anything alone, but we are bound together," said Miss Keller. "I do not like this world as it is. I am trying to make it a little more as I would like to have it. Perhaps you are thinking how blind I have been. You have your eyes, and you behold the sun, and yet you are more blind than I am.

"We are all blind and deaf until our eyes are open to our fellow-men. If we had a penetrating vision we would not endure what we see in the world to-day. The lands, the life, the machinery belong to the few. All the work they do gains for the workers a mere livelihood.

"The rich are willing to do everything for the poor, except give them their rights. I am no pessimist. The pessimist says that man was born in darkness and for death. I believe that man was intended for the light, and shall not die. It is a good world, and it will be much better when you help me to make it more as I want it."

DIVORCES LESS EASY

CARSON CITY, Nev., Feb. 8.—After several hours' struggle the divorce law amendment, requiring twelve months residence in the state instead of six, passed the State Assembly yesterday by a vote of 30 to 22. It goes next to the Senate, where another hard fight is expected. The Barnes amendment adopted yesterday is to go into effect Jan. 1, 1914.

Over 300 men and women working for the passage of the measure came to the capital from other parts of the state in special trains yesterday.

The measure adopted yesterday carries out the recommendations of Governor Tasker L. Oddie.

"NO SEAT NO FARE"

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—It was learned yesterday in connection with the introduction of a "no seat, no fare" ordinance that 30,000,000 person annually qualify as "straphangers" in this city.

This is at the rate of 100,000 each day of whom 75,000 regularly forego the luxury of seats during the rush hours.

It is calculated that the enforcement of such an ordinance would cost the street car companies $1,500,000 a year.

It is declared that not enough cars could be run into the business quarter during rush hours to accommodate all passenger with seats.

DAMAGE IN KEW GARDENS BY MILITANT SUFFRAGETTES

They Smash Windows and Uproot Rare Plants — Telegraph Companies Also Have Trouble.

Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON, Feb. 8— Militant suffragettes did several thousand dollars damage in Kew Gardens by smashing glass and uprooting rare plants. It is believed they secreted themselves in the Gardens during the evening and sallied out in the early morning hours. Window smashing raids also continued throughout London. Postal authorities to-day issued notices of delays to telegrams due to suffragettes cutting the wires

HON. W. J. HANNA.

The Provincial Secretary is to introduce the system of indeterminate sentences in the case of persons committed to prison.

STORY OF BIG DEFEAT DISBELIEVED

Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON, ENG., Feb. 8— A sensational story published in a paper at Berlin, that the Bulgarians had defeated the Turks in the Peninsula of Gillipoli, with a loss of fifteen thousand killed and ten thousand prisoners, is disbelieved. It is pointed out that the Bulgarian authorities would have hastened to notify the world of such a signal victory. Telegrams from Sofia contain no reference to any fighting.

BOMBS ARE DROPPED

Aeroplane Crosses Dardanelles in Effort to Destroy Warships.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 8.—There was fresh fighting yesterday in the region of Gallipoli, and an aeroplane made a flight over the Dardanelles and dropped three bombs. There were aimed at the Turkish warships. Two of them fell into the water and the third exploded on the shore without doing any damage.

An official despatch, issued last night, says: "The enemy continues its movement along the Tchatalja lines. Several encounters have occurred in the course of these operations, all of them ending in the retirement of the enemy. An engagement near Palai developed into a somewhat severe battle. The warship Idjlalies bombarded the enemy from Biyuk Chekmedye, on the Sea of Marmara.

"The bombardment of Adrianople continues night and day, but the damage is unimportant. The courage and vigor of the Turkish troops are admirable.

"The enemy, who has occupied and has been fortifying and entrenching the heights of Xamito, in the vicinity of Gallipoli, has been subjected to an artillery fire by the Turkish army and fleet."

Boats Upset by Refugees.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—A despatch to a news agency from Constantinople describes the wild panic and flight of civilians from Gallipoli owing the advance of the Bulgarian troops. Many hundreds of persons, the despatch says, sought refuge on the military transports sent there and numerous overloaded boats were overturned and hundreds of persons drowned

GERMANY SLACKENS

Naval Race Likely to Lag According to Indications.

BERLIN, Feb. 8.—The Budget Committee is now discussing the naval estimates for 1913. According to the semi-official Lokalanzeiger, Admiral Von Tirpitz informed the committee yesterday that a "sensible agreement" between Great Britain and Germany with reference to the strength of the respective navies would be "something to be welcomed." If he has been accurately reported, his declaration is the first official admission from a responsible quarter that Germany considers an agreement of any kind with Britain as within the range of practical politics. Admiral Von Tirpitz's statement yesterday before the Budget Committee regarding German and British naval strengths was equally remarkable.

Referring to Mr. Winston Churchill's statement of March last year that the proportion of sixteen British to ten German Dreadnoughts had been adopted by the British Admiralty, Tirpitz said he was convinced from the standpoint of the German Admiralty that there need be no misgivings regarding the maintenance of such a standard of naval power between Britain and Germany. Jagow, the new Foreign Minister, gave the Budget Committee a resume of the international situation in general, and of Anglo-German relations in particular, but what he said in detail is not made public.

The Vessiche Zeitung treats Tirpitz' utterance as a formal announcement that an Anglo-German naval agreement has actually been reached. The Berliner Neuste Nachrichten, the organ of the German Navy League, states that Germany is on the verge of a "decisive change in her entire naval policy," and urges Parliament to weigh well whether it would not be better to retain "freedom of action."

British Comments.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Reports of the speech in the Reichstag Budget Committee by Jagow and Von Tirpitz are welcomed here as tangible evidence of an improvement in the relations between Germany and Britain which has come about since the two countries began to work together in the interests of European peace, menaced by the Balkan trouble.

Rockefeller Had To Stop.

JEKYL ISLAND, Feb. 8.—After an examination of scarcely twelve minutes by Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the Pujo committee, William Rockefeller, the aged Standard Oil magnate, yesterday afternoon showed signs of a laryngeal spasm and indications of an approaching nervous collapse. At the insistence of his physician the examination was discontinued.

FINE BANQUET AT THE Y.M.C.A.

About 175 members of the Y.M.C.A. sat down last night to one of the most enjoyable banquets ever held in that institution. After a pleasant repast Mr Ivor Brock gave a splendid address on "Opportunity." Lantern slides were also shown, and a very interesting evening was spent.

The mothers of the boys waited on the tables and also provided many of the good things to eat.

SOCIETY WEDDING HAD LUNATIC AS GROOM

Canadian Press Despatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 — The referee's report of a secret annulment of the suit concluded to-day, reveals the fact that Maud Baker, daughter of Walter R. Baker, secretary of the Canadian Pacific, found, one month after her magnificent society wedding in Montreal cathedral to Ernest Slocum, son General Jerry Slocum, a civil war veteran, that she had married a lunatic. Her husband jumped from a Staten Island ferry-boat before her eyes and narrowly escaped drowning and since has been in an asylum. The bride waited four years and then applied for an annulment.

HANNA TO INSTITUTE INDETERMINATE SENTENCE

Provincial Secretary's Famous Farms Will be Supplemented by a System of Releases as Soon as Men "Make Good"—Mr. McDonald Will Press Suffrage Bill.

TORONTO, Feb. 8.—Along with his prison reform farm at Guelph, Hon. W. J. Hanna, now intends to institute another advance in the system of penology for Ontario. This fact was apparent in a bill introduced by him in the Legislature yesterday, in which he proposes to have indeterminate sentences in the case of persons committed to prisons adopted. At the present time a man when sent to prison must serve out his term or else be pardoned, but Mr. Hanna's new idea calls for indeterminate sentences, which means that a man sentenced to serve any term from three months to two years less one day—is given his freedom when he has "made good."

In another bill the Provincial Secretary aims at giving power to a police inspector or magistrate to move a woman to an industrial refuge from a jail, and to limit the age of those people who may be committed to refuges to from 15 to 35 years. In case of disease or imbecility the proposed legislation makes it necessary for a sufferer to have a certificate of health before leaving a refuge, whether the sentence has expired or not.

For the prevention of fires in hotels and public buildings Mr. Hanna has introduced a bill calling for the erection of fire escapes to be of a capacity to bear at least 1,000 pounds instead of six persons as mentioned in the old act. Responsibility is fixed on both keeper and licensee.

The question of woman suffrage will be brought before the House next week, when William McDonald, Liberal member for Centre Bruce, will introduce a bill to give widows and spinsters, who are property owners possessing the municipal franchise, the right to vote in Parliamentary elections. A similar question cropped up at last year's session, but Mr. McDonald withdrew his bill when he saw it would meet a sure defeat. However, this year he means to bring about a division of the House.

W. McDonald of Centre Bruce will also introduce a bill to stop the sale of liquor by the bottle in hotels. At the present time the law allows liquor under a quart to be sold over a bar in a jug or bottle. There is likely to be a warm debate on this question.

Mr. Munroe has made an enquiry of the Ministry as to conduct of Ferdinand Walter, license inspector for Waterloo. He asks whether Walter's salary was increased during 1912, and if not, was he promised an increase. He also enquires as to whether complaints have been received from residents of the county, and, if so, were they acted upon by the Government.

Bilingual schools will again be a subject for debate next Tuesday as the result of a move by Gustave Evanturel, Liberal member for Prescott, who has asked for an order from the House for a return of all correspondence between Bishop Fallon of London and the Provincial Secretary, the Minister of Public Works or any other member of the Government.

To confer additional powers upon the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board is the intention of a clause inserted in the revised Ontario Railway Act, which has been introduced by Hon. W. J. Hanna. Under the present act there is no provision for the filing of a preliminary or general plan for the location of a railroad with the board, and the new section is intended to give the board, subject to a special act, control over the location of all railways.

Yesterday, Sir James Whitney and W. H. Proudfoot of Centre Huron, had a brief verbal encounter. Sir James, when the House opened, moved that the twenty-four revised bills, which made their first appearance on Thursday, be given their second readings and considered, not in the ordinary way, but in the committee of the whole House.

Mr. Proudfoot arose and asked that six of the bills be laid aside until Mr. Rowell returned. Sir James protested at the delay this would occasion.

However, on account of the illness of Mr. Rowell, the Premier acquiesced. The bills, which will be therefore considered when the Liberal chief returns, are those respecting public service, persons employed in factories, shops and office buildings; sanitoria for consumptives; the Municipal Act for 1913; railways and the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board.

LETHBRIDGE IS SELECTED

Alberta Town Sees Signs of Being a Salt Lake City.

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Feb. 8.—That the Latter Day Saints are desirous of establishing the Salt Lake City of Canada here is indicated by the presence in the city of three missionaries of the Mormon faith from Magrath, and impression is rapidly going around that if any measure of success is met by these young evangelists, it is more than likely a new $100,000 Mormon tabernacle will be built in Lethbridge.

Raymond and Cardston are both bidding for the Canadian temple, but a Utah visitor intimated that the high council of the church wished to secure a strong footing in one Canadian city, thus giving them a prestige they could get in no other way.

THE BANK IS SLIPPING

Agonizing Landslide in Progress in Culebra Cut at Panama.

PANAMA, Feb. 8.—Col. George W. Goethals and the other canal engineers are helplessly watching a great slide of earth which is moving slowly into the cut at Culebra, the principal section of the canal.

The movement extends back for a quarter of a mile, and will carry three million cubic yards into the cut, completely filling a large section.

The slide began some days ago, and has not yet gone into the cut, despite reports to the contrary, but apparently no power can stop it. Railroad tracks and machinery are being moved to places of safety. It is estimated that it will take until November to remove the material which is coming down with the slide. The movement of the great mass of earth is slow, but fully perceptible to the crowds that are daily watching. It seems certain that the slide will delay the opening of the canal.

FAST TRAIN IS WRECKED

Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON, ONT., Feb. 8—The Canadian Pacific Chicago to Montreal flyer was wrecked at Newbury this morning, the engine and all the coaches going into the ditch. Express messenger Barrie of Toronto was badly cut and is in the hospital. A dozen passengers were shaken up but none seriously hurt.

NEW BRANCH OF THE T. AND N.O.

TORONTO, Feb. 8.—With the establishment of a large paper mill in Northern Ontario depending on a new line being added to the Timiskaming & Northern Ontario Railways system, the T. & N. O. have decided to construct an additional branch connecting the Abitibi River with the main line.

"The matter has been finally decided and the construction of the new line is to commence early this spring," said Chairman Englehart yesterday, "It is the next work to which the commission are to devote their attention."

By leaving the main line at a point about half a mile north of Iroquois Falls station, and running on a line almost due east to Abitibi River, the commission will be able to connect that body of water with the T. & N. O. by a line about seven miles in length.

On the completion of the line, a large manufacturing plant is to be established at the Abitibi end of the railway by the Abitibi Pulp & Paper Co.

Chairman Englehart, who returned yesterday after attending the opening of the new Elk Lake line, said he was highly pleased with the Elk Lake addition to the system, and expressed the belief that it would prove a big success. It had not only come up to, but exceeded his expectations. The initial trip had been made in ten minutes less than schedule time.

One of the chairman's most cherished possessions is a huge silver key presented to him by Elk Lake this week on the opening of the new line. The key is eighteen inches in length and weighs fifty-four ounces.

THE PRETTIEST WOMAN STARVES

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Lillian Lorraine Hollis who was said to be a famous beauty of the Pacific coast in 1892, died in obscurity here. Her body was found in a little furnished room on Forty-ninth street, in which a score of cats were found slinking about, and there was every evidence that her death was caused by starvation.

In a voting contest conducted by several California newspapers, Miss Hollis was proclaimed the prettiest woman of the Pacific coast.

"I may get homesick as a pup before spring," she said, "but if I do I can go back. If I don't I'll sell some timber and put a few oil wells where they don't show much. I can have land enough cleared for a few fields and put a tenant on our farm, and we will buy this and settle here. It's for sale."

Mrs. Comstock invited Elnora's friends to visit her and proved herself a bright and interesting hostess. She digested a subject before she spoke, and when she advanced a view her point was sure to be original and tersely expressed. Before three months people waited to hear what she had to say.

Elnora never mentioned Philip Ammon; neither did Mrs. Comstock. Early in December came a note and a big box from him. It contained several books on nature subjects which would be a great help in school work and a number of conveniences Elnora could not afford. Soon after Elnora wrote Ammon:

> Dear Friend—I am writing to thank you for the books and the box of conveniences sent me for my work. I can use everything with fine results. Hope I am giving good satisfaction in my position. You will be interested to learn that when the summer's work was classified and pinned I again had my complete collection save a yellow Emperor. I have tried everywhere I know. So has the Bird Woman. We cannot find a pair for sale. Fate is against me, at least this season. I shall have to wait until next year and try again.
>
> Thank you very much for helping me with my collection and for the books and things. Sincerely yours.
>
> ELNORA COMSTOCK.

Ammon was disappointed over that note and instead of keeping it he tore it into bits and dropped them into the wastebasket.

Throughout the winter Elnora and her mother enjoyed the city thoroughly and the change of life it afforded, but signs of spring did wonderful things to the hearts of the country bred women. They decided to keep the city house during the summer, but to go back to the farm to live just as soon as school closed.

CHAPTER XXII.

Wherein Philip Ammon Is Scorned by Edith Carr, and Hart Henderson Appears on the Scene.

EDITH CARR stood in a vine inclosed side veranda of the Lake Shore clubhouse waiting while Philip Ammon gave some important orders. In a few days she would sail for Paris to select a wonderful trousseau she had planned for her marriage in October. Tonight Philip was giving a club dance in her honor. As she stood waiting she smiled softly. She was robed in a French creation suggested and designed by Philip. He had said to her, "I know a competent judge who says the distinctive feature of June is her exquisite big night moths. I want you to be the very essence of June that night, as you will be the embodiment of love. Be a moth. The most beautiful of them is either the pale green Luna or the yellow Imperialis. Be my moon lady or my gold Empress."

Now she stood, tall, lithe, of grace inborn, her dark waving hair high piled and crossed by gold bands studded with amethysts and at one side an enameled lavender orchid rimmed with diamonds, which flashed and sparkled. The soft yellow robe of lightest weight velvet fitted her form perfectly, while from each shoulder fell a great velvet wing lined with lavender and flecked with embroidery of that color in imitation of the moth. Philip had said that her gloves, fan and slippers must be lavender because the feet of the moth were that color. These accessories had been made to order and embroidered with gold. In her heart she thought of herself as "Imperialis Regalis," as the Yellow Empress. But in all the fragmentary thought crossing her brain the one that never came was that of Philip Ammon as the emperor, Philip the king of her heart, and at least her equal in all things.

"Ah, my luck!" cried a voice behind her.

Edith Carr turned and smiled exquisitely.

"I thought you were on the ocean," she said.

"I only reached the dock," replied the man, "when I had a letter that recalled me by the first limited. Edith, you are the most superb woman in every respect that I have ever seen. One glimpse is worth the whole journey."

He half closed his eyes and smilingly stared straight at her. He was taller than she, a lean man, with close cropped light hair, steel gray eyes, a square chin and "man of the world" written all over him.

Edith Carr flushed. "I thought you realized when you went away that you were to stop that, Hart Henderson," she cried.

"I did, but this letter of which I tell you called me back to start it all over again. One of your most intimate chums wrote it. It contained the hazard that possibly I had given up too soon. It said that in a fit of petulance you had broken your engagement with Ammon twice this winter, and he had come back because he knew you did not really mean it. I have come back to haunt you until the ceremony is over. Then I go, not before. I was insane!"

The girl laughed merrily. "Not half so insane as you are now, Hart!" she cried gayly. "You know that Philip Ammon has been devoted to me all my life. Well, now I'll tell you something else, because this looks serious for you. I love him with all my heart. Not while he lives shall he know it, and I will laugh at him if you tell him, but the fact remains. I intend to marry him, but no doubt I shall tease him constantly. It's good for a man to be uncertain. If you could see Ammon's face at the quarterly return of his ring you would understand the fun of it. My little fits of temper don't count with Phil. He's been raised on them."

"Just the same I'll wait and see it an accomplished fact," said Henderson. "And, Edith, because I love you with the sort of love it is worth a woman's while to inspire I want your happiness before my own. Go careful from now on. Don't strain that patched engagement of yours any further. I've known Philip all my life. He loves you, yes! He is long suffering for you, yes! But men know he has a limit. When the limit is reached he will stand fast, and all the powers can't move him. You don't seem to think it, but you can go too far."

"Is that all?" laughed Edith Carr sarcastically.

"No, there is one thing more," said Henderson. "Here or hereafter, now and so long as I breathe, I am your slave. If you need me it is not necessary to speak; only give me the faintest sign. All your life I will be somewhere near you waiting for it."

At that instant Philip Ammon entered. He was in full evening dress and exceptionally handsome. "Everything is ready," he said. "They are waiting for us to lead the march. It is formed."

Edith Carr smiled entrancingly. "Do you think I am ready?"

Philip looked what he thought and offered his arm. Edith Carr nodded carelessly to Henderson and moved away.

The last half of the program was well under way. Never had girl been more complimented and petted in the same length of time than Edith Carr. A partners' dance was called and the floor was filled with couples waiting for the music. Ammon stood whispering delightful things to Edith facing him. From out of the night, in at the wide front entrance to the pavilion there swept in slow, wavering flight a great yellow moth and fluttered toward the center cluster of glaring electric lights.

"Why, isn't that?"— she began excitedly.

"It's a yellow Emperor! This is fate!" cried Ammon. "The last one Elnora needs for her collection. I must have it! Excuse me!"

He ran toward the light. "Hats! Handkerchiefs! Fans! Anything!" he panted. "Every one hold up something and stop that!"

"He wants it for Edith!" ran in a murmur around the hall. The girl's face flushed, while she bit her lip in vexation. Instantly every one began holding up something to keep the moth from flying back into the night. One fan held straight before it served, and the moth gently settled on it.

Cookery Points

Ginger Snaps.

Ginger snaps demand a prominent place upon any cooky roster, and their claims are not to be denied. A "tried and true" recipe bids one put into a mixing bowl a cupful of brown sugar, two tablespoonfuls of ginger, a generous pinch of salt, one tablespoonful vinegar and a scant cupful of drippings. (If you have no beef drippings try lard.) Mix these ingredients well together and add a cupful of molasses, New Orleans preferred, which is boiling and into which has been stirred two rounding tablespoonfuls of soda. Mix with enough flour to make a stiff dough. Roll as thin as possible and bake in a moderate oven.

Lamb Kidneys a la Terrapin.

Cut six lamb kidneys in half, throw into cold water and let boil about fifteen minutes. Make a white sauce of two level tablespoonfuls of flour and the same of butter and half a pint of milk. Stir the butter over the fire to melt, add flour and stir until smooth, and then add the milk and stir and cook until smooth and creamy. Cut the kidneys into smaller pieces and add to the hot sauce with a hard boiled egg chopped fine, salt and pepper to taste and a teaspoonful of minced parsley. Cook a few minutes and serve. A little sherry wine may be added if desired just before sending to the table.

Tripe and Oysters.

This is a delicate dish that is well liked for luncheon or tea Sunday night. Stew until perfectly tender one pound of honeycomb tripe and cut it into narrow strips. Put a tablespoonful of butter into a saucepan, with a small onion chopped fine. Cover and cook until soft and not brown. Gradually add a tablespoonful of flour and then half a cupful of milk, and when it begins to boil put in the tripe and twenty-five oysters. As soon as the gills of the oysters curl, season with half a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of paprika and serve.

LITTLE VICTIMS OF ST. VITUS DANCE

It is Most Common Among Children of the School Age.

If your child—whether boy or girl—is fidgety, emotional and awkward, you should watch it carefully as it may develop St. Vitus dance. Frequently children cannot keep still, they move with strange actions, their limbs jerk and their features twitch nervously. Speech is confused and the whole muscular system not under control. These are among the symptoms of St. Vitus dance, a trouble that afflicts growing girls and boys most frequently during the school age. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are such a splendid nerve tonic that they have cured the worst cases of St Vitus dance. They do this because the new, rich blood they make feeds and strengthens the starved nerves thus throwing off the disease. Here is an example. Mrs. L. L. Gifford, Westover, Ont., says: "For over two years my little girl, Constance, was a sufferer from St. Vitus' dance. She was frightened badly by a dog, which seemed to bring on the trouble, and notwithstanding all we did for her, it seemed to be growing worse. She grew so bad that she could not feed herself, and her speech was so badly affected that we could scarcely understand her. The twitching and jerking of her limbs was pitiable. At this juncture we began giving her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and to our great joy they have completely cured her, and she is now as healthy a child as you can find."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WHEN TEA WAS NOT SO POPULAR AS NOW

A description of a model country rector's household in a journal of 1753 shows that tea drinking was then far from general:

"His only article of luxury is tea, but the doctor says he would forbid that, if his wife could forget her London education. However, they seldom offer it but to the best company, and less than a pound will last them a twelvemonth."

A few years prior to this the Female Spectator declared that the tea table "cost more to support than would maintain two children at nurse. It is the utter destruction of all economy, the bane of good housewifery, and the source of idleness."—London Chronicle.

Matter of Fact Lovemaking.

For downright prose, Dr. Johnson's offer of hand and heart to his second wife would be hard to beat. "My dear woman," said Johnson, "I am a hardworking man and withal something of a philosopher. I am, as you know, very poor. I have always been respectable myself, but I grieve to tell you that one of my uncles was hanged." "I have less money than you, doctor," demurely answered the lady, "but I shall try to be philosophical too. None of my relatives has ever been hanged, but I have several who ought to be." "Providence and philosophy have evidently mated us, my good woman," said the doctor as he pressed a chaste salute upon the lady's brow.

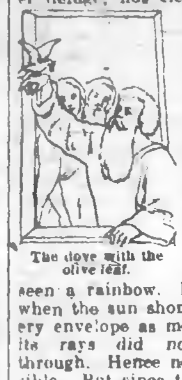
GOD'S RAINBOW COVENANT.

—February 9—Genesis 8:1; 9:17.—

"I Do Set My Bow In the Cloud, and It Shall Be For a Token of a Covenant Between Me and the Earth."
—Genesis 9:13.

HIGHER CRITICS refer us to recently excavated tablets found in Babylonia as the earliest record of the Noachian Deluge. These tablets, in course outline, represent Noah and a boat. A few words descriptive of the Flood follow. This we are asked to accept as superior to the Genesis account! We are amazed! We recall the Scripture descriptive of our day saying, "The wisdom of their wise men shall perish and the understanding of their learned men shall not be apparent."—Isaiah 29:14.

Only the reputation of these men for learning saves them from ridicule. For our part, the logical statements of Genesis are so reasonable as to stamp the Bible account of the Deluge as a hundred times more trustworthy than the crude Babylonian record. To us it seems evident that Divine Wisdom guided in the Genesis account.



The dove with the olive leaf.

Naturally Noah might dread another deluge, not clearly understanding the origin of the Flood. Very appropriately God called attention to the rainbow, and assured him that never again would the whole earth be flooded. Since the last of earth's "rings" had come down, there could not be another world-wide deluge.

Noah had never seen a rainbow. Prior to the Flood, when the sun shone through the watery envelope as merely a ball of fire, its rays did not strike directly through. Hence no rainbow was possible. But since the watery envelope broke, the fine vapors in the direct line of the sun's rays naturally cause the rainbow. Thus, as God declares, so long as there is a rainbow, there cannot be a flood.

The Tower of Babel.

Generations afterward, the worldly-wise were foolish enough to undertake to build a great tower, to whose top they could go in event of another deluge. Since they had neglected the Lord's message and disregarded His promise, He let them alone to manifest their folly. Finally, when they had to some extent learned a valuable lesson, God confounded their language so that they could not cooperate with each other. Separated in tongue, they scattered.

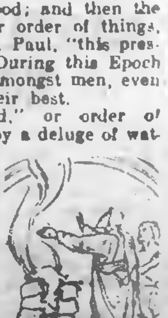
Their interests gradually became diverse; manners, customs, color of skin, grew dissimilar. Thus various races with their peculiarities of temperament originated. (Acts 17:26,27). Humanity's separation into nations has been especially useful during the dark time preceding Messiah's Second Coming. It hindered the commingling of people until the last seventy years or so—since steam power has become effective for transportation.

Now, mankind are being brought into close touch. The breaking down of barriers is favorable to co-operation, for good or evil. So we find today that rich corporations are building a great Tower of Babel for protection against any calamity which could come upon their riches. Likewise the laboring classes are building a great Tower of Unionism, to deliver them from all adversity. Had it not been for the dispersion and the language barriers, no doubt these world-wide organizations of Capital and Labor would have developed long ago; and the final great catastrophe, or conflict between Capital and Labor, would have come so much the sooner, precipitating all its terrible anguish and disaster on humanity—"a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation."—Daniel 12:1.

Fire, the Next Great Calamity.

St. Peter divides the history of mankind into three great Epochs, called "worlds" in our Common Version Bible, but more properly designated Epochs. The first of these Epochs ended with the Flood; and then the present "world," or order of things, began, styled by St. Paul, "this present evil world." During this Epoch evil predominates amongst men, even though they do their best.

The first "world," or order of things, was ended by a deluge of water; and St. Peter declares that the present "world" is to be ended by a deluge of fire. But following the fire, there will be a new "world," or Epoch, much better than anything yet experienced by mankind. "The world to come whereof we speak" will be an Epoch of righteousness, under the direct rule of Messiah's Kingdom.—2 Peter 3:10-13.



"I do set my bow in the clouds."

Formerly Bible students understood St. Peter's words to signify that literal fire will destroy the present order of things. Now, however, closer study reveals the fact that the fire is symbolic, and means the destruction of everything contrary to the Divine will—everything unjust, inequitable.

The Prophet Zephaniah describes the time of trouble as a fire. Then he declares that following that fiery baptism of trouble God will send mankind "a pure Message, that they may all call upon the name of the Lord to serve Him with one consent." (Zephaniah 3:9.)

A Riddle to Willie.

I asked my pa a simple thing—
"Where holes in doughnuts go."
Pa read his paper, then he said,
"Oh, you're too young to know!"

I asked my ma about the wind,
"Why can't you see it blow?"
Ma thought a moment, then she said,
"Oh, you're too young to know!"

Now, why on earth do you suppose
They went and licked me so?
Ma asked, "Where is that jam?" I said,
"Oh, you're too young to know!"

Still Worried.

HAD RHEUMATISM IN ALL MY BONES

"Sometimes I Could Hardly Walk!"
2 Boxes of Gin Pills Cured Me

I SUFFERED from Kidney Trouble for five long years. I also had Rheumatism in all my bones and muscles—could not sleep at night—and sometimes could hardly walk. I was treated by some of our best physicians but without relief. I lost over fifteen pounds, was very weak, and friends, who had not seen me for some time, were astonished. One day, I met one of our leading hotel keepers, who had been cured by Gin Pills, and he advised me to try them, so I bought two boxes at my druggist's.

Before I had used one box, I felt a big change for the better, and before the second box was gone, I was completely cured.

I assure you I can hardly believe it for if I had known what I know now about Gin Pills, I would not have spent over one hundred dollars for nothing, when two boxes of Gin Pills cured me.

How to Acquire the Corsetless Figure

PERHAPS you have already caught a glimpse of her—this corsetless woman. Perhaps she was young, lithe and at that age when a woman looks adorable in anything she chooses to put on. Or maybe the first glimpse of this corsetless figure impressed you as the one of a woman recently seen who had attempted to obtain this result by abandoning all artificial supports.

The "debutante slouch," as it is derisively called on this side, is really a frank striving toward the Greek antique. The Venus de Milo figure of perfect health—large, firm and strong with feminine curves, yet not plump—has finally come into her own. The cult of Greek beauty has now extended even to the corset, changing it into a flexible support instead of the unyielding prison bars of steel and whalebone that have changed woman's figure into straight adolescent lines in an effort to suppress superfluous flesh.

Few perhaps realize that not later than 1898 the average woman was wearing the old fashioned corset, the contour of which showed a curving in down to the waist and a like convex curve outward over the hips. Next came the straight front corset, which slowly gained in vogue with its "Paquin slant," as it was called, and which threw the figure off its balance so that the chest protruded and the hips were correspondingly thrown back. In the last few years even the back has lost its curves and the hips of all women, young and old, have become so slender that when walking behind them it is difficult to guess whether she is sixteen or sixty.

The corset has now lengthened so that the lower part is really a tight skirt, and there is so little of it above the waist that a brassière top has to be worn to support the bust, so it has really become a double garment. To the lower skirt is attached the short garters.

Lacings during this transition have been often used in front instead of the back, gores of elastic material skilfully introduced to give a suppleness to the figure. Perhaps the greatest change has taken place in the materials, for instead of the unyielding coutil and batiste there is now a new tricot weave of silk or linen that is ideal as a corset material. The heavy steels are omitted and skilful cutting and shaping and a few light stays and other of composition whalebone is all that is now used for the figure support.

During this process woman's figure has been trained to depend more upon itself, growing firmer by the present day attention to exercise and sports, until at last the corsetless figure has appeared. It is supported by a garment absolutely original in cut that slips on like a stocking and is more useful as a reminder to stand correctly and to support extra flesh than to shape the figure.

Of course, you will never consent to wear one of these "slip-ons" and stand with the "débutante's slouch"—that is unless you chance to meet the most fashionable woman of your acquaintance standing exactly in that way, and you find it is a very graceful and natural pose. Then when you have returned home and looked in the mirror, your own figure, bound tightly by a heavily boned corset, suddenly looks queer by contrast, and your stilted poses suddenly seem ungraceful in comparison with that of your acquaintance, for, after all, this is the process of thought that the average woman goes through, and which is responsible for the changes of style from wide to tight skirts, short to long sleeves, big to little hats. It is the charm of novelty that makes possible a new fashion and paves the way for its acceptance by the feminine world.

Hasn't it happened that way every time? Prophecies were rife that the tight skirt would never come in, yet when the convenient hidden pleats and slashes were added it was accepted. The stout woman frowned [illegible] drapery, yet when a model was presented with the lower corner of a breadth of cloth charmingly caught up in simple folds instead of the extreme draperies the fashion was more than acceptable. And so turns the wheel of fashion.

Now, do not think this natural figure is to be acquired at a [illegible] notice or simply by buying one of these corsets.

An Alternative to the "Slip-On."

You must go through a transitional stage. Your figure must acquire it by degrees by wearing a series of corsets. "Some may be able to do it with a couple of corsets, some with only one." So says Mme. Binner, a well known corsetière, who avers that her customers, if inclined to stoutness, generally make the transition to the "slipon" in three sets of corsets, all built carefully for the individual figure and its needs, reducing the amount of boning with each pair.

"All of my customers now arrive with the same question on their lips," said Mme. Binner. 'What is this new corsetless figure? Must I really stop wearing corsets?' But this is not at all necessary. There has been designed a series of transitional corsets so a woman who wishes to follow the fashionable figure can train down to it."

"Now, look at what women have been wearing," she continued, holding up a beautiful corset of pink satin brocade, the inside of which was a veritable stockade of steel and whalebone supports.

"Now look at this," and a pale blue corset of what looked and felt like the softest of doeskin was presented. There were fewer bones in this corset, and the material, a new weave resembling a heavy chamois skin, had just the resistant quality needed to replace the missing boning. After this came a corset of the new tricot material, combined with elastic woven in the same manner and so resembling the tricot it was hard to tell them apart. Then came one of the silk tricot given here in photograph, with a few back and front supports, and none going over the hips. The boning is now replaced by the skilfully cut and shaped seam. It laces at the back, fastens down the front, and a few short supports insure smooth lines to the gown worn over it. This garment extends down to the knees and ends in wide garters laced on the inside and has invisible side elastics. With this the stout woman may have to be content if she cannot acquire the figure necessary for the "slip-on."

The last garment of the series is this "slip-on" which is made of knitted tricot webbing, without lacing or front fastening, only four light supports being used. The garment ends in laced garters.

While there are other models, Mme. Binner said that some women are able to skip from the first to the last model without the intermediate ones.

It is easy to see what a boon these supports will be to the athletic woman, or for those who partake in Spanish dances, now so much in vogue.

Many of the so-called corsets built on these new and supple lines can be purchased in the big shops.

The new figure demands a new style of dressing, and the Parisian, who has the adorable talent of adopting a new fashion with an easy naturalness second to none, has already accepted this new silhouette, and how attractively may be seen by the accompanying photographs. The sinuous curves of the figure, the gliding tread with the trailing foot and the free waist all blend with the gowns worn. The amusing sash tied in front that accentuates the peculiarity of the pose in one photograph, the muff in another and the curved blouse edges on a third all show that the fashion has already made its impression on the French modes.

Voiles and Crepe the Washable Fabrics This Year.

IT is to be a year of delightful cotton fabrics, judging from the first department store openings in the large cities in imported cotton materials, for cotton voile and crêpe are to be the fashionable wash fabrics. Every one knows how splendidly they launder, how well they hang and how little they crush in wearing. While most of these materials have a white ground, the new colorings, butter yellow, salmon and rose leaf pink, are to be had in many of these new materials.

But it is the block prints, stamped on the material in colors by wood blocks, that are very unusual. They are stamped on both the white and colored grounds—sometimes only as borders, especially in the Bulgarian, Hungarian and Servian designs, and in dainty allover designs when the motif is French, generally of the Louis XV. or Louis XVI. periods.

In the Slavic designs the colors are very strong, rich reds, blues and greens, or a strong tan, and the design is often accented by an outlining stamped or embroidered band of black.

Borders of rough weaves are also seen on these crêpes and voiles; a new chenille weave of thickened threads that runs through the cloth is decidedly attractive. The open drawn work border is also seen, and ratine bands both in white and color are effective. There is also a colored cotton embroidered by machine on voile that looks exactly like French knots. These are also stamped with the wooden blocks, so that they look like an embroidered design of French knots on color.

In tailored materials Cossack linen, a very striking weave, has a heavy boucle border of chenillelike threads. Illumined tweed, a very curious ratine weave, flecked with darker dots that give it the tweed look, makes up into very smart tailored suits, especially when made with the new effect of collar and revers of a black and a white band, placed together, as was done with furs during the winter.

For the spring blouse nothing could be prettier than the voiles striped with chenille, the slender stripes only a half or a quarter of an inch apart. With a ratine collar and cuffs of a contrasting color they are entirely new in effect. The new blouses are made with the drop shoulder seam, the lower part of the sleeves fulled into it and into the cuff. Bolero effects are often simulated by pipings, lace or garnitures and collars are of lace with pointed corners in front, sometimes stopping at the round neck and sometimes rising up to stock collar height.

The Russian and Cossack separate blouses are hip length, blousing at the waist into a belt. Plain and fancy weave voile and crêpe combine to make some models of this type where a straight yoke that comes under the arms is of the plain material, while from the yoke down the ratine weave is used, connected to each other by mechanical hem stitching. Collar and cuffs match this part of the gown.

Fashion Notes.

Our evening slippers just now are being fashioned with unheard of luxury and originality is the characteristic that is most sought after. The "cothurne" style is much prized, especially if the wearer possesses a naturally pretty, and arched foot. Some bootmakers are even making this form with a semi-high heel which, of course, is heresy—but in Fashion's domain "heresy" is translated into "fantasy."

The smartest thing of the moment is the brocaded silk slipper woven with gold thread and enriched with a jewelled buckle placed on black velvet. Many of these slippers have a narrow barrette which holds them on the instep. The heels, incrusted with paste stones, are not much worn, though some women favor them. They are, however, rather too striking to be in good taste. One notices shoes for every evening or even for afternoon wear made of patent leather and edged with a narrow border of colored leather which matches the dress, and on which is placed a velvet rosette of the same shade.

The little lingerie caps for the morning "chez soi," or for wearing in bed when one is ill and the visit of some intimate friend is expected, are an excuse for delightful inventions. These lacy frills lend an eighteenth century look which is quite charming. They may be decorated with wreaths of rococo flowers or with ribbons to match the bed hangings and the little "liseuse" jacket which is worn at the same time.

A GOOD ROADS GRANT

There is a highly significant item in the speech from the throne at the opening of the Ontario Legislature. It is one worthy of much attention throughout the province. It refers to the intention of the Whitney Government at the 1914 session of the Legislature to ask for authorisation of a good roads fund for older Ontario to exceed $5,000,000. Last year a special fund for the development of New Ontario was authorized, and will be spent year by year on roads, settlement work, and other development in both the clay belt district, and the more westerly parts of New Ontario.

The provision of a good roads fund of $5,000,000 or more for older Ontario is in line with this progressive policy. What shape this expenditure will take, whether it will go partly to increase the contribution of the province to the various county road systems, or be spent generally, is not yet settled. It is more than probable, however, that the need of the Ontario counties for more generous treatment from the Government in respect of sharing the cost of the good roads built as local systems, will be recognized, and that trunk work under provincial supervision will be undertaken besides. The Whitney Government is showing by this move that it is standing ready to march forward in the true line of progress, for there is nothing that will conduce more to the advance of this province than a greatly extended program of good roads building.

TOWN PLANNING

If woman's business is to make the home then woman's business is to plan the town. For what is the home but the unit of which the entity is the town? Such was the conclusion arrived at recently when Edmonton Women's Canadian Club assembled to hear Mr. C. Lionel Gibbs, member of the Edmonton Parks Commission, present woman's part in town planning.

"Nine-tenths of the comeliness of our homes," said Mr. Gibbs, "and much more than half of their comfort and convenience, is due directly to ladies, to that instinctive sense of fitness and beauty for which women have to substitute a laborious cultivation of our taste and judgment, always slower and less sure. Any architect will tell you that while ladies are the most difficult clients to please, their suggestions and ideas are the determining factors in the success of his houses, and represent a more practical part of his knowledge of house-building than anything the text-books teach."

More cities than Edmonton could discuss the question with profit of women's part in the work of planning the town.

WOMEN POLICE AND COURTS

Toronto is making the experiment of appointing women police. It has also been decided by the police commissioners to put into effect a women's police court, at which only the magistrate and necessary witnesses shall be male. This will keep out of the court procedure much of the annoying and boisterous comment by back-benchers with nothing to do. They will not be able to listen to the evidence in cases in which women are the accused, nor to see those prisoners who are charged with immoral crimes, learning their addresses, and to know them at sight.

Both of these innovations in police court work in Toronto will have a most salutary influence on the conduct of the city's morals. The women police will be put on duties that have special relation to the protection of young women on the street from coarse remarks and attention, in watching the moving picture theatres, in keeping track of matters involving sexual affinities. Toronto is in this respect following the lead of American cities. Recently in Portland, Oregon, there was a conference of women police officers—the first ever held on the continent. It was notable for the conviction expressed on all sides that women police could play a very prominent role in the regulating of matters relating to female offences and crimes against females. Many of the women officers told of their experiences, and the information thus given to the public helped not a little in the formation of such a sentiment as that which has led to Toronto's action.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Do your St. Valentine Day shopping early.

It sounds strange, but nevertheless true, that electric light companies frequently work in the dark.

The talk about reduction in "current" prices has nothing to do with your grocery bill. Electric light is now on the bargain counter here.

The price of Pennsylvania crude petroleum has gone up to $2.50 a barrel. Dear "coal oil" as well as dear gasoline is likely to be the outcome of the situation thus indicated. The electric light prices have come down just in time to save the people who could not get gas from going back to candles for house illumination. Thanks are due the Whitney Hydro-Electric system.

That English suffragette who threw a bucket of water over a dignified police sergeant should have married a man who had the habit of getting drunk every pay day.

One of the outstanding features of the opening of the Ontario Legislature was the fact that Lieut.-Gov. Gibson wore satin breeches. It might have been worse. Sir James Whitney might have worn kilts.—Ottawa Free Press.

Woodrow Wilson has begun well by eliminating the inaugural ball. There is no more excuse for a ball on the opening of Congress than on the meeting of a railway directorate. Those functions help to confound public confusion regarding the purposes for which Congress and Parliaments are maintained.

PROSPERITY OF MUTUAL LIFE

For years the progress of The Mutual Life Assurance Company, of Canada, while not spectacular, has been rapid. To glance at the Annual Reports for the last twenty years is to observe year after year an almost increased prosperity, happily unrelieved by a single calamity. The business of the Company in force at the end of 1912 was $77,921,143.88.

It was with pardonable pride that in 1900 the total amount was quoted at over five millions. To-day they amount to over twenty millions or to be exact, $20,071,314.80. All these funds are invested within the Dominion of Canada, and no speculative securities of any kind are carried. It is claimed that not since its foundation has one dollar of the policy-holder's funds been lost.

Not the least remarkable feature in the year's report is the low expense ratio. In view of the fact that the splendid new offices of the Company completed and furnished during the past year, it was naturally to be expected that the expense ratio might rise. To the surprise of the officers of the Company themselves, it was found that on the contrary it had actually fallen by almost one half of one per cent.

Manhattan's Many Hotels.

Only a few weeks ago the hotel men of New York—a tribe who keep pretty close together through their association—took a sort of census of the business. They found in Manhattan alone 225 hotels of fifty rooms or more, with a grand total of 53,000 rooms. Which means, according to the usual rush business way of counting, that in a pinch the hotels of Manhattan—the real hotels, not including little fellows, apartment houses and such—could take in and give beds to 100,000 visitors. Pretty careful studies show that the hotels of the three greatest cities of Europe could not together find accommodations for so many people.—New York Sun.

TIMELY WORDS OF COUNSEL IN THE INTEREST OF PETERBOROUGH BOYS

Written by Mr. Nash, Boy's Work Secretary Y.M.C.A.

Listen Kindly.—Did it ever occur to you that it is possible to show a kindness simply by properly listening! Listen kindly. Be attentive. Show your appreciation. Be interested. By holding yourself aloof and by gathering your skirts together in reserve and by not entering right into the heart and spirit of the conversation, you loose or miss its deepest message and at the same time, you are showing a grave unkindness. Listen kindly to the grief stricken soul and you have already lifted half the burden. Listen kindly to the chattering little ones and you have already won their confidence. Listen kindly to your life companion and you have already saved the integrity of your home. Listen kindly.

"As we meet and touch each day
The many travellers on our way,
Let every such brief contact be
A glorious, helpful ministry."

ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVES ARE USED BY G. T. R. AT SARNIA TUNNEL

The train service operated by the Grand Trunk System through the St. Clair Tunnel, which connects Sarnia and Port Huron, beneath the St. Clair River, is the heaviest railway service handled by electricity in the world. This electrification operates within a zone of approximately 4 miles, and the motive power is derived from 1,500 horse power electric locomotives, weighing 135 tons, with a normal draw bar pull of 50,000 pounds and a maximum speed of 35 miles an hour.

These engines are hauling the solid Chicago-Niagara Falls, Chicago-Buffalo, Chicago-New England and Chicago-Montreal high speed manifest trains intact through the tunnel whereas if the river were crossed by car ferry service these aristocrats of the freight service would have to be broken up into sections, involving considerable loss of time. The time taken to change engines is from 2 to 5 minutes, and the time of passing through the tunnel, which with its approaches is more than two miles long, is 13 minutes from summit to summit. Up to 45 cars per train are hauled through the tunnel, which represents a train more than half a mile in length, and it is considered by experts that the service through this crowded gateway gives much better despatch to trains than can possibly be obtained through the largest terminals, such as those at Detroit, Toledo and Pittsburg. ldlw

AMUSING SEQUEL TO ELOQUENCE

"A Circuit Tramp," in "Pie-Powder," tells of an amusing sequel to the eloquence of defending counsel in a murder trial. The real question left in doubt was the identity of the criminal. A common round hat had been found at the scene of the crime, and was said to have been worn by the prisoner. His counsel addressed the jury at great length upon the insufficiency of the evidence, and the hat was produced to them for their inspection.

"An ordinary black bowler hat, gentlemen, such as most men wear—such as many of us wear ourselves! It is upon evidence of this flimsy description that you, gentlemen, are invited to pronounce the doom of a fellow-creature—to send to the scaffold"—and so on and so on.

The jury were much impressed, returned a verdict of "not guilty," and the prisoner was discharged. But he lingered awkwardly in the dock and cast wistful glances round the court, as if something were still weighing upon his heart. The warder tapped him on the shoulder and intimated that another gentleman was waiting to take his place. Then at last he spoke, in a voice husky with emotion.

"Beg pardon, your lordship, but can I 'ave my 'at?"

Here is another story from "Pie-Powder." No lawyer was more sarcastic in regard to his profession than the notable Devonshire advocate known for many years as Counsellor Carter, who possessed the bitterest of tongues and did not seem to care one iota to whom he addressed his remarks. Even judges sought to avoid his outbursts. An example of Carter's unconventional language is afforded by an incident which occurred on one occasion when he was defending a man at the Assizes on a charge of obtaining money by false pretences.

"False pretences!" said Carter, with fine scorn. "Why, we all make them every day—barristers and solicitors and judges—the whole lot of us! Talk of the purity of the judicial ermine!" Here he pointed derisively at the learned judge, who sat cowering on the bench. "Why, it's only rabbit-skin!"

It Hurt Him.

Tommy—Did the fowl hurt you, Mr. Squires? Mr. Squires—What d'you mean, my dear? What fowl? Tommy—Well, I wanted to know if it hurt, 'cause mummy said you had been henpecked for twenty years.—London Strand Magazine.

Whale Sharks.

While whales are the largest of marine animals, yet certain fish grow to almost as gigantic size. The largest of true fishes are found among the sharks and the largest of these formidable fishes are the whale sharks. These huge fish occur in the waters of India, Japan, South America, Panama, California and the West Indies. The nose is very broad and blunt and the mouth, although very wide, is armed only with minute teeth. It is a dark colored creature, marked with small, whitish spots and is perfectly harmless to man, feeding exclusively on small fish. It's huge bulk makes it dangerous when wounded. This great fish reaches a maximum length of seventy feet.

About Zutoo Tablets

"I have been a sufferer from headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all, of the so-called "cures" on the market. Some months since my attention was called to your Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a "sick" or "nervous" headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effect. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I find them a good remedy for "sour" stomach as well as headache. I always carry them in my grip on the road and would not be without them at any cost."

A WARNING

Against a Man Who Represents Himself as Polish Catholic Priest

TORONTO, Feb. 8— Rev. Father Hinzmann, the Polish Catholic Priest of Toronto, has issued a warning against a man, who by representing himself as a Polish Catholic Priest has collected a considerable amount of money for what he calls a National Polish Church. He is a fraud, according to Father Hinzmann. Before coming to Toronto, he visited Brantford, Port Hope, Oshawa and other towns. In these cases he is alleged to have used the names of Fathers Hinzmann and Boyarczuk.

LARGE AUDIENCE AT THE FEDERATION'S MASS MEETING

Attentive Hearing Given to the Speakers Who Made Good Addresses—Local District Federations May be Formed

Featured by stirring addresses that were of great interest to Protestants and free from any sign of bitterness towards those of the Roman Catholic faith, the first mass meeting of the Peterborough Protestant Benevolent Federation, as held in the Grand Opera House, last night, was a big success. As the President and Chairman, Mr. Dawson Kennedy, intimated, other similar meetings will be held.

It was a large audience and one that was graced by the presence of many ladies. That the audience expected and did hear good addresses, was evidenced by the attentive hearing given the speakers and the ringing applause that greeted many statements made. There was no uncertainty as to the reception accorded Rev. Dr. Hincks of Toronto and it was also demonstrated that Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., was none the less popular. Rev. W. C. Riddiford was also heartily received.

The gentlemen occupying seats on the stage, on which a large Union Jack was prominently displayed were:—

Mayor, W. H. Bradburn, Joseph Jones, W. G. Morrow, A. F. Calder, Geo. Leader, Geo. Foster, Charles Crowe, James R. Davis, Mr. Sucee, J. G. Graham, J. B. Brown, H. Morgan, B. McGill, W. Brown, L. C. Dawes, H. B. McGill, W. J. Johnston R. J. Todd, J. B. McWilliams, Revs. Keith, Rollins, Pogue, and Riddiford.

The meeting was opened with the singing of "Rule Britannia," lead by Mr. G. W. Mulligan.

Mr. Mulligan sang the "Maple Leaf" introducing a verse composed by him and relating to the Marriage Laws and the stand Protestant would take.

Mr. J. H. Burnham was warmly applauded as he arose at the call of the chairman.

MR. J. H. BURNHAM, M.P.

In his opening remarks Mr. Burnham pointed out that the presence of the two great schools of thought—Protestants and Roman Catholics—was bound to bring on a conflict. In fact that struggle was now on. One section thinks it has the right to think for itself, and the other thinks it has. Mr. Burnham said he wished to speak of Catholics only in the most kindly way, but he pointed out that the questions which had arisen concerned both Protestants and Catholics, and as such must be dealt with without fear, favor or affection. They must be considered in a cool and certain manner.

There were 265,000,000 Roman Catholics in the world, who as a rule far excel Protestants in the practice of their religion. There had been great political upheavals in Italy, Portugal and France, and it was up to us as Protestants to say if we will be brought up under Papal domination or under that spirit of democracy that gives freedom and hope. Mr. Burnham explained that the fact of a Protestant turning to the Roman Catholic faith was forgotten, but such was not so when the Roman Catholic accepted Protestant faith.

"We must remember that the Pope claims to be infallible, not only in religion, but in right or wrong."

Mr Burnham declared against the domination of the Church in Saskatchewan, where the people must now give support to the Separate Schools whether they liked to or not. The rights which the Provincial Government has given to the Roman Catholic Church are wholly and absolutely unwarrantable. There was bound to be trouble.

The speaker was applauded as he remarked on the fact of the Orange Order having remained true to its principles. "We know now what it is worth to have something to tie up to," he said. And why not should Protestant societies have the right to be formed! The Catholics had their societies, and lately all had been federated and brought under the wing of the Church for the use and advancement of the Church. Why should there be any criticism of an organization of free men! Those who did criticize and failed to stand true to their fellows were playing traitors.

Mr. Burnham gave some attention to certain statements made in the Catholic Register about himself and and others. "They can do it," he said, "but let us do the same thing and let the best man win. One hour of democracy and liberty, he declared," to be worth 10 centuries of Roman domination.

REV. W. C. RIDDIFORD

"We have not met to-night under the auspices of a tom-rot society," said Rev. W. C. Riddiford, the next speaker, who also introduced Rev. Dr. Hincks. "It is an auxiliary of the greatest association under the British Crown. We do not belong to a little thing but a great world-wide movement. The Protestant citizens of Peterborough have misunderstood this movement, it was not a political football."

He believed the time would come when every minister would be proud to stand upon the platform of the Protestant Federation. The best blood in England to-day was Protestant blood.

"We are going on with this association; we stand for one thing, not politics, but Protestantism."

REV. DR. HINCKS

That the promulgation of the Ne Temere was the greatest theory that ever happened for Protestantism was the declaration of Rev. Dr. Hincks, who was given a splendid hearing. He occupied much of his time in telling of his visit to England last summer, and of the great meeting held in London—a verbatim report of which was secured by every member of the House of Commons. The presence of the Ne Temere had opened the eyes of Protestantism and the battle was practically over, he held. One reason for this was that the sweeping agitation had so unified Protestant sentiment against the decree that it was impossible to enforce the Ne Temere, which was, he said, a most iniquitous decree, and, said the speaker, "you don't need to blush for belonging to this association," referring to the Peterborough Benevolent Federation.

The Eucharistic Congress, he held, was another good thing for Protestantism. It had made a number of Orangemen.

In speaking of the separate school question in Saskatchewan, Dr. Hincks held that that imposition was the darkest blot upon that province. It had been fastened upon the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta, before it was known what kind of people would settle there.

In regard to his trip to London he told of the many letters received by him, which showed how greatly the people of the Mother Land were interested in the question that brought him there. He gave a glowing account of the great meeting held in London.

He said if the Protestants of Canada would support him he would bring to Canada, the pastor of Mrs. McCann, who would tell the story of the enforcement of the Ne Temere decree against that poor woman.

"If your own Mr. Burnham is doing what I think he is, he is working for an extension of the Criminal Code, which will give us the last link against the decree."

The fight against the Ne Temere was practically won. It has been shown that Canada has the power. The state is predominate; the state must rule.

Pope Leo XIII would have none of it, he said. The present Pope was a good man, but easily persuaded. Germany had the same situation. Canada was 16 times larger than Germany, and we were in the process of forming one great composite Canadian race. This could only be so, by all creeds keeping out of politics. England says go straight on and we are behind you to stand beside you in the crisis of unification.

"Let us stand to-gether, in kindness to every creed, but strong as adamant against any encroachment on our glorious Canadian covenant," said Dr. Hincks in conclusion.

REV. J. McNEILL

The following will give some idea of what the people of Peterborough may expect on February 20, when Rev. John McNeill speaks in Knox Church:

On Friday evening, Jan 10th, the people of Berlin heard this great preacher, who was on a visit to his brother-in-law, Rev. Marcus Scott. Mr. McNeill preached in St. Andrew's church in the evening. The audience crowded the building from floor to ceiling. Mr McNeill read Isaiah 40 in his own inimitable way, making running comments, racy, luminous and richly suggestive. The sermon was on Christ stilling the tempest from Mark 4. For nearly an hour the preacher held the vast audience spellbound as he enforced lesson after lesson. Every emotion of the human soul was played on and every faculty of the human mind was appealed to. Laughter and tears followed each other in rapid succession. Eloquent, pathetic, dramatic, forceful, gentle, the preacher was a very ambassador of the Lord. As the people reluctantly left, the church many were the expressions heard on every side of appreciation and congratulation that Canada had secured such a preacher and the people of Berlin feel honored that John McNeill's third sermon in Canada was delivered in their city.

SHE WAS SURPRISED

When Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Cured her Chronic Liver Complaint

Mrs. R. Smith, of Winnipeg, Man., tells an interesting story of relief from almost intolerable sufferings:

"I can hardly tell you how great my sufferings have been. Chronic liver complaint accompanied by biliousness were a daily source of trial to me. Every day I experienced the sickening effects of these ailments. I longed for some medicine that should permanently drive them away.

Hearing of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, I thought they were worthy of a trial. My surprise was indeed great. From the very first I experienced relief. Continuing with them I found my troubles were slowly but surely leaving me, and before long I once more knew what it was to be free from the harassing effects of the ailments that had long sickened and weakened me. So great is my faith in Dr. Morse's Indian Pills that I shall never on any account be without them."

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cure Bowel and Kidney as well as Liver troubles, and keep you healthy. 25c a box at your dealer's. 14

BLEEDING A KING

Louis XIV., a Grasping Doctor and an Ambitious Surgeon.

In 1693, when Louis XIV. began to feel the first touches of age, his physicians ordered him to be bled once a month. That duty was of course intrusted to Marechal, his Irish surgeon.

There was at the time in Paris, says the British Medical Journal, a young brother of the craft who conceived the idea of making his fortune by bleeding the king. The enterprise was difficult, but he knew that the most solid doors can often be opened with a golden key.

Following the advice of Iago, he put money in his purse and sought an introduction to Antoine Daquin, the king's chief physician. The negotiation was conducted on a strict business footing. Daquin, who was known to love money, was told that 10,000 crowns were deposited with a notary who had instructions to transfer the sum to him as soon as the surgeon had got the job.

It was not an easy thing to manage, as Marechal never left the king. One day, however, he asked permission to leave Versailles for three days. Daquin seized the opportunity to introduce his protege, whom he had ready at hand for the purpose. Feeling the king's pulse one morning, as usual, he pretended to be alarmed at its strength and volume and ordered the illustrious patient to be bled forthwith. As Marechal was away, the king hesitated, but fear soon made him yield to his physician's proposal. The young surgeon bled the king, and Daquin got his money.

In the meantime a message had been dispatched for Marechal, who was not far off. He returned to Versailles in haste and was much surprised to find that the king, whom he had left in the best of health, had been bled. He was not on friendly terms with Daquin, and he quickly grasped the situation. He went to see the young surgeon and forced him to disclose the whole plot.

When the king learned the truth, he flew into a terrible rage, ordered Daquin to be arrested and placed the matter in the hands of the council of state. That obsequious body, after a very short deliberation, unanimously voted that the physician who had trafficked in the blood of the king deserved death. The royal wrath, however, subsided to some extent, and he graciously spared Daquin's life, but deprived him of his office and exiled him from the court to Quimper-Corentin. The too greedy physician did not long survive his disgrace.—London Standard.

The Drawback.

Mlle. Victorine confides to the janitor's wife that her mistress, who is old and feeble, has promised to remember her in her will if she takes good care of her till she dies. The janitor's wife shrugs her shoulders.

"The worst of that is, my dear, that the better you take care of her the longer you'll have to wait for your legacy."

DO YOU USE PILLS?

If In Doubt About the Right Pills to Use Read the Following Letter Carefully:

"I am one of those persons whose system requires aid," writes Mr. Young Gledhill, from Picton, "but it is so easily affected by reason of the great sensitiveness of the bowels that ordinary drastic pills inflict great injury to the delicate coating, and excite such persistent activity as to be with difficulty checked.

"I wish in the highest terms to express the great value of Dr. Hamilton's Pills in cases like mine, and I am sure also for elderly people and the very weak, there is no pill like them.

"Speaking of my own experience with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I can say they have proved the most stimulating pills for the liver I have found. I have proved their tonic action upon digestion, and the same results have been secured by friends upon whom I have urged their use. The manufacturers are to be congratulated upon possessing so valuable a prescription, and the public should know that so valuable a remedy has been placed at their command."

No other pill for constipation, for liver, kidney, or stomach trouble, compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are mild and sure always to restore health. Refuse substitutes. Sold by all dealers, 25c per box, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston Ont.

COMMISSIONER'S PROFIT AT $8,000

Letters Said to be Missing in Connection With School Inquiry

MONTREAL, Feb. 8.—That certain letters, written to the Catholic Board of School Commissioners, offering land at a price cheaper than the board was asked to pay for a school site contiguous to it ultimately bought, cannot now be found, was a fact turned up by Judge Mercier's probe yesterday morning in the inquiry he is prosecuting into the allegations that have been made that a school commissioner profited to the extent of $8,000 by the sale of some land in Longue Pointe to the board.

Secretary Treasurer Lafontaine said he received letters offering land to the board in Longue Pointe at nineteen cents a foot, where as the price paid for the site actually acquired was thirty-six and a half cents a foot.

He turned the letters over to Commissioners Giroux and Lapointe on a motion by the board, who were instructed to look over the sites offered to them. He could not swear whether the letters were returned to him or not. Both Commissioner Giroux and Lapointe testified that they had seen the letters, but did not recollect whether they returned them to the secretary-treasurer or not.

Expert evidence was put in to show that land in the neighborhood of the site purchased by the board for thirty-six and one-half cents a foot last year was to-day selling for ten and a half cents a foot, this latter price being an increase on its value a year ago.

Yesterday Archie Larin, a real estate broker, who wrote one of the missing letters to the board, testified that he had been repeatedly informed that Mr. Giroux got $5,000 of the $8,000 alleged commission in the land deal.

Explaining What a Snob Really Is.

"Uncle Roy, what is a snob?"

"A snob, Eddie, is a person who inherits a great deal of money, goes abroad and buys himself a veneer of culture, returns home and poses as a connoisseur of something, and goes around calling his poor relations 'parvenus.' Why do you ask such a question, Eddie?"

"Because I heard Donald's big brother talking about you this afternoon and he said you were a snob."—[illegible]y Star.

Unfeeling.

"My husband is a brute," said the excitable woman.

"Have you been scolding him?"

"Of course I have."

"Ah, I supposed he talked back and used harsh language."

"Worse than that! He yawned!"

The Brock was the scene of one of the most exciting hockey battles of the season when the Dominion Express Company's Hustlers met the Canadian Express Company's Six Wheelers. POLICE COURT

Alexander Caldwell, who is charged with receiving stolen goods, came up again in Police Court this morning, and was remanded until February 13th. Caldwell is alleged to have accepted a pair of mitts from a young lad, who was also remanded until Feb. 13th, charged with the theft of a number of small articles, such as razors, knives, mitts, etc.

SOME AMUSING BLUNDERS.

Innocent Remarks That Have Made Many Congregations Laugh.

A divine in drawing the attention of his congregation to a special communion service on the following Sunday informed them that "the Lord is with us in the forenoon and the bishop in the evening."

A Scotch minister innocently, perhaps, hit the mark by telling his people, "Weel, friends, the kirk is urgently in need of siller, and as we have failed to get money honestly we will have to see what a bazaar can do for us."

There is a certain amount of excuse to be made for the young curate who, remarking that some people came to church for no better reason than to show off their best clothes, finished up as he glanced over his audience, "I am thankful to see, dear friends, that none of you has come here for that reason."

A negro student when conducting the prayers at one of the great missionary colleges, said, "Give us all pure hearts, give us all clean hearts, give us all sweet hearts," to which the entire congregation made response, "Amen."

The giving out of church notices has often proved a pitfall for the unwary. "During Lent," said a rector lately, "several preachers will preach on Wednesday evenings, but I need not give their names, as they will be all found hanging up in the porch."

A Jury of His Peers.

Bill Beck, a young negro, was before Justice Greer the other day charged with stealing a "shootin' iron" from Ellis Houston. He had just completed thirty days for carrying the gun. The squire asked him how he wanted to plead on the new charge.

"Might 's well say guilty," said Buck. "A nigger don't get no show in this country, nohow."

"Don't, eh?" said the court. "Nichols (the constable), you skirmish around and pick up a dozen or two likely colored men for jury service, and be quick. We'll show him!"

In half an hour the constable had the little courtroom full of grinning negroes of all shapes and sizes. Happy anticipation was written on the dusky faces. Every one of them knew Buck from his days of pickaninnism up, and Buck knew they knew. He glared at the ebony crowd and then turned sullenly to the court.

"If you's goin' ter make all dat fuss over a two bit popgun," he said, "I pleads guilty."—Holland's Magazine.

Taking More Care.

"I decided the other day that my little boy was getting altogether too big to have me sit with him till he went to sleep," says a Cleveland matron, "and while I was breaking him of this habit I thought I'd quit leaving a light in his room too. He's five years old. So last night I kissed him good night and said:

"'Now, Harold, you are going to be mamma's big, brave boy tonight and go to sleep all by yourself.'

"'Well,' he answered, 'I'll try, but leave the light burning.'

"'No, dear. If you're going to be a big boy I must turn out the light.'

"'Have I got to sleep in the dark?'

"'Yes.'

"'Then wait a minute till I say my prayers again an' do it carefuller.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Not What He Meant.

A party of four just returning from a theater called in at a fashionable restaurant. The prim old maid who was the guest of the evening was charmed with everything, especially the music. While the waiter was standing by the table she asked him to find out the title of the piece the orchestra was playing. The willing waiter promised, but other duties claimed him for awhile, and when he returned the lady had completely forgotten her request. When he bent toward her and softly whispered something in her ear she recoiled with horror. Then, recovering from the shock, she turned with cold, relentless fury upon the hapless man who waited.

"How dare you!" she cried. "How dare you!"

It took the terrified waiter quite a time to explain why he had merely breathed the title of the piece so softly, "What Can I Do to Make You Love Me?"—Tit-Bits.

His Price.

One of the cleverest of Cleveland's blind newspaper merchants takes his stand daily at one of the corners of the public square. He's got a sarcastic little sign that reads:

"Don't be ashamed to give me a penny; I'm blind."

The other day a friend of ours dropped a nickel in front of this chap just to see if he was faking. The blind man never shifted his blank gaze, but he said:

"Make it a quarter, boss, and I'm likely to forget myself."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Tough.

"There is a lot of injustice in the world," observed the aged monkey as he watched the crowds file past his cage.

"What's the matter now?" asked his mate.

"Those humans out there can go around bragging that they are descended from us, and we have no comeback," replied the disgusted simian.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Why He Wanted It.

Arthur's mother sent him to the hardware store to buy a thermometer. He stated his wants to the salesman.

"Did your mother say what size you were to get?" asked the salesman.

"Why," replied the boy, "just give me the biggest one you've got. You see, it's to warm my bedroom with."—Harper's Bazar.

An Empty Feast.

"Why did you leave that boarding house?"

"Because the swellness was at the expense of the food supply."

"What do you mean?"

"Four kinds of forks and two kinds of vegetables."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Many a loafer started out with splendid prospects.

A BIG PRICE PAID FOR A LITTLE POEM

It Won the French Author a Big Price For a Little Poem.

Francois Buloz, the founder and editor of the famous French journal, La Revue des Deux Mondes, was by no means celebrated for his generosity to contributors. One day shortly after the publication of Lamartine's "Les Girondins," and while the literary world was ringing with the fame of the great author, Buloz called on him and asked him to write an article for his magazine. Lamartine consented, but stated that he could not have it ready for some weeks.

Buloz, fearing that this was only an excuse and that he would never get the article, offered Lamartine an advance. It so happened that the author was in need of 4,000 francs at that time, and he so informed the editor, who at once handed over the money. Three months later he called Lamartine's attention to the fact that the contribution had not yet been received. It was toward the end of 1847, and the great author was devoting his entire time to politics.

"While you are waiting for this article would you care for a little poem I have here?" he asked Buloz.

He enthusiastically replied in the affirmative.

Months later, when Lamartine had become Minister of Foreign Affairs, Buloz again called upon him to remind him of the promised contribution.

"But you see my position," answered the Minister, "how busy I am!"

Buloz frowned.

"But, Citizen Minister, a certain amount of money was advanced, and the interests of my magazine do not permit me to"—

"How much was it?"

"Four thousand francs."

Lamartine took this amount of money from the drawer and laid it upon his desk.

The editor, however, looked somewhat embarrassed.

"Well, what more can I do for you? You have your money."

"The fact is, I owe you for a small poem."

"Oh, that's not worth mentioning! I'll make you a present of it."

Buloz drew himself up haughtily.

"Citizen Minister, La Revue des Deux Mondes does not accept presents. How much do I owe you?"

"Oh, well, if you insist," answered Lamartine dryly as he took up the 4,000 francs and replaced them in his drawer, "we will call it square!"

The One Person.

There was a certain old minister who had a blunt way of getting right at the bottom of things. With a solemn air he announced from the pulpit one day that a button had been found in the collection. "Only one individual in the church could have been guilty of this trick," he said, "and I shall expect this person to replace the button with a coin." After service a member of the church owned up to being the culprit and asked, "How did you know I was the man?" "I did not know," said the clergyman. "But you said only one person could have done it." "Just so," was the reply. "Two persons could not have put the same button on the plate."

HORSE'S LEG SWELLED

Animal Was Too Sore and Lame to Work—Quickly Cured by "Nerviline."

"I have had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no liniment for strains, sprains, and swelling that is so useful around the stable as Nerviline." Thus writes Mr. Joshua E. Murchison, from his home, Crofts Hill P. O. I had a fine young mare that wrenched her right fore leg, and from the shoulder down she was stiff, sore, and swollen. I applied Nerviline, and it worked like a charm; in fact, that mare was in shape to work a day after I used Nerviline.

Nerviline is a Trusty Liniment

"We have used Nerviline on our farm for twenty-five years and never found it wanting. For man or beast it is a wonderful liniment."

We have received nearly five thousand letters, recommending Nerviline as a general household liniment, as an all-round cure for aches and pains. One million bottles used each year. Try it yourself. Large bottles of Nerviline 50c; trial size, 25c. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

In a Perfume Factory.

Musk is perhaps the most valuable and delightful of all perfumes, yet the refiner, as he opens the musk pods, must wear thick cloths over mouth and nostrils, so repulsive is the odor that the pods emit. Indeed this odor inhaled for any length of time causes nosebleed.

Civet, karagiline and ambergris have in small quantities a delicious perfume, but in large quantities they smell so abominably as to give the worker nausea.

The hawthorn blossom is delicately sweet, and perfumers prize it highly, yet a roomful of hawthorn blossoms smells like a charnel house. This, too, is true of the tuberose.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Catarrh and Bronchitis

The Bane of Thousands, and has Hitherto Baffled the Skill of Medical Science.

Catarrhozone

Dry air treatment is the one treatment that will cure these diseases.

What stomach medicine has ever been known to cure Catarrh or Bronchitis?

Catarrhozone is not a stomach medicine, but an air medicine, that carries to the remotest parts of the throat, lungs, and air cells little drops of healing so curative that whenever it touches germ life it kills and eradicates them from the system.

Thousands of doctors and patients have been disappointed by using stomach medicines for coughs and colds. Have you not found it a rather roundabout way to reach the diseased portion of the throat and lungs?

Why not use Catarrhozone, which is breathed to the very root of the disease and heals so quickly and perfectly that every spot is rebuilt with new healthy tissue?

Catarrhozone is the only medicine that will cure. Thousands have testified.

Think for a moment. Is it not sense? Little drops of healing—the air carries them just where disease exists. That is why

Music and Drama

Miss Charlotte Walker, who is meeting with marked success in her tour in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," is one of the best dressed women on the stage, and yet she gives comparatively little attention to clothes.

"It is only a plain woman," she said recently, "who needs to think of clothes as clothes. The pretty woman has far less occasion for deep thought about how she shall be clothed: Hers is only to think of clothes as a background for her beauty. The first question, the last indeed, and the only one a pretty woman need ask herself about a garment is, 'Does it make me prettier?' If the answer is 'no,' she should go further in her shopping. No arbitrary rules should govern the woman to whom clothes are a mere accessory."

Gus Hill is a lucky manager. his is his third season for "Mutt and Jeff," the play built around the humorous cartoon characters in the Hearst daily papers. Mr. Hill has four companies on tour, and each one of them is turning in a handsome profit to the producer.

Franz Lehar, the composer of "The Count of Luxembourg" which Klaw and Erlanger are presenting on tour and also of "Eva," now at the New Amsterdam Theatre in New York, is a native of Hungary. Speaking of his Career as a composer, Mr. Lehar says:

"From my father I undoubtedly inherited my love for music. He was a kapellmeister for a regiment stationed at Kamarom, the greatest fortress in Hungary, and there is was born in 1870. My musical education began early. When I was twenty years old I became kapellmeister for a Hungarian regiment, and enjoyed the distinction of being the youngest at that time in all Hungary. I do all the detail work connected with composing and orchestrating my works in my studios in Vienna and Bad Ischl. but a great many of my ideas for the waltzes and other music come to me while I am walking in the woods. It is while out there with nature, with the beautiful flowers and trees about me with birds singing their melodies above my head, that my best waltzes came to me."

It is stated that Lord Howard De Walden, whose opera, "Children of the Don," Oscar Hammerstein produced in London last year, has bought the mortgage for $200,000 on the London Opera House. It has been hitherto held by Joel Brothers, the South African magnates.

Whether this portends society management of the theatre by Lord De Walden and Arthur Stanley, who is now in New York, is arousing considerable interest.

Richard Strauss' much advertised opera, "Rosenkavalier," was presented to a London audience for the first time. From a society point of view it was a tremendous success, for seldom in the height of a London season has Covent Garden seated such a distinguished audience. As for the opera itself, the ordinary layman voted it extremely dull and boring, but musical critics find plenty to admire in it.

George Primrose, the minstrel, formerly of London, Ont., by a decision of Supreme Court Justice Keogh wins a legal battle started by his wife, Mrs. Esther Primrose, to settle their martial difficulties.

Mrs Primrose sued for separation and alimony. The court's finding simply states:

"I direct judgment for the defendant without costs."

Mrs. Primrose, in her suit, alleged that her husband had been cruel and inhuman and that he had abandoned her. Primrose denied the allegations and made counter charges of cruelty. Mrs. Primrose contended that her husband's income was at least $25 a year, but he claimed this was a gross exaggeration.

The healthiness or otherwise of the actor's life is being discussed in relation to Mr. Forbes Robertson's recent assertion on the eve of his retirement that it is a healthy one. Bad ventilation, close quarters artificial excitement, late hours, would seem to make for illness and short life. But apart from the many notable instances of longevity among the members of the histrionic progression, the ordinary theatregoer must have noticed how seldom the successful performer is 'out of the bill" through illness. It is always the "understudy who is "sick" through never having a chance of supplanting the principal. For, after all, the actor must live a regular life, and the mere exercise of his profession, tends to keep him physically fit.

There was more than satire in Sir William Gilbert's remark to a famous and strenuous player after the play in the dressing room: "How well your son acts!"

Robert B. Mantell, the Shakespearean star, who is now touring Canada, says that while walking along a street in Montreal the other day he came upon a sign in front of a moving picture theatre which mightily amused him.

Thus ran the sign in letters of light. "Desdemona" founded upon Shakespeare's pretty little love story, "Othello."

Mr. Walter Stocker was in Toronto on Thursday and attended the Clara Butt concert, at Massey Hall, from which hundreds of people were turned away. It was her second visit to Toronto within one month.

"Had the Star Course been a success,' said Mr. Stocker, "Peterborough people would have had the opportunity of hearing this great artist." It is probable, however, that an effort will be made to bring Madame Butt here next season.

The piano is one of our best known musical instruments. It was invented several hundred years ago and in its earlier incarnations was known as the spinet or the harpsichord and afforded eminent artists many opportunities to portray languishing ladies seated before it, says the Chicago Post.

The piano comes either as an upright or a grand. The grand is a large, flat proposition that takes up several hundred dolars' worth of room, while the upright has a nice smooth top on which bric-a-brac may be placed.

The piano is usually played by young ladies until the young man proposes. It is also played by young men in tin pan song shops. In those places the youth, who has flowing hair and a discouraged necktie, allows a cigarette to hang from one corner of his month while he shouts a song from the other corner and uses the loud pedal exclusively.

In the old days, before women became advanced as they are now, it was considered quite some doings to play a piece on the piano which required the hands to be crossed. Nowadays the piano is fitted with a self playing attachment, and the young man caller feeds a porous plaster into it.

Many East Indian theaters keep their performances going until 4 or 5 o'clock in the morning. These dramatic orgies are not, says the Times of India, however, due to the length of the plays, as in Chinese theaters, but to the fact that the tramcars do not begin running till 5 o'clock. As the spectators gather from distant villages and have strong objections to paying gharry hire, they expect to be entertained until the trams start.

Racine, the French writer, composed his work while walking rapidly about, shouting out the lines in a loud voice. One day while he was thus composing part of his play of "Mithridates" in the Tuilleries gardens in Paris he was surrounded by a group of workmen who took him to be a maniac. On his return home from these walks he would write down scene after scene in prose, and when they were finished he would exclaim, "My tragedy is done!" considering the transposition of the lines into verse only a trivial thing.

NOVEL USE OF GRAMOPHONE

The other day a party of musical people were discussing the wonderful use of Tetrazzini, and a dispute arose as to her range. To settle the argument one of the gentlemen present agreed to send for his gramaphone and his six records of the great singer. The instrument was filling the room with melody. and before the six records were run through, every one in the room had convincing evidence of the range of her voice, and what is more, Mr. Owner was persuaded to send for all his records, so that an evening that opened with argument ended with the best music that the world can produce. 65

THE AD. CLUB LUNCHEON

Mayor Bradburn Gives the Address on Monday Noon.

As was to be expected, considerable interest has developed amongst the local business men and others over the meeting of the Peterborough Ad Club for Monday noon next when His Worship, Mayor Bradburn, will be the speaker and will address the Club members and others present on "Peterborough and Its Advantages, and some things that require to be done to place Peterborough farther in the forefront of civic progress.' Peterborough has not hitherto come into all of her rightful own. Our city is not appreciated as it should be appreciated by our own citizens. Peterborough is not known as Peterborough ought to be known elsewhere and abroad in other places. We have not done all that we might have done to make Peterborough a better place in which to live and in which to prosper. Mayor Bradburn during the course of his brief address at the Ad Club luncheon on Monday noon next, will touch upon these things and outline his views of what should be done to bring about the desirable end we all so much desire.

As has been announced the luncheon will be held at 12 o'clock noon and continue for one hour and twenty minutes. The place of meeting will be at Hooper's Palm Parlours.

The executive find it quite impossible to call on the local business men and others who would like to be present at the luncheon, and therefore ask you to consider this notice as a personal invitation. Reservation for tickets at the luncheon can be had on phoning to Mr. G. O. Cameron, at No. 1200. It is necessary that reservations be received early so that suitable accommodation can be provided for all who choose to take advantage of this unique opportunity to hear Mayor Bardburn and to take part with him in bringing about better things for Peterborough.

HORTICULTURE

Committee Appointed to Arrange for Flower Show

Peterborough is practically assured of having a Flower Show this summer under the auspices of the Horticultural Society. At a meeting of the latter last evening a committee, composed of Messrs. Walter Stocker, R. Glover, F. Wise, Mrs. Hazen Ritchie, and the President and Secretary of the Society was appointed to make all arrangements for the event. Their duties will consist of securing a suitable place in the city for holding the show, drafting the prize list, etc.

The date is expected to be towards the last of the first week in September.

The Exhibition will be conducted in a thoroughly modern manner and is calculated to arouse more interest in horticultural matters in the city.

The annual Convention of the Canadian Florists' Association will also be held in Peterborough during the first week in August.

Choir Entertained

The choir of St. Andrew's church enjoyed an outing last night by driving out to the farm residence of Mr. Walter McKee, a couple of miles past Jackson Park. The evening was spent with music and games, followed by refreshments. Mr. and Mrs. McKee were capital entertainers.

Who opens a week's engagement at The Grand next Monday, Feb. 10 in "Lena Rivers," at popular prices of 10c, 20c, 30c. It is four years since May A. Bell Marks visited Peterboro.

ANNUAL REPORT OF SANITARY INSPECTOR

1865 Inspections of Houses and Premises Made—92 Complaints Investigated—28 Dairy Farms Inspected—Some Important Recommendations.

The following is the First Annual Report as made by the Sanitary Inspector to the Medical Health Officer:

1865 systematic inspections of houses and premises have been made.

2000 other calls and visits have been paid, besides a number of visits to yards, etc., not recorded.

312 notices for the abatement of nuisances have been served.

92 bona-fide complaints investigated.

36 manure heaps provided with coverings.

22 police court summonses issued.

136 samples of milk procured and tested.

28 dairy farms inspected.

All the laundries, bakeshops, and restaurants have been systematically inspected. In addition a close supervision of the yards and lanes has been maintained, and a large amount of time devoted to the garbage collecting.

COLLECTION OF GARBAGE

The garbage collecting system which was organized in the spring may unhesitatingly be declared a success, and warrants the recommendation of the collection being extended all over the city.

The only friction met with was consequent upon the contractor insisting upon the receptacles being placed on or near the sidewalk, and his refusal to go into the yards and back lanes, where turning around was necessary. Comment from me on this procedure would perhaps be out of place, as it is a matter of individual opinion.

The disposal of the refuse is, of course the greatest problem, but this ~~I trust~~ will be solved by the passing of the by-law to erect an incinerator, the only safe, sane and efficient method of disposing of garbage. The keeping of garbage in proper covered receptacles has on the whole been fairly well observed, but I look forward to the day when galvanized iron garbage cans will be a recognized adjunct to every household and supplied by the landlord as one of the house fixtures.

MARKET

I strongly recommend the consideration of regulations covering the manner of bringing meat and poultry into the city, and the sale of butter in the market hall with regard to meat. Chatham holds a position that Peterborough might well envy. This city has a public abattoir where all animals before and after slaughtering are examined by a Government Inspector, and stamped, and the following clause in their market by-law was passed on Nov. 15th, 1910:

"That all meat brought into the City of Chatham for sale shall be

With reference to the sale of poultry I would recommend that all birds be "drawn." This is one of the regulations in force in Brockville. The tasting of butter with knives, forks and spoons is a most unsanitary and disgusting proceeding and should be abolished. I have advocated all these reforms on the market, but without the covered with a freshly cleaned white cloth."

authority of a by-law to support me, results are not so encouraging as they might be.

COMPULSORY SEWER CONNECTION.

Peterborough will never be a model sanitary city until the area for compulsory sewer connection is extended; indeed, I would respectfully urge that wherever sewers are laid connection should be made. The number of insanitary closet arrangements is far too excessive, and although this year we have been marvellously immune from infectious diseases we cannot hope to escape indefinitely as long as these disease-breeding grounds exists. The old argument, so often used, that these conditions have long existed without serious consequences, is a poor one. Sooner or later the specific germ will arrive, and if the conditions are favorable for its propagation, the results will be disastrous, therefore, as far as possible, let us abolish the outside closet.

SCAVENGING.

From the number of complaints received, the system, (or lack of it) of scavenging in Peterborough in my opinion requires consideration!

Under the existing circumstances the people who, unfortunately, have to employ these men are in the unenviable position, figuratively speaking, of being between the devil and the deep sea.

The scavengers are not restricted as to amount of fees, and the tenants have to choose between paying an often exhorbitant sum for the work, or being fined for neglecting to have the work done. It seems to me unjust that tenants should be responsible for this work; surely they are entitled to proper sanitary conveniences. As a preliminary move to the better organization of this branch of sanitary work, (which properly should be undertaken by corporation workmen). I would suggest that scavengers shall procure a license or permit from the Board of Health, that a uniform charge per cubic foot of material be made, and that the scavengers report daily to the Sanitary Inspector all work done by them. These regulations are in force in the City of Chatham.

PIGS AND POULTRY.

With regard to the keeping of pigs and poultry, the former in my opinion should not be allowed to be kept under any circumstances in the city limits, and for the latter a minimum distance from a dwelling house should be specified.

WORDS OF APPRECIATION.

I should like to take this opportunity of expressing my deep appreciation of the assistance I have received from the press of this city. Their willingness to publish gratuitously information relating to the administration of the Sanitary Department has been a very material aid, and has considerably lightened the labour attached to the efficient discharge of the duties of this position.

G.T.R. MACHINE SHOPS TO BE MOVED TO PETERBORO'

The Midland Free Press says: "A rumor is afloat that the Grand Trunk Railway Company is contemplating some changes in their machine shops. It is said the shops at Lindsay will be moved to Peterborough, while the Allandale shops will be transferred to Tiffin at Midland. Official announcement of this has not yet been made, but is expected at any time. Should this occur it will mean from ten to twenty more families for Midland."

ACCIDENT MIGHT HAVE HAD SERIOUS RESULTS

Percy Kennedy, a driver for E. F. Mason had an experience last evening about six o'clock, that will remain with him for some time to come.

His route of delivery found him on the elevated continuation of Murray street. On turning the corner at Rubidge street, the sleigh which was well laden with supplies, slewed on the icy road and the horse being unable to obtain a firm grip, gradually lost his footing with the result that sleigh, driver and horse went down the steep embankment landing on the ice covering the creek. According to the driver, the outfit including himself practically somersaulted no less than three times.

Strange to say, the horse or driver was not injured, and but little damage was done to the sleigh.

This is a very dangerous thoroughfare. Other accidents of a similar character have occurred at this point and the city has been fortunate in that damage claims have not been prosecuted.

Greedy Dogfish.

A story is going the rounds in which four anglers were occupied with one fish, a big mackerel. It took the bait of one of them and then proceeded to entangle the four lines, so that it seemed there were four fish. I dare say it came in for some hard sayings when the truth was made manifest. But it is not uncommon for fish to take two different baits. I have known it to happen with both perch and pike. Dogfish, of course, will often do it. In fact, I doubt if there is a limit to the number of baits a dogfish would take if you only gave him the baits and the time and the opportunity.—London Telegraph.

White Robed Blacksmiths.

Extraordinary precautions are taken by the Korean blacksmith before he attempts to shoe any Korean horse which is noted for its bad temper and likely to flourish its heels if not securely tied up first. Sight of one of the small ponies trussed up to the heavy timber framework is ludicrous, however, and in a way may be termed "horseshoeing on the safety plan." White costumes would look out of place for a blacksmith's use almost anywhere else, but in Korea all men wear white garments. Young men also wear their hair screwed up in hard knots on the top of their heads as a sign they are married.

DIAZ SEIZES THE CAPITAL AFTER FREED FROM PRISON

President Madero is at Bay in His Palace While Insurrectors, After a Day of Fighting in the Streets, Hold the Arsenal and Federal Buildings---Madero Still Hopeful.

Canadian Press Despatch.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 10. — Uncertainty prevailed here to-day as to the probable outcome of yesterday's revolt by the army. The residents spent a quiet but sleepless night expecting more fighting to-day. The populace did not know to-day whether General Madero had fled from the capital or not though it was generally believed he was gone, and reason assigned was a refusal of General Blanquet, who had arrived with a small force, to support him.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 10.—President Francisco Madero, with his Ministers and a strong detachment of loyal troops is fortified in the national palace while Gen. Felix Diaz, with a large majority of the regulars behind him has practical control in the capital.

In several bloody encounters yesterday, the President and his supporters succeeded in defending themselves against the rebels, and notwithstanding the fact that the troops in large numbers are in a state of revolt which carried all before them yesterday, there was an appearance of genuine optimism at the palace among Madero and his Ministers.

To all parts of the republic Madero telegraphed reassuring news which he and his Cabinet seemed to believe. The state governors and military commanders were assured of the loyalty of the army and that tranquility had been restored.

The army rose in revolt in Mexico City yesterday, took possession of the public buildings, shot down Federal adherents in the streets, released Gen. Felix Diaz, the leader of the Vera Crux revolt from prison and falling into line, under his banner, practically captured the Mexican capital.

Francisco Madero, President of the republic, and the members of his Cabinet, took refuge in the National Palace, where they were besieged, but, with some loyal troops at their back, succeeded in defending the palace from the assaults of the revolutionists.

Madero's family has taken refuge in the Japanese legation, and last night the President was making a fight, desperate in its efforts against what appears to be enormous odds for retention of his power.

Gen. Diaz, who is the nephew of the deposed President, Porfirio Diaz, is now at the head of a majority of the capital troops, including most of the artillery, and is in possession of the arsenal in the city and the power works nearby.

Madero is relying on the loyalty of Gen. Blanquet, who has been summoned from Toluca, forty miles distance, but Banquet has only a thousand men under his command, and the rebels are confident of defeating him, should he refuse to join in the movement of revolt.

The day was marked by four separate engagements, the most sanguinary of which took place in front of the National Palace, but the most important was that which terminated in the formal surrender of the troops in the artillery barracks.

It is believed that not less than 200 persons were killed in the fighting. Among the number was Gen. Bernardo Reyes, a strong adherent of Porfirio Dias and an ex-Secretary of War.

The mutinous troops were led by the students of the military school at Tlaalpam, a suburb. They marched to the prison to which Gen. Felix Diaz had been transferred for safekeeping, and released him. Gen. Bernardo Reyes was also freed from Santiago military prison, there being no resistance in either quarter.

To the army of the mutineers quickly came portions of the first cavalry, Twenty-Fourth cavalry, and Twentieth infantry. Gen. Manuel Mondragon, retired, was in command, but gave way to Generals Diaz and Reyes.

At the first call to arms President Madero took command of a force of approximately 1,000, consisting of mounted police, Chalpultepec cadets and a small detachment of volunteers. He appeared at the head of this force a mile from the National Palace, riding a big grey horse. By his side rode Gen. Huerta, hero of the campaign against Orozco, and one of the army generals whom the public generally had suspected of being disloyal.

The revolt in its unexpectedness, was such as to stupify the populace, the lower elements apparently not knowing for whom to cheer. This is popularly given as the reason for the lack of pillaging and looting.

The attack on the National Palace found the Government not altogether unprepared. In the interim between the release of Gen. Diaz and Gen. Reyes from prison, Gustavo Madero, brother of the President, and Governor Garza of the federal district, learned of the plans of the rebels. The Minister of War and Gen. Villar made hasty preparations to guard the palace against attack. Riding at the head of their troops, Generals Diaz and Reyes approached from the east into Zocalo, the big square in front of the palace.

Gen. Reyes appeared for the first time in many months in the uniform of a general, but Diaz was clothed in the ordinary blue black suit and soft gray hat of a citizen.

Gen. Gregorio Ruis, a retired officer; two captains and three lieutenants were executed in the patio of the National Palace. It is reported that this was by order of the Government, but another story is that they were killed by a detachment of their own men because they opposed joining the revolt. Added to this is the report that these mutinous troops were overpowered and disarmed.

The red and white cross ambulances carried the wounded to provisional hospitals, where investigation showed there were almost as many victims among civilians as among the soldiers. Outside of the fighting between the two opposing sides there was little disorder, and last night the streets were patrolled by the rebel troops. During the day only one mob assembled. It attacked the building of El Pais, the only independent morning newspaper in Spanish. The building was partially burned.

SCHOOL TEACHER IS DROWNED

PRINCE AT ST. LUCIA.

King's Second Son Is Visiting the British West Indies.

KINGSTOWN, St. Vincent, B.W.I., Feb. 10.—The Island of St. Lucia was brilliant with bunting Saturday on account of the arrival there of Prince Albert, the second son of King George, who is making a tour of the West Indies on board the British armored cruiser Cumberland, which is a training ship for the naval cadets of Great Britain.

The young prince landed Friday amid popular demonstrations. He will remain in the Windward Islands for two weeks, proceeding to Trinidad with the other cadets on Feb. 20.

G.T.R. ELEVATOR AT FORT WILLIAM ONT.
FIRST TRAIN OVER THE NATIONAL TRANSCONTINENTAL RAILWAY

The first train over the Grand Trunk Pacific consisted of 24 cars loaded with wheat, consigned to Maple Leaf Milling Co., Port Colborne, Ont. Leaving Transcona, on the G. T. P., Dec. 24th, it was delivered to the National Transcontinental at Lake Superior Junction, the following morning, travelling thence via Cochrane, over the National Transcontinental and Grand Trunk Railway, arriving at Port Colborne Dec. 31st.

The second unit to the G. T. P. elevator at Fort William, is progressing favorably. This will give a capacity of 5,750,000 bushels—the largest grain bin in the world—but there are further units to be added, which will make the final capacity 20,000,000 bushels. Ten elevators of similar size would be able to hold the entire harvest of the Great Canadian Northwest.

CAPT. SCOTT AND HIS PARTY PERISH

Were Returning From South Pole Which They Discovered Jan. 18, 1912---Heroic Band Caught in a Blizzard.

CANADIAN PRESS DESPATCH.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The death of Captain Robert F. Scott and of the entire party which he commanded in his Antartic expedition is reported in a news agency despatch received here to-day.

Scott's party reached the exact point where Amundsen planted the Norwegian flag at the South Pole. They found a hut constructed and left there by Amundsen. These facts are recorded in documents found on the bodies of the dead explorers.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—No particulars have yet been received as to how the disaster overtook Scott's party nor the number and names of those lost. The report wired from New Zealand and that sixty six persons perished, must be based on conjecture unless the number of those who remained at the base died of disease, for Scott took only sixteen men with him in his dash for the Pole and proposed sending back four from each stage.

Among the twenty-eight officers and scientists in the party was C. S. Wright of Toronto, who occupied the position of chemist with the expedition.

OAMARU, NEW ZEALAND, Feb. 10.—Captain Robert F Scott and his party were overwhelmed by a blizzard on their return from the south pole. The entire party perished. They reached the south pole Jan. 18th, 1912.

London, Feb. 10— Up to a late hour this afternoon it was not known how many of his companions perished with Scott, nor where the disaster happened. Captain Terra Nova sent only a few brief bulletins from Oamaru and then proceeded to Lyttleton where the vessel will not arrive till Thursday. It is believed however, that only four were lost with Scott and it is believed they are Dr. Wilson, Capt. Oates, Lieut. Bowers and Petty Officer Evans. Never the less the catastrophe has cast a gloom over London not equalled since the death of King Edward.

WILL MAKE CARTRIDGES

Remington Company to Locate on Outskirts of Windsor.

WINDSOR, Feb. 10.—On a tract of land 100 acres in extent, which has been secured near the southerly limits of Windsor, the Remington Arms Union Metallic Cartridge Co. of New York is shortly to establish a big plant which will enable the company to enter the Canadian field on a very extensive scale. The site purchased includes property on the south side of Tecumseh road extending along Howar devenue from the tracks of the C.P.R. The deal was closed within the last day or two, and formal announcement was made Saturday by Secretary A. W. Jackson, of the Windsor Board of Trade.

Immediately following the closing of the deal the company awarded contracts for its first buildings to Windsor contractors. Construtcion work will be started at once, and it is expected that one building in which at least fifty men will be given employment will be ready in April. Future plans for the factory have not yet been completed by the company. It has been decided, however, to confine the operations to the manufacture of cartridges for the present, and a plant requiring several hundred employes will be completed in the near future.

Found His Wife Dead.

CORNWALL, Feb. 10.—Jeremiah Blair, a tinsmith, who is employed by the firm of Hermiston & Currie here, made the discovery when he returned home from his day's work on Saturday night that Mrs. Blair had dropped dead in her bedroom during his absence. Mrs. Blair was in her 23rd year and had been subject to weakness of heart for some time. Her eighteen-months-old daughter was in the room with her dead mother when the father arrived home.

BULGARIANS FIGHTING TO SECURE THE PENINSULA

Enver Bey Has Tried to Land Troops In the Threatened Territory to Relieve Pressure on Army There—Tchatalja Attacks of the Allies Have Been Abandoned, It Is Said

Canadian Press Despatch.

Podgoritza, Montenegro, Feb. 10.—Th. Montenegrin army this morning carried Bardanjoli Hill which dominated Scutari from the east, in a hand to hand fight and are mounting siege guns on the heights to bombard the principal points of the city.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—Some light is beginning to be shed by the brief official despatches, which contain almost all the available news upon the military tactics in the Balkan campaign.

The reports of attempts on the part of the Turks to land troops along the coast of the Black Sea and the Sea of Marmora, which heretofore were only learned from unofficial sources, are now offically admitted, and it looks as though Enver Bey's mysterious and desperate move, of which there have been some rumors, was an attempt to effect a landing at Charkeui, about 35 miles to the southeast of Rhodosto, with the intention to relieve the pressure of the Bulgarian attack on the Bulair lines.

This movement of the Bulgarians, according to an uncensored despatch from Constantinople, is causing serious anxiety at the Turkish War Office. It is known that the allies are marching in strength against Bulair, and the Constantinople despatch adds that the Greek fleet has appeared in the Gulf of Saros, where Servian troops are also reported to have been landed to lend assistance to the Bulgarians.

It now seems clear that the allies have abandoned the attempt to force the Tchataljas lines in favor of an attempt to capture the Gallipoli peninsula, so as to open the way by sea to Constantinople.

According to Turkish reports, Turkish reconnoissances have reached Tcherkesskeui and Tchorlu, which would indicate that the Bulgarians, who a few days ago were reported to have moved their headquarters to Tcherkesskeui, are moving their lines still further to the west.

King Ferdinand has gone to Dedeagatch, in order to be closer to the scene of important operations.

Apparently heavy fighting is occurring near Scutari, and the bombardment of Adrianople is still in progress.

There is no confirmation of a report from Constantinople that Turkey is sending a new peace delegation to London.

Heavy Fighting at Scutari.

PODGORITZA, Montenegro, Feb. 10.—Fighting outside of Scutari continued throughout the whole of Friday night. The bombardment was resumed Saturday afternoon and before sunrise yesterday along the whole front.

Both sides are stubbornly maintaining their positions. The Montenegrins on three occasions stormed the highest point of the great Bardanjoli hill, sustaining heavy losses.

The wounded from Saturday's fighting at Bardanjoli, who have arrived at the king's headquarters, give heartrending accounts of the scenes they witnessed, and pay tribute to the heroic courage of the Turks.

CANAL COMPLETED BY AUGUST, 1914

$400,000.00 is Provided for Work at the Northern End

The immediate success and completion of the Trent Valley Canal project is now assured. The estimates brought down the other day provide $1,000,000 for the Trent Canal. This does not mean any revote. Upon Mr. Burnham inquiring of the Minister how much was intended for the completion of the northern end, he said not less than $400,000. The rest of the canal is under contract, and unless something unforseen happens, the Canal from Lake Simcoe down to Lake Ontario will be opened and in working order in August, 1914.

Two years will suffice for the completion of the northern end, so that in two years from this time the canal will be an accomplished fact, and in running order, and we may expect to see a vast amount of imports of western grain into Peterborough, and also a vast expansion of the milling industry in Peterborough.

Western wheat and oats are necessary for the mills here. The matter of freight rates and insufficient transportation will be avoided, and we may expect to see Industries like the Quaker Oats Company doubling, and even trebling in size. Considerable energy has been displayed by the members along the route of the canal, and credit must be given them for consistently pressing for an immediate completion.

The banquet in Orillia which Mr. Burnham and Mr. Buller attended was an event of considerable importance, and the high hopes entertained on that occasion of the completion of the canal from what the Minister said in his speech have been fully justified.

In addition to grain, it will be possible with the use of electric power, to bring in pulp wood and establish paper mills along the Trent route, also mineral ore, in fact when the canal is opened Peterborough will have all the advantages of being a city on the great waterway of the Dominion. It is understood to be the intention of the Borden Government to deepen and increase in size the Trent Canal.

SETTLERS MASSACRED

LISBON, Feb. 10.—Advices from Mozambique, Africa, say that the notorious native chief, Napana, recently raided the Nampula district of Mozambique, massacring a large number of European settlers.

The governor immediately despatched a punitive expedition of 1,000 men. After a march of nearly 400 miles in the broiling sun the expedition came upon the chief and his band and completely routed them after five hours' fighting, killing 200 and wounding 500. The Portuguese lost four men killed and 22 wounded.

The victory is considered very important because a new regime will be opened for Portuguese development.

MURDERED THE PRIME MINISTER

Prince Katsura Stoned to Death in Tokio

Was About to Resign When Mob Attacked Him

Canadian Press Despatch.

Tokio, Feb. 10— Prince Katsura, Prime Minister, was stoned to death by a mob, after he had offered the resignation of himself and the cabinet. Crowds also attacked newspaper offices to set them afire, there were many riots in various parts of the city and a number of policemen and civilians were injured. The excitement continues.

The wagon upset and Bishop fell from the top of the load, sustaining a fracture of the skull and broken arm. He passed away yesterday in the General Hospital without regaining consciousness. He was 40 years old, and married.

WHITE SLAVE GANG SELL GIRLS FOR $25 AND $35

Traffickers In Women Got $12,000, and Gave Receipt For It—Girls Were Sent To Chicago.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The existence of a "white slave" gang that sells girls for $25 or $30 each to owners or keepers of disorderly resorts in Chicago was described to Judge Hand in the Federal Court Saturday by U. S. Assistant District Attorney Walker, who moved for heavy sentences for Frank Filasto, wine merchant, and Joseph Ribuffo, a barber of Paterson, N.J., convicted of forcing a young woman to enter a resort in Paterson. Sentences were deferred pending Judge Hand's decision on motions for a new trial.

Money order receipts showing that "white slavers" operating in this city have received $12,000 in return for girls sent to Chicago, are in the Government's hands. Telegrams mentioning names of victims, prices paid for them, and names of agents who accompanied them west are also declared to have been obtained by the Federal authorities.

Arguing his motion for maximum penalty for Filasto and Ribuffo, Mr. Walker told the court that an alleged member of the gang had been arrested in Chicago and held in $3,000 bail there. The telegrams passed between the Chicago man and Filasto, said Mr. Walker, who mentioned a west side druggist, a physician, and Joseph Merino, now serving eight years as a "white slaver" as other members of the "ring." Filasto's wine shop in Chinatown was declared by Mr. Walker to be the gang's headquarters here.

FIREMAN DIES FROM BURNS

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 10.—On Jan. 23, Gordon Jamieson, a G.T.R. fireman, was frightfully burned in an accident, which occurred to a freight train at Madoc Junction, on the line of the Grand Trunk Railway. He passed away in the hospital here on Saturday. He was an Englishman, 19 years old, and had no relatives in this country. An inquest will be held.

Rich Son Turns Syndicalist.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The son and heir of Baron Armstrong, the Hon. Wm. John Montagu Armstrong, yesterday avows himself a syndicalist in a communication to a newspaper in Newcastle-on-Tyne, where his father's great shipbuilding yards are located.

In the course of his article Mr. Armstrong affirms that the masses of the people are seething with justified discontent. Their wages are low, he says, and their rents high, while caste distinctions rend in twain the unity of all nations.

PULP NOW BARRED FROM ENTERING UNITED STATES

President Taft Issues Order Denying Free Entry of Quebec Pulp and Paper—Action Taken Just In Advance of the Reported Plan of Big Manufacturers To Send Large Shipment Into The United States.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—President Taft Saturday denied the right of free entry from Canada into the United States of wood pulp and paper made from the timber of certain Crown lands in Quebec, on which that province recently announced it had removed export restrictions. The President sustained the decision of Secretary MacVeagh of the Treasury Department, that Quebec's action was not sufficient to entitle these products to free importation under the only operative clause of the Canadian reciprocity agreement, which abolished the duty on wood pulp and paper provided Canada did not restrict their exportation in any manner. This action forestalls the reported plan of four big paper manufacturers of Canada to send a large shipment of paper to this country.

Secretary MacVeagh found, after an extensive investigation, that Quebec had not actually removed the restrictions on the exportation of the timber grown on the lands involved. It developed that the four companies leasing the lands would certainly not export the wood, but would convert it into paper before sending it to the United States. Quebec, it is declared, refused to remove the export restrictions from other crown lands held by companies which would export timber.

The primary purpose of the law, the Secretary held, and the President agreed, was to induce Canada to remove export restrictions, so that wood could be freely imported into this country for manufacture into paper. He consequently challenged the sufficiency of Quebec's action. Treasury officials deny that Quebec's case parallels the situation in British Columbia, which is given free entry. In that province only one company exports paper to this country, and no restriction is placed upon either timber, wood pulp or paper.

Apples at Half Price.

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—Chicago club women Saturday continued their bargain sale of apples to the public at about half the regular market prices. The apples were furnished by twenty commission dealers, and were on sale at 3,000 groceries in different parts of the city.

Officers of the Chicago Clean Food Club declared that more apples were sold Saturday, the opening day of the sale, than any other day in the city's history. Fifteen thousand apples were distributed among pupils of ten public schools.

A GIRL OF THE LIMBERLOST
BY GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Company.

"Hold steady!" cried Ammon. "Don't move for your life!" He rushed toward the moth, made a quick sweep and held it up between his fingers. "All right!" he called. "Thanks, every one! Excuse me a minute."

He ran to the office.

"An ounce of gasoline, quick!" he ordered. "A cigar box, a cork and the glue bottle."

He poured some glue into the bottom of the box, set the cork in it firmly, dashed the gasoline over the moth repeatedly, pinned it to the cork, poured the remainder of the liquid over it, closed the box and fastened it. Then he laid a bill on the counter.

"Pack that box with cork around it in one twice its size, tie securely and express to this address at once.

"Keep the change," called Ammon as he ran back to the pavilion.

Edith Carr stood where he left her, thinking rapidly. She heard the murmur that went up when Philip started to capture the exquisite golden creature she was impersonating. She saw the flash of surprise that went over unrestrained faces when he ran from the room without even showing it to her.

He had spoken of a country girl he had met who played the violin wonderfully, and at times he had showed a disposition to exalt her as a standard of womanhood. Miss Carr had ignored what he said and talked of something else. It was that girl who was collecting moths! No doubt she was the competent judge who was responsible for the yellow costume Philip had devised. Had Edith Carr been in her room she would have torn off the dress at the thought.

Being in a circle of her best friends, which to her meant her keenest rivals and hardest critics, she grew rigid with anger. Her breath hurt her paining chest. No one thought to speak to the musicians, and, seeing the floor filled, they began the waltz.

Edith Carr grew very white as she stood alone. The idolized only daughter of the Carr family hoped that she would drop dead from mortification, but nothing happened. She was too perverse to step aside laughingly and say that she was waiting for Philip. Then came Tom Levering dancing with Polly Ammon. Being in the scales with the Ammon family, Tom scented trouble from afar, so he whispered to Polly, "Edith is standing in the middle of the floor, and she's awful mad about something."

They hurried to Edith.

"Come, dear," said Polly. "We are going to wait with you until Phil gets back. Let's go for a drink. I am so thirsty!"

"My betrothed left me here," Edith said. "Here I shall remain until he returns for me, and then—he will be my betrothed no longer!"

Polly grasped Edith's arm.

"Oh, Edith!" she implored. "Don't make a scene here, and tonight. He can explain! It's only a breath since I saw him go out. I thought he had returned."

"He has been gone just long enough to show every one of his guests that he will leave me standing alone, like a neglected fool, for any passing whim of his. Explain! His explanation would sound well! Do you know for whom he caught that moth? It is being sent to a girl he flirted with all last summer."

Speech unloosed the fountain. She stripped off her gloves to free her hands. At that instant the dancers parted to admit Philip. Instinctively they stopped as they approached and with wondering faces walled in Edith and Philip, Polly and Tom.

"Mighty good of you to wait!" cried Ammon, his face beaming with delight over his success in capturing the yellow Emperor. "I thought when I heard the music you were going on."

"How did you think I was going on?" demanded Edith Carr in frigid tones.

"I thought you would step aside and wait a few seconds for me or dance with Henderson. It was most important to have that moth. It just completes a valuable collection for a person who needs the money. Come!"

He held out his arms.

"I 'step aside' for no one!" stormed Edith Carr. "I await no other girl's pleasure! You may 'complete the collection' with that!"

She drew her engagement ring from her finger and reached to place it in one of Philip's outstretched hands. Ammon saw and drew back. Instantly Edith dropped the ring. As it fell, almost instinctively Philip caught it in air.

"Edith, for the love of mercy, wait until I can explain!" he begged. "Put on your ring and let me tell you how it is."

"Never! Your conduct is infamous!"

"Come to think of it," said Ammon deliberately, "it is infamous to cut a girl who has danced all her life out of a few measures of a waltz. As for asking forgiveness for so black a sin as picking up a moth and starting it to a friend who lives by collecting them I don't see how I could. I have not been gone three minutes by the clock, Edith. Put on your ring and finish the dance like a dear girl."

He thrust the glittering ruby into her fingers and again held out his arms.

She dropped the ring, and it rolled some distance from them. Henderson followed its shining course and caught it before it was lost.

"You really mean it?" demanded Ammon in a voice as cold as hers ever had been.

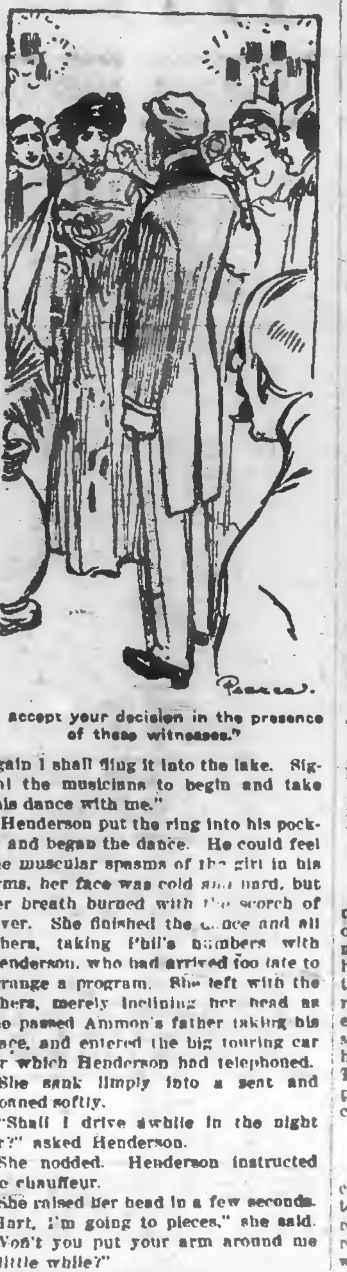
"You know I mean it!" cried Edith Carr.

"I accept your decision in the presence of these witnesses," said Philip Ammon.

"Where is my father?" he asked of those around them. The elder Ammon, with a distressed face, hurried to him. "Father, take my place," said Philip. "Excuse me to my guests. Ask all my friends to forgive me. I am going out for a time."

He turned and walked from the pavilion. As he went Hart Henderson rushed to Edith Carr and forced the ring into her fingers. "Edith, quick! Come, quick!" he implored. "There's just time to catch him. If you let him go that way he never will return in this world. Remember what I told you."

"Great prophet, aren't you, Hart?" she sneered. "Who wants him to return? If that ring is thrust upon me again I shall fling it into the lake. Signal the musicians to begin and take this dance with me."



"I accept your decision in the presence of these witnesses."

Henderson put the ring into his pocket and began the dance. He could feel the muscular spasms of the girl in his arms, her face was cold and hard, but her breath burned with the scorch of fever. She finished the dance and all others, taking Phil's numbers with Henderson, who had arrived too late to arrange a program. She left with the others, merely inclining her head as she passed Ammon's father taking his place, and entered the big touring car for which Henderson had telephoned.

She sank limply into a seat and moaned softly.

"Shall I drive awhile in the night air?" asked Henderson.

She nodded. Henderson instructed the chauffeur.

She raised her head in a few seconds. "Hart, I'm going to pieces," she said. "Won't you put your arm around me a little while?"

Henderson gathered her into his arms and her head fell on his shoulder. "Closer!" she cried.

Dawn was streaking the east when he spoke to her.

"Edith, it is growing light."

"Take me home," she said.

Henderson helped her up the steps and rang the bell.

Sulphur Bottom Whales.

Probably the largest of the whales, as well as the most gigantic of all living creatures, is the sulphur bottom. It attains a length of nearly or quite 100 feet and a weight of 150 tons. One individual measured 95 feet in length, 39 feet in girth, with a jawbone 21 feet long; baleen (whalebone), 4 feet long; weight of baleen, 800 pounds; weight of entire whale, 147 tons, and it yielded 110 barrels of oil. The sulphur bottom seldom bolts, as the whalers term the action of leaping diagonally from the sea, or breaches, as perpendicular springs are called, but when it does perform in this manner it presents a truly wonderful sight.

A Mozart Masterpiece.

An appeal for assistance was once made to Mozart, the composer, by an old acquaintance whose days had been more prosperous. Mozart, finding that he had no money in his pockets, asked the man to wait, entered a coffee room, sat down and composed a minuet. He went out, handed the manuscript to the man and suggested that he should sell it to a music dealer. The dealer gave 5 louis for the composition, which was on publication considered a masterpiece.

They Would Fight "Awful"

A Daughter Objects to Her Mother's Second Marriage

By ELLEN OGILVIE

I was twelve years old when paw died—old enough to know that his death was a double calamity to me. I had lost him, and I stood in danger of a stepfather. I could not recall him, but I vowed that if any man came into the house to take his place he would have to walk in over my dead body. I drew mental pictures of puttin' a fork into his vitals, scaldin' him or servin' him as Jack served the giant—by diggin' a pit for him.

When the danger really came I was seventeen years old. Josiah Shadwell, owner of the adjoinin' farm, lost his wife. He and maw had always been very friendly, and I no sooner heard that Mrs. Shadwell was dead than I began to tremble. Maw, she just took charge of the Shodwell home till after the funeral. The Shadwells had only one child, a son, Jim, twenty years old, and he wasn't home when his mother died. When he came his father persuaded him to stay and relieve him of some of the responsibility of workin' the farm.

Jim consented, partly because I persuaded him to stay, for we had played together as children, and I liked Jim first rate. But as to assumin' the responsibility of the farm, my experience is that when an elderly man talks about throwin' off his responsibilities it means he's bent on takin' a tighter grip on 'em; just as a woman in housekeepin'—the older she grows the less willin' she is to let any one else do anything.

It wasn't three months after Mrs. Shadwell's death that I began to observe indications that the widower had intentions on maw. Nobody but me noticed any change in his bearin' toward her, and there didn't seem to be. But there was—that is, I knew it by that womanly intuition that knows things that ain't so which nevertheless are so. Not very long after this Jim and his paw got to comin' over evenin's to sit by the open fireplace with me and maw.

Then I knew somep'n else that Jim didn't see at all. How could he, bein' a man with a man's stupidity about such things? Mr. Shadwell saw through me as I saw through him. But it wasn't any credit for him to see through me, for I made it as plain as a barn with the doors wide open. He knew that in his designs on maw he had to down me and I wouldn't be easy to down.

Well, do you know the old feller went about to circumvent me. To think of a man's tryin' to circumvent a woman! I guess not! And he didn't suspect that I'd see through his designs. What he was after was to come over to our house with Jim, intendin' Jim to distract my attention from him and maw when we was settin' around the fire, eatin' doughnuts and drinkin' cider. after we was through with the eatin' and drinkin' Mr. Shadwell would make some excuse to git maw into the settin' room, lookin' at Jim and me as much as to say: "Young folks haven't any use for old folks. Let's give 'em a chance."

If I hadn't been so riled I'd 'a' laughed. and if I hadn't been as bent on circumventin' him as he was on circumventin' me I'd said: "You old fool! You're speakin' one word for me to two for yourself."

One Sunday evenin' Jim he come over alone. Maw got out some nuts and things for him and me and left us, sayin' she'd got a headache and was goin' to bed early. Jim wasn't long doin' somep'n he had never done before. He sidled up to me and put his arm around my waist.

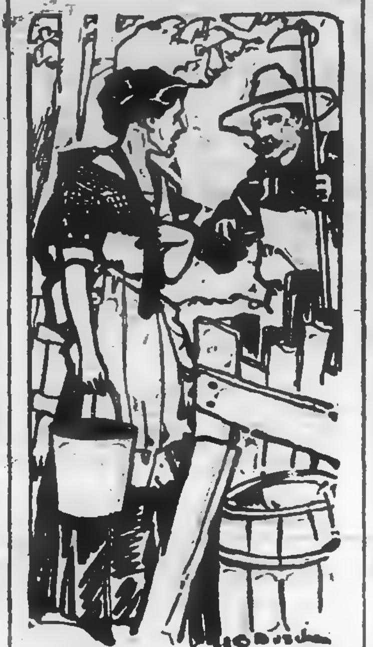
"What you doin' that for, Jim?" I asked.

"Because I like you."

"That's not the only reason, Jim."

"What's the other one?" he asked.

"Your paw is anglin' for my maw. He sent you over here to make up to me, hopin' to put me where I wouldn't have any objection."



"MANDY 'D BETTER MOVE IT BACK AGAIN."

"How did you know that?" he asked.

"'Cause it's as plain as a yellar pumpkin," I answered.

"I didn't know it myself till you told me."

"What do you mean by that?"

"Why, dad, t'other day he said to me, 'Jim, Mandy Barnes is a nice girl, isn't she?' 'You bet,' I says. 'Why don't you try to git her?' says he. 'I been thinkin' that for some time,' says I. That was a week ago Monday. This evenin' dad said he thort he'd stay home and read his farmer's journals. I wonder if he didn't do it to give me a chance to do some sparkin'?"

"That's plain enough," said I. "And I wonder whether maw and he understand each other? I can see through a man, but when one woman sets herself to hoodwink another it's a different matter."

I give Jim just enough encouragement to keep him where I wanted him, and no more. If I couldn't have him for a husband without his paw for a stepfather I wouldn't have either of 'em. Before I listened to Jim I had a-mind to settle matters between Mr Shadwell and maw. We kept a few pigs just to eat up the leavin's from our table and to sell when they got big enough. First thing I did was to complain to mother that the sty was too near our house. It smelt bad. And I kept dingin' at her to let me move it till she give in. Then one day when she went to the county fair I stayed home and had the sty moved close up to Mr. Shadwell's fence.

Nobody made any objection till one night I got out of bed, went to the sty, let out the pigs, scraped a hole under the fence between our yard and the Shadwells' potato patch big enough for the pigs to git through and put 'em all in the patch.

The next mornin' I looked out of my window and saw Mr. Shadwell standin' over his potatoes—those that the pigs hadn't eaten—swearin' like a pirate. Maw, she happened to take the swill to the sty at that time, which was mighty lucky for me and unlucky for them.

"What's the matter, Mr. Shadwell?" she asked, kind o' soothin'.

"Matter, ma'am! ~~Why,~~ the movin' o' your sty up here has cost me most o' my potatoes!"

"I'm sorry."

"What did you move it for?"

"Mandy did it."

"All I've got to say is Mandy better move it back again. Mandy seems to be boss in your house anyway!"

This made maw mad, and without answerin' she dumped the swill into the trough and come back into the house.

Jim come over that night and told me his father was mighty sorry he'd lost his temper. I said to Jim that his father better come the next Sunday night and not say anything about any unpleasantness and all would go smooth again. He said he'd give his father my recommend and went away early to make the old man feel more comfortable.

I'd been lookin' for a weak spot in the fence between the two farms and had one in mind. That night I pulled away enough of it to let our cows into the Shadwell cornfield. You ought to seen that cornfield the next mornin' I almost felt ashamed of myself. When maw saw the damage that had been done she went over to pacify Mr. Shadwell, and it ended in their gittin' into a regular fight. He said some one must 'a' done it a-purpose. This riled maw a little, but she kept steady. She said she'd been wonderin' for some time why he didn't mend the weak spots in his fence, and he said there wasn't any weak spots, except what had been made a-purpose. Maw asked if he was referrin' to her, but she wouldn't give him time to answer. She just let out on him.

Mr. Shadwell he didn't come over the next Sunday night; no more did Jim. I thought mebbe Jim had begun to see through a millstone, and he had. The next day, after the cow destroyed the corn, he and his father was hammerin' at the fence all day. I didn't go near 'em. I just waited. Next day when I was goin' to the store I met Jim in the road. He hardly spoke to me. I asked him what was the matter, and he said I'd spoiled everything between us. His father had taken a great dislike to me and had forbid his comin' over to our house evenin's any more.

"What's he got against me?" I asked in a voice smooth, like peaches and cream.

"He'd have more against you than he has," said Jim, "if he'd seen you the other night, as I did, turnin' the cow into our cornfield."

I knew his paw and my maw had done too much fightin' to be likely to make it up, so I said to Jim: "There's nothin' mean about me. If the old folks love each other as we do I wouldn't stand in their way to bein' happy." Jim said that was just like me—always givin' way for other people's benefit.

When the trouble had blown over Jim and I was married, his paw makin' no objections after Jim told him my "noble words," as Jim called 'em, about not standin' in the old folks' way. But the spell between 'em wasn't so thick as if they'd been younger, and it was broke clean through. Mr. Shadwell treats me fairly well, but he hasn't the confidence in me Jim has or had when we was married. I expect the father's nearer right than the son. I do think a man in love can make the biggest fool of himself. He always seems to me to have taken leave of his senses.

Maw and Mr. Shadwell are pretty good friends; but, laws, they don't want to get hitched! They'd fight awful!

Doctors Condemn Oily Liniments

The Public are Warned to Be Careful of These Strong-Smelling Oily Liniments Containing Harmful Acids, Ammonia, Etc.

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not—and they know.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analyzed, and they were found to contain an enormously high percentage of harmful acids, and such irritating chemicals as ammonia, etc. For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation and causes endless trouble.

When a doctor warns you to quit using a white, oily liniment—do so. He knows that a thick liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, Dr. Roberts stated that he considered a strong, penetrating, pain-subduing liniment such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white, ammonia liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica, and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment—but Nerviline cured them. The same physician also spoke of the great advantages of keeping a preparation like Nerviline in the house always, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache, headache, and such minor ailments. Nerviline is a first-class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that Nerviline won't cure. In thousands of homes no other pain-relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that Nerviline is the liniment for the home.

PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR

A Real Enthusiast.

Who is the most ardent hockey fan in Montreal? asks a writer in The Standard. This is a question that perhaps several thousand people might be willing to answer by rising as one and shouting "I am." But the writer is of the opinion that they are all wrong. The other night he discovered a party whom he thinks to be the greatest hockey enthusiast not only in this city, but in Canada, and that means in the whole world.

This man, unlike you and I patient reader, is not able to see. He lost the sight of his eyes many years ago and yet to-day he rarely misses a game at the Arena. He is a naturally born hockey enthusiast, and here is how he does it.

"A blind fan," if we may be permitted to term him such without fear of discourtesy, is usually accompanied to the big games by a lady who is his wife. So accurately has he developed a sense of acute hearing that to him every sound in the big Arena while the game is on is full of meaning, and requires but small explanation. The sound of the skates on the ice, the tap of the clash of one stick against the puck, the clash of one stick against another as the players check, the intense breathing of the crowd, the shouting as some man breaks away, and the deep throated yell when a goal is scored, all have their meaning to the quiet man who sits up on the west side, and through his sightless eyes pictures in his brain the same scene that you and I see so plainly before us on the ice twice every week.

Air Pressure.

At the level of the sea the pressure of the atmosphere on the piston of an engine is about fifteen pounds to the square inch, but decreases at higher altitudes. As this atmospheric pressure must be overcome by the steam pressure before any work can be done, it is evident that at the diminished air pressure of high altitudes more work can be obtained from a given pressure of steam than at the sea level, or, in other words, an equally effective pressure of steam can be obtained with the expenditure of less fuel. The difference, however, is not great enough to be of any practical importance.

Testing Rough Diamonds.

When the expert is about to examine and appraise a rough diamond he places his lips close to the tissue paper whereon it rests and breathes gently on the gem. It thereupon takes on a slightly yellowish cast. Diamonds even in the rough are so bright that the eye does not easily distinguish an "off color" tint, but when one breathes on them the slight coating of moisture takes away for a moment or two their brilliance, so the examiner is able to distinguish with certainty any defect of the kind.

THE NAVY AGAIN

The naval debate is played out. There are few Liberals who want to have their say, rehashing all the worn out and exploded reasons why the Borden naval policy is wrong but they must be weary to themselves. Let the debators get down to business, and get the bill passed. The Government has much other important business waiting, and the country would like to have it brought up. The Opposition to the Borden naval bill is about as weak as anything that has been seriously attempted for a long time. The gift of three Dreadnoughts to Britain is popular with every true Canadian, who does not think more of his party than of Canada's duty to the Empire.

The sayings of Mr. Bourassa with respect to the negotiations between Mr. Borden and the Imperial Government have much more interest for Canadians than the Liberal mouthings. Mr. Bourassa says that Mr. Borden did not find what he wanted in the way of a strong enough emergency at London at first nor the second time, and only on a third attempt did he get the Admiralty to rise to the occasion and put the needs of the British navy in their appealing light. But Mr. Bourassa had been shown many times to say more than was consistent with the facts, and though Mr. Borden may have had negotiations with Mr. Churchill that would give a semblance of truth to the story, there is no question whatever that the British navy would be much stronger and better able to hold the seas against Germany, if those three Canadian Super-Dreadnoughts were in her battle squadrons. The Canadian policy does not make superfluous gifts, nor can it in any way minimise the danger that the growing commercial rivalry of Germany and Britain will soon force on the conflict for which the whole world waits.

AN INDEMNITY INCREASE

The rumor that has been going around the Dominion capital that the members of the House of Commons, particularly the Conservative members, are log-rolling for an increase of the sessional indemnity, looks as if it has some foundation. If there is any movement like that under way, it does not take long to get into print. The present sessional indemnity is $2,500, and it is proposed to raise it to $4,000. That is for work of six months, more or less, or at the rate of $8,000 a year. If such an increase were put into effect politics ought to become a little more attractive than at present, because money can make amends for many things. But Premier Borden gave quite an explicit denial to a similar story a few days ago, and there seems to be very little disposition in Government circles to consider it at the present. We think that it would be a tactical mistake in any event for the Government to raise the indemnity at the second session. The budget estimates are heavy enough now without burdening them further.

Hon Robert Rogers is said to be trying to help the members out. The impression is that Rogers is doing a little too much work a la Manitoba style for the good of the party. No sooner was the Nova Scotia estimates "scandal" got over than there is the rumor of a deal in Saskatchewan by which the son of the Conservative whip in the Saskatchewan Legislature got a nice sort of picking out of the Department of the Interior. There may be nothing in the story, but a Grit concoction, in which the Scott gang in Saskatchewan are very fertile, but it is rather unpleasant for Conservatives to have one thing after another sprung of this nature. They are not matters which make or unmake governments, and they may be good politics, but they help to create the impression that the Manitoba machine methods are not in disfavor for Ottawa use by this Minister.

THE SAME OLD GAME

Under the heading, "The Same Old Game," the Dundas Star says, editorially:

The effect of the proposed introduction of Hydro power into Peterborough, is having the same effect there as it has had everywhere else. The local company there, which has had everything its own way in the matter of charges, is engaging in a rate cutting warfare, in order to keep people, if possible, from making contracts with the Hydro. Some people are listening to the song of the siren, as they did here, and are signing long-term contracts, simply because the rates are cut in two. They forget that the Hydro is their own concern, and that the more users the Hydro has, the cheaper will be the rate, and at the same time they own it. Dundas has now, after persistent opposition by the Cataract, a profitable Hydro system, and at the same time the people enjoy cheaper and better light, power and service in every way.

The people of Peterborough will certainly stand in their own light if they do not loyally support the Hydro, now that they have voted for its installation. Dundas is more than pleased with its success in this regard.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Has your light bill been lightened yet?

The electric light company evidently doesn't believe in shocking its patrons by advertising a general reduction in price. It is doing its good work on the quiet.

The proposal on the part of the Hydro-Electric to encourage league municipalities to build and operate electric railways has served to pretty well consolidate all the Big Interests against the whole public power enterprise. But it should serve also to consolidate popular support behind the enterprise.—Toronto Star.

Col. McLean, M.P., of New Brunswick, staunch Liberal though he be, is patriotic enough to ignore party interests when such a great national question as the navy question is presented for settlement. He pronounces in favor of the Borden policy of direct contribution; but he proposes also that there be a permanent policy of navel construction.

PROSPERITY OF MUTUAL LIFE

For years the progress of The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada, while not spectacular, has been rapid. To glance at the Annual Reports for the last twenty years is to observe year after year an almost increased prosperity, happily unrelieved by a single calamity. The business of the Company in force at the end of 1912 was $77,521,143.88.

It was with pardonable pride that in 1900 the total amount was quoted at over five millions. To-day they amount to over twenty millions or to be exact, $20,071,344.80. All these funds are invested within the Dominion of Canada, and no speculative securities of any kind are carried. It is claimed that not since its foundation has one dollar of the policy-holder's funds been lost.

Not the least remarkable feature in the year's report is the low expense ratio. In view of the fact that the splendid new offices of the Company completed and furnished during the past year, it was naturally to be expected that the expense ratio might rise. To the surprise of the officers of the Company themselves, it was found that on the contrary, it had actually fallen by almost one half of one per cent.

ILLNESS OF THE POPE'S SISTER

Rome, Feb. 10— The sudden and serious illness of Rosa Sarto, sister of Pope Pius X, was reported to the vatican to-day. Miss Sarto is 77 years old and because of her advanced age, physicians were doubtful of her recovery. She lives only one square from the vatican.

Since the separation of church and state, the Popes have refused to leave the vatican for any purpose maintaining that they were actual prisoners of the quirinal.

Pope Pius always has had the greatest affection for his sister, and the vatican authorities fear that he may smash tradition and go to her bedside, should her illness be fatal.

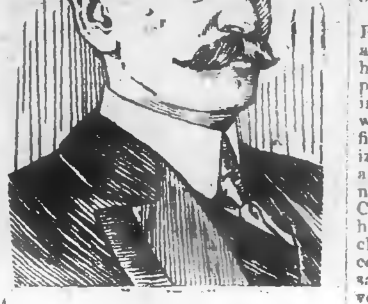
W. G. ROSS HEADS THE MONTREAL HARBOR BOARD

New Chief of Commission In Commercial Metropolis Used to Be a Star Bicycle Rider Before He Went Into Business — Passed Through Street Railway Offices Till He Reached the Top.

Greatest interest in the recent appointment of a new harbor commission for Montreal centred in the chairman, Mr W. G. Ross. Until a few years ago he was known quite commonly as "Willie" Ross, which title, as his position became more and more prominent, was dropped for the more formal "W. G."

I have a recollection of seeing photographs of W. G. Ross with enough medals on his chest to drown a man, says a writer in Toronto Saturday Night. These emblems of superiority related to the athletic field, more especially, I think, to bicycle riding and perhaps running. At any rate, he was a star bicycle rider, and, some of the rest of his family could run, all of them being athletes. One brother held the record on everything up to a mile and retired with it. I think they were, and are all members of the M.A.A.A.



W. G. ROSS.

W. G. got some of his early experience in his father's office, he having associated himself with him long about 1880. Some eight years later he became secretary-treasurer of the Windsor Hotel. Mr. George Iles, a well known literary character, was then manager, and associated was also Mr. George Swett, who, they say, could call all the guests by their first names. After some four years with the Windsor, he got into touch with Mr. James Ross—of another family altogether—who was interesting himself in the street railway system of the city of Montreal, and ere long was in the employ of the company.

In the street railway there was no end of opportunity to employ his capacities, and he rose from one post to another until he became chief executive officer. He became comptroller of the system in 1895 and later on succeeded to the position of secretary-treasurer. Mr. F. L. Wanklyn was then general manager, and ere very long retired to accept another appointment. Mr. Ross then succeeded to this vacancy and became, as already stated, the head of the system.

It was along about this time that control of the railway passed out of the hands of James Ross and into the hands of Senator Forget and his friends. W. G. Ross remained at the head of the concern throughout Senator Forget's regime as president, and only retired about the close of 1910, shortly after the Robert-McConnell interests, which had just put through the Canadian Light and Power deal, swept control of the Montreal Street Railway out of the hands of Senator Forget and went about the work of reorganization of the present Montreal Tramways Co., or the Montreal Tramways and Power.

After resigning his position, Mr. Ross took a trip abroad, remaining away many months. Since his return, he has not taken a very prominent part in any of the business deals being effected in Montreal, save that when the Amalgamated Asbestos fiasco got to its worst and a reorganization became necessary, he was asked to accept the presidency of the new concern, known as the Asbestos Corporation of Canada, Ltd. To this he consented, and has been paying close attention to the affairs of the company in the hope of bringing it safely through after its many misadventures.

When the question of the new harbor board began to be discussed in Montreal circles, it was not long til the name of W. G. Ross was mentioned. It must have been no small satisfaction to him to note the manner in which the suggestion was received. He is said to be a first-class accountant, which involves the possession of powers of analysis, and in addition thereto to be possessed of first-rate executive ability. For all of these he will have much use during the coming few years' work on the harbor board. Mr. Ross is in the prime of life, being now just fifty years of age.

NOBLES INTERESTED IN CANADA

Long List of British Nobles Buying Property Here.

Real estate is said to be very active in Canada, but the turn-over surely cannot compare with the recent movement in Britain. During the last six or seven months one firm alone has disposed of landed estates to the value of $16,000,000, principally the properties of peers and country squires. At the end of the year it is timely to examine the extent of this movement. A casual enquiry reveals the fact that all classes in British life are responding to the appeal of the Dominion of Canada. Each week throughout the sailing season proper, the steamers of the Canadian Pacific Railway and other lines sailing to Canadian ports have conveyed members of both Houses of Parliament, bankers, heads of investment houses, directors of industrial and insurance companies to an extent that is surprising.

As illustrating the appeal Canada makes to the society woman, the cases of Lady Ileene Campbell, who is personally running a farm in Alberta, and Lady Evelyn Ward, who is the proprietor of a milliner's shop in Toronto, may be noted. Lords there are in plenty who are owners of farms. Lord Roberts has shown a keen interest in Canadian investments and few issues are made in London which do not have his consideration. A recital of the location of their interests would be tedious, but it may be said that a big percentage of the peers—probably 75 per cent.—are interested in the Prairie Provinces and British Columbia. Comparatively few invest in Ontario lands and the Maritime Provinces, though there is a growing interest in Nova Scotia.

Among the peers who, in one form or another, are interested in the Dominion, are:

Lord Aberdeen, Lord Ashburton, Ladp Arbuthnot, Lady Barrington, Lady Clanwilliam, Lady Chesham, Lady Cavendish, Lady Congleton, Lady Clinton, Viscount Castlereagh, Earl of Dunmore, Lord Desborough, Marquis of Exeter, Lord Grey, Lord Grenfell, Lord Northcliffe, Lord Middleton, Earl Roberts, Marquis of Stafford, Earl of Leitrim, Lord Charles Beresford, Lady E. Gordon Lennox, Lord Montagu of Beaulieu, Earl and Countess of Onslow, Earl and Countess of Norton, Duke and Duchess of Sutherland, Dowager Lady Hindlip, Lord Alister Leveson-Gower, Lady Rosemary Leveson-Gower, Lord Willoughby de Broke, Lord Claud Hamilton, Lord John Hamilton, Lord Hythe, Lord Hindlip, Lady Hickson, Lord Hyde, Lord Joicey, Duke of Leeds, Earl of Leven, Lord Loughborough, Lady Doreen Long, Lord Somers, Earl Stanhope, Lord Sackville, Lord Savile, Lord Vernon, Earl Winterton, Countess of Warwick, Lady Evelyn Word, and many others.

Generally speaking, the knights and members of Parliament are interested principally in mortgages, industrials, and mines; though, of course, some of them own land. Sir Kenneth Anderson, for instance, is said to own half the town site of Alberni. Sir William Coddington, Sir Clement Kinloch-Cooke, and Sir Reginald Macleod have recently become interested in tracts of several thousands acres in British Columbia.

An advertisement appearing recently in a London paper makes an appropriate conclusion to this list. A sixteenth century residence and estate which have been in the present owner's family since the reign of Henry VI., are in the market. There may be other reasons for its disposal, but one cannot reasonably exclude the supposition that its owner wants to invest in Canada.

One on Lewis Waller.

Mr. Lewis Waller, the eminent English actor who has been touring Canada, told a group of Canadian dramatic critics the other day an amusing little jest, the point of which is at his own expense.

It concerns the fact that Mr. Waller has been favored by five royal commands to give plays before King Edward and Queen Alexandra, as well as other crowned heads. This is a greater share of royal favor than other English actors enjoyed, and at the Green Room Club several Thespian friends of Mr. Waller were discussing the news of the fifth command performance, which had just been sent to the actor.

"Funny thing that Waller gets all those commands," grumbled one member of the club. "How does he do it?"

"Don't you know the reason?" replied another actor. "You know the Queen is a little bit deaf in one ear, and Waller shouts louder than the rest of us."

C.P.R'S FIRST AID MOVEMENT

accidents and to reduce the loss of life and property, a movement has been begun along the whole of the system of the Canadian Pacific Railway for the formation of safety First Committees. These organizations will have as members, conductors, roadmasters, trainmen, engineers, shopmen, car repairers and representatives from all departments. As employees have always been the greatest sufferers from accidents the movement has naturally its origin from them. On the western division the movement is being strenuously supported by officials of the company, and week by week the excellent work is spreading all along the system and committee meetings are being held at various points and advice given which will assist in the prevention of accidents, for prevention, after all, is far better than cure.

This new policy of the spreading of Safety First work among the employes of the C.P.R. has been clearly demonstrated by an absolute necessity and especially when it is considered that according to a recent bulletin issued by the United States Government it was shown that for every fifteen minutes of every day in the year one death is recorded resulting through some kind of accident throughout the continent, and the injuries at the rate of one every sixteen seconds of every minute and hour of the day and year, and contrary to the general understanding only one-tenth of the deaths and one-sixteenth of the injuries were of railroad employes, and the other nine-tenths and fifteen-sixteenths being in the other industries of the country. FURS INCREASE IN THEIR VALUES

Lynx the Only Fur Which Has Not Gone Up in Price During Past Year.

Those who were unable to purchase furs last fall and still have the idea of buying a coat or 'set' had better hurry up as the cost of furs is increasing even more rapidly than the cost of ordinary every day living of which we hear so much.

Recent sales of furs on the London market show a general increase in values and a report received by the British Canadian Fur Trading Company shows that more than 75 per cent. of the furs have increased from 5 to 75 per cent. Of all the furs in the list only one decreased in value lynx showing a slight falling off in price.

The drop in the price of lynx was not due to any falling off in the demand for this fur, but to the fact that the lynx catch had been exceedingly large. This fur will still be worn to the same extent it has enjoyed during the past two or three years by those in mourning, as it has been found impossible to imitate the dull finish of lynx with any of the cheaper grades of fur.

Muskrat, which jumped 7 per cent. during this season, is up another 5 per cent. and indications point to still further increases.

THE ACTUAL INCREASES

The per cent. increase in price fo. furs is;

Muskrats, W. and N.W., spring winter and fall, 5 per cent.

Muskrats, other kinds, from 5 to 10 per cent.

Blue fox, 20 per-cent. Beaver 7 1-2 per cent. Raccoon and Skunk, 25 per cent. Civet cat, 30 per cent. Black bear, opossum, 50 per cent. Ermine 30 per cent. Otter 15 per cent. Mink 10 per cent. Wolverine, 75 per cent. Southern muskrat, fisher, marten, Russian sable, silver fox, red fox and cross fox values have not changed this year.

It is pointed out that while a large percentage of the fur sold in Canada was caught in this country, the price in every instance was set in the London market, and that in cases where the skins were not sent to London, dealers in this country did not make their price until it was announced from London.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

Envoy Brewer Brown, a reformed drunkard and pugilist will speak at the Salvation Army Temple next Saturday night and at the Sunday services.

Mr. Kenneth Shook was heard to great advantage yesterday morning in St. John's church in his rendering of Handel's Recit and Air, "O Lord, Correct Me, Not in Thine Anger." Mr. Shook is developing a really fine voice of great promise, plenty of tone, and good judgment in phrasing.

An effort is being made to secure another engagement of Rev. W. J. Mayers and the Barnardo Musical Boys as they pass through the city on their way to Montreal and home.

The chair will be taken at 8 p.m. A lecture on such a subject cannot help being of special interest, as few people have any idea how they get their newspaper day by day.

Two solos given by Mr. Herbert Wood, of Vancouver, at St. Paul's church last evening were greatly appreciated.

STENOGRAPHERS ARE LOYAL

His Honor Judge Huycke paid a splendid tribute to stenographers as a class on Saturday during the meeting of the Police Commissioners.

"I never have known a stenographer to be guilty of divulging anything; it's really wonderful how loyal they are," was the Judge's remark.

His compliment followed a statement by Chief Thompson in which the latter rejected a suggestion that the stenographers in the City Hall be requested to do the typewriting for the Police Department.

CHEMONG LAKE AND THE OTONABEE RIVER

In the course of some research in connection with the boundaries of a piece of land in the township of Smith, Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald, P.L.S., obtained from the original records in Toronto, a tracing of a map of the original survey made for the township of Smith. The plan of the township was laid out by a surveying party under direction of J. G. Chewetts, and made in the year 1818. The interesting fact is that the names of the lake and river, now known as Chemong Lake and River Otonabee, are entirely different, the original names being of Indian derivation. Chemong Lake is given as "Schegamonge Lake" and the river as "River Seebee." Possibly one of our readers may be able to translate.

The map shows very distinctly the old Indian trail from the lake to the river, making away from the shore of the lake about where Bridgenorth is located and following a fairly direct line south-west to a point on the river just where the Gas Works stand. The trail swings to the left, (coming south) to avoid two or three of the highest hills, but coming into what is now the border of the city at a point above where the Hythe Mills stood in years gone bye, and along what is now Water street to the river. The sketch of the river shows three islands in mid stream. These were removed in course of years, finally disappearing when the C. P. R. spur line was made to reach the Quaker Oats Co. plant.

In the first survey of the township the concession lines were run almost east and west across the township, from the adjacent township of Emily to the river. Afterwards, for some reason, not now known, the survey was changed, and a wide strip, with what is known as the Communication Road, (or Chemong Road) through the middle of the lots, right across the township, the road, or centre, laid out on the line of the old trail.

The map shows the old enemy and bother of the city, the creek, very distinctly, and its contour, until lost in the marsh land above Lily Lake, is defined. An island, located on the river plan, just above the Smith street bridge seems to have disappeared during the intervening years, unless it be meant for our venerable and submerged friend, Goose Island, further down the channel.

The map does not show one single, solitary human habitation, and no indication of settlements of modern life, which came afterwards, the first to locate on the ground covered by the city being Adam Scott, who came in May, 1819 and built a small dwelling and mill where the Peterborough Cereal Co. buildings now stand.

BRIGHT SERVICES MARK THE ANNIVERSARY DAY

Sunday School of George St. Church Addressed by Mr. Yellowlees.

The best yet was the verdict given at the close of the morning service in George street church yesterday morning. It was a service for the children in connection with the annual anniversary of the Sunday School. Young and old joined heartily into the spirit of the occasion and the result was a service of benefit to all. There were present little tots from the cradle roll, probably the first Sunday for some. Then there were the older brothers and sisters from the primary department, the intermediate and senior classes and the adults of the Bible classes. Many parents were also present.

It was a gathering of children calculated to impress upon all the teachers and officers, their great responsibility and the vast opportunities that were before them.

The Sunday School Orchestra supplied the music and Mr. J. H Renwick lead the singing. On the platform with the pastor, was Mr. T. Yellowlees, a veteran Sunday school worker, who spoke particularly to the young people on the subject of "Ship Signals." These signals he displayed at the masthead of a miniature ship. He explained the meaning of the different flags as used at sea by ships for signalling, the language being such as "yes," "no," "answer," "show your colors," "be on your guard" and "the captain's aboard."

From each signal he brought out points, for the guidance of the young in their daily life. The last signal to be explained was that one meaning "I want a pilot" and in concluding his address, Mr. Yellowlees recited two lines of the well known hymn—

Jesus, Saviour, pilot me
Over life's tempestuous sea.

At the same time, the organist commenced playing the hymn which was also sweetly sung by Miss Masie Armstrong. It was an effective conclusion to an excellent address.

Rev. Mr. Couch took the opportunity to say a few words in which he intimated that more accommodation was necessary for the Sunday School. As an illustration of enthusiasm and what could be done he gave a short account of a campaign at Orillia where $52,000 was raised for the erection of a Sunday School. The people first raised $39,000 but when provided with plans they found that they needed $50,000. The campaign was renewed with the result that that $2,000 over the necessary amount was received.

A bright session of the Sunday School was held in the afternoon when Mr. Yellowlees gave another fine address. Mr. Yellowlees also preached at the evening service taking for his subject "Home Training and Influence."

THE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Was Observed at St. Paul's Church of Lakefield

Rev. R. Pogue occupied the pulpit of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church at Lakefield yesterday when the fiftieth anniversary was observed. The services were largely attended and of great interest to all.

To-night an anniversary supper and concert is to be given. Rev. H. Keith, Rev. Jas. Rollins and Judge Roger, of Cobourg, are to give addresses.

769 BOOKS AND BIBLES SUPPLIED

Rev. George Buskin was in the city to-day and supplied the following report of the International Evangelical and Colportage Mission of Algoma and the Northwest, for the year ending Nov. 1, 1912:

The work has been pursued from Halifax, N.S., to Victoria, B.C. During years past about 50,000 copies of Scriptural books have been supplied in twenty-five languages, also a multitude of Scriptural tracts in many languages; about seventy-five editions of books and tracts in five languages have been published by the Mission for the work.

The money received during the twenty-nine years of operations has been about $50,000.

The mission has on hand about 5,000 copies of Ojibway Indian and English books in six forms, and the missionary proposes that an undenominational Indian mission be established to supply the Indians with Christian literature, (many of them being pagans at the present time) and take over the stock now held by this mission.

The number of Bibles and books supplied during the past year was 768 copies in three languages, and the cash from sales and donations was about $1,297, from seventy-two cities and towns, as enumerated in the report of last year.

The Peterborough donation last year was $20.75, and these are gratefully acknowledged by Rev. Mr. Buskin.

Who Stole the Turkey?

Sneak thieves are probably responsible for the disappearance of a nice plump turkey from the summer kitchen of Dr. Greer's residence, 359 Aylmer Street, early Saturday evening. The owner anticipated a juicy dinner on Sunday, which the person who took the fowl deprived him of. The police are investigating the theft.

PAVEMENT FRAUDS.

Every Day Swindles That Are Worked In London Streets.

The visitor to London was walking down the Strand a short time ago, when he was accosted by a seedy-looking individual with a muffler round his neck. The stranger drew him respectfully aside and informed him, in a very woebegone voice, that there was urgent necessity for his catching the next train to Portsmouth, but owing to extraordinary circumstances, finances were so low that he was forced to try and sell an exceptionally beautiful cigarette-holder, which had been a present to him from his dear mother. He would take the small sum of 2s. 6d. for both holder and case. The writer was about to pass on when the price suddenly descended to 2s., and then to 1s. 6d.

Out of curiosity the visitor purchased the beautiful cigarette-holder and case, and took it to the nearest tobacconist. He was promptly informed that his purchase had been originally acquired for 6d. down Shoreditch way.

As suspected, it was only another case of the pavement fraud which at various times has assumed so many different forms.

The "dropped trinket" was at one time a favorite and successful form You saw it lying on the pavement, but before you had time to stoop and pick it up, some gentleman of the peripatetic species was there before you, and had pocketed the glittering jewel. Then when he saw your chagrin he would glance furtively around, timidly pull it out of his pocket, and offer to sell it to you for a few shillings. He usually had a sick wife and a good many children on the verge of starvation.

If you took the bait, which many people did, you discovered, when it was too late, that you had given a few shillings for a bauble that was worth only a few pence. You naturally kicked yourself for being such a fool, but if you had any honesty at all, you had to admit that you had only got what you deserved for having tried to purchase a valuable trinket for a few shillings from a man you had judged ignorant of its value.

Another favorite form of the pavement fraud which will be remembered was "the painted bird." An out-at-elbows fellow had just caught a bird. Sometimes he expressed himself ignorant of ornithology, and would innocently ask you if you could name it for him You would tell him that it was a canary, and then, with a shrug of his shoulders, he would wonder aloud what on earth good it was to him; and then would kindly offer to let you have it for a small price. When you examined your purchase you generally found it was a sparrow with a pretty little coat of paint.

Sometimes the rascal knew a good deal about birds, and would protest with enthusiasm what an exceptionally good little Norwich canary it was, and then, of course, the price was a little higher. But it always happened to be a sparrow just the same.

Queer Pets.

Miss Baden-Powell—"B.-P.'s" sister—keeps quite a number of curious pets. One of these is a chameleon, which her famous brother sent her from South Africa before the dark days of Mafeking.

Miss Baden-Powell has a colony of tame bees ensconced in her London drawing-room to the admiration and sometimes, terror of her visitors. She rears, too, lots and lots of beautiful butterflies and moths.

Miss Baden-Powell's pet sparrows are particularly familiar to her many friends.

They used to settle on the chimney-pots and elsewhere upon her roof; but gradually became so docile that they would fly down to her whenever she called them, and enter the window of her boudoir. Then they would perch upon her shoulders and saucily regale themselves with crumbs of cake from her hand to their heart's content.

When the Elephant Bathes.

The elephant's bath takes a week to carry out in every detail. It requires the service of three men, and it costs about £10. This treatment is necessary for a circus elephant, and if the animal is a valuable one the proprietors of the circus do not consider the money wasted. The first process consists in going over the immense body with the best of soap procurable; 150 pounds of soap is used, and the elephant's ears are especially carefully attended to. When the soaping and drying are completed the elephant is well sandpapered and after that rubbed all over with the purest Indian oil until the mouse gray skin is supple and glistening. This last finishing touch is the most expensive part of the whole bath, as over £6 has to be spent on the oil alone.—London Tit-Bits.

The Same Thing.

Sir Horace Plunkett, the Irish publicist, is a bachelor, and thereby hangs an amusing tale. He once delivered a lecture in Dublin on the best way to improve the conditions of the poor. At the same time Sir Horace was not exactly a finished speaker. His tongue could not do justice to the riches of his mind.

The day following his address he received from a lady a note containing this statement: "What you need is two things—first, a wife; second, lessons in elocution."

To this Sir Horace Plunkett replied as follows: "I have received your letter saying that I need two things—first, a wife, and, second, lessons in elocution. Those are only one."

Banishing the Avalanche.

Along the side of an Alpine railroad an ingenious device has been put into use to prevent avalanches from falling upon the track. A wall has been built which intercepts the sliding snow and forces it to precipitate itself in a leap, whereby it clears the roadbed and hurls itself into a canal upon the other side.

Many a loafer started out with splendid prospects.

ELLIOT'S FIRE SALE

NOW IT'S THE ICE HOUSES

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—Ice houses burning in Illinois and Wisconsin in recent years were made the subject of a new enquiry to be started here in the investigation of the "arson trust."

Assistant State Attorney Frank Johnstone said yesterday he was in possession of information that ice house fires had been arranged for by the arson plotters' headquarters in this city.

Another phase of "arson-trust" activity was developed Saturday, according to Mr. Johnstone, who said he had evidence that a prominent manufacturer of specialties had employed the arson gang to dynamite and fire the factories of his competitors to such good effect that he soon had virtually a monopoly.

BANDITS MAKE BIG CLEAN-UP

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Four men drove up in a taxicab late Saturday night to the store of W. L. Douglas Shoe Co. at Broadway and Fourteenth streets, a busy and brightly-lighted corner, and entered the store just as the four clerks were preparing to leave. With drawn revolvers the bandits ordered the employes to throw up their hands. While three of the four kept the clerks covered the other man emptied the cash register of its contents, between $400 and $500. The quartette then ran to the street, jumped in the taxicab and drove south on Broadway.

Hundreds of persons were passing the corner at the time. The police hurried to the scene, but were unable to find any clues other than a poor description of the four men.

A Veteran Drummer.

By the recent death of Sergt. Joshua Donaldson of Ottawa, Canada loses one of its best-known military men and one of the most popular soldiers in the capital corps.

He had to his credit 46 years of service, part of it in the regular army, and was at the time of his death on the active list as sergeant drummer of the Forty-Third Corps.

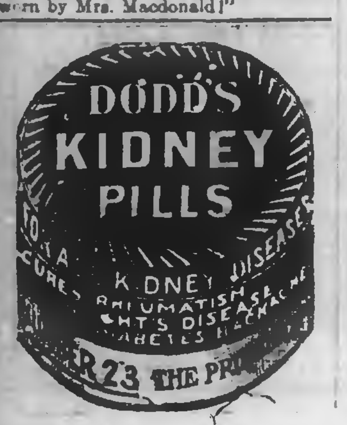
Sergt. Donaldson had the reputation of being the best drummer in eastern Canada, his prowess in that particular line being known from the Atlantic to the Pacific. As a boy he joined the famous Gordon Highlanders and with that regiment served in India and later throughout the Egyptian campaign of 1882. He wore the medal and star for that campaign and he was later decorated with the Imperial long service medal and the good conduct medal and was also in possession of the long service medal in the Canadian militia.

He was for many years a conspicuous figure at all local military gatherings, especially those promoted by his Scotch comrades as he also played the drum in the pipe band. His reputation as a drummer was national.

Didn't Like the Attire.

As visitors to the capital know, a statue of Sir John A. Macdonald, on Parliament hill, stands just a little above that of the late Queen Victoria. A rural couple, visiting "The Hill" for the first time, paused before the statuary. 'Pretty fine likeness of old Sir John," remarked the male half of the delegation.

"Very nice; very good, indeed," agreed his better half, as she sized up the Queen Victoria monument, with its sceptre and flowing robes, "but I don't care very much for the clothes worn by Mrs. Macdonald!"



THE MARKET

Latest Quotation in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc

CHICAGO, Feb. 8. The shorts were stampeded in the grain markets this morning, traders who had taken that side running to cover when the bullish nature of the week-end news became evident. Wheat closed 1-2c higher on May, 5-8c on July, and 7-8c on September. Corn followed the lead of wheat, and wound up 1-2c up all round, while a similar advance was scored in the oat pit. Provisions were quiet and comparatively steady, the close leaving pork unchanged to 5c up, ribs up 5c all round, and lard anywhere from 2c to 5c higher.

The Liverpool market closed unchanged to ⅛d lower on wheat and 1d higher on corn. Buda Pest wheat closed ⅛c lower, Antwerp ⅛c higher, Berlin ¼c lower.

MONTREAL MARKET.

MONTREAL, Feb. 7.—There was a good demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat, there being orders in the market for over 500,000 bushels, but, as the prices bid were unchanged to 1½d lower, with Winnipeg stronger, few of the orders were accepted. The foreign demand for oats was also good, but cables were weaker at a decline of 1½d, and no further sales were made. The local market for coarse grains continues very quiet, but the feeling is steady. Demand for flour is fair. Millfeed is quiet and easy. Demand for butter limited. Receipts for week, 1991 packages, as against 482 a year ago. The tone of the market for cheese is stronger, in sympathy with the firmer advices from abroad, but the volume of business doing is small. A firm feeling prevails in the egg market, with a fair amount of business doing. Receipts for week, 2894 cases, as against 695 a year ago.

Priceless Pictures Destroyed.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—It is now known that many valuable pictures and heirlooms were burned in Abbotsbury Castle, the residence of the Dowager Countess Ilchester, which was destroyed by fire on Saturday, including examples of Italian masters and a greatly-treasured portrait of Princess Charlotte by Sir Thomas Lawrence.

Embargo Off To-day.

TORONTO, Feb. 10.—The embargo on coal and non-perishable freight coming in over the Grand Trunk via Black Rock and Fort Erie will be removed to-day. If the work of fifty engines and crews, in all about 300 men, could accomplish it, the congestion existing was removed yesterday.

CITY COUNCIL IN TOUCH WITH

every courtesy that could reasonably be offered. He also deplored the fossilized condition of the Board of Trade which he said should be a live wire. The only hope for a live Board of Trade, he thought, was to disband the present organization and start over again; get the Ad Club enthused in it and bring in the working men. The City Council greatly needed the assistance of the Ad Club and the Board of Trade in passing by-laws and bringing out the vote on various municipal issues.

The Mayor's announcement that the Council intended to pave the main streets this year, was greeted with great applause. He referred to the snag which had prevented paving last year, the main one of which was the presence of the poles on the streets.

The Dominion Government had promised, however, this year to give municipalities control of their own streets and the poles could then be quickly disposed of.

"With nicely paved streets and cluster lights what better inducements can be shown to a stranger?" asked the Mayor.

In closing he referred to the extreme difficulty experienced in finding a suitable medium for advertising the city—something that would reach prospective manufacturers and attract their attention to Peterborough as a likely and desirable city.

Mr. H. B. Cowan told of steps that were proposed to be put into force for connecting the beauty spots of the city by good roads which when occasion required could be admired by visitors and strangers. It was proposed to ask the Council for a grant to be used for beautifying purposes, improving boulevards, improving streets and front lawns and in whatever way possible working for civic betterment. This work was being instituted by the Peterborough Horticultural Society.

A Valuable Stamp.

Any one who has an unused thirteen cent United States postage stamp printed on blue paper would do well to hold on to it rather than to use it on a letter or package. A stamp dealer who has heretofore sold these stamps to collectors for $62.50 each announces that the price will be $75. Four thousand of these stamps were originally printed, but fewer than a hundred are known to exist at present.—Exchange.

Arrested In Halifax.

HINSDALE, N.H., Feb. 10.—The arrest of John Wren in Halifax, N.S., late Friday night on a charge of murdering James S. Hamilton, a railroad construction foreman, near Hinsdale, last Wednesday, was reported here on Saturday. Wren, according to a telegram from Halifax, admitted his identity, but declared he was innocent of the charge brought against him.

SWINDLERS ARE CAUGHT

Operators of "Spanish Prisoner" Fraud Are Captured.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—According to The Daily News' Madrid correspondent, the police succeeded in discovering a gang of swindlers responsible for the "Spanish prisoner" fraud gang, which, admirably organized, began operations eight years ago. The chief of the gang, Eustebio Rico, proprietor of the house, 18 Luchano street, was assisted principally by his brother, father-in-law, and a private secretary, Guillermo San Juan. Rico's house was specially built for the purpose, and was provided with false doors, secret rooms, and so on, in order to baffle the police. Daily hundreds of letters were despatched to the four corners of the earth, inviting foolish foreigners to lift the treasure hidden somewhere by a bankrupt prisoner in Madrid.

After several weeks' hard work, Police Sergeant Latone succeeded in arresting Ortega, at the very moment when he was receiving in an obscure street nine telegrams from a messenger. On his way to the police station the prisoner tried to bribe the sergeant, but the messenger boy made a confession.

RADIUM CURES CANCER.

French Academy of Science Now Satisfied of Its Value.

PARIS, Feb. 10.—The French Academy of Science received proof positive last week of the curative value of radium in cases of cancerous vascular tumors, classed as deep angiomas.

Evidence was submitted to Dr. Dominici in describing researches made by himself and his collaborators, Drs. Henri Cheron and Rubens Duval. Not only did Dr. Dominici supply the learned gathering with photographs taken before and after the cures, together with anatomical specimens, showing the resolution of cancerous tissues under the influence of radium, but in an adjoining room were four patients who had undergone the radium treatment and were subjected to an exhaustive examination by the members of the academy.

The Canada-U. S. Line.

The boundary marks separating Canada from the United States are of a most practical sort. For many hundreds of miles the St. Lawrence River and the Great Lakes form the natural boundaries; but there is a vast stretch of prairie land beyond with no natural demarcation. The boundary marks here are pillars of iron and wood placed at intervals of one mile. They have been alternately supplied by the two Governments, and may be seen from the Lake of the Woods to the Red River Valley. Beyond that the marks are mounds of earth and cairns of stone.

CHURCH IS MAKING STRIDES AS NEVER BEFORE

Says Rev. J. R. Webb in His Special Sermon

That the Church was making strides as never before, is because the Church to-day was preaching Christ crucified, was one of several points elucidated by Rev. J. R. Webb, during the course of a special sermon in Murray Street Baptist Church last night.

Rev. Mr. Webb had taken exception to an editorial appearing in the Review in which it was said the Church was becoming more and more a secular institution; that the sermons preached, notably in metropolitan churches were not evangelical sermons and also that those who sought to preach the old and fundamental truths were regarded as intellectually and spiritually inferior to those who denounced a new fangled danger such as the turkey trot or the growth of the money trust. It is an easy thing for people to sit back in their seats and criticize because certain things did not materialize. That these things did not materialize was because they were not divine. We must always look for God's hand.

For fundamentals, the preacher declared that we should not go back 50, 75 or 100 years, but we must go back to the days of Christ. He did believe that to-day there was not the emphasis on the social side of the Church as in the time of Christ. But it should be. The evangelism of 50, 75 and 100 years ago was of God and served the purpose of that day just as one hundred other items on God's program had been used in days past and having served their purpose had ceased to be. We had no evangelistic meeting as in years gone by, but we had something better.

Rev. Mr. Webb gave the names of a number of famous men of the world and told of their work, which he held was inspired by God's spirit. Their work was for the uplifting of mankind.

As for the sermons being not evangelical, he could not think of one church, where such was the case. The metropolitan churches were teaching Christ crucified as they never did before, he said.

"Good Old Heff"

Down around the College Frank Heffernan's performances in the past are taken as the standard when judging a newcomer. "Faster than Heff" is an expression that is always heard when some new phenom breaks into the fold. We heard it about McCormick in the football season. Mac was some hide handler but his only comparison with Heff was in build. Denison is another on whom the label has been attached. He may have the speed, but he would have to go some to show the form of the famous Moose.

THE SPORTING WORLD

VARSITY--PETES BATTLE WILL BE INTERESTING

The fans are assured of a grand game of hockey at Brock Street rink to-morrow night, when the Varsity seven the new champions of the intercollegiate series will present their strongest line-up against the local seniors.

The Varsity management sent word to-day that they would send along the champion team, so there should be no feeling among the local fans that the game will be a tame exhibition.

Varsity won intercollegiate honors by defeating Queen's at the Arena on Saturday, and will challenge for the Stanley Cup.

The Intermediates go to Cobourg to-night in the special train and will line-up as they did at Port Hope.

HOCKEY

There appears to be considerable interest in the excursion to Cobourg to-night and the intermediates will have plenty of supporters for their game with the Lakeshore seven. A win for the locals means district honors, while a loss means a play-off.

The Strathconas defeated the Midgets 3-2 in a close and exciting game at the Brock street rink Saturday night between 7 and 8 o'clock. Armstrong played good hockey for the winners while Hayes was the shining light for the losers. M. Kenneally was referee.

The Machine Shop defeated the Armature Assembly seven 4—2 in an exciting game of hockey at the Brock street rink on Saturday evening between 6 and 7 o'clock.

The George Street Sunday School seven will play the St. John's Sunday School team to-night from 9 to 10. The following players are requested to be on hand at 8.30 sharp —Darling, Griffiths, Lowes, Knapman, Armstrong, Carlisle and Everett.

JIM THORPE JOKE PLAYER

Ball Players Say He Was Poor Hitter and Worse Fielder

WASHINGTON, D. C. Feb 10.—That Jim Thorpe the Carlisle Indian who has just signed with the New York Giants, is a joke ball-player, is the belief of five Washington players who were in the Eastern Carolina League in 1909 and batted against the Indian. They all state that Thorpe was only a fair minor league pitcher, a poor hitter and worse fielder, and that his only asset was speed on the bases, which availed little, as he seldom got on the bags.

The Indian's averages in the Carolina Association, a very 'bush' league, were poor.

CURLING

A meeting of all club members except skips will be held at the curling rink to-night at 7 o'clock.

Skips intending to enter rinks for the Oshawa Bonspiel are requested to have their entries in by Feb. 11.

GUELPH CLUB WILL BE STRONG

The Guelph club has received the signed contracts of Jack Fryer and Billy Wright, the two hard hitting outfielders of last year. This makes the outfield complete as Joe Dunn has sent in his contract before.

Another contract which arrived was that of a pitcher named Way, who lives in Penetang. He was tendered a contract by the Montreal International League team but preferred a season in the Canadian League.

A long letter was received from Manager Louis Cook. It contained the news that he had received the signed contract of Roy Schuyler, the elongated twirler who played last season with Hamilton and Ottawa. He was the property of the Baltimore club, but has received his release. Manager Louie Cook also states that he has accepted the terms of three new pitchers, and two infielders, and is dickering for several more.

A letter received from Schaeffer of last year's team, states that he is not satisfied with the figures in his contract and has refused to sign.

A Curious Church.

The most singular church in the world is probably St. John's, at Davos Platz, in Switzerland. Davos Platz is over 5,000 feet about sea level and is famous as a winter resort for consumptives on account of its great purity of air and protection from high winds. St. John's Church is a very small building, but nevertheless it has two steeples. One of these is much larger than the other, towering high above the church and presenting a most singular appearance, being twisted after the manner of a corkscrew. The steeples contain some fine chimes, which in ancient times were used to sound the alarm when there was a threatened invasion of wild animals.

Narrowly Escaped Drowning.

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 10.—Gordon Weese and his cousin, Gretta Weese, both of Prince Edward County, on Friday night, while driving on the bay, lost their way owing to a blinding snowstorm. The horse broke through the ice and was drowned, and the young couple had a narrow escape. The animal was valued at $250.

Child's Miraculous Escape.

KINGSTON, Feb. 10.—Margaret Gilmour, aged four, deaf and dumb, was struck by a street car and had a miraculous escape. She was carried a block on the fender and suffered serious injuries to the head. This is the second time she has been struck by a car.

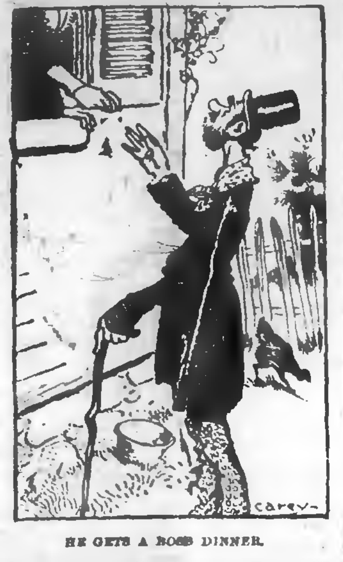
Take the Problem of the Duel Home to Dinner With You and Let the Children Puzzle Over It—They Won't Eat So Much.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.]

TWO men who regarded their sacred honor as at stake go out to fight a duel. One shoots a calf in a field and the other pops a farmer sitting on a fence, and they shake hands and declare their sacred honors freed from all stains. How much sacred honor does it take to fill a flour sack, and how long would it take a grasshopper to eat the whole business up?

A tramp hires out to a farmer for $14 per month. He gets a boss dinner, works an hour and skips. Counting the dinner worth 30 cents, how much did he make? Counting the three bites he got from the farmer's dog at 25 cents each, how much did he lose?



HE GETS A BOSS DINNER.

Jones sells his farm for $3,000 and invests the money in mining stock, paying a dividend of 10 per cent. How long will it take the company to absorb his capital and leave him as flat as a pancake?

A citizen who thinks it would be nice to have fresh eggs every day buys thirteen fowls at 60 cents each, lumber to the amount of $12, hires a man for $5 to build a park and in three months pays out $4.20 for feed. In the twelve weeks he gets four dozen eggs and loses five hens by death and mysterious disappearance. How much have his eggs cost him per dozen?

A father pays $200 to educate his daughter in music, $50 to enable her to say "good day" in French, $100 to give her lessons in painting, $25 to learn to dance. She then marries a man who is working on a salary of $14 per week. How much will she save by doing her own kitchen work for five years, estimating a girl's salary at $2.50 per week?

A boy buys a harvest apple for a cent. He gives a boy a taste for a kite worth 4 cents, another boy a small bite for a marble worth a penny, a third boy a big bite for a jackknife worth 6 cents and then has enough left to get up a case of colic worth $7. How much does he make by the speculation?

A servant girl works in a certain family for three weeks at $3 per week. She breaks four goblets at 28 cents each, three teacups valued at 20 cents apiece, throws $1.20 worth of bread and biscuit into the alley and gets away with half a set of knives and forks costing $3. How much is the family out of pocket?

A druggist mixes three ounces of water and 3 cents' worth of powder together and charges 56 cents for the prescription. Estimating the water at 80 cents and his time at 20, how much does he lose? It's curious, but druggists lose money just that way.

At $6 per ton how many tons of coal can be bought for $24? (The greenborn will answer "fourjtons.")

A stagecoach robber was enabled to lay up $4,580 in ten months, but a Niagara Falls hackman salted down $8,265 in nine. How much better is it to rob at Niagara Falls than out west?

A tramp gets a cold biscuit at one house, a piece of meat at another, an old vest at the third, and the owner of the fourth house runs him three blocks with a dog. How much more does the tramp respect the fourth person than the other three combined?

It takes twenty blows of a hammer in the hands of a woman to drive a ten-penny nail three inches. She misses the nail twice where she hits it once. How many blows does she strike in all, and how far can her voice be heard when she strikes her thumb?

A gentleman who has a library of 12,000 volumes opens ten volumes per year. At this rate how long will it take him to reach the last book?

Only one newspaper man out of every sixty-five ever has a sharp knife but only one lawyer out of every 121 carries a lead pencil. How much better is it to be a newspaper man than a lawyer?

In the vaults of a state treasury is $500,000, and the treasurer starts for Mexico. How much does he leave behind him?

In one month the owner of a three minute horse lied ninety-four times regarding his speed. At this rate how many times would he lie in a year, and how would it help the speed of the horse any?

A schoolteacher gives a pupil fourteen paragraphs in the science of government, thirteen examples in arithmetic, three pages of history, one page of grammar, one of orthography and half an hour of writing as a daily lesson and expects him to pass 75 per cent. At this rate how long will it take her to rush him into a lunatic asylum?

If a lawyer charges a plumber $5 for advice and the plumber charges the lawyer $5.50 for stopping a leak in a water pipe, how much is the lawyer ahead?

A saloonist buys a barrel of whisky in bulk and draws two barrels from it by the drink. There is nothing to figure on this. The figuring was all done by the saloonist.

A poor man who has forty feet of sidewalk cleans it twenty-four times between Dec. 1 and Feb. 28, while a rich man with 400 feet does not clean his once. Where does the poor man get ahead of him, and why is it that a rich man never falls on the ice and drives his coat buttons up to his shoulder blades?

In a schoolroom are twelve benches and nine boys on a bench. Find who stole the teacher's gad.

A laundress takes in twelve shirts and has four stolen from her line. How many are left, and what are the losers going to do about it?

A farmer sold eleven bushels of potatoes, and the product purchased two gallons of whisky at 90 cents per gallon. How much per bushel did he get for his tubers, and where did he keep the jug?

What velocity must a locomotive have to pick up a deaf man walking on the track and fling him so high that six cars pass before he comes down?

A boy earned 20 cents per day for eighteen days and bought his mother a muskrat muff costing $2.10. How much did he have left to go to the circus with?

All the Vowels In One Word.

There are but six words in the English language which contain all the vowels in regular order—viz, abstemious, arsenious, anenious, facetious, materious and tragedious. There is but one word which contains them in regular reverse order, and that word is duoliteral. Besides the above there are 149 English words which contain all the vowels in irregular order. Twelve of these begin with the letter a, seven with b, twenty-three with c, sixteen with d, fourteen with e, four with f, seven with g, one with h, six with i, two with j, two with m, two with n, two with o, thirteen with p, one with q, five with r, nine with s, two with t, fifteen with u and six with v.

SUFFERED FROM VIOLENT CATHARTICS

The Warning of Mr. Geo. C. Fox Is One That Should Be Heeded by All.

Few men on the road are better known than genial George Fox, whose friends throughout the West are legion. In the following letter he expresses gratitude for signal services rendered by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. He goes on to say: "Until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills and experienced their wonderful mildness and curative power, I estimated the value of every pill by its activity. Talking about this to a well-known physician I met on the train the other day, he explained there are different kinds of drugs that act upon the bowels, the most active being known as drastic. Except in extreme cases where the life of the patient depends upon speedy evacuation of the bowels, pills should never be drastic. Purgatives cause catarrh of the bowels and inflammation, their dose must be increased, causing even more harm. With such a clear explanation I could see why Dr. Hamilton's Pills are curative and not irritating, why they are mild, yet most searching.

"From my experience I recommend everyone that takes pills to give up the old-fashioned harsh, purging pill, and, instead, to use Dr. Hamilton's. They cure headache, biliousness, constipation, bad stomach, and keep the system in perfect condition."

USED PAINTED SAFE.

Cardboard Picture Screened Burglars From View.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—A safe of painted cardboard, to the eye an exact reproduction of a real safe they planned to rifle, was prepared by burglars, who Friday night broke into a First avenue saloon. The real safe stood beneath an electric light kept burning all night and in full view of the street. The artists who conceived the plan intended to substitute the cardboard strong box for the steel one and then to blow the real safe unmolested in a dark corner of the saloon. Something frightened them away, however, before they accomplished their purpose, for the proprietor on Saturday found that after breaking in the thieves fled, leaving their dummy behind them.

Ontario People Lucky.

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—Preliminary report of the administrator of the estate of David S. Wilson, an Oregon, Ill., farmer, who died recently, leaving more than $1,000,000 in securities in a safe deposit box in Chicago, is to the effect that all heirs to the estate have been located. The report was made public yesterday to halt the steady flow of letters and telegrams from persons who believe themselves entitled to a share in the property. Miss Rhoda Lee of Ontario, an aunt, and descendants of David Nelson Brown, an uncle, are said to be the only heirs.

He Gave Them a Chance.

EDINBURGH, Feb. 10.—Suffragettes gave James Keir Hardie, the Socialist and independent labor member for Merthyr-Tydfil, a warm reception at a meeting here Saturday night. Although he assured them of the labor party's support in having the next bill made a Government measure, the women rose, one after another, and denounced him. He ordered the police to let them speak, but after one of them had talked for half an hour the chairman had her removed forcibly. This created a great tumult.

A Murder Tip.

"Excuse me," said the detective as he presented himself at the door of the music academy, "but I hope you'll give me what information you have and not make any fuss."

"What do you mean," was the indignant inquiry.

"Why, that little affair, you know."

"I don't understand."

"Why, you see, we got a tip from the house next door that somebody here was murdering Richard Strauss, and the chief sent me down to work up the case."—London Mail.

ONE MORE OFFICER, INCREASED SALARIES, NO TYPEWRITER AND NO "BLACK MARIA"

Magistrate Dumble Recommends Better Police Protection for Jackson Park—Too Many Young Girls Frequent the Place—All Persons Should be Out by Nine o'Clock.

The recommendation of Chief of Police Thompson for increased police protection for the city was discussed by the Commissioners at some length. The Chief recommended two new men but Mayor Bradburn felt that the expense of two men was more than the city could reasonably stand at present.

Police Magistrate Dumble advised more protection by the police for Jackson Park. He was of the opinion that too many young girls and young men were allowed to frequent the Park at late hours during the summer months.

Chief Thompson was also certain that many young girls were ruined around the park in the summer evenings.

ALL OUT AT NINE.

"I don't think people should be allowed to be there after nine o'clock at night," was the view of the Magistrate. He moved a resolution that application be made to the Park Commissioners to fix an hour when persons in Jackson Park should be required to leave.

Judge Huyoke considered nine o'clock too early an hour, and he felt doubtful if the Commissioners had a right to interfere.

Chief Thompson thought a man in uniform stationed at the park would have a salutary effect. No seconder was forthcoming for the Magistrate's motion.

Mayor Bradburn favored the Police Commissioners consulting the Park Commissioners in reference to the matter.

Statistics of a comparative character were presented by the Chief, all of which brought out the fact that other cities were more adequately manned with police than Peterborough.

"A good police force has a good effect," said Magistrate Dumble, "inasmuch as it deters wrong doers from coming to the city."

It was moved by the Magistrate, seconded by Mayor Bradburn, and carried, that one additional man be added to the local police force, and that an advertisement be inserted for applicants, at an initial salary of $600.

THE BLACK MARIA.

Another important recommendation of the Chief was the desirability of a patrol wagon. Magistrate Dumble said that such a recommendation was all right on the surface, but it would represent considerable expense to the city. The matter was not further discussed and no action was taken in reference to the recommendation.

Mr. George Cochrane, who made application to the Commissioners for an increase of salary, was called in and explained the nature of his duties as Truant Officer. He felt that there was a considerable bit of running around to do now, seeing that about twenty-four hundred children in the city were attending school.

"I certainly think he ought to get a raise," said Magistrate Dumble, "although I am not ready to state how much."

Later it was moved by Commissioner Dumble that Mr. Cochrane's salary be raised by $50, to take effect from the first of the year.

Chief Thompson also asked for a typewriter for use in sending out circulars etc., which are now being printed by the newspaper companies.

The Chief did not favor a suggestion by the Mayor, that the stenographers in the City Clerk's office be asked to do the Chief's typewriting after five o'clock. The motion was left standing.

Chief Thompson also brought in recommendations for salary increases for the whole police force, specially mentioning the names of P.C. Sills and P.C. Reid. "The latter are both very good men, and with long experience," remarked Commissioner Dumble.

The Commissioners revised the scale of salaries, the results of which are given. The increases for P.C. Sills and Reid will go into effect after June 1st.

WHAT POLICE COMMISSION DID

Added one man to Police Department.

Raised the salaries of the force.

Took no action re police patrol wagon.

Raised salary of Truant Officer George Cochrane $50.

The following shows the old and new salaries—

Police Chief	$1300	$1400
Detective Newhall	850	900
Sergeant Adams	775	800
P. C. Meagher	700	750
P. C. Brown	700	750
P. C. Sills	600	650
P. C. Reid	600	650
P. C. McGinty	625	625
P. C. Bullied	600	600
T. O. Cochrane	100	150

The efficiency and good services of Chief of Police Thompson and the Police Department were properly recognized on Saturday afternoon by the Police Commissioners, who raised salaries all round with the one exception as noted in the foregoing tabulated figures. The estimates for the year amount to $9500, which is $1100 more than the year 1912.

30 DEGREES BELOW YEAR AGO TO-DAY

Mark of 17 Below Reached This Morning

There was a decided feeling of frost in the atmosphere this morning, as those who were out at an early hour will frankly acknowledge. The official figures were 17 degrees below zero. What little wind there was came from the north, showing that the centre of the cold wave was to the north, and that the cold in that direction was still more intense. A year ago this morning (Feb. 10th, 1912) the official figures for Peterborough were 30 degrees below zero, the coldest day of the winter, and in fact for about 20 years.—W.P.

ENTERTAINED BY FIRE CHIEF

Through the hospitality and kindness of Fire Chief Howard and Mrs. Howard, a very pleasant time was spent at their comfortable home on Saturday night by about twenty-five invited guests. The staff of the City Buildings, Police Chief Thompson and Mrs. Thompson, and Mr. George Thompson, representatives of the Press and others were among those invited.

Euchre, music and refreshments comprised the program of pleasure which came to an end all too soon.

Chief Howard, Mrs. Howard and their son were all voted excellent hosts and entertainers, and in dispersing everybody joined in the singing of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

CITY COUNCIL HAS BIG PROBLEM TO DISCUSS TO-NIGHT

Requests for an Increase in Salary From the City Officials.

To-night at eight o'clock the Committee of the whole Council are going to discuss salary increases for the various civic officials who have applied, and for the members of the Fire Department. This is a task which is expected to furnish some perplexities and a considerable amount of planning, and which the Council have been glad to shelve until it has been found to postpone it longer.

The Committee will have to deal with the question of increases for the City Solicitor, Mr. E. H. D. Hall; City Clerk S. R. Armstrong; Relief Officer, F. W. Miller; City Treasurer, Frank Adams; Tax Collector, W. J. Green, Fire Chief, W. A. Howard, and the members of the Fire Department.

The Chief of the Department is now receiving $1,200 per annum, and will ask to be remunerated at the rate of $1,500 a year.

The Girl Guides

The Girl Guides will meet at the Y.W.C.A., Wednesday afternoon, at 4.15 o'clock, instead of Tuesday afternoon.

CLARIFIED MILK TO BE SOLD IN STERILIZED BOTTLES

Sanitary Dairy to be Opened Here Next Week by Mr. George A. Gillespie.

Lovers of pure food will be pleased to learn that a sanitary dairy is to be opened in this city next week—a dairy where milk will be pasteurized and put in sterilized bottles.

Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie is at the head of this new City Dairy and has secured the most modern equipment and added it to the plant of the Peterborough Creamery. It includes a centrifugal clarifier of unlimited capacity, and a system by which the milk is successfully pasteurized. The clarifying process removes the suspended matters from the milk without separating the butter fat. It is practically a new process in this part of Ontario, and it represents the last word in sanitary milk production.

The best veterinaries make a physical examination to-day of a dairy herd, and may subject them to the tuberculin test and issue a clean certificate of health, yet no one dare vouchsafe to assume that this same herd will be absolutely free from tuberculosis within the next few months. This is where the recently perfected method of centrifugalization has shown surprising results, and its significance is appreciated to such an extent as to bring it into almost instant favor.

The accompanying illustration fittingly portrays the material that is removed from whole milk by the clarifying process.

The pasteurization of milk is a process of great importance from a public health standpoint. Well known authorities affirm that the time will come when pasteurized milk will be considered the only milk to use. Milk handled by the "City Dairy" will be fully pasteurized, after which it will be cooled and will then pass through sanitary pipes to the bottling machine. The entire process from beginning to end is accomplished by machinery alone. This also includes sanitary bottles that have been properly cleaned and sterilized by steam heat.

Both cream and milk will be delivered in vehicles especially adapted for the purpose. One week from to-day the new process will be put in operation and the deliveing of pasteurized milk commenced. 67

The tinsmith shop owned by Mr. Leonard was very badly damaged. Mr. J. Wanamaker and family who occupied the rooms over the tinsmith shop, got out with their furniture, with the aid of the firemen. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

CITY COUNCIL IN TOUCH WITH ANOTHER BIG CONCERN

Mayor Bradburn Tells the Ad. Club That Peterboro's Prospects For Securing the Industry Are Bright—A Successful Noon Hour Meeting.

One of the largest gatherings in the history of the Peterborough Ad Club dined at the noon hour to-day at Hooper's. Although having luncheon at mid-day was an experiment, it more than fulfilled expectations, seating accommodation being taxed to the limit.

President G. O. Cameron, recently elected to the position, presided and after everyone had partaken of a choice repast, he introduced His Worship Mayor Bradburn, who addressed the gathering on the advantages Peterborough offers, what the city has accomplished and what it intends to undertake. His remarks were filled with the spirit of progressiveness and found much favor and received hearty endorsement from all present.

President Cameron, [illegible] calling on the Mayor, briefly explained the objects of the Ad Club and pointed out what it was striving to accomplish, namely, the booming of Peterborough in every way. He hoped to see the Club co-operating and working hand-in-hand with the Board of Trade for the advancement of the city's interests.

"You may smile when I mention the Board of Trade," remarked Mr. Cameron, "but we have such an organization, nevertheless; the Board of Trade in Peterborough is not dead, it is only resting."

In commencing his address, Mayor Bradburn explained the origin of the many names that Peterborough has received from time to time. First, the great number of plate glass store fronts earned for it the appellation of the "Plate Glass City." When the Canadian General Electric Works located here it became known as the "Electric City," a name which still clings. The construction of the Hydraulic Lift Lock elicited the title of the "Lift Lock City" and the list of names was capped by the coming of the Quaker Oats Company, giving Peterborough its somewhat familiar but popular cognomen of the "Porridge City."

The growth of Peterborough has been remarkable. From [illegible] to [illegible], the increase in population was 4.7 per cent. Between [illegible] and 1890 it grew at the rate of 12 per cent and between 1901 and 1911 the population grew at the rate of [illegible] per cent, which is far and away in advance of every other Ontario city in comparison to size, with the exception of one.

"Peterborough has some big undertakings ahead of it," continued the Mayor, "involving heavy expenditures, and not the least of these is the proposed outfall sewer. Another will be either a high level bridge into Ward five or a bridge at Dalhousie street. The Hunter street structure will cost in the neighborhood of $87,000. Mayor Bradburn spoke of the immense possibilities that Ward five offers to manufacturers. This was also true in the North Ward, and he regretted that manufacturers failed to recognize their opportunities in the wards besides the south end of the city.

After referring to the recently acquired DeLaval and Henry [illegible] industries, His Worship said that the Council had just about closed a deal with a big and prosperous American concern which employs 400 hands at their home plant. The prospects were bright for getting them here, although the hardest proposition was to make them state the number of employes they proposed to commence with.

Continuing, Mayor Bradburn spoke of the Hydro-Electric proposition in which $120,000 is to be invested.

"I am positive that what is put into Hydro-Electric will return to you three and four fold," said the Mayor, "and the ratepayer and citizen who takes light from a home industry is simply doing business with himself and for the benefit of himself.

His Worship also stated that the opposition party on Hydro-Electric would be dealt with by the City as agreeably as possible and receive
